DOG RACING.

RED RIVER DERBY.

In a race with dog teams from Winnipeg, Man., to St. Paul, Minn., a distance by the route taken of 509.5 miles, Albert Campbell, a Creek half-breed from the Hudson bay district, was the winner. Bill Grayson was second, Joe Metcalf third, Gabriel Campbell, brother of the winner, fourth, and Fred Hartman, the only American in the race, fifth. The race began at noon Jan. 24, and the winner crossed the tape at 12:44 p. m. Feb. 3. The route was by way of Morris, Man.; Pembina, Hamilton, Ardock and Fargo, N. D.; Rothsay, Dayton, Alexandria, St. Cloud, Clear Lake and Elk River, Minn. Hartman's team was weakened early in the race by a fight between the dogs, in which one of them was killed, and he finished with only three animals. He himself was in bad shape, but his pluck and endurance made him the hero of the contest, and he received money gifts more than equaling the first prize of $500 won by Campbell. Deep snowdrifts and severe cold handicapped the contestants, making the time comparatively slow.

RACE FOR BORDEN TROPHY.

The annual twenty-six mile dog race for the silver cup presented by John Borden took place at Nome, Alaska, Feb. 22, 1917, and was won by Fred Ayer's team in 1:55:46, breaking all records for the distance.

ALL-ALASKA SWEEPSTAKES.

Leonard Seppala, driving a team of Siberian wolf dogs, won the All-Alaska sweepstakes dog race April 14, 1917. His time, 113 hours 34 minutes, was nearly forty hours slower than the record for the course of 412 miles from Nome to Candle and return, but he was delayed nearly two days by a blizzard. His dogs averaged 7.83 miles an hour. The race was for a purse of $2,500. Seppala was also the winner in 1915 and 1916.

FOOTBALL RESULTS IN 1917.

SOME NOTABLE PERFORMANCES IN 1917.

At the Millrose A. A. games in Madison Square garden, New York city, Jan. 24, 1917, Joie Ray of the Illinois Athletic club won the 1½ mile race in 6:45, bettering the record made by Tommy Conneff at Bergen Point, Sept. 2, 1895, by 1½ seconds. Robert Simpson of the University of Missouri won the 70 yard low hurdle race in :08½, taking ⅓ of a second off the old mark. He also broke the 70 yard high hurdle record by making the distance in :09, clipping ⅓ of a second off the previous record.

Irwin Mahl of the Colonial A. C., St. Louis, won a fifty yard invitation race at the 2d regiment indoor meet in Chicago Jan. 27, 1917, in :05½, tying the world's record for the distance.

In Madison Square garden, New York, Feb. 13, Joie Ray of the Illinois Athletic club of Chicago made two miles in 9:11½, beating the old American indoor record set by George V. Bonhag in 1910 by nearly three seconds.

Joie Ray ran two miles in 9:36½ in the 1st regiment armory, Chicago, Feb. 23, 1917. This, though far from equaling his American record made in New York, broke the Central Amateur Athletic union record for the distance by nearly five seconds.

Sol Butler, colored, of Dubuque, Iowa, equaled the world's record of :04½ in the 40-yard dash in the 1st regiment armory, Chicago, Feb. 23, 1917.

Andrew B. Kelly of Holy Cross college ran 300 yards in :31½ in the 23d regiment armory, New York, March 17, 1917, making a new world's indoor record.

John W. Overton of Yale ran 1,000 yards in 2:14 in the 23d regiment armory, New York, March 17, 1917—a new world's indoor record.

Irwin Mahl equaled the world's record of :08½ at Louisville, Ky., March 24, when he defeated Jo Loomis in an 80 yard dash.

Murchison of the Missouri A. C. lowered the world's record for the 80 yard dash to :07½ in Louisville, Ky., March 24.

On Franklin field, Philadelphia, Pa., April 28, C. Larsen of Brigham Young university made a high jump of 6 feet 5½ inches, breaking the collegiate record of 6 feet 5 inches made by Alva Richards of Cornell in 1915.

Olympian records to date are as follows:

YACHTING.

THE AMERICA'S CUP.

RECORD OF RACES.

1851—Aug. 22. In this, the year of the great exhibition in London, the Royal Yacht Club of England offered a cup to the winner of a yacht race around the Isle of Wight. The course was 66 miles in length. The race was won by the schooner yacht America, designed by George Steers for John C. Stevens of the New York Yacht club. The America was 94 feet over all, 38 feet on the water line, 22½ feet beam and 11½ feet draft. There was no time allowance and the competing yachts ranged in size from a three-masted 392-ton schooner, the Brilliant, to the 47-ton cutter the Aurora, which came in second in the race. The time of the America was 10 hours and 34 minutes; that of the Aurora was 24 minutes slower. The cup after that became known as the America's cup and has now been successfully defended for sixty-seven years.

Owing mainly to a disagreement as to the proper size of the competing yachts no races were arranged after 1903 until 1913, when an agreement was reached between the New York Yacht club and the Royal Ulster club to hold a race in 1914. Sir Thomas Lipton sent over the Shamrock IV. as challenger for the cup, but the great war in Europe put a stop to all further proceedings.

THE LIPTON CUP.

Racing for the Lipton cup was resumed at Chicago in 1917 under the auspices of the Columbia Yacht club after an interval of three years, when the contests were suspended on account of the war. The trophy was won by the Mebleh, owned by Commodore H. R. Huntington of the Cleveland Yacht club, with a final standing of 275 points. Pam, also of Cleveland, was second with 250, the Otter of the Lincoln Park club was third with 125 points, and the Sari, likewise of the Lincoln Park club, fourth with 100 points.

INLAND LAKE ASSOCIATION.

The Inland Lake Yachting association's annual regatta, which was scheduled for Lake Minnetonka in 1917, was declared off on account of the war. The president of the association is Dr. O. L. Schmidt of Chicago and the secretary-treasurer D. D. Harmon of Oshkosh, Wis.

MILITARY DRILL.

The St. Louis Browns won a prize of $500 offered to teams of the American Baseball league by its president, B. B. Johnson, in the spring of 1917 for the best drilled team in military tactics. The competitive drills took place in August with Lieut.-Col. Raymond Sheldon, U. S. A., as judge. The points taken into consideration besides the military drill proper were punctuality, number in team, appearance, military courtesy, variety of movements and discipline. Washington was second, Cleveland third, Chicago fourth, Boston fifth, Detroit sixth, New York seventh and Philadelphia eighth.

TENNIS.

NATIONAL CHAMPIONSHIPS.

America's entry into the world war curtailed the tennis game in the United States in 1917, and most of the tournaments that took place were for the purpose of swelling ambulance and other war funds. The national event in singles was called the "national patriotic lawn tennis tournament." It was held at Forest Hills, L. I., Aug. 20-25 and was won by R. Lindley Murray of Niagara Falls, N. Y., who in the finals defeated Nathaniel W. Niles of Boston by the score of 5-7, 8-6, 6-3, 6-3.

The national doubles patriotic tournament was held on the grounds of the Longwood Cricket club, Boston, Aug. 1-13, and ended with a victory for Frederick B. Alexander and Harold Throckmorton of New York, who defeated Irving C. Wright and H. C. Johnson of Boston 11-9, 6-4, 6-4. In the mixed doubles Miss Mary Browne of California and N. W. Biles of Boston defeated Mrs. G. W. Wightman and R. Norris Williams of Philadelphia 4-6, 6-1, 6-4.

RECORD FOR DISTANCE.

The record for distance traveled in a balloon in continuous flight in a race is held by Maurice Bernadins of France, who made 1,354 miles in contesting for the James Gordon Bennett cup Oct. 27-29, 1912. In 1900 Count de la Vaux made a journey of 1,193 miles and in 1910 Alan B. Hawley and Augustus Post covered 1,171 miles.

Hans Berliner with two passengers made a balloon flight Feb. 8-16, 1914, from Bitterfeld, Germany, to Kirgischansk, in the Ural mountains, Russia. The distance is approximately 1,800 miles.

The record for distance traveled over water in a dirigible balloon is held by Walter Wellman, who on Oct. 15-18, 1910, made approximately 1,000 miles in an attempt to cross the Atlantic in the America.

RECORD FOR HEIGHT.

The record for height made in an ordinary gas balloon is 23,750 feet. It was made by Prof. Berson of Berlin, Dec. 4, 1894. A record of nearly 33,000 feet was claimed for the French balloon Icare in 1913.

The world's dirigible balloon record for altitude is 9,514 feet. It was made by the French dirigible Clement-Bayard III. May 20, 1912. The balloon carried six passengers.

MOTORING.

The automobile racing game in 1917 was greatly hindered by the war, and some of the annual events were eliminated entirely. Interest was confined to speedway racing. Fatal accidents were few owing to better precautions and the reduction in the number of road races and contests on dirt tracks.

TWENTY-FOUR HOUR RECORD.

Joe Dawson in a Chalmers car made a new world's record for twenty-four hours by running 1,900½ miles on the Sheephead Bay speedway Aug. 2, 1917. The best previous record was 1,819 miles by Ralph Mulford on the same track May 1-2, 1916.

ONE-HOUR RECORD.

Driving a Packard on the Sheephead Bay speedway at New York Nov. 12, 1917, Ralph De Palma made 112.4 miles in one hour. The best previous record was 167 miles by Jean Chassagne on the Brooklands track, England, in 1910.

TEN MILE RECORD AGAINST TIME.

William Rader, driving a Packard car on the Sheephead Bay speedway July 25, 1917, made ten miles in 4:55, or at the rate of 121½ miles an hour.

TRANSCONTINENTAL RECORDS.

The coast to coast records were established in 1916. In the order of their occurrence the performances were as follows:

Robert Hammond in an Empire car drove from

San Francisco to New York, a distance by the route taken of 3,384 miles, in 6 days 10 hours 59 minutes May 16-23. This lowered the record set the previous week by a Cadillac eight cylinder car, which made the trip from Los Angeles to New York in 7 days 11 hours 52 minutes.

Driving a Marmon 24, S. B. Stevens arrived in San Francisco at 5 p. m., July 29, just 5 days 18 hours 30 minutes out from New York city.

W. F. Sturm, driving a Hudson Super-Six, made the distance from San Francisco to New York in exactly 5 days 3 hours 31 minutes Sept. 13-18 and then made the return trip in 5 days 17 hours 32 minutes, making the time for the round trip 10 days 21 hours 3 minutes. The distance traveled was 6,592 miles.

CHICAGO-NEW YORK RECORD.

B. F. Durham and Al Walden drove from Chicago to New York in 31 hours fast June 6-7, 1916, the total mileage by the route taken being 1,047.

ROQUE.

NATIONAL CHAMPIONSHIP.

In the national roque tournament held in Norwich, Conn., ending Aug. 25, 1917, the medal winners were: First division, J. C. Kirk of Philadelphia, Pa.; second division, Rev. R. C. Zartmann, Wilmington, Del.; third division, Irving Miner, East Greenwich, R. I. Harold Clark, the former champion, did not compete.

INTERSTATE CHAMPIONSHIP.

J. C. Lathrop of the Washington Park club, Chicago, won the diamond medal representing the interstate roque championship in a series of seven games at Milton, Ind., Aug. 1, 1917.

WESTERN CHAMPIONSHIP.

Charles C. King of Chicago won the championship of the Western Roque association in the Lincoln Park tournament, Chicago, ending July 9, 1917, by defeating John D. Kramer of West Alexandria, O., in straight games.

TRISTATE CHAMPIONSHIP.

C. C. King won the tristate roque tournament at Warsaw, Ind., July 23, 1917, with an average of 93.

WRESTLING.

CADDOCK VS. STECHER.

Earl Caddock of Anita, Iowa, won the heavy-weight wrestling championship of the world from Joe Stecher of Dodge county, Nebraska, in Omaha, Neb., April 9, 1917. Stecher won the first fall in 1:22:00 with a scissors and body hold. Caddock, after fifty-five minutes of wrestling, put Stecher's shoulders to the mat with a head scissors and English bar lock, but the referee refused to allow the fall. However, after forty minutes more of wrestling, Caddock won the fall with a full nelson hold. Stecher refused to come to the mat for the third round, and the fall and match were awarded to Caddock. It was the first time Stecher had lost a fall in his career as a wrestler.

LEWIS VS. OLIN.

Ed (Strangler) Lewis and John Olin wrestled for two hours and thirty-seven minutes in the Coliseum, Chicago, May 2, 1917, without a fall. Olin then conceded the fall and match, claiming a lame shoulder. Frank Gotch was the referee.

LEWIS VS. ZBYZSKO.

Ed Lewis defeated Wladek Zbyzsko in a wrestling match in Boston, July 4, 1917, winning two out of three falls. Zbyzsko took the first fall in 57:45 with a head lock and roll. Lewis then secured with a body fall and front nelson in 24:44, and was conceded a second fall after a few minutes more of wrestling when Zbyzsko, who had been tossed out of the ring, appeared to be in such distress that his manager declined to allow him to continue.

INTERCOLLEGIATE CHAMPIONSHIP.

Cornell university's wrestling team won the intercollegiate wrestling championship from Pennsylvania, Lehigh, Princeton and Columbia at Ithaca, N. Y., March 17, 1917. The score was: Cornell, 32; Pennsylvania, 15; Lehigh, 15; Princeton, 8; Columbia, 0.

POWER BOAT RACING.

GOLD CHALLENGE CUP.

The annual contest for the gold challenge cup of the American Power Boat association took place Aug. 25, 26 and 27, 1917, on the Mississippi river at Minneapolis, Minn. The event was won by Miss Detroit II., owned by G. A. Wood. On the first day its average speed was 50.7 miles an hour, on the second day 56.3 miles an hour and on the third day 56.11 miles an hour. By points in the standing at the close was: Miss Detroit II., 15; Miss Minneapolis, winner in 1916, 12, and Hawkeye II., 6.

In the speed trials, six one-mile dashes, on Aug. 28, Miss Detroit won the North American one mile championship with an average speed of 61.72 miles an hour.

ALEXANDRIA BAY RACES.

Displacement boats raced for the Herald trophy and hydroplanes for the Championship Challenge cup at Alexandria Bay, N. Y., Aug. 8, 9 and 11, 1917. The Herald trophy was won by The Rat, owned by J. J. Hart with 13 points, Kiota III., owned by R. S. Waldron, was second with 12 points. The Championship Challenge cup was won by Miss Detroit II., owned by G. A. Wood.

MEN UNDER ARMS.

Estimates of the number of men actually called to the colors in the world war vary from 40,000,000 to more than 50,000,000. The former figure represents substantially the estimate made by the war department in Washington, while the latter is given in a booklet entitled "The Cost of the War," compiled and published by the Mechanics and Metals National bank of New York city. Taking the larger estimate first the number of men credited to the principal belligerents is as follows:

Allies.		Central Powers.
United States	2,000,000	Austria	10,500,000
British empire	7,500,000	Austria-Hungary	7,000,000
France	6,000,000	Bulgaria	500,000
Russia	14,000,000	Turkey	2,000,000
Italy	2,500,000
Belgium, Serbia, Portugal	1,000,000	Total	20,000,000
Total	33,000,000	Grand total	53,000,000

It will be noted that Japan, Roumania and a number of other belligerent countries are omitted from this compilation. The war department's estimate is more conservative and in some respects probably nearer the actual truth, though it has also been criticized.

WAR DEPARTMENT ESTIMATE (OCT. 22, 1917).

Allies.		Central Powers.
Russia	9,000,000	Roumania	320,000
France	6,000,000	Serbia	300,000
Great Britain	5,000,000	Belgium	300,000
Italy	3,000,000	Greece	300,000
Japan	1,400,000	Portugal	200,000
United States	1,000,000	Montenegro	40,000
China	541,000	Siam	36,000
		Cuba	11,000

Total	27,448,400

Central Powers.

Germany	7,000,000
---------------	-----------

To the allied total should be added 100,000 men for Brazil, 1,000 for San Marino and perhaps 300 for Panama.

NAVAL PERSONNEL.

The naval strength in men of the various belligerents, according to the latest information, is approximately as follows (in November, 1917):

Allies.	Portugal	1,200
Britain	Total	860,000
United States..	Central Powers.
France	Germany	200,000
Russia	Austria
Italy	Hungary	20,000
Japan	Turkey	2,000
Brazil	Total	222,000
China	Grand total..	1,087,200
Greece

Adding this to the total land strength makes the grand total of all the men under arms according to this compilation 39,135,600. This, of course, is exclusive of munition workers and others employed directly in connection with the war.

GERMANY'S MAN POWER.

Sept. 9, 1917, The Associated Press correspondent at the French army headquarters gave the following figures showing the man power of Germany and the casualties:

Fixed formations.....	5,500,000
Undergoing formation.....	600,000
Killed, crippled and prisoners.....	4,000,000
Wounded under treatment.....	500,000
Total	10,600,000

NAVIES OF BELLIGERENTS.

For obvious reasons the naval strength of each of the nations at war has been kept secret. The latest official figures for the European powers were published nearly four years ago and are consequently out of date. They may, however, serve as a guide, even now, to the relative naval strength of Britain, Germany, France, Italy and Russia. A recapitulation is given elsewhere in this volume of the vessels lost by all the belligerents. The relative order of warship tonnage of the principal belligerent countries in 1914 was:

Great Britain.....	2,157,850	Japan	519,640
Germany	951,713	Italy	285,460
United States.....	765,133	Russia	270,861
France	688,840	Austria-Hungary	221,526

By types of warships the comparative figures were:

Countries.	Dread-noughts.	Battle ships.	Ar-mored cruis-ers.	Cruis-ers.	De-stroy-ers.	Tor-pe-do boats.	Sub-mar-ines.	Coast-def-ense ves-sels.
England	20	40	9	34	74	187	49	75
Germany	13	20	4	9	41	130	..	27
United States (to July 1, 1916).....	12	21	..	10	14	54	..	44
France	3	18	..	20	9	84	135	64
Japan	2	13	2	13	13	50	27	13
Russia	0	7	..	6	9	91	14	30
Italy	3	8	..	9	6	32	68	19
Austria-Hungary	3	6	..	2	5	13	39	6

It is known that new warships in considerable numbers have been added to the fleets of all the powers, but it may be assumed that the rate of increase has been about the same in each case. The increase in the number of de-stroyers and submarines has been especially large.

FINANCIAL RESOURCES OF BELLIGERENTS.

It has been estimated that the national wealth of the allied nations amounts to more than $600,000,000, while that of the central powers is approximately $130,000,000. In this estimate the United States is credited with $250,000,000, the British empire with $130,000,000, France with $65,000,000 and Italy with $30,000,000. Germany is given $85,000,000 and Austria-Hungary $40,000,000. The figures for the United States are probably too high and those for Great Britain too low, but that does not alter the fact that the combined wealth of the allied nations is between four and five times greater than the total wealth of the central powers.

CASUALTIES IN THE WAR.

Estimates of the casualties in the world war vary greatly, as Great Britain and the United States are the only countries now publishing casualty lists. March 11, 1917, the following figures were obtained from an authoritative source in Washington, D. C.:

	Killed.	*Wounded.	Missing.	Total.
England	236,400	102,500	107,500	446,400
France	370,000	540,500	400,000	1,310,500
Russia	1,500,000	784,200	300,000	3,084,200
Italy	105,000	49,000	55,000	209,000
Belgium	50,000	22,000	40,000	112,000
Serbia	60,000	28,000		88,000
Total	2,790,400	1,526,500	1,402,500	5,719,400
Germany	893,200	450,000	245,000	1,588,200
Austria-Hun-gary	523,100	355,000	591,000	1,469,100
Turkey	127,000	110,000	70,000	307,000
Bulgaria	7,500	7,000	6,000	20,500
Total	1,550,800	922,000	912,000	3,384,800

*Permanently disabled. †Includes captured. These losses are based upon the assumption that in Germany 90 per cent of the total wounded return to the front and 80 per cent in all the other countries.

Some of the severest fighting in the war has taken place since the compilation was made and the figures should be increased by at least one-fourth.

In a compilation made by the Mechanics and Metals National bank of New York the killed and permanently disabled during the first three years of the war, or up to Aug. 1, 1917, were:

Country.	Dead.	Disabled.
England	307,500	231,000
France	1,232,500	951,000
Russia	2,250,000	1,719,000
Italy	157,500	110,000
Belgium	75,000	49,000
Serbia	165,000	63,000
Roumania	100,000	60,000
Entente allies.....	4,337,000	3,183,000
Germany	1,327,500	953,000
Austria-Hungary	1,077,000	799,000
Turkey	225,000	157,000
Bulgaria	37,500	27,000
Teutonic allies.....	2,667,000	1,936,000
Total, all.....	7,004,000	5,119,000

In the German reichstag Oct. 30, 1917, Herr Ledebour, socialist, said: "We have had 1,500,000 dead, 3,000,000 to 4,000,000 wounded, of whom 500,000 are crippled for life and 2,600,000 invalided. That makes altogether 6,000,000 men lost during three years."

In the absence of official data all compilations purporting to show the total casualties in the war are to be accepted with the utmost reserve.

The latest figures show that out of the troops engaged in battle not more than 107 per cent are killed.

MONEY COST OF THE WAR.

The most reliable figures on the cost of the world war are those issued by the United States treasury department in October. They cover the first three years of the war, ending Aug. 1, 1917:

*October, 1917.

On the basis of an expenditure of $116,700,000 a day after Aug. 1 the total money cost of the war up to Dec. 1, 1917, was $103,958,900,000. This does not include damage to property or other losses on land and sea due to the war.

PEACE PROPOSITIONS.

GERMAN OFFER IN DECEMBER, 1916.

The following note addressed by Germany and her allies to various neutral powers was made public Dec. 12, 1916:

"The most terrific war ever experienced in history has been raging for the last two years and a half over a large part of the world—a catastrophe which thousands of years of common civilization was unable to prevent and which injures the most precious achievements of humanity.

"Our aims are not to shatter nor annihilate our adversaries. In spite of our consciousness of our military and economic strength and our readiness to continue the war (which has been forced upon us) until the bitter end, if necessary; at the same time prompted by the desire to avoid further bloodshed and make an end to the atrocities of war, the four allied powers propose to enter forthwith into peace negotiations.

"The propositions which they bring forward for such negotiations and which have for their object a guaranty of the existence, of the honor and liberty of evolution for their nations are, according to their firm belief, an appropriate basis for the establishment of a lasting peace.

"The four allied powers have been obliged to take up arms to defend justice and the liberty of national evolution. The glorious deeds of our armies have in no way altered their purpose. We always maintained the firm belief that our own rights and justified claims in no way control the rights of these nations.

"The spiritual and material progress which were the pride of Europe at the beginning of the twentieth century are threatened with ruin. Germany and her allies, Austria-Hungary, Bulgaria and Turkey, gave proof of their unconquerable strength in this struggle. They gained gigantic advantages over adversaries superior in number and war material. Our lines stand unshaken against ever-repeated attempts made by armies.

"The latest attack in the Balkans has been rapidly and victoriously overcome. The most recent events have demonstrated that further continuance of the war will not result in breaking the resistance of our forces, and the whole situation with regard to our troops justifies our expectation of further successes.

"If in spite of this offer of peace and reconciliation, the struggle should go on, the four allied powers are resolved to continue to a victorious end, but they disclaim responsibility for this before humanity and history. The imperial government, through the good offices of your excellency, ask the government of [here is inserted the name of the neutral power addressed in each instance] to bring this communication to the knowledge of the governments of [here are inserted the names of the belligerents]."

NOTE TO THE VATICAN.

In a note addressed to Cardinal Gasparri, papal secretary of state, and transmitted through Dr. von Muhlberg, German minister to the Vatican, Germany explained the peace offer along the same lines as in the note to the neutral powers with some additions and variations. The defense plea was put in these words:

"Germany is carrying on a war of defense against her enemies, which aim at her destruction. She fights to assure the integrity of her frontiers and the liberty of the German nation for the right which she claims to develop freely her intellectual and economic energies in peaceful competition and on an equal footing with other nations."

STATEMENT BY AUSTRIA.

With the German peace note came an official statement from Austria-Hungary giving practically the same reasons for making the proposal. In this statement the plea of self-defense was put forward in this language:

"When in the summer of 1914 the patience of Austria-Hungary was exhausted by a series of systematically continued and ever-increasing provocations and menaces, and the monarchy, after almost fifty years of unbroken peace, found itself compelled to draw the sword, this weighty decision was animated neither by aggressive purposes nor by designs of conquest, but solely by the bitter necessity of self-defense, to defend its existence and safeguard itself for the future against similar plots of hostile neighbors."

OFFER IS REJECTED.

Before the allies replied formally to the peace proposal of the central powers several of them through their legislative bodies and leading statesmen indicated in unmistakable terms that they would decline to consider it. Dec. 13 it was announced that the Russian duma had passed unanimously a resolution rejecting the peace offer, which it characterized as a hypocritical act. Baron Sonnino, the Italian foreign minister, made a speech in the chamber of deputies intimating that the proposal was not a genuine one.

In the British house of commons David Lloyd George, who had recently succeeded H. H. Asquith as prime minister, made a notable speech Dec. 19, in reply to one made by Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg when he announced the peace offer to the German reichstag. In the course of his address the premier said:

"I should like to quote the well known words of Abraham Lincoln under similar conditions: 'We accepted the war for an object, a worthy object. The war will end when that object is attained. Under God I hope it will never end until that time.'

"There has been some talk of proposals of peace. What are those proposals? There is none. To enter on the invitation of Germany, proclaiming herself victorious, without any knowledge of the proposals she intends to make, into a conference, is putting our heads into a noose with the rope end in the hands of the Germans. * * *

We feel we ought to know before we give favorable consideration to such an invitation that Germany is prepared to accede to the only terms on which it is possible for peace to be obtained and maintained in Europe. What are these terms? All I can do is to quote what the leader of the house, Mr. Bonar Law, said last week when he made practically the same statement of terms as those put forward by Mr. Asquith—'restitution, reparation, guaranties against repetition.' So that there shall be no mistake—and it is important that there should be no mistake in a matter of the life and death of millions—let me say complete restitution, full reparation and effectual guaranties."

WANTS PEACE TERMS MADE KNOWN.

PRESIDENT WILSON SENDS NOTE TO BELLEGERENTS.

The Secretary of State to Ambassador Gerard: Department of State, Washington, D. C., Dec. 18.—The president directs me to send you the following communication to be presented immediately to the minister of foreign affairs of the government to which you are accredited:

"The president of the United States has instructed me to suggest to the imperial German government a course of action with regard to the present war which he hopes that the imperial government will take under consideration as suggested in the most friendly spirit and as coming not only from a friend but also as coming from the representative of a neutral nation whose interests have been most seriously affected by the war and whose concern for its early conclusion arises out of a manifest necessity to determine how best to safeguard those interests if the war is to continue.

"The suggestion which I am instructed to make the president has long had in mind to offer. He is somewhat embarrassed to offer it at this particular time because it may now seem to have been prompted by a desire to play a part in connection with the recent overtures of the central powers.

"It has, in fact, been in no way suggested by them in its origin and the president would have delayed offering it until those overtures had been independently answered but for the fact that it also concerns the question of peace and may best be considered in connection with other proposals which have the same end in view. The president can only beg that his suggestion be considered entirely on its own merits and as if it had been made in other circumstances.

"The president suggests that an early occasion be sought to call out from all the nations now at war such an avowal of their respective views as to the terms upon which the war might be concluded and the arrangements which would be deemed satisfactory as a guaranty against its renewal or the kindling of any similar conflict in the future as would make it possible frankly to compare them.

"He is indifferent as to the means taken to accomplish this. He would be happy himself to serve or even to take the initiative in its accomplishment, in any way that might prove acceptable, but he has no desire to determine the method or the instrumentality. One way will be as acceptable to him as another if only the great object he has in mind be attained.

"He takes the liberty of calling attention to the fact that the objects which the statesmen of the belligerents on both sides have in mind in this war are virtually the same as stated in general terms to their own people and to the world. Each side desires to make the rights and privileges of weak peoples and small states as secure against aggression or denial in the future as the rights and privileges of the great and powerful states now at war.

"Each wishes itself to be made secure in the future, along with all other nations and peoples, against the recurrence of wars like this and against aggression of selfish interference of any kind. Each would be jealous of the formation of any more rival leagues to preserve an uncertain balance of power amidst multiplying suspicions, but each is ready to consider the formation of a league of nations to insure peace and justice throughout the world.

"Before that final step can be taken, however, each deems it necessary first to settle the issues of the present war upon terms which will certainly safeguard the independence, the territorial integrity and the political and commercial freedom of the nations involved.

"In the measures to be taken to secure the future peace of the world the people and government of the United States are as vitally and as directly interested as the governments now at war. Their interest, moreover, in the means to be adopted to relieve the smaller and weaker peoples of the world of the peril of wrong and violence is as quick and ardent as that of any other people or government. They stand ready, and even eager, to co-operate in the accomplishment of these ends when the war is over with every influence and resource at their command.

"But the war must first be concluded. The terms upon which it is to be concluded they are not at liberty to suggest, but the president does feel that it is his right and his duty to point out their intimate interest in its conclusion lest it should presently be too late to accomplish the greater things which lie beyond its conclusion, lest the situation of neutral nations, now exceedingly hard to endure, be rendered altogether intolerable, and lest, more than all, an injury be done civilization itself which can never be atoned for or repaired.

"The president therefore feels altogether justified in suggesting an immediate opportunity for a comparison of views as to the terms which must precede those ultimate arrangements for the peace of the world which all desire and in which the neutral nations as well as those at war are ready to play their full responsible part.

"If the contest must continue to proceed toward undefined ends by slow attrition until the one group of belligerents or the other is exhausted, if million after million of human lives must continue to be offered up until on the one side or the other there are no more to offer, if resentments must be kindled that can never cool and despairs engendered from which there can be no recovery, hopes of peace and of the willing concert of free peoples will be rendered vain and idle.

"The life of the entire world has been profoundly affected. Every part of the great family of mankind has felt the burden and terror of this unprecedented contest of arms. No nation in the civilized world can be said in truth to stand outside its influence or to be safe against its disturbing effects. And yet the concrete objects for which it is being waged have never been definitely stated.

"The leaders of the several belligerents have, as has been said, stated those objects in general terms. But, stated in general terms, they seem the same on both sides. Never yet have the authoritative spokesmen of either side avowed the precise objects which would, if attained, satisfy them and their people that the war had been fought out. The world has been left to conjecture what definitive results, what actual exchange of guaranties, what political or territorial changes or readjustments, what stage of military success even, would bring the war to an end.

"It may be known that peace is nearer than we know; that the terms which the belligerents on the one side and on the other would deem it necessary to insist upon are not so irreconcilable as some have feared; that an interchange of views would clear the way at least for conference and make the permanent concord of the nations a hope of the immediate future, a concert of nations immediately practicable.

"The president is not proposing peace; he is not even offering mediation. He is merely proposing that soundings be taken in order that we may learn the neutral nations with the belligerents, how near the haven of peace may be for which all mankind longs with an intense and increasing longing. He believes that the spirit in which he speaks and the objects which he seeks will be understood by all concerned, and he confidently hopes for a response which will bring a new light into the affairs of the world.

LANSING."

[The note, with changes in phraseology to fit the case, was delivered to Great Britain, France, Italy, Japan, Russia, Belgium, Montenegro, Portugal, Roumania, Serbia, Germany, Austria-Hungary, Turkey and Bulgaria. It also was delivered to all neutral governments for their information.]

REPLY OF GERMANY.

To the foregoing note Germany made the following reply, the official text of which was received in Washington Dec. 28, 1916:

"The imperial government has accepted and considered in the friendly spirit which is apparent in the communication of the president [the noble initiative of the president looking to the creation of bases for the foundation of a lasting peace. The president discloses the aim which lies next to his heart and leaves the choice of ways open.

"A direct exchange of views appears to the imperial government as the most suitable way of arriving at the desired result. The imperial government has the honor, therefore, in the sense of its declaration of the 12th inst., which offered the hand for peace negotiations, to propose speedy assembly on neutral ground of delegates of the warring states.

"It is also the view of the imperial government that the great work for the prevention of future wars can first be taken up only after the ending of the present conflict of exhaustion. The imperial government is ready when this point has been reached to co-operate with the United States at this sublime task."

REPLY OF AUSTRIA-HUNGARY.

The following note was received in Washington Dec. 28 from Ambassador Penfield in Vienna: "In reply to the aide memoire communicated on the 22d inst. by his excellency the American ambassador containing the proposals of the president of the United States of America for an exchange of views among the powers at present at war for the eventual establishment of peace, the imperial and royal government desires particularly to point out that in considering the noble proposal of the president it is guided by the same spirit of amity and complaisance as finds expression therein.

"The president desires to establish a basis for a lasting peace without wishing to indicate the ways and means. The imperial and royal government considers a direct exchange of views among the belligerents to be the most suitable way of attaining this end.

"Adverting to its declaration of the 12th inst. in which it announced its readiness to enter into peace negotiations, it now has the honor to propose that representatives of the belligerent powers convene at an early date at some place on neutral ground.

"The imperial and royal government likewise concurs in the opinion of the president that only after the termination of the present war will it be possible to undertake the great and desirable work of the prevention of future wars. At an appropriate time it will be willing to co-operate with the United States of America for the realization of this noble aim."

SCANDINAVIAN RESPONSE.

The following note from Norway was received in Washington Dec. 23, 1916, it being identical with notes subsequently received from Denmark and Sweden:

It is with the most lively interest that the Norwegian government has learned of the proposals which the president of the United States has just made with the purpose of facilitating measures looking toward the establishment of a durable peace, while at the same time seeking to avoid any interference which could cause pain to legitimate feelings.

"The Norwegian government would consider itself failing in its duties toward its own people and toward all humanity if it did not express its deepest sympathy with all efforts which could contribute to put an end to the ever increasing suffering and the moral and material losses. It has every hope that the initiative of President Wilson will arrive at a result worthy of the high purpose which inspired it."

SPAIN PREFERS TO WAIT.

Replying to President Wilson, the Spanish government, in a note made public Dec. 30, 1916, said:

"The Spanish government has received from the ambassador of the United States the note sent by the president of the United States to the belligerent nations and another communication in which it is said that the moment is opportune for action by the government of his majesty in support of the attitude taken by the government of the United States.

"The Spanish government, in answer to the initiative of the president of the United States, knowing the various impressions produced, believes that the action in which Spain is invited to participate will be inefficacious, especially as the central powers have expressed their intention that the peace conditions shall be accorded exclusively among the belligerents.

"Nevertheless, the Spanish government, having in consideration the noble desires of the American government, which are worthy of all peoples, is disposed to associate itself with every negotiation which has for its object the facilitating of the humanitarian work of ending the present war.

"Spain, however, will suspend all action until the time when her efforts and work in favor of peace can be more useful and efficacious than at the present time. Until then the Spanish government believes that it would be opportune to declare, with regard to an entente of the neutral powers for the defense of their interests, that it is disposed now, as it was at the beginning of the war, to commence negotiations which might lead to an accord capable of uniting the belligerent powers."

ALLIES' REPLY TO GERMANY.

On the evening of Dec. 30, 1916, the allies delivered in Paris, France, the following reply to Germany's peace proposal:

"The allied governments of Belgium, France, Great Britain, Italy, Japan, Montenegro, Portugal, Roumania, Russia and Serbia, united for the defense of the liberty of their peoples and faithful to engagements taken not to lay down their arms separately, have resolved to reply collectively to the pretended propositions of peace which were addressed to them on behalf of the enemy governments through the intermediary of the United States, Spain, Switzerland and Holland.

"Before making any reply the allied powers desire particularly to protest against the two essential assertions of the note of the enemy powers that pretend to throw upon the allies responsibility for the war and proclaim the victory of the central powers.

"The allied governments cannot admit an affirmation doubly inexact and which suffices to render sterile all tentative negotiations. The allied nations have sustained for thirty months a war they did everything to avoid. They have shown by their acts their attachment to peace. That attachment is as strong to-day as it was in 1914. But it is not upon the word of Germany, after the violation of its engagements, that the peace broken by her may be based.

"A mere suggestion, without a statement of terms, that negotiations should be opened is not an offer of peace. The putting forward by the [German] imperial government of a sham proposal lacking all substance and precision would appear to be less an offer of peace than a war maneuver. It is founded on calculated misinterpretation of the character of the struggle in the past, the present and the future.

"As for the past, the German note takes no account of the facts, dates and figures which establish that the war was desired, provoked, and declared by Germany and Austria-Hungary.

"At The Hague conference it was a German delegate who refused all proposals for disarmament.

"In July, 1914, it was Austria-Hungary who, after having addressed to Serbia an unprecedented ultimatum, declared war upon her in spite of the satisfaction which had at once been accorded.

"The central empires then rejected all attempts made by the entente to bring about a pacific solution of a purely local conflict. Great Britain suggested a conference; France proposed an international commission; the emperor of Russia asked the German emperor to go to arbitration; and Russia and Austria-Hungary came to an understanding on the eve of the conflict. But to all these efforts Germany gave neither answer nor effect.

"Belgium was invaded by an empire which had guaranteed her neutrality and which had the assurance to proclaim that treaties were 'scraps of paper' and that 'necessity knows no law.'

"At the present moment these sham offers on the part of Germany rest on the 'war map' of Europe which which represents nothing more than a superficial and passing phase of the situation and not the real strength of the belligerents. A peace concluded upon these terms would be only to the advantage of the aggressors, who, after imagining that they would reach their goal in two months, discovered after two years that they could never attain it.

"As for the future, the disasters caused by the German declaration of war and the innumerable outrages committed by Germany and her allies against both belligerents and neutrals demand penalties, reparation and guaranties. Germany avoids mention of any of these.

"In reality these overtures made by the central powers are nothing more than a calculated attempt to influence the future course of war and to end it by imposing a German peace. The object of these overtures is to create dissension in public opinion in the allied countries.

"But that public opinion has, in spite of all the sacrifices endured by the allies, already given its answer with admirable firmness and has denounced the empty pretense of the declaration of the enemy powers.

"They have the further object of stiffening public opinion in Germany and in the countries allied to her—one and all severely tried by their losses, worn out by economic pressure and crushed by the supreme effort which has been imposed upon their inhabitants.

"They endeavor to deceive and intimidate public opinion in neutral countries, whose inhabitants have long since made up their minds where the initial responsibilities lie and are far too enlightened to favor the designs of Germany by abandoning the defense of human freedom.

"Finally, these overtures attempt to justify in advance in the eyes of the world a new series of crimes—submarine warfare, deportations, forced labor and forced enlistment of the inhabitants against their own countries, and violations of neutrality.

"Fully conscious of the gravity of this moment, but equally conscious of its requirements, the allied governments, closely united to one another and in perfect sympathy with their peoples, refuse to consider a proposal which is empty and insincere.

"Once again the allies declare that no peace is possible so long as they have not secured reparation for violated rights and liberties, the recognition of the principle of nationalities and of the free existence of small states; so long as they have not brought about a settlement calculated to end once and for all forces which have constituted a perpetual menace to the nations and to afford the only effective guaranty for the future security of the world.

"In conclusion, the allied powers think it necessary to put forward the following considerations, which show the special situation of Belgium after two and a half years of war.

"In virtue of the international treaties signed by five great European powers, of whom Germany was one, Belgium enjoyed before the war a special status, rendering her territory inviolable and placing her, under the guaranty of the powers, outside all European conflicts.

"She was, however, in spite of these treaties, the first to suffer the aggression of Germany. For this reason the Belgian government thinks it necessary to define the aims which Belgium has never ceased to pursue while fighting side by side with the entente powers for right and justice.

"Belgium has always scrupulously fulfilled the duties which her neutrality imposed upon her. She has taken up arms to defend her independence and her neutrality, violated by Germany, and to show that she remains faithful to her international obligations.

"On the 4th of August, 1914, in the reichstag, the German chancellor admitted that this aggression constituted an injustice contrary to the laws of nations and pledged himself in the name of Germany to repair it.

"During the two and a half years this injustice has been cruelly aggravated by the proceedings of the occupying forces, which have exhausted the resources of the country, ruined its industries, devastated its towns and villages, and have been responsible for innumerable massacres, executions and imprisonments.

"At this very moment, while Germany is proclaiming peace and humanity to the world, she is deporting Belgian citizens by thousands and reducing them to slavery.

"Belgium, before the war, asked for nothing but to live in harmony with her neighbors. Her king and her government have but one aim—the re-establishment of peace and justice. But they only desire peace which would assure to their country legitimate reparation, and guaranties and safeguards for the future."

U. S. SENATE UPHOLDS PRESIDENT.

Jan. 5, 1917, the United States senate passed the following resolution by a vote of 48 to 17:

"Resolved, That the senate approves and strongly indorses the request by the president in the diplomatic notes of Dec. 13 to the nations now engaged in war that those nations state the terms upon which peace might be discussed."

This resolution was a substitute for another offered by Senator Gilbert M. Hitchcock of Nebraska giving an unequalled indorsement of the president's peace note of Dec. 18, including its interpretation by Secretary of State Lansing. Of those voting for the substitute resolution thirty-eight were democrats and ten republicans. Sixteen republicans and one democrat voted in the negative.

ENTENTE'S REPLY TO WILSON.

AMBASSADOR SHARP TO SECRETARY OF STATE.

"American Embassy, Paris, Jan. 10, 1917.

"The allied governments have received the note which was delivered to them in the name of the government of the United States on the 19th of December, 1916. They have studied it with the care imposed upon them both by the exact realization which they have of the gravity of the hour and by the sincere friendship which attaches them to the American people.

"In a general way they desire to declare their respect for the lofty sentiments inspiring the American note and the whole hearted agreement with the proposal to create a league of nations which shall assure peace and justice throughout the world.

"They recognize all the benefits which will accrue to the cause of humanity and civilization from the institution of international arrangements designed to prevent violent conflicts between nations and so framed as to provide the sanctions necessary to their enforcement, lest an illusory security should serve merely to facilitate fresh acts of aggression.

"But a discussion of future arrangements for insuring a durable peace presupposes a satisfactory settlement of the present conflict; the allies have as profound a desire as the government of the United States to terminate as soon as possible a war for which the central empires are responsible and which inflicts such cruel sufferings upon humanity.

"But in their judgment it is impossible to obtain at this moment such a peace as will not only secure to them the reparation, the restitution and the guaranties justly due them, by reason of the act of aggression, the guilt of which is fixed upon the central powers, while the very principle from which it sprang was undermining the safety of Europe and at the same time such a peace as will enable future European nations to be established upon a sure foundation.

"The allied nations are conscious that they are not fighting for selfish interests, but above all to safeguard the independence of peoples, of right and of humanity.

"The allies are fully aware of the losses and sufferings which the war causes to neutrals as well as to belligerents, and they deplore them; but they do not hold themselves responsible for them, having in no way either provoked or provoked this war, and they strive to reduce these damages in the measure compatible with the in-exorable exigencies of their defense against the violence and the wiles of the enemy.

"It is with satisfaction therefore that they take note of the declaration that the American communication is in no wise associated in its origin with that of the central powers transmitted on the 18th of December by the government of the United States. They did not doubt, moreover, the resolution of that government to avoid even the appearance of a support, even moral, of the authors responsible for the war.

"The allied governments feel it their duty to challenge in the most friendly, but also in the clearest, way the analogy drawn between the two groups of belligerents. This analogy, based on public declarations of the central powers, is in direct conflict with the evidence, both as regards responsibility for the past and guarantees for the future. President Wilson, in alluding to this analogy, did not, of course, intend to adopt it as his own.

"If there is an historical fact established at the present date, it is the willful aggression of Germany and Austria-Hungary to insure their hegemony over Europe and their economic domination over the world. By their declaration of war, by the instant violation of Belgium and Luxemburg and by her methods of warfare, Germany has proved that she systematically scorns every principle of humanity and all respect due to small states. More and more, as the struggle has progressed, has the attitude of the central powers and their allies been a constant challenge to humanity and civilization. Is it necessary to recall the horrors that marked the invasion of Belgium and of Serbia, the atrocious regime imposed upon the invaded countries, the massacre of hundreds of thousands of inoffensive Armenians, the barbarities perpetrated against the populations of Syria, the raids of Zeppelins on open towns, the destruction by submarines of passenger steamers and of merchantmen, even under neutral flags, the cruel treatment inflicted upon prisoners of war, the juridical murders of Miss Cavell, of Capt. Fryatt, the deportation and the reduction to slavery of civil populations, et cetera? The execution of such a series of crimes perpetrated without any regard for universal reprobation fully explains to President Wilson the protest of the allies.

"They consider that the note which they sent to the United States in reply to the German note will be a response to the questions put by the American government and, according to the exact words of the latter, constitute 'a public declaration as to the conditions upon which the war could be terminated.'

"President Wilson desires more. He desires that the belligerent powers openly affirm the objects which they seek by continuing the war; the allies experience no difficulty in replying to this request. Their objects in the war are well known; they have been formulated on many occasions by the chiefs of their divers governments.

"Their objects in the war will not be made known in detail, with all the equitable compensations and indemnities for damages suffered, until the hour of negotiations. But the civilized world knows that they imply in all necessity and in the first instance the restoration of Belgium, of Serbia and of Montenegro and the indemnities which are due them; the evacuation of the invaded territories of France, of Russia and of Roumania, with just reparation; the reorganization of Europe guaranteed by a stable settlement based alike upon the principle of nationalities, on the right which all peoples, whether small or great, have to the enjoyment of full security and free economic development, and also upon territorial agreements and international arrangements so framed as to guarantee land and sea frontiers against unjust attacks; the restitution of provinces or territories wrested in the past from the allies by force or against the will of their populations, the liberation of Italians, of Slavs, of Roumanians and of Czechoslovaks from foreign domination; the enfranchisement of populations subject to the bloody tyranny of the Turks; the expulsion from Europe of the Ottoman empire, which has proved itself so radically alien to western civilization.

"The intentions of his majesty the emperor of Russia regarding Poland have been clearly indicated in the proclamation which he has just addressed to his armies. It goes without saying that if the allies wish to liberate Europe from the brutal covetousness of Prussian militarism, it never has been their design, as has been alleged, to encompass the extermination of the German peoples and their political disappearance. That which they desire above all is to insure a peace upon the principles of liberty and justice, upon the inviolable fidelity to international obligation with which the government of the United States has never ceased to be inspired. The allies are determined, individually and collectively, to act with all their power and to consent to all sacrifices to bring to a vigorous close a conflict upon which they are convinced not only their own safety and prosperity depend, but also the future of civilization itself."

SUPPLEMENTARY NOTE FROM BELGIUM.

AMBASSADOR SHARP TO THE SECRETARY OF STATE.

"American Embassy, Paris, Jan. 10, 1917.

"The government of the king, which has associated itself with the answer handed by the president of the French council to the American ambassador on behalf of all, is particularly desirous of paying tribute to the sentiment of humanity which prompted the president of the United States to send his note to the belligerent powers and it highly esteems the friendship expressed for Belgium through his kindly inter-mediation. It desires as much as Mr. Woodrow Wilson to see the present war ended as early as possible.

"But the president seems to believe that the statesmen of the two opposing camps pursue the same objects of war. The example of Belgium unfortunately demonstrates that this is in no wise the fact. Belgium has never, like the central powers, aimed at conquests. The barbarous fashion in which the German government has treated, and still is treating, the Belgian nation does not permit the supposition that Germany will preoccupy herself with guaranteeing in the future the rights of the weak nations which she has not ceased to trample under foot since the war, let loose by her, began to desolate Europe. On the other hand, the government of the king has noted with pleasure and with confidence the assurances that the United States is impatient to co-operate in the measures which will be taken after the conclusion of peace to protect and guarantee the small nations against violence and oppression.

"Previous to the German ultimatum Belgium only aspired to live upon good terms with all her neighbors; she practiced with scrupulous loyalty toward each one of them the duties imposed by her neutrality. In the same manner she has been rewarded by Germany for the confidence she placed in her, through which from one day to the other, without any plausible reason, her neutrality was violated, and the chancellor of the empire, when announcing to the reichstag this violation of right and of treaties, was obliged to recognize the iniquity of such an act and predetermine that it would be repaired.

"But the Germans, after the occupation of Belgian territory, have displayed no better observance of the rules of international law or the stipulations of The Hague convention. They have, by taxation, as heavy as it is arbitrary, drained the resources of the country; they have intentionally ruined its industries, destroyed whole cities, put to death and imprisoned a considerable number of inhabitants. Even now, while they are loudly proclaiming their desire to put an end to the horrors of war, they increase the rigors of the occupation by deporting into servitude Belgian workers by the thousands.

"If there is a country which has the right to say that it has taken up arms to defend its existence, it is assuredly Belgium. Compelled to fight or to submit to shame, she passionately desires that an end be brought to the unprecedented sufferings of her population. But she could only accept a peace which would assure her, as well as equitable reparation, security and guarantees for the future.

"The American people, since the beginning of the war, have manifested for the oppressed Belgian nation their most ardent sympathy. It is an American committee, the commission for relief in Belgium, which, in close union with the government of the king and the national committee, displays an untiring devotion and marvelous activity in revictualing Belgium. The government of the king is happy to avail itself of this opportunity to express its profound gratitude to the commission for relief, as well as to the generous Americans eager to relieve the misery of the Belgian population. Finally, nowhere more than in the United States have the abductions and deportations of Belgian civilians provoked such a spontaneous movement of protestation and indignant reproof.

"These facts, entirely to the honor of the American nation, allow the government of the king to entertain the legitimate hope that at the time of the definite settlement of this long war the voice of the entente powers will find in the United States a unanimous echo to claim in favor of the Belgian nation, innocent victim of German ambition and covetousness, the rank and the place which its irreproachable past, the valor of its soldiers, its fidelity to honor and its remarkable faculties for war assigned to it among the civilized nations."

GERMANY TO THE ALLIES.

On Jan. 11, 1917, the German government handed to the representatives in Berlin of neutral governments the following rejoinder to the reply of the entente to Germany's note of Dec. 12, 1916, containing a proposition to enter at once into peace negotiations:

"Our adversaries declined this proposition, giving as the reason that it is a proposition without sincerity and without importance. The form in which they clothe their communication excludes an answer to them, but the imperial government considers it important to point out to the governments of neutral powers its opinion regarding the situation.

"The central powers have no reason to enter into any discussion regarding the origin of the war. History will judge upon whom the immense guilt of the war shall fall: history's verdict will as little pass over the encircling policy of England, the revengeful policy of France and the endeavor of Russia to gain Constantinople, as over the instigation of the Serbian assassination in Sarajevo and the complete mobilization of Russia, which meant war against Germany. Germany and her allies, who had to take up arms for defense of their liberty and their existence, consider this, their aim of the war, as obtained.

"On the other hand, the hostile powers always went further away from the realization of their plans, which, according to the declarations of their responsible statesmen, were, among others, directed toward the conquest of Alsace-Lorraine and several Prussian provinces, the humiliation and diminution of the Austro-Hungarian monarchy, the partition of Turkey and the mutilation of Bulgaria. In the face of such war aims the demand for restitution, reparation and guarantees in the mouth of our adversaries produces a surprising effect.

"Our adversaries call the proposal of the four allied [Teutonic] powers a war maneuver. Germany and her allies must protest in the most energetic fashion against such a characterization of their motives which were frankly explained. They were persuaded that a peace which was just and acceptable to all the belligerents was possible, that it could be brought about by an immediate spoken exchange of views, and that, therefore, the responsibility for further bloodshed could not be taken. Their readiness was affirmed without reservation to make known their peace conditions when negotiations were entered into, which refutes every doubt as to their sincerity.

"Our adversaries, who had it in their hands to examine the proposition as to its contents, neither attempted an examination nor made counterproposals. Instead they declared that peace was impossible so long as the re-establishment of violated rights and liberties, the recognition of the principle of nationalities and the free existence of small states were not guaranteed.

"The sincerity which our adversary denies to the proposals of the four allied powers will not be conceded by the world to these demands if the world holds before its eyes the fate of the Irish people, the destruction of the liberty and independence of the Boer republic, the subjugation of northern Africa by England, France and Italy, the suppression of Russian alien nations and also the violation of Greece, which is without precedent in history.

"Against the pretended violations of the laws of nations by the four allies those powers are not entitled to complain which from the beginning of the war trampled on justice and tore to pieces the treaties upon which it is built. England already during the first weeks of the war repudiated the London declaration, the content of which had been recognized by its own delegates as a valid law of nations, and in the further course of the war violated in the most severe fashion also the Paris declaration, so that by her arbitrary measures for warfare a condition of lawlessness has been created.

"The war of starvation against Germany and the pressure exercised in England's interest against neutrals are not less scandalously conflicting with the rules of the laws of nations than with the commands of humanity.

"Likewise contrary to the laws of nations and incompatible with the usages of civilization are the use of colored troops in Europe and the extension of the war into Africa, which was done by a breach of existing treaties and which undermine the prestige of the white race on that continent. The barbarous treatment of prisoners, especially in Africa and Russia, and the deportation of the civil population from Eastern Prussia, Alsace-Lorraine, Galicia and Bukovina are further proof of how our adversaries point out the special situation of Belgium.

"The imperial government is unable to acknowledge that the Belgian government has always observed the duties which were enjoined upon her by her neutrality. Already before the war, Belgium, under England's influence, sought support in military fashion from England and France and thus herself violated the spirit [of the treaty] which she had to guarantee her independence and neutrality.

"Twice the imperial government declared to the Belgian government that it did not come as an enemy to Belgium and asked it to spare to the country the terrors of war. Germany offered to guarantee the integrity and independence of the kingdom to the full extent and compensate for all damages which might be caused by the passage of the German troops. It is known that the royal British government in 1887 was resolved not to oppose the use of the right of way through Belgium under those conditions.

"The Belgian government declined the repeated offer of the imperial government. Upon her and those powers which instigated her to this attitude falls the responsibility for the fate which befell Belgium.

"The accusations about the German warfare in Belgium and the measures taken there in the interest of military safety have been repeatedly refuted by the imperial government as untrue. Germany again offers energetic protest against these calumnies.

"Germany and her allies have made an honest attempt to terminate the war and open the road for an understanding among the belligerents. The imperial government asserts the fact that it merely depended upon the decision of our adversaries whether the road toward peace should be entered upon or not. The hostile governments declined to accept this road. Upon them falls the full responsibility for the continuation of the bloodshed.

"Our allied powers, however, shall continue the struggle in quiet confidence and with firm trust in their right until peace is gained which guarantees to their nations honor, existence and liberty of development, and which to all the nations of the European continent gives the blessing to co-operate in mutual respect and under equal rights together for the solution of the great problems of civilization."

OBSERVATIONS BY SECRETARY BALFOUR.

In a note dated Jan. 13, but not made public until Jan. 18, Arthur Balfour, British secretary of foreign affairs, made the following comments on the peace negotiations in connection with the reply of the entente powers to President Wilson's note of Dec. 18, 1916:

"In sending you a translation of the allied note I desire to make the following observations which you [Ambassador Paoli] should bring to the notice of the United States government.

"I gather from the general tenor of the president's note that, while he is animated by an intense desire that peace should come soon and that when it comes it should be lasting, he does not for the moment at least concern himself with the terms on which it should be arranged.

"His majesty's government entirely share the president's ideas, but they feel strongly that the durability of peace must largely depend on its character and that no stable system of international relations can be built on foundations which are essentially and hopelessly defective.

"This becomes clearly apparent if we consider the main conditions which made possible the calamities from which the world is suffering. These were the existence of great powers consumed with the lust of domination in the midst of a community of nations ill prepared for defense, plentifully supplied indeed with international laws, but with no machinery for enforcing them and weakened by the fact that neither the boundaries of the various states nor their internal constitution harmonized with the aspirations of their constituent races or secured to them just and equal treatment.

"That this last evil would be greatly mitigated if the allies secured the changes in the map of Europe outlined in their joint note is manifest and I need not labor the point.

"It has been argued, indeed, that the expulsion of the Turks from Europe forms no proper or logical part of this general scheme. The maintenance of the Turkish empire was during many generations regarded by statesmen of worldwide authority as essential to the maintenance of European peace. Why, is it asked, should the cause of peace be now associated with a complete reversal of this traditional policy? The answer is that circumstances have completely changed.

"The Turkey of 'union and progress' is as barbarous as and far more aggressive than the Turkey of Sultan Abdul Hamid. In the hands of Germany it is openly used as an instrument of conquest. Under German officers Turkish soldiers are fighting in lands from which they had long been expelled, and a Turkish government controlled, subsidized and supported by Germany has been guilty of massacres in Armenia and Syria more horrible than any recorded in the history even of those unhappy countries.

"Evidently the interests of peace require that Turkish rule over alien races shall be brought to an end, and we may hope that the expulsion of Turkey from Europe will contribute as much to the cause of peace as the restoration of Alsace-Lorraine to France or Italia Irredenta to Italy, or any of the other territorial changes indicated in the allied note.

"Evidently, however, such territorial rearrangements, though they may diminish the occasions of war, provide no sufficient security against its recurrence. If Germany, or rather those in Germany who mold its opinions and control its destinies, again set out to dominate the world, they may find that, by the new order of things, the adventure is made more difficult, but hardly that it is made impossible.

"They may still have ready to their hand a political system organized on a military basis; they may still accumulate vast stores of military equipment; they may still persist in their methods of attack, so that their more pacific neighbors will be struck down before they can prepare themselves for defense. If so, the hopes for the future of the world entertained by the president will be as far as ever from fulfillment.

"There are those who think that for this disease international treaties and international laws may provide a sufficient cure. But such persons have ill learned the lessons so clearly taught by recent history. While other nations, notably the United States of America and Britain, were striving by treaties of arbitration to make sure that no chance quarrel should mar the peace they desired to make perpetual, Germany stood aloof.

"Her historians and philosophers preached the splendors of war; power was proclaimed as the true end of the state, and the general staff forged with untiring industry the weapons by which at the appointed moment power might be achieved.

"So long as Germany remains the Germany which, without a shadow of justification, overran and barbarously ill treated a country it was pledged to defend, no state can regard its rights as secure if they have no better protection than a solemn treaty.

"The case is made worse by the reflection that these methods of calculated brutality were designed by the central powers not merely to crush to the dust those with whom they were at war but to intimidate those with whom they were still at peace. Belgium was not only a victim; it was an example. Neutrals were intended to note the outrages which accompanied its conquest, the reign of terror which followed on its occupation, the deportation of a portion of its population, the cruel oppression of the remainder.

"And lest the nations happily protected either by British fleets or by their own German armies should suppose themselves safe from German methods, the submarine has (within its limits) assiduously imitated the barbarous practices of the sister service. The war staffs of the central powers are well content to horrify the world if at the same time they can terrorize it.

"If, then, the central powers succeed it will be by methods like these that they will owe their success. How can any reform of international relations be based on a peace thus obtained? Such a peace would represent the triumph of all the forces which make war certain and make it brutal. It would advertise the futility of all the methods on which civilization relies to eliminate the occasions of international dispute and to mitigate their ferocity.

"Germany and Austria made the present war inevitable by attacking the rights of one small state, and they gained their initial triumphs by violating the treaty guarantees of the territories of another. Are small states going to find in them their future protectors or in treaties made by them a bulwark against aggression? Terrorism by land and sea will have proved itself the instrument of victory.

"Are the victors likely to abandon it on the appeal of neutrals? If existing treaties are no more than scraps of paper, can fresh treaties help us? If the violation of the most fundamental canons of international law be crowned with success, will it not be in vain that the assembled nations labor to improve their code? None will profit by their rules but powers who break them. It is those who keep them that will suffer.

"Though, therefore, the people of this country share to the full the desire of the president for peace, they do not believe peace can be durable if it be not based on the success of the allied cause. For a durable peace can hardly be expected unless three conditions are fulfilled.

"The first is that existing causes of international unrest should be as far as possible removed or weakened.

"The second is that the aggressive aims and the unscrupulous methods of the central powers should fall into disrepute among their own peoples.

"The third is that behind international law and behind all treaty arrangements for preventing or limiting hostilities some form of international sanction should be devised which would give pause to the hardest aggressor.

"These conditions may be difficult of fulfillment. But we believe them to be in general harmony with the president's ideas, and we are confident that none of them can be satisfied, even imperfectly, unless peace be secured on the general lines indicated (so far as Europe is concerned) in the joint note.

"Therefore it is that this country has made, is making and is prepared to make sacrifices of blood and treasure unparalleled in its history. It bears these heavy burdens not merely that it may thus fulfill its treaty obligations, nor yet that it may secure a barren triumph of one group of nations over another.

"It bears them because it firmly believes that on the success of the allies depend the prospects of peaceful civilization and of those international reforms which the best thinkers of the new world as of the old date to hope may follow on the cessation of our present calamities."

WILSON FOR WORLD PEACE LEAGUE.

ADDRESS TO AMERICAN SENATE.

Ignoring precedent and regarding the separate of the United States as his counselor in foreign affairs, President Woodrow Wilson appeared before the upper house of congress Jan. 22, 1917, and explained why he thought the country should take part in a world league to preserve peace. His speech in full was as follows:

"Gentlemen of the Senate: On Dec. 18 last I addressed an identic note to the governments of the nations now at war requesting them to state more definitely than they had yet been stated by either group of belligerents the terms upon which they would deem it possible to make peace. I spoke on behalf of humanity and of the rights of all neutral nations like our own, many of whose vital interests the war puts in constant jeopardy.

"The central powers united in a reply which stated merely that they were ready to meet their antagonists in conference to discuss terms of peace.

"The entente powers have replied much more definitely and have stated in general terms, indeed, but with sufficient definiteness to imply details, the arrangements, guarantees and acts of reparation which they deem to be the indispensable conditions of a satisfactory settlement.

"We are that much nearer a definite discussion of the peace which shall end the present war. We are that much nearer the discussion of the international concert which must thereafter hold the world at peace. In every discussion of the peace that must end this war it is taken for granted that that peace must be given by some definite concert of power which will make it virtually impossible that any such catastrophe should ever overwhelm us again. Every lover of mankind, every sane and thoughtful man, must take that for granted.

"I have sought this opportunity to address you because I thought that I owed it to you, as the council associated with me in the final determination of our international obligations, to disclose to you, without reserve, the thought and purpose that have been taking form in my mind in regard to the duty of our government in these days to come, when it will be necessary to lay afresh and upon a new plan the foundations of peace among the nations.

"It is inconceivable that the people of the United States should play no part in that great enterprise. To take part in such a service will be the opportunity for which they have sought to prepare themselves by the very principles and purposes of their polity and the approved practices of their government ever since the days when they set up a new nation in the high and honorable hope that it might, in all that it was and did, show mankind the way to liberty. They cannot, in honor, withhold the service to which they are now about to be challenged. They do not wish to withhold it. But they owe it to themselves and to the other nations of the world to state the conditions under which they will feel free to render it.

"That service is nothing less than this—to add their authority and their power to the authority and force of other nations to guarantee peace and justice throughout the world. Such a settlement cannot now be long postponed. It is right that before it comes this government should frankly formulate the conditions upon which it would feel justified in asking our people to approve in formal and solemn adherence to a league for peace. I am here to attempt to state those conditions.

"The present war must first be ended; but we owe it to candor and to a just regard for the opinion of mankind to say that, so far as our participation in guarantees of future peace is concerned, it makes a great deal of difference in what way and upon what terms it is ended. The treaties and agreements which bring it to an end must embody terms which will create a peace that is worth guaranteeing and preserving, a peace that will win the approval of mankind—not merely a peace that will serve the several interests and immediate aims of the nations engaged. We shall have no voice in determining what those terms shall be, but we shall, I feel sure, have a voice in determining whether they shall be made lasting or not by the guarantees of a universal covenant, and our judgment upon what is fundamental and essential as a condition precedent to permanency should be spoken now, not afterward, when it may be too late.

"No covenant of co-operative peace that does not include the peoples of the new world can suffice to keep the future safe against war, and yet there is only one sort of peace that the peoples of America could join in guaranteeing.

"The elements of that peace must be elements that engage the confidence and satisfy the principles of the American governments, elements consistent with their political faith and the practical convictions which the peoples of America have once for all embraced and undertaken to defend.

"I do not mean to say that any American government would throw any obstacle in the way of any terms of peace the governments now at war might agree upon, or seek to upset them when made, whatever they might be. I only take it for granted that mere terms of peace between the belligerents will not satisfy even the belligerents themselves. Mere agreements may not make peace sure. It will be absolutely necessary that a force be created as a guarantor of the permanency of the settlement so much greater than the force of any nation now engaged or any alliance hitherto formed or projected that no nation, no probable combination of nations, could face or withstand it.

"If the peace presently to be made is to endure it must be a peace made secure by the organized major force of mankind. The terms of the immediate peace agreed upon will determine whether there is a peace where such guaranty can be secured. The question upon which the whole future peace and policy of the world depend is this: Is the present war a struggle for a just and secure peace or only for a new balance of power? If it be only a struggle for a new balance of power, who will guarantee, who can guarantee, the stable equilibrium of the new arrangement? Only a tranquil Europe can be a stable Europe. There must be not a balance of power, but a community of power; not organized rivalries, but an organized common peace.

"Fortunately, we have received very explicit assurances on this point. The statesmen of both of the groups of nations now arrayed against one another have said, in terms that could not be misinterpreted, that it was no part of the purpose they had in mind to crush their antagonists. But the implications of these assurances may not be equally clear to all—may not be the same on both sides of the water. I think it will be serviceable if I attempt to set forth what we understand them to be.

"They imply, first of all, that it must be a peace without victory. It is not pleasant to say this. I beg that I may be permitted to put my own interpretation upon it and that it may be understood that no other interpretation was in my thought. I am seeking only to face realities and to face them without soft concealments. Victory would mean peace forced upon the loser, a victor's terms imposed upon the vanquished. It would be adopted in humiliation, under duress at a tolerable sacrifice, and would leave a sting, a resentment, a bitter memory, upon which terms of peace would rest, not permanently but only as upon quicksand.

"Only a peace between equals can last; only a peace the very principle of which is equality and a common participation in a common benefit. The right state of mind, the right feeling between nations, is as necessary for a lasting peace as is the just settlement of vexed questions of territory or of racial and national allegiance.

"The equality of nations upon which peace must be founded, if it is to last, must be an equality of rights; the guarantees exchanged must neither recognize nor imply a difference between big nations and small, between those that are powerful and those that are weak. Right must be based upon the common strength, not upon the individual strength, of the nations upon whose concert peace will depend.

"Equality of territory or of resources thereof of course cannot be, nor any other sort of equality not gained in the ordinary peaceful and legitimate development of the peoples themselves. But no one asks or expects anything more than an equality of rights. Mankind is looking now for freedom of life, not for equipoises of power.

"And there is a deeper thing involved than even equality of right among organized nations. No peace can last, nor ought to last, which does not recognize and accept the principle that governments derive all their just powers from the consent of the governed, and that no right anywhere exists to hand peoples about from sovereignty to sovereignty as if they were property.

"I take it for granted, for instance, if I may venture upon a single example, that statesmen everywhere are agreed that there should be a united, independent and autonomous Poland and that henceforth inviolable security of life, of worship and of industrial and social development should be guaranteed to all peoples who have lived hitherto under the power of governments devoted to a faith and purpose hostile to their own.

"I speak of this not because of any desire to exalt an abstract political principle which has always been held very dear by those who have sought to build up liberty in America, but for the same reason that I have spoken of the other conditions of peace which seem to me clearly indispensable, because I wish frankly to uncover realities. Any peace which does not recognize and accept this principle will inevitably be upset. It will not rest upon the affections or the convictions of mankind.

"The ferment of spirit of whole populations will fight subtly and constantly against it and all the world will sympathize. The world can be at peace only if its life is stable, and there can be no stability where the will is in rebellion, where there is not tranquillity of spirit and a sense of justice and freedom and right.

"So far as practicable, moreover, every great people now struggling toward a full development of its resources and of its powers should be assured a direct outlet to the great highways of the seas. Where this cannot be done by the cession of territory it can no doubt be done by the neutralization of direct rights of way under the general guaranty which will assure the peace itself. With a right comity of arrangement no nation need be shut away from free access to the open paths of the world's commerce.

"And the paths of the sea must alike in law and in fact be free. The freedom of the seas is the sine qua non of peace, equality and co-operation. No doubt a somewhat radical reconstruction of many of the rules of international practice hitherto sought to be established may be necessary in order to make the seas indeed free and common in practically all circumstances for the use of mankind, but the motive for such change is convincing and compelling.

"There can be no trust or intimacy between the peoples of the world without them. The free, constant, unthreatened intercourse of nations is an essential part of the process of peace and of development. It need not be difficult to define or to secure the freedom of the seas if the governments of the world sincerely desire to come to an agreement concerning it.

"It is a problem closely connected with the limitation of naval armaments and the co-operation of the navies of the world in keeping the seas at peace and free. And the question of limiting naval armaments opens the wider and perhaps more difficult question of the limitation of armies and of all programs of military preparation.

"Difficult and delicate as these questions are, they must be faced with the utmost candor and decided in a spirit of real accommodation if peace is to come with healing in its wings, and come to stay. Peace cannot be had without concession and sacrifice. There can be no sense of safety and equality among the nations if great preponderant armaments are henceforth to continue here and there to be built up and maintained.

"The statesmen of the world must plan for peace, and nations must adjust and accommodate their policy to it as they have planned for war and made ready for pitiless contest and rivalry. The question of armaments, whether on land or sea, is the most immediately and intensely practical question connected with the future fortunes of nations and of mankind.

"I have spoken of these matters without reserve and with the utmost explicitness because it has seemed to me to be necessary if the world's yearning desire for peace was anywhere to find free voice and utterance. Perhaps I am the only person in high authority amongst all the peoples of the world who is at liberty to speak and hold nothing back.

"I am speaking as an individual, and yet I am speaking also, of course, as the responsible head of a great government, and I feel confident that I have said what the people of the United States would wish me to say. May I not add that I hope and believe that I am in effect speaking for liberals and friends of humanity in every nation and of every program of liberty? I would fain believe that I am speaking for the silent mass of mankind everywhere who have as yet had no place or opportunity to speak their real hearts out, concerning the death and ruin they see to have come already upon the persons and the homes they hold most dear.

"And in holding out the expectation that the people and government of the United States will join the other civilized nations of the world in guaranteeing the permanence of peace upon such terms as I have named, I speak with the greater boldness and confidence because it is clear to every man who can think that there is in this promise no breach in either our traditions or our policy as a nation, but a fulfillment rather of all that we have professed or striven for.

"I am proposing, as it were, that the nations should with one accord adopt the doctrine of President Monroe as the doctrine of the world: That no nation should seek to extend its policy over any other nation or people, but that every people should be left free to determine its own policy, its own way of development, unhindered, unthreatened, unafraid, the little along with the great and powerful.

"I am proposing that all nations henceforth avoid entangling alliances which would draw them into competitions of power, catch them in a net of intrigue and selfish rivalry and disturb their own affairs with influences intruded from without. There is no entangling alliance in a concert of powers. When all unite to act in the same sense and with the same purpose all act in the common interest and are free to live their own lives under a common protection.

"I am proposing government by the consent of the governed; that freedom of the seas which in international conference after conference representatives of the United States have urged with the eloquence of those who are the convinced disciples of liberty, and that moderation of armaments which makes of armies and navies a power for order merely, not an instrument of aggression or of selfish violence.

"These are American principles, American policies. We can stand for no others. And they are also the principles and policies of forward looking men and women everywhere, of every modern nation, of every enlightened community. They are the principles of mankind and must prevail."

LAW REPLIES TO WILSON.

In an address at a meeting held in Bristol, England, Jan. 24, Andrew Bonar Law, member of the British war council and chancellor of the exchequer, made what was regarded as the official reply of Britain to President Wilson's speech in the United States senate Jan. 22. Mr. Law said:

"The end of the war is peace. The Germans made us what they have called an offer of peace. It received from the allied governments the reply which it deserved—the only possible reply.

"Most of you have, I presume, read the speech by President Wilson. It is a frank speech and it is right that any member of one of the allied governments who refers to it should speak with equal frankness. It is impossible that he and we can look on it from the same point of view.

"The head of a great neutral, whatever his private views may be, must adopt a neutral attitude. America is far removed from the horrors of this war. We are in the midst of them. America is neutral; we are not neutral. We believe that the essence of this conflict is a question which is as old as time—the difference between right and wrong.

"We believe—we know—that this war is a war of naked aggression; that crimes which have accompanied the conduct of the war, which have been unknown in the world for centuries, are small in comparison with the initial crime of plunging the world into war by cold blooded calculation because those responsible thought it would pay.

"President Wilson's speech had this aim—to gain peace now and secure peace for the future. That is our aim and our only aim. He hoped to secure this by a league of peace and he not only spoke in favor of such a league but he is trying to induce the American senate to take the steps necessary to give effect to it.

"It would not be right to regard this proposal as something altogether utopian. I think we may hope that the time will come when all the nations of the world will play the part which Cromwell described as his life work—to act as constable and keep peace. That time will come, I hope.

"But this whole subject is not an abstract question for the future. It is a question of life and death now. In judging whether that result can be secured by his methods, it is impossible for us to forget the past.

"For generations humane men—men of good will among all nations—have striven by The Hague convention, by peace conference and by all other means to make war impossible, or at least to mitigate the horrors of war.

"When war comes, by what means can these barriers built up against barbarism be made effective? They cannot be preserved by the belligerents if any of them choose to ignore them. It is only from neutral states that effective sanction can be given to them.

"What happened? At the very outbreak of the war the Germans swept aside every one of these barriers. They tore up treaties which they themselves solemnly signed. They strewed mines in the open sea. They committed every atrocity on sea and land against The Hague convention which they had themselves signed.

"They made war on women and children. They destroyed neutrals as ruthlessly as they did their enemies. They are, at this moment, driving the population of conquered territories into slavery, and, worse, even than that, they are making some of the subjects of their enemies take up arms against their own country.

"All this has been done and no neutral power has been able to stop it. No neutral power, indeed, has made any protest against it. We must then take other means to secure the future peace of the world.

"We have rejected the German offer to enter into negotiations not from lust of conquest or desire for shining victories. We have rejected it not from a spirit of vindictiveness or a desire for revenge, but because peace now would mean a peace based on victory.

"It would be a peace which would leave the military machine unbroken, with the halo of success surrounding it. It would leave the control of that machine in the hands of the same men who for a generation prepared for war, who would make the same preparation again and who would choose their own time to plunge the world into the horrors which we are now enduring.

"Our aim is the same as President Wilson's. What he is longing for we are fighting for. Our sons and brothers are risking their lives for it and we mean to secure it.

"The hearts of the people of this country are longing for peace; we are praying for peace, for a peace which will bring back to us in safety those who are fighting our battles, and a peace which will mean that those who will not come back have not laid down their lives in vain."

POPE APPEALS FOR PEACE.

On Aug. 15 it became known that Pope Benedict XV. had addressed an appeal for the restoration of peace in Europe and on the following day the text of the document, which was dated Aug. 1, was made public, together with an introduction by Cardinal Gasparri, the papal secretary. Following is the full text of the appeal as translated by the British foreign office:

"Your majesty: The holy father, anxious to do everything he can in order to put an end to the conflict which for the last three years has ravaged the civilized world, has decided to submit to the leaders of the belligerent peoples concrete peace proposals exposed in a document which I have the honor to attach to this letter. May God grant that the words of his holiness will this time produce the desired effect for the good of the whole of humanity.

"The holy see not having diplomatic relations with the French government or with the government of Italy or the United States, I very respectfully beg your majesty to be good enough to have handed a copy of his holiness' appeal to the president of the French republic, to his majesty the king of Italy, and to the president of the United States. I also beg to add twelve other copies, which I request your majesty to be good enough to hand to the leaders of the nations friendly to the allies, with the exception, however, of Russia, Belgium and Brazil, to whom the document has been sent direct.

"In expressing to your majesty my sincere thanks for this extreme kindness, I am happy to take the opportunity to offer you the homage of sentiment, a very profound respect, with which I have the honor to sign myself, your majesty's very humble and devoted servant, "GASPARRI."

The pope's appeal follows:

"To the leaders of the belligerent peoples:

"Since the beginning of our pontificate, with the horrors of a terrible war let loose on Europe, we have had in view above everything three things to preserve:

"Perfect impartiality toward all belligerents as is suitable for him who is the common father and who loves all his children with equal affection.

"Continually to attempt to do all the good possible and that without exception of person, without distinction of nationality or religion as is dictated to us by the universal law of charity which the supreme spiritual charge has confided to us with Christ.

"Finally, as our pacific mission also requires, to omit nothing as long as it was in our power, which might contribute to hasten the end of this calamity by trying to lead people and their leaders to more moderate resolution, to hasten a serene deliberation of a peace just and durable.

"Whoever has followed our work during those three painful years which have just passed has been able easily to recognize that if we have always remained faithful to our resolve of absolute impartiality and to our attitude of benevolence we have not ceased to exhort the people and the belligerent brothers again to become brethren, although publicity has not been given to all that we have done to attain this very noble aim.

"Toward the end of the first year of the war we addressed to the nations in conflict most lively exhortations and, more, we indicated the part to be followed to arrive at a stable and honorable peace for all.

"Unfortunately our appeal was not heard and the war continued desperately for another two years, with all its horrors. It became even more cruel and extended over the earth, over the sea and in the air, and one saw desolation and death descend upon the cities without defense, upon peaceful villages and on their innocent population, and now no one can imagine how the sufferings of all would be increased and aggravated if other months, or, worse still, other years are about to be added to this sanguinary triennium.

"Is this civilized world to be nothing more than a field of death? And Europe, so glorious and so flourishing, is it going as if stricken by a universal madness to run to the abyss and to lend its hand to its own suicide?

"In such a terrible situation, in the presence of a menace so serious, we who have no particular political aim, who do not listen to suggestions or to the interests of any of the belligerent parties, but are solely compelled by a sentiment of our supreme duty as the common father of the faithful, are led by the solicitation of our children who implore our intervention and our pacifying work.

"Through the voice even of humanity and of reason we once more emit the cry of peace and we renew a pressing appeal to those who hold in their hands the destinies of nations.

"But in order no longer to speak in general terms as the circumstances had counseled us in the past, we now wish to make a more concrete and practical proposal and to invite the governments of the belligerent peoples to come to an agreement upon the following points which seem to be a basis of a just and durable peace, leaving to them the task of analyzing and completing them:

"First of all, the fundamental points must be that the material force of arms be substituted by the moral force of right from which shall arise a fair agreement by all for the simultaneous and reciprocal diminution of armaments according to the rules and guaranties to be established in a measure necessary and sufficient for the maintenance of public order in each state.

"Then in the substitution for armies the institution of arbitration, with its high pacifying function, according to the rules to be laid down and the penalties to be imposed on a state which would refuse either to submit a national question to arbitration or to accept its decision.

"Once the supremacy of right has thus been established, all obstacles to the means of communication of the peoples would disappear by assuring, by rules to be fixed later, the true liberty and community of the seas which would contribute to the numerous causes of conflict and would also open to all new sources of prosperity and progress.

"As to the damages to be repaired and as to the war expenses we see no other means of solving the question than by submitting as a general principle the complete and reciprocal condonation, which would be justified moreover by the immense benefit to be derived from disarmament, so much so that no one will undertake the continuation of a similar carnage solely for reasons of an economic order.

"If for certain cases there exist particular reasons they would be deliberated upon with justice and equity, but these pacific agreements with the immense advantages to be derived from them are not possible without a reciprocal restitution of the territory at present occupied.

"Consequently on the part of Germany the complete evacuation of Belgium with the guaranty of her full political, military and economic independence toward it.

"The evacuation of French territory. On the part of other belligerent parties similar restitution of the German colonies.

"As regards the territorial questions, as for example those which have arisen between Italy and Austria and between Germany and France, there is reason to hope that in consideration of the immense advantages of a durable peace with disarmament, the parties in conflict would wish to examine them with a conciliatory disposition, taking into consideration, as we have said formerly, the aspirations of the peoples and the special interests and of the general welfare of the great human society.

"The same spirit of equity and justice ought to be followed in the examination of other territorial and political questions, notably those relative to Armenia and the Balkan states and territories making a part of the ancient kingdom of Poland, whose noble and historical traditions and the sufferings which it has endured, especially during the present war, ought to conciliate the sympathies of nations.

"Such are the principal bases whereon we believe the future reorganization of the peoples ought to be built. They are of a nature to render impossible the return of similar conflicts and to prepare a solution of the economic question so important for the future and for the material well-being of all belligerent states.

"Therefore, in presenting to you, who direct at this hour the destinies of the belligerent nations, we are animated to see them accepted and to see thus the conclusion at an early date of the terrible struggle which more and more appears a useless massacre.

"The whole world recognizes that the honor of the arms of both sides is safe. Inclined our ears, therefore, to our prayer, we accept the fraternal invitation which we send you in the name of the Divine Redeemer, the Prince of Peace.

* * * Reflect on your very grave responsibility before God and before man.

"On your decision depend the repose and the joy of innumerable families, the life of thousands of young people; in a word, the happiness of a people for whom it is your absolute duty to obtain their welfare.

"May the Lord inspire your decision in conformity to His very holy will. May God grant that while meriting the applause of your contemporaries you will also obtain in the future generations a splendid name of pacificators.

"As for us, closely united in prayer and in penitence with all those faithful souls which sigh for peace we implore for you the light and counsel of the Divine Spirit. BENEDICT.

"At the Vatican, Aug. 1 [1917]."

PRESIDENT REPLIES TO POPE.

Having given due consideration to the pope's peace proposal, President Wilson sent the following reply, signed, as is customary, by the secretary of state:

Washington, D. C., Aug. 27, 1917.

To His Holiness Benedictus XV., Pope:

In acknowledgment of the communication of your holiness to the belligerent peoples, dated Aug. 1, 1917, the president of the United States requests me to transmit the following reply:

"Every heart that has not been blinded and hardened by this terrible war must be touched by this moving appeal of his holiness the pope; must feel the dignity and force of the humane and generous motives which prompted it, and must fervently wish that we might take the path of peace he so persuasively points out. But it would be folly to take it if it does not in fact lead to the goal he proposes.

"Our response must be based upon the stern facts and upon nothing else. It is not a mere cessation of arms he desires; it is a stable and enduring peace. This agony must not be gone through with again, and it must be a matter of very sober judgment what will insure us against it.

"His holiness, in substance, proposes that we return to the status quo ante bellum, and that then there be a general condonation, disarmament and a concert of nations based upon an acceptance of the principle of arbitration; that by a similar concert freedom of the seas be established, and that the territorial claims of France and Italy, the perplexing problems of the Balkan states, and the restitution of Poland be left to such conciliatory adjustments as may be possible in the new temper of such a peace, due regard being paid to the aspirations of the peoples whose political fortunes and affiliations will be involved.

"It is manifest that no part of this program can be successfully carried out unless the restitution of the status quo ante furnishes a firm and satisfactory basis for it.

"The object of this war is to deliver the free peoples of the world from the menace and the actual power of a vast military establishment controlled by an irresponsible government which, having secretly planned to dominate the world, proceeded to carry the plan out without regard either to the sacred obligations of treaty or the long established practices and long cherished principles of international action and honor, which chose its own time for the war: delivered its blow fiercely and suddenly; swept a whole continent within the tide of blood—not the blood of soldiers only but the blood of innocent women and children also, and of the helpless and of the poor—and now stands balked but not defeated, the enemy of four-fifths of the world.

"This power is not the German people. It is the ruthless master of the German people. It is no business of ours how that great people came under its control or submitted with temporary zest to the domination of its purpose, but it is our business to see to it that the history of the rest of the world is no longer left to its handling.

"To deal with such a power by way of peace upon the plan proposed by his holiness the pope would, so far as we can see, involve a recuperation of its strength and a renewal of its policy; would make it necessary to create a permanent hostile combination of nations against the German people, who are its instruments, and would result in abandoning the newborn Russia to the intrigue, the manifold subtle interference, and the certain counter revolution which would be attempted by all the malign influences to which the German government has of late accustomed the world.

"Can peace be based upon a restitution of its power or upon any word of honor it could pledge in a treaty of settlement and accommodation?

"Responsible statesmen must now everywhere see, if they never saw before, that no peace can rest securely upon political or economic restriction meant to benefit some nations and cripple or embarrass others, upon vindictive action of any sort, or any kind of revenge or deliberate injury.

"The American people have suffered intolerable wrongs at the hands of the imperial German government, but they desire no reprisal upon the German people, who have themselves suffered all things in this war, which they did not choose. They believe that peace should rest upon the rights of peoples, not the rights of governments—the rights of peoples great or small, weak or powerful—their equal right to freedom and security and self-government and to a participation upon fair terms in the economic opportunities of the world—the German people of course included, if they will accept equality and not seek domination.

"The test, therefore, of every plan of peace is this: Is it based upon the faith of all the peoples involved, or merely upon the word of an ambitious and intriguing government on the one hand and a group of free peoples on the other? This is the test which goes to the root of the matter; and it is the test which must be applied.

"The purposes of the United States in this war are known to the whole world—to every people to whom the truth has been permitted to come. They do not need to be stated again. We seek no material advantage of any kind. We believe that the intolerable wrongs done in this war by the furious and brutal power of the imperial German government ought to be repaired, but not at the expense of the sovereignty of any people—rather a vindication of the sovereignty both of those that are weak and of those that are strong.

"Punitive damages, the dismemberment of empires, the establishment of selfish and exclusive economic leagues, we deem inexpedient and in the end worse than futile, no proper basis for a peace of any kind, least of all for an enduring peace. That must be based upon justice and fairness and the common rights of mankind.

"We cannot take the word of the present rulers of Germany as a guaranty of anything that is to endure, unless explicitly supported by such conclusive evidence of the will and purpose of the German people themselves as the other peoples of the world would be justified in accepting.

"Without such guaranties treaties of settlement, agreements for disarmament, covenants to set up arbitration in the place of force, territorial adjustments, reconstitutions of small nations, if made with the German government, no man, no nation could now depend on.

"We must await some new evidence of the purposes of the great peoples of the central powers.

"God grant it may be given soon and in a way to restore the confidence of all peoples everywhere in the faith of nations and the possibility of a covenanted peace."

ROBERT LANSING,

Secretary of State of the United States of America.

GERMANY'S REPLY TO POPE.

Germany's reply to Pope Benedict's message was made public Sept. 21. It was signed by Chancellor Michaelis and was addressed to Cardinal Gasparri, papal secretary of state. Following is the full text of the German note:

"Herr Cardinal: Your eminence has been good enough, together with your letter of Aug. 2, to transmit to the kaiser and king, my most gracious master, the note of his holiness the pope, in which, his holiness, filled with grief at the devastations of the world war, makes an emphatic peace appeal to the heads of the belligerent peoples. The kaiser-king has deigned to acquaint me with your eminence's letter and to intrust the reply to me.

"His majesty has been following for a considerable time with high respect and sincere gratitude his holiness' efforts in a spirit of true impartiality to alleviate as far as possible the sufferings of the war and to hasten the end of hostilities. The kaiser sees in the latest step of his holiness fresh proof of his noble and humane feelings, and cherishes a lively desire that for the benefit of the entire world the papal appeal may meet with success.

"The effort of Pope Benedict is to pave the way to an understanding among all peoples and might more surely reckon on a sympathetic reception and the whole hearted support from his majesty, seeing that the kaiser, since taking over the government, has regarded it as his principal and most sacred task to preserve the blessings of peace for the German people and the world.

"In his first speech from the throne at the opening of the German reichstag on June 25, 1888, the kaiser promised that his love of the German army and his position toward it should never lead him into temptation to cut short the benefits of peace unless war were a necessity, forced on us by an attack on the empire or its allies.

"The German army should safeguard peace for us and should peace, nevertheless, be broken, it would be in a position to win it with honor.

"The kaiser has by his acts fulfilled the promise he then made in twenty-six years of happy rule, despite provocations and temptations.

"In the crisis which led to the present world conflagration his majesty's efforts were up to the last moment directed toward settling the conflict by peaceful means.

"After the war had broken out, against his wish and desire, the kaiser, in conjunction with his high allies, was the first solemnly to declare his readiness to enter into peace negotiations. The German people supported his majesty in his keen desire for peace.

"Germany sought within her national frontier the free development of her spiritual and material possessions and outside the imperial territory unhindered competition with nations enjoying equal rights and equal esteem.

"The free play of forces in the world in peaceable wrestling with one another would lead to the highest perfecting of the noblest human possessions.

"A disastrous concatenation of events in the year 1914 absolutely broke off all hopeful course of development and transformed Europe into a bloody battle arena.

"Appreciating the importance of his holiness' declaration, the imperial government has not failed to submit the suggestion contained therein to earnest and scrupulous examination. Special measures which the government has taken in closest contact with representatives of the German people, for discussing and answering the questions raised, prove how earnestly it desires, in accordance with his holiness' desires and the peace resolution of the reichstag on July 19, to find a practical basis for a just and lasting peace.

"The imperial government greets with special sympathy the leading idea of the peace appeal wherein his holiness clearly expresses the conviction that in the future the material power of arms must be superseded by the moral power of right. We are also convinced that the sick body of human society can be healed only by fortifying its moral strength of right. From this would follow, according to his holiness' view, the simultaneous diminution of the armed forces of all states and the institution of obligatory arbitration for international disputes.

"We share his holiness' view that definite rules and a certain safeguard for a simultaneous and reciprocal limitation of armaments on land, on sea and in the air, as well as for the true freedom of the community and high seas, are the things in treating which the international relations should find first hopeful expression. The task would then of itself arise to decide international differences of opinion, not by the use of armed forces, but by peaceful methods, especially by arbitration, whose high peace producing effect we, together with his holiness, fully recognize.

"The imperial government will in this respect support every proposal compatible with the vital interest of the German empire and people.

"Germany, owing to her geographical situation and economic requirements, has to rely on peaceful intercourse with her neighbors and with distant countries. No people, therefore, has more reason than the German people to wish that instead of universal hatred and battle a conciliatory, fraternal spirit should prevail between nations.

"If the nations are guided by this spirit it will be recognized to their advantage that the important thing is to lay more stress upon what unites them in their relations. They will also succeed in settling individual points of conflict which are still undecided in such a way that conditions of existence will be created which will be satisfactory to every nation and thereby a repetition of this great world catastrophe would appear impossible.

"Only on this condition can a lasting peace be founded which would promote an intellectual rapprochement and a return to the economic prosperity of human society. This serious and sincere conviction encourages our confidence that our enemies also may see a suitable basis in the ideas submitted by his holiness for approaching nearer to the preparation of future peace under conditions corresponding to a spirit of reasonableness and to the situation in Europe."

AUSTRIAN REPLY TO POPE.

Simultaneously with the German reply to Pope Benedict's peace note the response of Emperor Charles of Austria-Hungary was made public. The text follows:

"Holy Father: With due veneration and deep emotion we take cognizance of the new representations your holiness, in fulfillment of the holy office entrusted you by God, makes to us and the heads of the other belligerent states with the noble intention of leading the heavily tried nations to a unity that will restore peace to them.

"With a thankful heart we received this fresh gift of fatherly care which you, holy father, always bestow on all peoples without distinction, and from the depth of our heart we greet the moving exhortation which your holiness has addressed to the governments of the belligerent peoples.

"During this cruel war we have always looked up to your holiness as to the highest personage, who in virtue of his mission, which reaches beyond earthly things and, thanks to the high conception of his duties laid upon him, stands high above the belligerent peoples and who is inaccessible to all influence, was able to find a way which may lead to the realization of our own desire for peace, lasting and honorable for all parties.

"Since ascending the throne of our ancestors, and fully conscious of the responsibility which we bear before God and men for the fate of Austro-Hungarian monarchy, we have never lost sight of the high aim of restoring to our peoples as speedily as possible the blessings of peace.

"Soon after our accession to the throne it was vouchsafed us, in common with our allies, to undertake a step which had been considered and prepared by our exalted predecessor, Francis Joseph, to pave the way for a lasting and honorable peace.

"We gave expression to this desire in a speech from the throne delivered at the opening of the Austrian reichsrath, thereby showing that we are striving after a peace that shall free the future life of the nation from rancor and a thirst for revenge and that shall secure them for generations to come from the employment of armed forces.

"Our joint government has meanwhile not failed in repeated and emphatic declarations, which could be heard by all the world, to give expression to our own will and that of the Austro-Hungarian peoples to prepare an end to bloodshed by a peace such as your holiness has in mind.

"Happy in the thought that our desires from the first were directed toward the same object which your holiness to-day characterizes as one we strive for, we have taken into close consideration the concrete and practical suggestions of your holiness and have come to the following conclusions:

"With deep rooted conviction we agree to the leading idea of your holiness that the future arrangement of the world must be based on the elimination of armed forces and on the moral force of right and on the rule of international justice and legality.

"We, too, are imbued with the hope that a strengthening of the sense of right would morally regenerate humanity. We support, therefore, your holiness' view that the negotiations between the belligerents should and could lead to an understanding by which, with the creation of appropriate guaranties, armaments on land and sea and in the air might be reduced simultaneously, reciprocally and gradually to a fixed limit, and whereby the high seas, which rightly belong to all the nations of the earth, may be freed from domination or paramountcy and be opened equally for the use of all.

"Fully conscious of the importance of the promotion of peace on the method proposed by your holiness—namely, to submit international disputes to compulsory arbitration—we are also prepared to enter into negotiations regarding this proposal.

"If, as we most heartily desire, agreements should be arrived at between the belligerents which would realize this sublime ideal and thereby give security to the Austro-Hungarian monarchy for its unhampered future development, it cannot then be difficult to find a satisfactory solution of the other questions which still remain to be settled between the belligerents in a spirit of justice and of a reasonable consideration of the conditions for existence of both parties.

"If the nations of the earth were to enter, with a desire for peace, into negotiations with one another in the sense of your holiness' proposals, then peace could blossom forth from them.

"The nations could attain complete freedom of movement on the high seas, heavy material burdens could be taken from them, and new sources of prosperity opened to them.

"Guided by a spirit of moderation and conciliation, we see in the proposals of your holiness a suitable basis for initiating negotiations with a view to preparing a peace, just to all and lasting, and we earnestly hope our present enemies may be animated by the same ideas.

"In this spirit we beg that the Almighty may bless the work of peace begun by your holiness."

OTHER PEACE MOVES.

REICHTSTAG RESOLUTION.

There were numerous attempts in the course of the year to hold peace congresses in Sweden, Switzerland and other countries, but they came to nothing. In Germany some of the parties were eager to secure peace, and with that end in view a coalition was formed in the reichstag of clericals, socialists and radicals. It agreed upon the following resolutions, which were passed July 19 by a vote of 214 to 116, with seventeen not voting:

"As on Aug. 4, 1914, so on the threshold of the fourth year of the war the German people stand upon the assurance of the speech from the throne—'We are driven by no lust of conquest.'

"Germany took up arms in defense of its liberty and independence and for the integrity of its territories. The reichstag labors for peace and a mutual understanding and lasting reconciliation among the nations. Forced acquisitions of territory and political, economic and financial violations are incompatible with such a peace.

"The reichstag rejects all plans aiming at an economic blockade and the stirring up of enmity among the peoples after the war. The freedom of the seas must be assured. Only an economic peace can prepare the ground for the friendly association of the peoples.

"The reichstag will energetically promote the creation of international juridical organizations. So long, however, as the enemy governments do not accept such a peace, so long as they threaten Germany and her allies with conquest and violation, the German people will stand together as one man, hold out unshaken, and fight until the rights of itself and its allies to life and development are secured. The German nation united is unconquerable.

"The reichstag knows that in this announcement it is at one with the men who are defending the fatherland. In their heroic struggles they are sure of the undying thanks of the whole people."

The resolutions caused a great deal of discussion in Germany and in some quarters were hailed as portending peace at an early day. They figured in the cabinet upheavals that followed and had considerable to do with the shaping of politics in the empire. In entente circles, with the exception of Russia, the resolutions were received with more or less indifference.

BOLSHEVIKI PEACE OFFER.

Leon Trotsky, "commissioner" of foreign affairs in the bolshevik or radical government of Russia (see "Revolution in Russia"), sent the following message to the embassies in Petrograd Nov. 22:

"I herewith have the honor to inform you, Mr. Ambassador, that the All-Russian congress of soldiers' and workmen's delegates organized, on Oct. 26, a new government in the form of a council of national commissioners. The head of this government is Vladimir Ilich Lenin. The direction of the foreign policy has been intrusted to me, in the capacity of national commissioner for foreign affairs.

"Drawing attention to the text of the offer of an armistice and a democratic peace on the basis of no annexations or indemnities and the self-determination of nations, approved by the All-Russian congress of soldiers' and workmen's delegates, I have the honor to beg you to regard the above document as a formal offer of an immediate armistice on all fronts and the immediate opening of peace negotiations—an offer with which the authoritative government of the Russian republic has addressed itself simultaneously to all the belligerent peoples and their governments.

"Accept my assurances, Mr. Ambassador, of the profound respect of the soldiers and workmen's government for the people of France, which cannot help aiming at peace, as well as all the rest of the nations exhausted and made bloodless by this unexampled slaughter.

"National Commissioner of Foreign Affairs."

THE UNITED STATES IN THE WORLD WAR.

[PUBLIC RESOLUTION—NO. 1—65TH CONGRESS.]

[S. J. Res. 1.]

SIXTY-FIFTH CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA;

At the First Session,

Begun and held at the City of Washington on Monday, the second day of April, one thousand nine hundred and seventeen.

Joint Resolution Declaring that a state of war exists between the Imperial German Government and the Government and the people of the United States and making provision to prosecute the same.

Whereas the Imperial German Government has committed repeated acts of war against the Government and the people of the United States of America: Therefore be it

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the state of war between the United States and the Imperial German Government which has thus been thrust upon the United States is hereby formally declared; and that the President be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to employ the entire naval and military forces of the United States and the resources of the Government to carry on war against the Imperial German Government; and to bring the conflict to a successful termination all of the resources of the country are hereby pledged by the Congress of the United States.

CHAMP CLARK,

Speaker of the House of Representatives.

THOS. R. MARSHALL,

*Vice-President of the United States and

Approved, April 6, 1917,
WOODROW WILSON.

The United States entered the European war April 6, 1917, after having exhausted all diplomatic resources to preserve the neutrality of the nation. It was the desire of President Wilson, his advisers and the country as a whole to remain at peace with the world, but the men in authority in Germany would it otherwise. They compelled America to take up the sword in defense of rights well established under international law as well as the laws of humanity. They attempted to deny the freedom of the seas to neutral countries by declaring closed to navigation large areas of the waters adjacent to Britain, France and Italy and announcing that all ships found within these forbidden waters would be sunk without regard to the safety of passengers and crews. This order was carried out to the letter so far as it lay within their power and many hundreds of men, women and children were sent to their deaths without a chance of rescue. This savage warfare, which was applied to citizens of the United States as well as to those of all other countries, neutral and belligerent, was the direct cause of America's entrance into the war.

SYMPATHY ALIENATED.

There were a number of things which alienated the sympathy of Americans from Germany at the beginning of the war and as it progressed. These were:

Belief that Germany started the conflict not in self-defense but for purposes of aggression.

Invasion of Belgium in violation of a treaty to the observance of which Germany was pledged.

Unduly harsh treatment of American citizens in Germany at the time of mobilization and immediately after.

Alliance of Germany with Turkey—a country responsible for brutal massacres of Armenians both before and after the war began.

Burning of Belgian cities, massacres of Belgian citizens, imposition of heavy "indemnities" or war levies on Belgian and French cities and carrying into virtual slavery Belgian and French men and women.

Execution of Edith Cavell, the English nurse, and of Capt. Fryatt.

Invasion of France without cause.

Development in the United States of an army of spies and paid agents directed by German and Austrian officials to destroy munition plants, vessels and other property by means of fires and bombs and to cause strikes.

Widespread pro-German propaganda in opposition to the government.

Attempt to cause Mexico to ally herself with Japan and make war upon America.

The killing of noncombatants in France and England by means of Zeppelins and aeroplanes throwing explosives on unfortified cities and towns in contravention of international law.

The introduction of poison gas in warfare.

The bombing of hospitals and sinking of hospital ships.

The complete devastation of evacuated regions in France.

In addition to all these things it was felt that the cause of democracy was in grave peril from German autocracy and militarism and that if the world was to escape from German domination the United States must join the allied powers in fighting the Teutonic alliance. It has been repeatedly said with truth that America is fighting for—

Humanity,

Democracy,

Liberty,

Justice,

Rights of small nations,

Freedom of the seas.

But, as has already been pointed out, the immediate cause of America's entry into the war was the disregard of American rights on the high seas in violation of international law and the destruction of American lives and property.

Feb. 4, 1915, the German admiralty issued a proclamation declaring the waters surrounding Great Britain and Ireland, including the whole of the English channel, to be a war zone and that on and after Feb. 13, 1915, every enemy merchant ship found in that zone would be destroyed without its being always possible to avert the dangers threatening the crews and passengers on that account.

FIRST WARNING FROM AMERICA.

President Wilson through the state department promptly protested against this order in a note dated Feb. 10, 1915, in which he used the following memorable words:

"If the commanders of German vessels of war should act upon the presumption that the flag of the United States was not being used in good faith and should destroy on the high seas an American vessel or the lives of American citizens, it would be difficult for the government of the United States to view the act in any other light than as an indefensible violation of neutral rights which it would be very hard indeed to reconcile with the friendly relations now so happily subsisting between the two nations. If such a deplorable situation should arise, the imperial German government can readily appreciate that the government of the United States would be constrained to hold the imperial German government to a strict accountability for such acts of their naval authorities and to take any steps it might be necessary to take to safeguard American lives and property and to secure to American citizens the full enjoyment of their acknowledged rights on the high seas."

SINKING OF LUSITANIA.

In contemptuous disregard of this warning a German submarine torpedoed and sank the great liner Lusitania May 7, 1915, off the coast of Ireland, causing a loss of 1,198 lives, of which 102 were those of Americans. In a note to the German government sent May 13, 1915, the president through William J. Bryan, then secretary of state, pointed out that expressions of regret and offers of reparation could not justify such acts as the sinking of the Lusitania. The note ended with these words:

"The imperial German government will not expect the government of the United States to omit any word or any act necessary to the performance of its sacred duty of maintaining the rights of the United States and its citizens and of safeguarding their free exercise and enjoyment."

After some further correspondence the German government, through its ambassador, Count J. von Bernstorff, on Sept. 1, 1915, gave the following assurance to the United States:

"Liners will not be sunk by submarines without warning and without safety of the lives of noncombatants, provided that the liners do not try to escape or offer resistance."

PLEDGES ARE BROKEN.

The story of the events following this promise—events which slowly but surely dragged the United States into war with Germany—was told briefly but adequately by W. G. McAdoo, secretary of the treasury, in a speech on the second liberty loan delivered at the annual convention of the American Bankers' association at Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 23, 1917. It follows:

"This promise [of Sept. 1, 1915] was promptly violated. On Oct. 15, six weeks thereafter, the British steamship Arabic was sunk and three American lives were lost. The German government said to the United States:

"The imperial German government regrets and disavows the act and has notified Commander Schneider accordingly."

"Scarcely had this assurance been received before the Italian steamer Ancona was torpedoed without warning and seven American lives were destroyed. On the 29th of November, 1915, the American vessel William P. Frye was sunk in violation of international law. Following that, attacks were made upon several American vessels in gross violation of these promises, and on Dec. 10 the British liner Persia was sunk in the Mediterranean without warning and more than 300 passengers and members of the crew were lost, among them being an American consul traveling to his post. This American consul was obliged to sail on this British vessel because there was no American vessel upon which he could travel, and he was killed while in the line of duty, bearing upon his person the flag of the American republic. He was entitled to protection under international law, as well as under the repeated assurances of the German government."

"On Jan. 7, 1916, the German government again assured the United States that German submarines in the Mediterranean would not sink enemy merchant vessels, except in accordance with the general principles of international law, and 'only after passengers and crews had been accorded safety.' On Feb. 16, 1916, the German government said to the United States:

"Germany has limited her submarine warfare because of her long-standing friendship with the United States, and because by the sinking of the Lusitania, which caused the death of citizens of the United States, the German retaliation affected neutrals, which was not the intention, as retaliation should be confined to enemy subjects."

"The German government promptly proceeded to disregard these assurances, sinking numerous ships without warning, injuring a number of American citizens and imperiling the lives of many more. Whereupon the American government notified the German government on the 18th of April, 1916, two months thereafter, that:

"If it is still the purpose of the imperial German government to prosecute relentless and indiscriminate warfare against vessels of commerce by the use of submarines, without regard to what the government of the United States must consider the sacred and indisputable rules of international law and the universally recognized dictates of humanity, the government of the United States is at last forced to the conclusion that there is but one course it can pursue. Unless the imperial government should now immediately declare and effect an abandonment of its present methods of submarine warfare against passenger and freight carrying vessels, the government of the United States can have no choice but to sever diplomatic relations with the German empire altogether.

"Whereupon the German government, on the 4th of May, 1916, about two weeks thereafter, gave definite assurances to this government that new orders had been issued to German naval officers 'in accordance with the general principles of visit and search in the destruction of merchant vessels recognized by international law.'

"Again, and in spite of these repeated assurances, the German government proceeded to sink merchant vessels without warning and without securing the safety of the lives of passengers and crew. One American was killed on the British steamer Cabosha on Oct. 20, 1915; eight Americans were killed on the British steamer Marina, Oct. 28, 1915; seventeen Americans were killed on the British steamship Russia, Dec. 14, 1916.

"Between Feb. 3 and April 1, 1917, almost two months, one American was killed on the British steamship Eavston, ten Americans were killed on the British steamer Vedamore, one American was killed on the British steamship Torino, one American was killed on the French steamer Athos, eight Americans were killed on the British steamship Laconia, one American was killed on the Norwegian steamship Sjustad, five Americans were killed on the American steamship Vigilantia, seven Americans were killed on the American steamship Healdton and nineteen Americans were killed or missing from the British steamship Crispin. Besides this, seven American steamships were sunk by German submarines in these two months, but no Americans, except five on the Vigilantia, were killed.

"Moreover, the British steamer Yarrowdale was captured by a German auxiliary cruiser prior to our entry into the war, and seventy-two American citizens were taken as prisoners of war by Germany, which was a clear violation of American rights. They were maltreated and abused and subsequently released."

GERMANY DEFIES AMERICA.

ANNOUNCES RUTHLESS SEA WARFARE.

The following note signed by Count von Bernstorff, German ambassador to the United States, was handed to Secretary Lansing Jan. 31, 1917. It was identical with a note given to Ambassador Gerard in Berlin by the German foreign office:

"Mr. Secretary of State: Your excellency was good enough to transmit to the imperial government a copy of the message which the president of the United States of America addressed to the senate on the 22d inst.

"The imperial government has given it the earnest consideration which the president's statements deserve, inspired as they are by a deep sentiment of responsibility.

"It is highly gratifying to the imperial government to ascertain that the main tendencies of this important statement correspond largely to the desires and principles professed by Germany. These principles especially include self-government and equality of rights for all nations.

"Germany would be sincerely glad if, in recognition of this principle, countries like Ireland and India, which do not enjoy the benefits of political independence, should now obtain their freedom.

"The German people also repudiate all alliances which serve to force the countries into a competition for might and to involve them in a net of selfish intrigues.

"On the other hand, Germany will gladly cooperate in all efforts to prevent future wars. The freedom of the seas, being a preliminary condition of the free existence of nations and the peaceful intercourse between them, as well as the open door for the commerce of all nations, has always formed part of the leading principles of Germany's political program.

"All the more the imperial government regrets that the attitude of her enemies, who are so entirely opposed to peace, makes it impossible for the world at present to bring about the realization of these lofty ideals.

"Germany and her allies were ready to enter now into a discussion of peace and had set down as a basis the guaranty of existence, honor and free development of their peoples. Their aims, as had been expressly stated in the note of Dec. 12, 1916, were not directed toward the destruction or annihilation of their enemies, and were, according to their conviction, perfectly compatible with the rights of the other nations.

"As to Belgium, for which such warm and cordial sympathy is felt in the United States, the chancellor had declared only a few weeks previously that its annexation had never formed part of Germany's intentions. The peace to be signed with Belgium was to provide for such conditions in that country, with which Germany desires to maintain friendly neighborly relations, that Belgium should not be used again by Germany's enemies for the purpose of instigating continuous hostile intrigues.

"Such precautionary measures are all the more necessary as Germany's enemies have repeatedly stated, not only in speeches delivered by their leading men but also in the statutes of the economical conference in Paris that it is their intention not to treat Germany as an equal, even after peace has been restored, but to continue their hostile attitude and especially to wage a systematic economic war against her.

"The attempt of the four [central] allied powers to bring about peace has failed owing to the lust of conquest of their enemies, who desired to dictate the conditions of peace. Under the pretense of following the principle of nationality our enemies have disclosed their real aims in this way, viz., to dismember and dishonor Germany, Austria-Hungary, Turkey and Bulgaria.

"To the wish of reconciliation they oppose the will of destruction. They desire to fight to the bitter end.

"A new situation has thus been created which forces Germany to new decisions. Since two years and a half England is using her naval power for a criminal attempt to force Germany into submission by starvation.

"In brutal contempt of international law, the group of powers led by England does not only curtail the legitimate trade of their opponents, but they also, by ruthless pressure, compel neutral countries either to altogether forego every trade not agreeable to the entente powers, or to limit it according to their arbitrary decrees.

"The American government knows the steps which have been taken to cause England and her allies to return to the rules of international law and to respect the freedom of the seas.

"The English government, however, insists upon continuing its war of starvation, which does not at all affect the military power of its opponents, but compels women and children, the sick and the aged, to suffer for their country pains and privations which endanger the vitality of the nation.

"Thus British tyranny mercilessly increases the sufferings of the world, indifferent to the laws of humanity, indifferent to the protest of the neutrals, whom they severely harm, indifferent even to the silent longing for peace among England's own allies.

"Each day of the terrible struggle causes new destruction, new sufferings. Each day shortening the war will on both sides preserve the life of thousands of brave soldiers and be a benefit to mankind.

"The imperial government could not justify before its own conscience, before the German people, and before history the neglect of any means destined to bring about the end of the war. Like the president of the United States, the imperial government had hoped to reach this goal by negotiations.

"After the attempts to come to an understanding with the entente powers have been answered by the latter with the announcement of an intensified continuation of the war, the imperial government—in order to serve the welfare of mankind in a higher sense and not to wrong its own people—is now compelled to continue the fight for existence, again forced upon it, with the full employment of all the weapons which are at its disposal.

"Sincerely trusting that the people and government of the United States will understand the motives for this decision and its necessity, the imperial government hopes that the United States may view the new situation from the lofty heights of impartiality and assist on their part to prevent further misery and unavoidable sacrifice of human life.

"J. BERNSTORFF."

BLOCKADE ZONES ANNOUNCED.

Simultaneously with the presentation of the above note to the American government, Germany made the following official announcement to the United States and the other neutral nations:

"From Feb. 1, 1917, sea traffic will be stopped with every available weapon and without further notice in the following blockade zones around Great Britain, France, Italy and in the eastern Mediterranean:

"In the north—The zone is confined by a line at a distance of twenty sea miles along the Dutch coast to Terschelling fire ship, the degree of longitude from Terschelling fire ship to Udsire, a line from there across the point 62 degrees north of 0 degree longitude to 62 degrees north 5 degrees west, farther to a point three sea miles south of the southern point of the Farve [Farøe] Islands, from there across the point 62 degrees north 10 degrees west to 61 degrees north 15 degrees west, then 57 degrees north 20 degrees west to 47 degrees north 20 degrees west, farther to 43 degrees north 15 degrees west, then along the degree of latitude 43 degrees north to twenty sea miles from Cape Finisterre and at a distance of twenty sea miles along the north coast of Spain to the French boundary.

"In the south—The Mediterranean remains open as follows: The sea west of the line Point des Espiquettes to 38 degrees 20 minutes north and 6 degrees east, also north and west of a zone sixty-one sea miles wide along the north African coast, beginning at 2 degrees longitude west. For the connection of this sea zone with Greece there is provided a zone of a width of twenty sea miles north and east of the following line: 38 degrees north and 6 degrees east to 38 degrees north and 10 degrees west to 37 degrees north and 11 degrees 30 minutes east to 34 degrees north and 22 degrees 30 minutes east. From there leads a zone twenty sea miles wide, west of 22 degrees 30 minutes eastern longitude, into Greek territorial waters.

"Neutral ships navigating these blockade zones do so at their own risk. Although care has been taken that neutral ships which are on their way toward ports of the blockade zones on Feb. 1, 1917, and have come in the vicinity of the latter, will be spared during a sufficiently long period, it is strongly advised to warn them with all available means in order to cause their return.

"Neutral ships which on Feb. 1 are in ports of the blockade zones can with the same safety leave them.

"The instructions given to the commanders of German submarines provide for a sufficiently long period during which the safety of passengers on unarmed enemy passenger ships is guaranteed.

"Americans en route to the blockade zone on freight steamers of the enemy are not endangered, as the enemy's shipping firms can prevent such ships in time from entering the zone.

"Sailing of regular American passenger steamers may continue undisturbed after Feb. 1, 1917, if—

"(a) The port destination is Falmouth.

"(b) Sailing to or coming from that port, course is taken via the Scilly islands and a point 50 degrees north 20 degrees west.

"(c) The steamers are marked in the following way, which must not be allowed to other vessels in American ports: On ship's hull and superstructure three vertical stripes, one meter wide each, to be painted alternately white and red. Each mast should show a large flag, checkered white and red, and the stern the American national flag. Care should be taken that during the dark the national flag and the painted marks are easily recognizable from a distance and that the boats are well lighted throughout.

"(d) One steamer a week sails in each direction, with arrival at Falmouth on Sunday and departure from Falmouth on Wednesday.

"(e) United States government guarantees that no contraband (according to German contraband list) is carried by these steamers."

Two copies of maps on which the barred zones are outlined were added.

The following was made public in Berlin Feb. 3:

"The eastern limit of the blockaded zone around England has been altered as follows: The line now runs from the point 52 degrees 30 minutes north latitude, 4 degrees east longitude, across to the point 56 degrees north latitude, 4 degrees east longitude, to the point 56 degrees north latitude, 4 degrees 50 minutes east longitude. Otherwise the line remains as already announced."

ANOTHER MEMORANDUM.

The following memorandum was delivered to the state department by Ambassador Bernstorff at the same time as the foregoing, but was not made public until Feb. 1. The understanding was that it had been prepared at the German embassy on instructions from Berlin prior to President Wilson's peace address to the senate and then withheld for the time being.

"After bluntly refusing Germany's peace offer the entente powers stated in their note addressed to the American government that they are determined to continue the war in order to deprive Germany of German provinces in the west and east, to destroy Austria-Hungary and to annihilate Turkey.

"In waging war with such aims the entente allies are violating all rules of international law, as they prevent the legitimate trade of neutrals with the central powers, and of the neutrals among themselves.

"Germany has, so far, not made unrestricted use of the weapon which she possesses in her submarines.

"Since the entente powers, however, have made it impossible to come to an understanding based upon equality of rights of all nations, as proposed by the central powers, and have instead declared only such a peace to be possible which shall be dictated by the entente allies and shall result in the destruction and the humiliation of the central powers, Germany is unable further to forego the full use of her submarines.

"The imperial government, therefore, does not doubt that the government of the United States will understand the situation thus forced upon Germany by the entente allies' brutal methods of war and by their determination to destroy the central powers, and that the government of the United States will further realize that the now openly disclosed intention of the entente allies gives back to Germany the freedom of action which she reserved in her note addressed to the government of the United States on May 4, 1916.

"Under these circumstances Germany will meet the illegal measures of her enemies by forcibly preventing after Feb. 1, 1917, in a zone around Great Britain, France and Italy and in the eastern Mediterranean all navigation, that of neutrals included, from and to England and from and to France, etc. All ships met within that zone will be sunk.

"The imperial government is confident that this measure will result in a speedy termination of the war and in the restoration of peace which the government of the United States has so much at heart.

"Like the government of the United States, Germany and her allies had hoped to reach this goal by negotiations. Now that the war, through the fault of Germany's enemies, has to be continued, the imperial government feels sure that the government of the United States will understand the necessity of adopting such measures as are destined to bring about a speedy end of the horrible and useless bloodshed.

"The imperial government hopes all the more for such an understanding of her position, as the neutrals have under the pressure of the entente powers suffered great losses, being forced by them either to give up their entire trade or to limit it according to conditions arbitrarily determined by Germany's enemies in violation of international law."

BREAKS WITH GERMANY.

WILSON ADVISES CONGRESS OF ACT.

President Wilson, after consulting the members of his cabinet and other advisers, appeared before a joint session of the senate and house in the hall of the house of representatives at 2 o'clock on the afternoon of Saturday, Feb. 3, and personally read the following message:

"Gentlemen of the Congress: The imperial German government on the 31st day of January announced to this government and to the governments of the other neutral nations that on and after the 1st day of February, the present month, it would adopt a policy with regard to the use of submarines against all shipping seeking to pass through certain designated areas of the high seas, to which it is clearly my duty to call your attention.

"Let me remind the congress that on the 18th of April last, in view of the sinking on the 24th of March of the cross channel steamer Sussex by a German submarine, without summons or warning, and the consequent loss of lives of several citizens of the United States who were passengers aboard her, this government addressed a note to the imperial German government in which it made the following declaration:

"If it is still the purpose of the imperial German government to prosecute relentless and indiscriminate warfare against vessels of commerce by the use of submarines without regard to what the government of the United States must consider the sacred and indisputable rules of international law and the universally recognized dictates of humanity, the government of the United States is at last forced to the conclusion that there is but one course it can pursue. Unless the imperial government should now immediately declare and effect an abandonment of its present methods of submarine warfare against passenger and freight carrying vessels, the government of the United States can have no choice but to sever diplomatic relations with the German empire altogether."

"In reply to this declaration the imperial German government gave this government the following assurance:

"The German government is prepared to do its utmost to confine the operations of war for the rest of its duration to the fighting forces of the belligerents, thereby also insuring the freedom of the seas, a principle upon which the German government believes itself now, as before, to be in agreement with the government of the United States.

"The German government, guided by this idea, notifies the government of the United States that the German naval forces have received the following orders: In accordance with the general principles of visit and search and destruction of merchant vessels recognized by international law, such vessels, both within and without the area declared a naval war zone, shall not be sunk without warning and without saving human lives, unless these ships attempt to escape or offer resistance.

"But," it added, "neutrals cannot expect that Germany, forced to fight for her existence, shall, for the sake of neutral interest, restrict the use of an effective weapon if her enemy is permitted to continue to apply at will methods of warfare violating the rules of international law. Such a demand would be incompatible with the character of neutrality, and the German government is convinced that the government of the United States does not think of making such a demand, knowing that the government of the United States has repeatedly declared that it is determined to restore the principle of the freedom of the seas, from whatever quarter it has been violated."

"To this the government of the United States replied on the 8th of May, accepting, of course, the assurances given, but adding:

"The government of the United States feels it necessary to state that it takes it for granted that the imperial German government does not intend to imply that the maintenance of its newly announced policy is in any way contingent upon the course or result of diplomatic negotiations between the government of the United States and any other belligerent government, notwithstanding the fact that certain passages in the imperial government's note of the 4th instant might appear to be susceptible of that construction. In order, however, to avoid any misunderstanding, the government of the United States notifies the imperial government that it cannot for a moment entertain, much less discuss, a suggestion that respect by German naval authorities for the rights of citizens of the United States upon the high seas should in any way or in the slightest degree be made contingent upon the conduct of any other government affecting the rights of neutrals and noncombatants. Responsibility in such matters is single, not joint; absolute, not relative."

"To this note of the 8th of May the imperial German government made no reply.

"On the 31st of January, the Wednesday of the present week, the German ambassador handed to the secretary of state, along with a formal note, a memorandum which contained the following statement:

"The imperial government, therefore, does not doubt that the government of the United States will understand the situation thus forced upon Germany by the entente allies' brutal methods of war, and by their determination to destroy the central powers, and that the government of the United States will further realize that the now openly disclosed intention of the entente allies gives back to Germany the freedom of action which she reserved in her note addressed to the government of the United States on May 4, 1916.

"Under these circumstances Germany will meet the illegal measures of her enemies by forcibly preventing after Feb. 1, 1917, in a zone around Great Britain, France, Italy and in the eastern Mediterranean, all navigation, that of neutrals included, from and to England and from and to France, etc. All ships met within the zone will be sunk."

"I think that you will agree with me that, in view of this declaration, which suddenly and without prior intimation of any kind deliberately withdraws the solemn assurance given in the imperial government's note of the 4th of May, 1916, this government has no alternative consistent with the dignity and honor of the United States but to take the course which in its note of the 18th of April, 1916, it announced that it would take in the event that the German government did not declare and effect an abandonment of the methods of submarine warfare which it was then employing and to which it now purposes again to resort.

"I have, therefore, directed the secretary of state to announce to his excellency the German ambassador that all diplomatic relations between the United States and the German empire are severed and that the American ambassador to Berlin will immediately be withdrawn; and, in accordance with this decision, to hand to his excellency his passports.

"Notwithstanding this unexpected action of the German government, this sudden and deplorable renunciation of its assurances, given this government at one of the most critical moments of tension in the relations of the two governments, I refuse to believe that it is the intention of the German authorities to do in fact what they have warned us they will feel at liberty to do. I cannot bring myself to believe that they will indeed pay no regard to the ancient friendship between their people and our own or to the solemn obligations which have been exchanged between them and destroy American ships and take the lives of American citizens in the willful prosecution of the ruthless naval program they have announced their intention to adopt. Only actual overt acts on their part can make me believe it even now.

"If this inveterate confidence on my part in the sobriety and prudent foresight of their purpose should unhappily prove unfounded, if American ships and American lives should in fact be sacrificed by their naval commanders in heedless contravention of the just and reasonable understandings of international law and the obvious dictates of humanity, I shall take the liberty of coming again before the congress to ask that authority be given me to use any means that may be necessary for the protection of our seamen and our people in the prosecution of their peaceful and legitimate errands on the high seas. I can do nothing less. I take it for granted that all neutral governments will take the same course.

"We do not desire any hostile conflict with the imperial German government. We are the sincere friends of the German people and earnestly desire to remain at peace with the government which speaks for them. We shall not believe that they are hostile to us unless and until we are obliged to believe it; and we purpose nothing more than the reasonable defense of the undoubted rights of our people.

"We wish to serve no selfish ends. We seek merely to stand true alike in thought and in action to the immemorial principles of our people which I sought to express in my address to the senate only two weeks ago—seek merely to vindicate our right to liberty and justice and an unmolested life. These are the bases of peace, not war. God grant that we may not be challenged to defend them by acts of willful injustice on the part of the government of Germany!"

GERMAN AMBASSADOR GIVEN HIS PASSPORTS.

In accordance with the decision of the president, Robert Lansing, the secretary of state, sent the following notification to Count J. H. von Bernstorff:

"Department of State, Feb. 3, 1917.

"Excellency: In acknowledging the note with accompanying memoranda, which you delivered into my hands on the afternoon of Jan. 31, and which announced the purpose of your government as to the future conduct of submarine warfare, I would direct your attention to the following statements appearing in the correspondence which has passed between the government of the United States and the imperial government in regard to submarine warfare."

[Then follow the quotations used by the president in addressing congress: That from the Sussex note giving notification of a severance of diplomatic relations unless Germany's submarine warfare is brought within international law; that from the German reply giving new pledges, but reserving liberty of action should the allied blockade continue unmodified; that from the American rejoinder saying the United States could not predicate Germany's compliance with international law upon the conduct of another belligerent; and lastly that from a memorandum accompanying the German note on Jan. 31 giving notice of unrestricted naval warfare.]

"In view of this declaration," the note concludes, "which withdraws suddenly and without prior intimation the solemn assurance given in the imperial government's note of May 4, 1916, this government has no alternative consistent with the dignity and honor of the United States but to take the course which it explicitly announced in its note of April 13, 1916, it would take in the event that the imperial government did not declare and effect an abandonment of the methods of submarine warfare then employed and to which the imperial government now purposes again to resort.

"The president has therefore directed me to announce to your excellency that all diplomatic relations between the United States and the German empire are severed and that the American ambassador at Berlin will be immediately withdrawn, and in accordance with such announcement to deliver to your excellency your passports.

"I have the honor to be, etc.

"ROBERT LANSING."

SUGGESTION TO NEUTRALS.

The state department on Feb. 3 sent to the American diplomatic representatives in neutral countries the following instructions:

"You will immediately notify the government to which you are accredited that the United States, because of the German government's recent announcement of its intention to renew unrestricted submarine warfare, has no choice but to follow the course laid down in its note of April 13, 1916 [the Sussex note].

"It has, therefore, recalled the American ambassador from Berlin and has delivered passports to the German ambassador to the United States.

"Say also that the president is reluctant to believe Germany actually will carry out her threat against neutral commerce, but if it be done the president will ask congress to authorize use of the national power to protect American citizens engaged in their peaceful and lawful errands on the seas.

"The course taken is, in the president's view, entirely in conformity with the principles he enunciated in his address to the senate Jan. 12. [The address proposing a world league for peace.]

"He believes it will make for the peace of the world if other neutral powers can find it possible to take similar action.

"Report fully and immediately on the reception of this announcement and upon the suggestion as to similar action."

STAND TAKEN BY NEUTRALS.

To the foregoing suggestion the neutral powers addressed returned replies expressive of sympathy with the action taken by the United States, but declining to break with Germany, though all sent notes to that country strongly objecting to the policy of ordering the submarines to make unrestricted warfare on merchant ships of belligerents and neutrals in violation of international law. Spain, for example, in its protest to Germany used this language:

"The Spanish government cannot admit the legality of exceptional methods of warfare. These methods, indeed, notwithstanding Spain's rights as a neutral and her scrupulous fulfillment of the duties incumbent upon her as such, make more difficult and even stop altogether her sea trade, compromising her economic life and threatening with grave dangers the lives of her subjects."

Brazil sent a strong note to Germany declaring that it could not accept as effective the blockade suddenly decreed by the imperial government. Such a blockade, it maintained, would neither be regular nor effective and would be contrary to the principles of law and the conventional rules established for military operations of this nature. "It believes it to be its duty," continued the note, "to protest against this blockade and consequently to leave entirely with the German imperial government the responsibility for all acts which will involve Brazilian citizens, merchandise or ships and which are proven to have been committed in disregard of the recognized principles of international law and of the conventions signed by Brazil and Germany."

Holland, Switzerland and the Scandinavian countries protested against the blockade on similar grounds, but because of their proximity to Germany felt that it would not be wise to break off diplomatic relations. China sent a note to Germany vigorously denying its right to establish such a blockade as that announced.

INDORSES BREAK WITH GERMANY.

The United States senate on Feb. 7, 1917, passed the following resolution by a vote of 78 to 5:

"Whereas, The president has, for the reasons stated in his address delivered to the congress in joint session on Feb. 3, 1917, severed diplomatic relations with the imperial German government by the recall of the American ambassador at Berlin and by handing his passports to the German ambassador at Washington; and,

"Whereas, Notwithstanding this severance of diplomatic intercourse the president has expressed his desire to avoid conflict with the imperial German government; and,

"Whereas, The president declared in this said address that if, in his judgment, an occasion should arise for further action in the premises on the part of the government of the United States, he would submit the matter to the congress and ask the authority of congress to use such measures as he might deem necessary for protection of American seamen and people in the prosecution of their peaceful and legitimate errands on the high seas; therefore, be it

"Resolved by the senate, That the senate approves the action taken by the president as set forth in his address delivered before the joint session of congress as stated above."

Those voting against the resolution were Kirby, Dem. (Ark.), Vardaman, Dem. (Miss.), Gronna, Rep. (N. D.), Works, Rep. (Cal.), and LaFollette, Rep. (Wis.).

GERMAN PROPOSAL REJECTED.

On Feb. 12 the state department in Washington gave out the following:

"In view of the appearance in the newspapers of Feb. 11 of a report that Germany was initiating negotiations with the United States in regard to submarine warfare, the department of state makes the following statement:

"A suggestion was made orally to the department of state late Saturday afternoon by the minister of Switzerland that the German government is willing to negotiate with the United States, provided that the commercial blockade against England would not be interfered with.

"At the request of the secretary of state this suggestion was made in writing and presented to him by the Swiss minister Sunday night. The communication is as follows:

"Memorandum:

"The Swiss government has been requested by the German government to say that the latter is now, as before, willing to negotiate, formally or informally, with the United States, provided that the commercial blockade against England will not be broken thereby.

"P. RITTER."

"This memorandum was given immediate consideration and the following reply was dispatched to-day:

"My Dear Mr. Minister:

"I am requested by the president to say to you in acknowledging the memorandum which you were kind enough to send to me on the 11th instant that the government of the United States would gladly discuss with the German government any questions it might propose for discussion were it to withdraw its proclamation of the 31st of January, in which, suddenly and without previous intimation of any kind, it canceled the assurances which it had given this government on the 4th of May last, but that it does not feel that it can enter into any discussion with the German government concerning the policy of submarine warfare against neutrals which it is now pursuing unless and until the German government renews its assurances of the 4th of May and acts upon the assurances.

"ROBERT LANSING."

"No other interchange on this subject has taken place between this government and any other government or person."

WILSON FOR ARMED NEUTRALITY.

President Wilson appeared before a joint session of the houses of congress Monday afternoon, Feb. 26, and delivered the following address:

"Gentlemen of the Congress: I have again asked the privilege of addressing you because we are moving through critical times, during which it seems to me to be my duty to keep in close touch with the houses of congress, so that neither counsel nor action shall run at cross purposes between us.

"On the 3d of February I officially informed you of the sudden and unexpected action of the imperial German government in declaring its intention to disregard the promises it had made to this government in April last and undertake immediate submarine operations against all commerce, whether of belligerents or of neutrals, that should seek to approach Great Britain and Ireland, the Atlantic coasts of Europe or the harbors of the eastern Mediterranean, and to conduct those operations without regard to the established restrictions of international practice, without regard to any considerations of humanity which might interfere with their object. That policy was forthwith put into practice and has now been in active execution for nearly four weeks.

"Its practical results are not fully disclosed. The commerce of other neutral nations is suffering severely, but not, perhaps, very much more severely than it was already suffering before the 1st of February, when the new policy of the imperial government was put into operation. We have asked the co-operation of the other neutral governments to prevent these depredations, but I fear none of them has thought it wise to join us in any common course of action. Our own commerce has suffered, is suffering, rather in apprehension than in fact, rather because so many of our ships are timidly keeping to their home ports than because American ships have been sunk.

"Two American vessels have been sunk, the Housatonic and the Lyman M. Law. The case of the Housatonic, which was carrying food-stuffs consigned to a London firm, was essentially like the case of the Frye, in which, it will be recalled, the German government admitted its liability for damages, and the lives of the crew, as in the case of the Frye, were safeguarded with reasonable care.

"The case of the Law, which was carrying lemon box staves to Palerm, disclosed a ruthlessness of method which deserves grave consideration, but was accompanied by circumstances which might not have been expected at any time in connection with the use of the submarine against merchantmen as the German government has used it.

"In sum, therefore, the situation we find ourselves in with regard to the actual conduct of the German submarine warfare against commerce and its effects upon our own ships and people is substantially the same that it was when I addressed you on the 3d of February, except for the tying up of our shipping in our own ports because of the unwillingness of our ship owners to risk their vessels at sea without insurance or adequate protection and the very serious congestion of our commerce which has resulted, a congestion which is growing rapidly more and more serious every day.

"This in itself might presently accomplish, in effect, what the new German submarine orders were meant to accomplish, so far as we are concerned. We can only say, therefore, that the overt act which I have ventured to hope the German commanders would in fact avoid has not occurred.

"But while this is happily true, it must be admitted that there have been certain additional indications and expressions of purpose on the part of the German press and the German authorities which have increased rather than lessened the impression that, if our ships and our people are spared, it will be because of fortunate circumstances or because the commanders of the German submarines which they may happen to encounter exercise an unexpected discretion and restraint rather than because of the instructions under which those commanders are acting.

"It would be foolish to deny that the situation is fraught with the gravest possibilities and dangers. No thoughtful man can fail to see that the necessity for definite action may come at any time, if we are in fact, and not in word merely, to defend our elementary rights as a neutral nation. It would be most imprudent to be unprepared.

"I cannot in such circumstances be unmindful of the fact that the expiration of the term of the present congress is immediately at hand, by constitutional limitations, and that it would in all likelihood require an unusual length of time to assemble and organize the congress which is to succeed it.

"I feel that I ought in view of that fact, to obtain from you full and immediate assurance of the authority which I may need at any moment to exercise. No doubt I already possess that power without special warrant of law, by the plain implication of my constitutional duties and powers, but I prefer in the present circumstances not to act upon general implication. I wish to feel that the authority and the power of the congress are behind me in whatever it may become necessary for me to do. We are jointly the servants of the people and must act together and in their spirit, so far as we can divine and interpret it.

"No one doubts that it is our duty to do so. We must defend our commerce and the lives of our people in the midst of the present trying circumstances with discretion, but with clear and steadfast purpose. Only the method and the extent remain to be chosen, upon the occasion, if occasion should indeed arise.

"Since it has unhappily proved impossible to safeguard our neutral rights by diplomatic means against the unwarranted infringements they are suffering at the hands of Germany, there may be no recourse but to armed neutrality, which we shall know how to maintain and for which there is abundant American precedent.

"It is devoutly to be hoped that it will not be necessary to put armed force anywhere into action. The American people do not desire it, and our desire is not different from theirs. I am sure that they will understand the spirit in which I am now acting, the purpose I hold nearest my heart and would wish to exhibit in everything I do.

"I am anxious that the people of the nations at war also should understand and not mistrust us. I hope that I need give no further proofs and assurances than I have already given throughout nearly three years of anxious patience that I am the friend of peace and mean to preserve it for America so long as I am able.

"I am not now proposing or contemplating war or any steps that need lead to it. I merely request that you will accord me by your own vote and definite bestowal the means and the authority to safeguard in practice the right of a great people who are at peace and who are desirous of exercising none but the rights of peace to follow the pursuit of peace in quietness and good will—rights recognized time out of mind by all the civilized nations of the world. No course of my choosing or of theirs will lead to war. War can come only by the willful acts and aggressions of others.

"You will understand why I can make no definite proposals or forecasts of action now and must ask your supporting authority in the most general terms. The form in which action may become necessary cannot yet be foreseen. I believe that the people will be willing to trust me to act with restraint, with prudence and in the true spirit of amity and good faith that they have themselves displayed throughout these trying months; and it is in that belief that I request that you will authorize me to supply our merchant ships with defensive arms should that become necessary and with the means of using them, and to employ any other instrumentalities or methods that may be necessary and adequate to protect our ships and our people in their legitimate and peaceful pursuits on the seas.

"I request also that you will grant me at the same time, along with the powers I ask, a sufficient credit to enable me to provide adequate means of protection where they are lacking, including adequate insurance against the present war risks.

"I have spoken of our commerce and of the legitimate errands of our people on the seas, but you will not be misled as to my main thought, the thought that lies beneath these phrases and gives them dignity and weight. It is not a matter of interest merely that we are thinking. It is, rather, of fundamental human rights, chief of all the right of life itself. I am thinking not only of the rights of Americans to go and come about their proper business by way of the sea, but also of something much deeper, much more fundamental than that. I am thinking of those rights of humanity without which there is no civilization.

"My theme is of those great principles of compassion and of protection which mankind has sought to throw about human lives, the lives of combatants and the lives of men who are peacefully at work keeping the industrial processes of the world quick and vital, the lives of women and children and of those who supply the labor which ministers to their sustenance. We are speaking of no selfish material rights, but of rights which our hearts support and whose foundation is that righteous passion for justice upon which all law, all structures alike of family, of state and of mankind must rest, as upon the ultimate base of our existence and our liberty. I cannot imagine any man with American principles at his heart hesitating to defend these things."

ARMS FOR MERCHANT SHIPS.

While President Wilson was asking congress for authority to arm American merchant vessels, news was received that the 18,000 ton Cunard liner Laconia had been sunk without warning by a German submarine on the evening of Feb. 25 with a loss of a dozen lives, three of the victims being American citizens. This was generally regarded as the "overt act" for which the Washington authorities had been waiting, and with few exceptions members of congress felt that the president should be given the power he desired without delay. On the 1st of March the house by a vote of 493 to 13 passed a bill authorizing and empowering the president of the United States to supply merchant ships, the property of citizens of the United States and bearing American registry, with defensive arms should it, in his judgment, become necessary for him to do so, and also with the necessary ammunition and means of making use of them in defense against unlawful acts. The bill also appropriated $100,000,000 for the purpose of arming and insuring merchant ships, the money to be secured by a bond issue.

The thirteen representatives voting against the bill were:

H. Stanley Benedict, Rep., Cal.
William J. Carr, Rep., Wis.
Henry A. Cooper, Rep., Wis.

Charles R. Davis, Rep., Minn.
 Perl D. Decker, Dem., Mo.
 Henry T. Helgesen, Rep., N. D.
 Charles A. Lindbergh, Rep., Minn.
 Meyer London, Soc., N. Y.
 John M. Nelson, Rep., Wis.
 Dorsey W. Shackelford, Dem., Mo.
 Isaac R. Sherwood, Dem., O.
 William H. Stafford, Rep., Wis.
 William W. Wilson, Rep., Ill.

ZIMMERMANN PLOT REVEALED.

The passage of the bill by the house was probably hastened by the revelation through The Associated Press on the evening of Feb. 23 of a scheme by which Germany hoped to involve the United States in a war with Mexico and Japan. The plan was embodied in the following letter of instructions bearing the signature of Dr. Zimmermann, German minister of foreign affairs, sent through Ambassador Count von Bernstorff to the German minister in Mexico City, Heinrich von Eckardt:

"Berlin, Jan. 19, 1917.—On the 1st of February we intend to begin submarine warfare unrestricted. In spite of this, it is our intention to endeavor to keep neutral the United States of America.

"If this attempt is not successful we propose an alliance on the following basis with Mexico: 'That we shall make war together and together make peace. We shall give general financial support and it is understood that Mexico is to recover the lost territory in New Mexico, Texas and Arizona. The details are left to you for settlement.

"You are instructed to inform the president of Mexico of the above in the greatest confidence as soon as it is certain that there will be an outbreak of war with the United States, and suggest that the president of Mexico, on his own initiative, should communicate with Japan suggesting adherence at once to this plan; at the same time offer to mediate between Germany and Japan.

"Please call to the attention of the president of Mexico that the employment of ruthless submarine warfare now promises to compel England to make peace in a few months.

"ZIMMERMANN."

AUTHENTICITY PROVED.

The publication of this letter caused an international sensation and the document was considered so remarkable that its authenticity was doubted. The matter was brought up in the United States senate March 1 and the following resolution adopted:

"Resolved, That the president be requested to furnish to the senate whatever information he has concerning the note published in the press of this date purporting to have been sent Jan. 19, 1917, by the German secretary for foreign affairs to the German minister to Mexico, which, in his opinion, is not incompatible with the public interest.

On the evening of the same day the following message from the president was laid before the senate:

"To the Senate: In response to the resolution adopted by the senate on March 1, 1917, requesting the president to furnish the senate, if not incompatible with the public interest, whatever information he has concerning the note published in the press of this date purporting to have been sent Jan. 19, 1917, by the German secretary for foreign affairs to the German minister to Mexico, I transmit herewith a report by the secretary of state, which has my approval.

WOODROW WILSON.

"The White House.
 "Washington, March 1, 1917."

"Department of State, Washington, "March 1, 1917.

"To the President: With regard to the resolution adopted by the United States senate on March 1, 1917, requesting that that body be furnished, if not incompatible with the public interest, whatever information you have concerning the note published in the press of this date purporting to have been sent Jan. 19, 1917, by the German secretary for foreign affairs to the German minister to Mexico. I have the honor to state that the government is in possession of evidence which establishes the fact that the note referred to is authentic, and that it is in the possession of the government of the United States, and that the evidence was procured by this government during the present week, but that it is, in my opinion, incompatible with the public interest to send to the senate at the present time any further information in the possession of the government of the United States relative to the note mentioned in the resolution of the senate.

"Respectfully submitted,

"ROBERT LANSING."

It may be added that, in spite of this evidence of the authenticity of the document, many of the German propagandists in the United States pronounced it a "stupid forgery," and they did not believe it genuine until a day later, when Dr. Zimmermann, much to their confusion, acknowledged that it was written and sent as published, his excuse being that it was his duty to prepare for the eventuality of war with the United States. This view of the case was also taken by the German reichstag, which approved of the letter.

FILIBUSTER IN SENATE.

Satisfied that affairs had reached such a stage that the president must be upheld in his efforts to protect American lives and property at sea, the senate on March 2 began consideration of a bill similar to that passed by the house giving the chief executive power to arm American merchant ships for defensive purposes. It at once became manifest that a small group of senators led by Robert M. LaFollette of Wisconsin had determined to kill the measure by means of a filibuster. This was easy of accomplishment, as congress expired by constitutional limitation at noon on March 4. The obstructionists not only killed this measure but several others of great importance, considering the critical international situation. Before the senate adjourned seventy-five senators, of whom forty-five were democrats and thirty republicans, signed the following manifesto, which was read into the record:

"The undersigned United States senators favor the passage of senate bill 832, to authorize the president of the United States to arm American merchant vessels. A similar bill already has passed the house of representatives by a vote of 403 to 13. Under the rules of the senate, allowing unlimited debate, it now appears to be impossible to obtain a vote prior to noon March 4, 1917, when the session of congress expires. We desire the statement entered in the record to establish the fact that the senate favors the legislation and would pass it if a vote could be obtained."

The senators responsible for defeating the bill were:

Robert M. LaFollette, Rep., Wis.
 William J. Stone, Dem., Mo.
 Asle J. Gronna, Rep., N. D.
 Moses E. Clapp, Rep., Minn.
 Albert B. Cummins, Rep., Iowa.
 William S. Kenyon, Rep., Iowa.
 John D. Works, Rep., Cal.
 George W. Norris, Rep., Neb.
 James A. O'Gorman, Dem., N. Y.
 James K. Vardaman, Dem., Miss.
 William F. Kirby, Dem., Ark.
 Harry Lane, Dem., Ore.

REBUKE BY PRESIDENT.

On the evening of March 4 President Wilson issued the following statement:

"The termination of the last session of the 64th congress by constitutional limitation discloses a situation unparalleled in the history of the country, perhaps unparalleled in the history of any modern government.

"In the immediate presence of a crisis, fraught with more subtle and far-reaching possibilities of national danger than any other the government has known within the whole history of its international relations, the congress has been unable to act either to safeguard the country or to vindicate the elementary rights of its citizens.

"More than 500 of the 531 members of the two houses were ready and anxious to act; the house of representatives had acted, by an overwhelming majority; but the senate was unable to act because a little group of eleven senators had determined that it should not.

"The senate has no rules by which debate can be limited or brought to an end, no rules by which dilatory tactics of any kind can be prevented. A single member can stand in the way of action if he have but the physical endurance. The result in this case is a complete paralysis alike of the legislative and of the executive branches of the government.

"This inability of the senate to act has made some of the most necessary legislation of the session impossible at a time when the need for it was most pressing and most evident. The bill which would have permitted such combinations of capital and of organization in the export and import trade of the country as the circumstances of international competition have made imperative—a bill which the business judgment of the whole country approved and demanded—has failed. The opposition of one or two senators has made it impossible to increase the membership of the interstate commerce commission or to give it the altered organization necessary for its efficiency.

"The conservation bill, which should have released for immediate use the mineral resources which are still locked up in the public lands, how that their release is more imperatively necessary than ever, and the bill which would have made the unused water power of the country immediately available for industry have both failed, although they have been under consideration throughout the sessions of two congresses and have been twice passed by the house of representatives.

"The appropriations for the army have failed, along with the appropriations for the civil establishment of the government, the appropriation for the military academy at West Point, and the general deficiency bill.

"It has proved impossible to extend the powers of the shipping board to meet the special needs of the new situation into which our commerce has been forced, or to increase the gold reserve of our national banking system to meet the unusual circumstances of the existing financial situation.

"It would not cure the difficulty to call the 65th congress in extraordinary session. The paralysis of the senate would remain. The purpose and the spirit of action are not lacking now. The congress is more definitely united in thought and purpose at this moment, I venture to say, than it has been within the memory of any man now in its membership.

"There is not only the most united patriotic purpose, but the subjects members have in view are perfectly clear and definite.

"But the senate cannot act unless its leaders can obtain unanimous consent. Its majority is powerless, helpless. In the midst of a crisis of extraordinary peril, when only definite and decided action can make the nation safe or shield it from war itself by the aggression of others, action is impossible.

"Although as a matter of fact the nation and the representatives of the nation stand back of the executive with unprecedented unanimity and spirit, the impression abroad will, of course, be that it is not so and that other governments may act as they please without fear that this government can do anything at all.

"We cannot explain. The explanation is incredible. The senate of the United States is the only executive body in the world which cannot act when its majority is ready for action. A little group of willful men, representing no opinion but their own, have made the great government of the United States helpless and contemptible.

"The remedy! There is but one remedy. The only remedy is that the rules of the senate shall be so altered that it can act. The country can be relied upon to draw the moral. I believe that the senate can be relied on to supply the means of action and save the country from disaster."

CLOTURE RULE ADOPTED.

Severe public criticism following the failure of the senate to obtain legislative action at a critical time in the nation's affairs led to an emphatic demand for a rule which would prevent the blocking of legislation by filibustering tactics. The senate itself, immediately after being called into special session, took the matter up and, after a comparatively brief discussion, adopted (March 8) a cloture rule satisfactory to the president. The only votes against this measure were those of Senators LaFollette, Gronna and Sherman. The change in procedure was by adding at the close of rule 22 the following:

"Provided, however, that if at any time a motion, signed by sixteen senators, to bring to a close the debate upon any pending measure is presented to the senate, the presiding officer shall at once state the motion to the senate, and one hour after the senate meets on the following calendar day but one he shall lay the motion before the senate and direct that the secretary call the roll, and upon the ascertainment that a quorum is present the presiding officer shall, without debate, submit to the senate by a ye and nay vote the question: 'Is it the sense of the senate that the debate shall be brought to a close?'

"And if that question shall be decided in the affirmative by a two-thirds vote of the voting members said measure shall be the unfinished business to the exclusion of all other business until disposed of.

"Thereafter no senator shall be entitled to speak in all more than one hour on the pending measure, the amendments thereto and motions affecting the same, and it shall be the duty of the presiding officer to keep the time of each senator who speaks. Except by unanimous consent, no amendment shall be in order after the vote to bring the debate to a close, unless the same has been presented and read prior to that time. No dilatory motion, or dilatory amendment, or amendment not germane shall be in order. Points of order, including questions of relevancy and appeals from the decision of the presiding officer, shall be decided without debate."

The senate extra session closed March 15 without taking any other action having a bearing on the international situation.

PRESIDENT ORDERS ARMING OF SHIPS.

While President Wilson in his speech before congress said he was satisfied that he had the power under the constitution of ordering arms to be placed aboard American merchantmen for defensive purposes, some doubt arose through the discovery of a law passed in 1819 permitting the arming of merchant vessels to defend themselves "against any aggression, search, restraint, depredation or seizure by the commander or crew of any armed vessel whatsoever, not being a public armed vessel of some nation in amity with the United States." It was thought by some that this would prohibit defensive measures against Germany, a country with which America was "in amity." It was held by the attorney-general and others, however, that the law in question, which was passed for the purpose of suppressing piracy, did not prevent the president from arming merchant ships for protection against lawless attacks. In consequence of this view, which coincided with his own, the president on March 9 gave orders to the navy department to assist in arming American merchant vessels desiring arms. At the same time all newspapers were asked voluntarily to refrain from publishing details of the steps taken in this direction, while telegraph and cable companies were asked not to make known the movements of merchant vessels.

EXTRA SESSION CALLED.

On the same date (March 9) the president issued a call for an extra session of the 65th congress to begin April 16.

NOTICE OF SHIP GUARD GIVEN.

Formal notice that American ships traversing the German submarine zone would carry an armed guard was sent by the state department March 12 to the embassies and legations in Washington of all foreign governments. The text of the notice read:

"In view of the announcement of the imperial German government on Jan. 31, 1917, that all ships, those of neutrals included, met within certain zones of the high seas, would be sunk without any precaution being taken for the safety of the persons on board and without the exercise of visit and search, the government of the United States has determined to place upon all American merchant vessels sailing through the barred areas an armed guard for the protection of the vessels and the lives of the persons on board."

DATE OF SPECIAL SESSION ADVANCED.

March 13 it became known that the American steamers City of Memphis, Vigilancia and Illinois had been sunk by German submarines in the war zone without warning and that at least fifteen lives had been lost, while the remainder of the officers and sailors were compelled to remain many hours in open boats in a rough sea, the submarines making no attempt to assure their safety. These vessels were all unarmed and displayed their colors. It was admitted in Washington that the sinking of these vessels under the circumstances virtually established a "state of war" and at a cabinet meeting held March 20 the president was urged to take speedy action. On the following day he issued a call for a special session of congress beginning April 2, instead of April 16, the date fixed by the call of March 9.

PRESIDENT ASKS CONGRESS FOR WAR ACTION.

On April 2 the nation's lawmakers assembled in Washington for a special session of congress to take such action on the war situation as they might deem advisable or as might be recommended to them by the president. The house of representatives organized speedily by the election of Champ Clark as speaker, and at 8:30 o'clock in the evening President Wilson appeared before congress in joint session in the house of representatives and read the following message:

"Gentlemen of the Congress: I have called the congress into extraordinary session because there are serious—very serious—choices of policy to be made, and made immediately, which it was neither right nor constitutionally permissible that I should assume the responsibility of making.

"On the 3d of February last I officially laid before you the extraordinary announcement of the imperial German government that on and after the first day of February it was its purpose to put aside all restraints of law or of humanity and use its submarines to sink every vessel that sought to approach either the ports of Great Britain and Ireland or the western coast of Europe, or any of the ports controlled by the enemies of Germany within the Mediterranean. That had seemed to be the object of the German submarine warfare earlier in the war, but since April of last year the imperial government had somewhat restrained the commanders of its undersea craft in conformity with its promise then given to us that passenger boats should not be sunk and that due warning would be given to all other vessels which its submarines might seek to destroy, when no resistance was offered or escape attempted, and care taken that their crews were given at least a fair chance to save their lives in their open boats. The precautions taken were meager and haphazard enough, as was proved in distressing instance after instance in the progress of the cruel and unmanly business, but a certain degree of restraint was observed.

ALL RESTRICTIONS SWEEP ASIDE.

"The new policy has swept every restriction aside. Vessels of every kind, whatever their flag, their character, their cargo, their destination, their errand, have been ruthlessly sent to the bottom without warning, and without thought of help or mercy for those on board, the vessels of friendly neutrals along with those of belligerents. Even hospital ships and ships carrying relief to the sorely bereaved and stricken people of Belgium, though the latter were provided with safe conduct through the proscribed areas by the German government itself, and were distinguished by unmistakable marks of identity, have been sunk with the same reckless lack of compassion or principle.

"I was for a little while unable to believe that such things would in fact be done by any government that had hitherto subscribed to the humane practices of civilized nations. International law had its origin in the attempt to set up some law which would be respected and observed upon the seas, where no nation had right of dominion and where lay the free highways of the world. By painful stage after stage has that law been built up with meager enough results, indeed, after all was accomplished that could be accomplished, but always with a clear view, at least, of what the heart and conscience of mankind demanded.

"This minimum of right the German government has swept aside under the plea of retaliation and necessity, and because it had no weapons which it could use at sea except these, which it is impossible to employ as it is employing them without throwing to the winds all scruples of humanity or of respect for the understandings that were supposed to underlie the intercourse of the world.

"I am not now thinking of the loss of property involved, immense and serious as that is, but only of the wanton and wholesale destruction of the lives of noncombatants, men, women and children, engaged in pursuits which have always, even in the darkest periods of modern history, been deemed innocent and legitimate. Property can be paid for; the lives of peaceful and innocent people cannot be.

IS WARFARE AGAINST MANKIND.

"The present German submarine warfare against commerce is a warfare against mankind. It is a war against all nations. American ships have been sunk, American lives taken, in ways which it has stirred us very deeply to learn of, but the ships and people of other neutral and friendly nations have been sunk and overwhelmed in the waters in the same way. There has been no discrimination. The challenge is to all mankind. Each nation must decide for itself how it will meet it. The choice we make for ourselves must be made with a moderation of counsel and a temperateness of judgment befitting our character and our motives as a nation. We must put excited feeling away. Our motive will not be revenge or the victorious assertion of the physical might of the nation, but only the vindication of right, of human right, of which we are only a single champion.

"When I addressed the congress on the 26th of February last I thought that it would suffice to assert our neutral rights with arms, our right to use the seas against unlawful interference, our right to keep our people safe against unlawful violence. But armed neutrality, it now appears, is impracticable.

MUST DESTROY SUBMARINES.

"Because submarines are in effect outlaws when used as the German submarines have been used against merchant shipping, it is impossible to defend ships against their attacks as the law of nations has assumed that merchantmen would defend themselves against privateers or cruisers, visible craft giving chase upon the open sea. It is common prudence in such circumstances, grim necessity indeed, to endeavor to destroy them before they have shown their own intention. They must be dealt with upon sight if dealt with at all.

"The German government denies the right of neutrals to use arms at all within the areas of the sea which it has proscribed, even in the defense of rights which no modern publicist has ever before questioned their right to defend. The intimation is conveyed that the armed guards which we have placed on our merchant ships will be treated as beyond the pale of law and subject to be dealt with as pirates would be. Armed neutrality is ineffectual enough at best; in such circumstances and in the face of such pretensions it is worse than ineffectual; it is likely at once to produce what it was meant to prevent; it is practically certain to draw us into the war without either the rights or the effectiveness of belligerents.

NATION WILL NOT SUBMIT.

"There is one choice we cannot make, we are incapable of making. We will not choose the path of submission and suffer the most sacred rights of our nation and our people to be ignored or violated. The wrongs against which we now array ourselves are not common wrongs; they cut to the very roots of human life.

"With a profound sense of the solemn and even tragical character of the step I am taking and of the grave responsibilities which it involves, but in unhesitating obedience to what I deem my constitutional duty, I advise that the congress declare the recent course of the imperial German government to be in fact nothing less than war against the government and people of the United States; that it formally accept the status of belligerent which has thus been thrust upon it and that it take immediate steps not only to put the country in a more thorough state of defense, but also to exert all its power and employ all its resources to bring the government of the German empire to terms and end the war.

MUST GIVE AID TO ALLIES.

"What this will involve is clear. It will involve the utmost practicable co-operation in counsel and action with the governments now at war with Germany and, as incident to that, the extension to those governments of the most liberal financial credits, in order that our resources may, so far as possible, be added to theirs.

"It will involve the organization and mobilization of all the material resources of the country to supply the materials of war and serve the incidental needs of the nation in the most abundant and yet the most economical and efficient way possible.

"It will involve the immediate full equipment of the navy in all respects, but particularly in supplying it with the best means of dealing with the enemy's submarines.

"It will involve the immediate addition to the armed forces of the United States already provided for by law in case of war at least 500,000 men, who should, in my opinion, be chosen upon the principle of universal liability to service, and also the authorization of subsequent additional increments of equal force so soon as they may be needed and can be handled in training.

TAXATION FOR WAR NEEDED.

"It will involve also, of course, the granting of adequate credits to the government, sustained, I hope, so far as they can equitably be sustained by the present generation, by well conceived taxation. I say sustained so far as may be equitably by taxation because it seems to me that it would be most unwise to base the credits which will now be necessary entirely on money borrowed. It is our duty. I must respectfully urge, to protect our people so far as we may against the very serious hardships and evils which would be likely to arise out of the inflation which would be produced by vast loans.

"In carrying out the measures by which these things are to be accomplished we should keep constantly in mind the wisdom of interfering as little as possible in our own preparation and in the equipment of our own military forces with the duty—for it will be a very practical duty—of supplying the nations already at war with Germany with the materials which they can obtain only from us or by our assistance. They are in the field and we should help them in every way to be effective there.

MEASURES TO BE PROPOSED.

"I shall take the liberty of suggesting, through the several executive departments of the government, for the consideration of your committees, measures for the accomplishment of the several objects I have mentioned. I hope that it will be your pleasure to deal with them as having been framed after very careful thought by the branch of the government upon which the responsibility of conducting the war and safeguarding the nation will most directly fall.

"While we do these things, these deeply momentous things, let us be very clear and make very clear to all the world what our motives and our objects are. My own thought has not been driven from its habitual and normal course by the unhappy events of the last two months, and I do not believe that the thought of the nation has been altered or clouded by them.

AUTOCRACY AS MENACE.

"I have exactly the same things in mind now that I had in mind when I addressed the senate on the 22d of January last; the same that I had in mind when I addressed the congress on the 3d of February and on the 26th of February. Our object now, as then, is to vindicate the principles of peace and justice in the life of the world as against selfish and autocratic power and to set up among the really free and self-governed peoples of the world such a concert of purpose and of action as will henceforth insure the observance of these principles. Neutrality is no longer feasible or desirable where the peace of the world is involved and the freedom of its peoples, and the menace to that peace and freedom lies in the existence of autocratic governments backed by organized force which is controlled wholly by their will, not the will of their people. We have seen the last of neutrality in such circumstances.

"We are at the beginning of an age in which it will be insisted that the same standards of conduct and of responsibility for wrong done shall be observed among nations and their governments that are observed among the individual citizens of civilized states.

ABSOLVES GERMAN PEOPLE.

"We have no quarrel with the German people. We have no feeling toward them but one of sympathy and friendship. It was not upon their impulse that their government acted in entering this war. It was not with their previous knowledge or approval.

"It was a war determined upon as wars used to be determined on in the old, unhappy days when people were nowhere consulted by their rulers and wars were provoked and waged in the interest of dynasties or of little groups of ambitious men who were accustomed to use their fellow men as pawns and tools.

"Self-governed nations do not fill their neighbor states with spies or set the course of intrigue to bring about some critical posture of affairs which will give them an opportunity to strike and make conquest. Such designs can be successfully worked only under cover and where no one has the right to ask questions.

"Cunningly contrived plans of deception or aggression, carried, it may be, from generation to generation, can be worked out and kept from the light only within the privacy of courts or behind the carefully guarded confidences of a narrow and privileged class. They are happily impossible where public opinion commands and insists upon full information concerning all the nation's affairs.

"A steadfast concert for peace can never be maintained except by a partnership of democratic nations. No autocratic government could be trusted to keep faith within it or observe its covenants. It must be a league of honor, a partnership of opinion. Intrigue would eat its vitals away; the plottings of inner circles who could plan what they would and render account to no one would be a corruption seated at its very heart. Only free peoples can hold their purpose and their honor steady to a common end and prefer the interests of mankind to any narrow interest of their own.

ENCOURAGED BY RUSSIA.

"Does not every American feel that assurance has been added to our hope for the future peace of the world by the wonderful and heartening things that have been happening within the last few weeks in Russia?

"Russia was known by those who knew it best to have been always in fact democratic at heart, in all the vital habits of her thought, in all the intimate relationships of her people that spoke their natural instinct, their habitual attitude toward life. The autocracy that crowned the summit of her political structure, long as it had stood and terrible as was the reality of its power, was not in fact Russian in origin, character or purpose; and now it has been shaken off and the great, generous Russian people have been added in all their native majesty and might to the forces that are fighting for freedom in the world, for justice and for peace. Here is a fit partner for a league of honor.

FILLED AMERICA WITH SPIES.

"One of the things that have served to convince us that the Prussian autocracy was not and could never be our friend is that from the very outset of the present war it has filled our unsuspecting communities and even our offices of government with spies and set criminal intrigues everywhere afoot against our national unity of council, our peace within and without, our industries and our commerce.

"Indeed, it is now evident that its spies were here even before the war began; and it is unhappily not a matter of conjecture but a fact proved in our courts of justice that the intrigues which have more than once come perilously near to disturbing the peace and dislocating the industries of the country have been carried on at the instigation, with the support and even under the personal direction of official agents of the imperial government accredited to the government of the United States.

"Even in checking these things and trying to extirpate them we have sought to put the most generous interpretation possible upon them because we knew that their source lay not in any hostile feeling or purpose of the German people toward us (who were, no doubt, as ignorant of them as we ourselves were), but only in the selfish designs of a government that did what it pleased and told its people nothing.

CONVINCED OF PRUSSIAN ENMITY.

"But they have played their part in serving to convince us at last that that government entertains no real friendship for us and means to act against our peace and security at its convenience. That it means to stir up enemies against us at our very doors the intercepted note to the German minister at Mexico City is eloquent evidence.

"We are accepting this challenge of hostile purpose because we know that in such a government, following such methods, we can never have a friend; and that in the presence of its organized power, always lying in wait to accomplish we know not what purpose, there can be no assured security for the democratic governments of the world.

"We are now about to accept the gage of battle with this natural foe to liberty and shall, if necessary, spend the whole force of the nation to check and nullify its pretensions and its power. We are glad now that we see the facts with no veil of false pretense about them, to fight thus for the ultimate peace of the world and for the liberation of its peoples, the German peoples included; for the rights of nations great and small and the privilege of men everywhere to choose their way of life and of obedience. The world must be made safe for democracy. Its peace must be planted upon the trusted foundation of political liberty.

NO SELFISH END TO SERVE.

"We have no selfish ends to serve. We desire no conquest, no dominion. We seek no indemnities for ourselves, no material compensation for the sacrifices we shall freely make. We are but one of the champions of the rights of mankind. We shall be satisfied when those rights have been made as secure as the faith and the freedom of the nations can make them.

"Just because we fight without rancor and without selfish objects, seeking nothing for ourselves but what we shall wish to share as free people, we shall, I feel confident, conduct our operations as belligerents without passion and ourselves observe with proud punctiliousness the principles of right and of fair play we profess to be fighting for.

AUSTRIAN ISSUE IN BALANCE.

"I have said nothing of the governments allied with the imperial government of Germany because they have not made war upon us or challenged us to defend our right and our honor. The Austro-Hungarian government has, indeed, avowed its unqualified indorsement and acceptance of the reckless and lawless warfare adopted now without disguise by the imperial German government, and it has therefore not been possible for this government to receive Count Tarnowski, the ambassador recently accredited to this government by the imperial and royal government of Austria-Hungary, but that government has not actually engaged in warfare against citizens of the United States on the seas, and I take the liberty, for the present at least, of postponing a decision of our relations with the authorities at Vienna. We enter this warning only where we are clearly forced into it because there are no other means of defending our rights.

"It will be all the easier for us to conduct ourselves as belligerents in a high spirit of right and fairness because we act without animus, not in enmity toward a people or with the desire to bring any injury or disadvantage upon them, but only in armed opposition to an irresponsible government which has thrown aside all considerations of humanity and of right and is running amuck.

SINCERE FRIENDS OF GERMANS.

"We are, let me say again, the sincere friends of the German people, and shall desire nothing so much as the early re-establishment of intimate relations of mutual advantage between us—however hard it may be for them, for the time being, to believe that this is spoken from our hearts. We have borne with their present government through all these bitter months because of that friendship—exercising a patience, and forbearance which would otherwise have been impossible. We shall, happily, still have an opportunity to prove that friendship in our daily attitude and actions toward the millions of men and women of German birth and native sympathy who live amongst us and share our life, and we shall be proud to prove it toward all who are in fact loyal to their neighbors and to the government in the hour of test. They are, most of them, as true and loyal Americans as if they had never known any other fealty or allegiance. They will be prompt to stand with us in rebuking and restraining the few who may be of a different mind and purpose.

"If there should be distaste, it will be dealt with with a firm hand of stern repression; but if it lifts its head at all it will lift it only here and there and without countenance except from a lawless and malignant few.

"It is a distressing and oppressive duty, gentlemen of the congress, which I have performed in thus addressing you. There are, it may be, many months of fiery trial and sacrifice ahead of us. It is a fearful thing to lead this great peaceful country into war, into the most terrible and disastrous of all wars, civilization itself seeming to be in the balance. But the right is more precious than peace, and we shall fight for the things which we have always carried nearest our hearts—for democracy, for the right of those who submit to authority to have a voice in their own governments, for the rights and liberties of small nations, for a universal dominion of right by such a concert of free peoples as shall bring peace and safety to all nations and make the world itself at last free.

"To such a task we can dedicate our lives and our fortunes, everything that we are and everything that we have, with the pride of those who know that the day has come when America is privileged to spend her blood and her might for the principles that gave her birth and happiness and the peace which she has treasured. God helping her, she can do no other."

CONGRESS DECIDES FOR WAR.

IN THE SENATE.

Responding promptly to the president's appeal both houses of congress prepared to pass a joint resolution approved by the chief executive declaring the existence of a state of war between the United States and Germany. The resolution was introduced in each house on the evening of April 2 and referred to the foreign affairs committee of each body for consideration. In the senate the committee, with the exception of its chairman, William J. Stone, of Missouri, was in favor of its adoption, and so reported to the senate on April 2. Efforts were made to pass it at once, but Senator Robert M. LaFollette of Wisconsin objected, and the resolution went over until the following day, April 4, when it was taken up. After a long debate it was adopted at 11:15 o'clock in the evening by a vote of 82 to 6. The senators speaking and voting against the resolution were:

Asle J. Gronna, Rep., North Dakota.
Harry Lane, Dem., Oregon.

Robert M. LaFollette, Rep., Wisconsin.
George W. Norris, Rep., Nebraska.
William J. Stone, Dem., Missouri.
James K. Vardaman, Dem., Mississippi.

There were eight senators absent or paired. They were Bankhead, Goff, Gore, Hollis, Newlands, Smith (Md.), Thomas and Tillman. It was announced that all of these except Gore would have voted for the resolution if present. Those making the chief arguments in favor of the resolution were Senators Hitchcock, Swanson, Lodge, Reed, Tillman, Myers, Ashurst, Williams, Hardwick, Husting, James, Borah and Harding. Senator LaFollette spoke for three hours against the resolution. His contention was that Germany was justified in resorting to an unrestricted submarine war.

Following is the resolution as adopted by the senate:

"Resolved, by the senate and house of representatives of the United States of America, in congress assembled, That the state of war between the United States and the imperial German government which has thus been thrust upon the United States is hereby formally declared; and that the president be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to employ the entire naval and military forces of the United States and the resources of the government to carry on war against the imperial German government; and to bring the conflict to a successful termination all of the resources of the country are hereby pledged by the congress of the United States."

IN THE HOUSE.

In the house foreign affairs committee the senate resolution, which was worded a little differently from that originally presented, was substituted and recommended for passage by all the members except Henry A. Cooper of Wisconsin and Dorsey W. Shackelford of Missouri. By unanimous consent it was arranged to take the resolution up at 10 a. m., April 5, and have the house remain in continuous session until the matter could be finally passed upon.

Beginning at the hour fixed the debate continued in the house all day and evening until 3 o'clock on the morning of April 6, when the resolution unamended was passed by a vote of 373 to 50. It was signed by President Wilson at 1:11 p. m., on the same day.

No time limit was set on the discussion in the house, and every member who wished to talk had an opportunity to do so. Something like 100 speeches were delivered in the course of the seventeen hours before the session came to a close. Among the principal advocates of the measure were Henry D. Flood, chairman of the foreign affairs committee; Isaac Siegel of New York, T. W. Harrison of Mississippi, Joseph G. Cannon, George E. Foss and James R. Mann of Illinois, Clarence D. Miller of Minnesota, Irvine R. Lenroot of Wisconsin and John W. Fitzgerald of New York. Among those speaking in opposition were Claude Kitchen of North Carolina, Henry A. Cooper and William H. Stafford of Wisconsin, Fred A. Britten and William E. Mason of Illinois and Meyer London, socialist, from New York. Miss Jeannette Rankin of Montana, the only woman member of congress, voted against the resolution.

WAR PROCLAMATION.

On the same day after signing the war resolution passed by congress President Wilson issued the following war proclamation:

"Whereas, The congress of the United States, in the exercise of the constitutional authority vested in them, have resolved by joint resolution of the senate and house of representatives bearing date this day, 'that a state of war between the United States and the imperial German government, which has been thrust upon the United States,' is hereby formally declared:

"Whereas, It is provided by section 4067 of the revised statutes as follows:

" 'Whenever there is declared a war between the United States and any foreign nation or government or any invasion or predatory incursion is perpetrated, attempted or threatened against the territory of the United States by any foreign nation or government and the president makes public proclamation of the event, all natives, citizens, denizens or subjects of a hostile nation or government being male of the age of 14 years and upward who shall be within the United States and not actually naturalized shall be liable to be apprehended, restrained, secured and removed as alien enemies.

"The president is authorized in any such event by his proclamation thereof or other public acts to direct the conduct to be observed on the part of the United States toward the aliens who become so liable; the manner and degree of the restraint to which they shall be subject and in what cases and upon what security their residence shall be permitted, and to provide for the removal of those who, not being permitted to reside within the United States, refuse or neglect to depart therefrom; and to establish any such regulations which are found necessary in the premises and for the public safety."

"Whereas, By sections 4068, 4069 and 4070 of the revised statutes, further provision is made relative to alien enemies:

"Now, therefore, I, Woodrow Wilson, president of the United States of America, do hereby proclaim to all whom it may concern that a state of war exists between the United States and the imperial German government, and I do specially direct all officers, civil or military, of the United States that they exercise vigilance and zeal in the discharge of the duties incident to such a state of war, and I do, moreover, earnestly appeal to all American citizens that they in loyal devotion to their country, dedicated from its foundation to the principles of liberty and justice, uphold the laws of the land and give undivided and willing support to those measures which may be adopted by the constitutional authorities in prosecuting the war to a successful issue and in obtaining a secure and just peace.

"And, acting under and by virtue of the authority vested in me by the constitution of the United States and the said sections of the revised statutes, I do hereby further proclaim and direct that the conduct to be observed on the part of the United States toward all natives, citizens, denizens or subjects of Germany being male of the age of 14 years and upward who shall be within the United States and not actually naturalized, who for the purpose of this proclamation and under such sections of the revised statutes are termed alien enemies, shall be as follows:

"All alien enemies are enjoined to preserve the peace toward the United States and to refrain from crime against the public safety and from violating the laws of the United States and of the states and territories thereof, and to refrain from actual hostility or giving information, aid or comfort to the enemies of the United States and to comply strictly with the regulations which are hereby or which may be from time to time promulgated by the president, and so long as they shall conduct themselves in accordance with law they shall be undisturbed in the peaceful pursuit of their lives and occupations and be accorded the consideration due to all peaceful and law abiding persons, except so far as restrictions may be necessary for their own protection and for the safety of the United States, and toward such alien enemies who conduct themselves in accordance with law all citizens of the United States are enjoined to preserve the peace and to treat them with all such friendliness as may be compatible with loyalty and allegiance to the United States.

"And all alien enemies who fail to conduct themselves as so enjoined in addition to all other penalties prescribed by law shall be liable to restraint or to give security or to remove and depart from the United States in the manner prescribed by sections 4069 and 4070 of the revised statutes and as prescribed in the regulations duly promulgated by the president.

"And pursuant to the authority vested in me, I hereby declare and establish the following regulations, which I find necessary in the premises and for the public safety:

"1. An alien enemy shall not have in his possession at any time or place any firearms, weapons or implements of war or component parts thereof, ammunition, Maxim or other silencer, arms or explosives or material used in the manufacture of explosives.

"2. An alien enemy shall not have in his possession at any time or place, or use or operate, any aircraft, or wireless apparatus, or any form of signaling devices, or any form of cipher code or any paper, document or book written or printed in cipher or in which there may be invisible writing.

"3. All property found in the possession of an alien enemy in violation of the foregoing regulations shall be subject to seizure by the United States.

"4. An alien enemy shall not approach or be found within one-half of a mile of any federal or state fort, camp, arsenal, aircraft station, government or naval vessel, navy yard, factory or workshop for the manufacture of munitions of war, or of any products for the use of the army or navy.

"5. An alien enemy shall not write, print or publish any attack or threat against the government or congress of the United States or either branch thereof, or against the measures or policy of the United States, or against the persons or property of any person in the military, naval or civil service of the United States, or of the states or territories, or of the District of Columbia, or of the municipal governments therein.

"6. An alien enemy shall not commit or abet any hostile acts against the United States or give information, aid or comfort to its enemies.

"7. An alien enemy shall not reside in or continue to reside in, to remain in or enter any locality which the president may from time to time designate by an executive order as a prohibitive area, in which residence by an alien enemy shall be found by him to constitute a danger to the public peace and safety of the United States, except by permit from the president and except under such limitations or restrictions as the president may prescribe.

"8. An alien enemy whom the president shall have reasonable cause to believe to be aiding or about to aid the enemy, or to be at large to the danger of the public peace or safety of the United States, or to have violated or to be about to violate any of these regulations, shall remove to any location designated by the president by executive order and shall not remove therefrom without permit, or shall depart from the United States if so required by the president.

"9. No alien enemy shall depart from the United States until he shall have received such permit as the president shall prescribe or except under order of a court, judge or justice, under sections 4069 and 4070 of the revised statutes.

"10. No alien enemy shall land in or enter the United States except under such restrictions and at such places as the president may prescribe.

"11. If necessary to prevent violation of the regulations all alien enemies will be obliged to register.

"12. An alien enemy whom there may be reasonable cause to believe to be aiding or about to aid the enemy, or to be at large to the danger of the public peace or safety, or who violates or who attempts to violate, or of whom there are reasonable grounds to believe that he is about to violate, any regulation to be promulgated by the president or any criminal law of the United States or of the states or territories thereof will be subject to summary arrest by the United States marshal or his deputy or such other officers as the president shall designate, and confinement in such penitentiary, prison, jail, military camp or other place of detention as may be directed by the president.

"The proclamation and the regulations herein contained shall extend and apply to all land and water, continental or insular in any way within the jurisdiction of the United States."

GENERAL APPEAL TO COUNTRY.

On the evening of April 15 President Wilson issued the following appeal to all classes and industries in the nation to assist in winning the war with Germany:

"My Fellow Countrymen: The entrance of our own beloved country into the grim and terrible war for democracy and human rights which has shaken the world creates so many problems of national life and action which call for immediate consideration and settlement that I hope you will permit me to address to you a few words of earnest counsel and appeal with regard to them.

"We are rapidly putting our navy upon an effective war footing, and are about to create and equip a great army, but these are the simplest parts of the great task to which we have addressed ourselves.

"There is not a single selfish element, so far as I can see, in the cause we are fighting for. We are fighting for what we believe and wish to be the rights of mankind and for the future peace and security of the world.

"To do this great thing worthily and successfully we must devote ourselves to the service without regard to profit or material advantage and with an energy and intelligence that will rise to the level of the enterprise itself.

"We must realize to the full how great the task is and how many things, how many kinds and elements of capacity and service and self-sacrifice, it involves.

"These, then, are the things we must do, and do well, besides the things without which mere fighting would be fruitless:

"We must supply abundant food for ourselves and for our armies and our seamen not only but also for a large part of the nations with whom we have now made common cause, in whose support and by whose sides we shall be fighting.

"We must supply ships by the hundreds out of our shipyards to carry to the other side of the sea, submarines or no submarines, what will be every day needed there, and abundant materials out of our fields and our mines and our factories with which not only to clothe and equip our own forces on land and sea, but also to clothe and support our people for whom the gallant fellows under arms can no longer work, to help clothe and equip the armies with which we are co-operating in Europe and to keep the looms and manufactories there in raw materials; coal to keep the fires going in ships at sea and in the furnaces of hundreds of factories across the sea; steel out of which to make arms and ammunition both here and there; rails for worn-out railways back of the fighting fronts; locomotives and rolling stock to take the place of those every day going to pieces; mules, horses, cattle for labor and for military service; everything with which the people of England and France and Italy and Russia have usually supplied themselves, but cannot now afford the men, the materials or the machinery to make.

MORE EFFICIENCY IN INDUSTRY.

"It is evident to every thinking man that our industries, in farms, in shipyards, in the mines, in the factories, must be made more prolific and more efficient than ever, and that they must be more economically managed, and better adapted to the particular requirements of our task than they have been; and what I want to say is that the men and the women who devote their thought and their energy to these things will be serving the country and conducting the fight for peace and freedom just as truly and just as effectively as the men on the battle field or in the trenches.

"The industrial forces of the country, men and women alike, will be a great national, a great international, service army—a notable and honored host engaged in the service of the nation and the world, the efficient friends and saviors of free men everywhere.

"Thousands, nay, hundreds of thousands, of men otherwise liable to military service will of right and necessity be excused from that service and assigned to the fundamental, sustaining work of the fields and factories and mines, and they will be as much part of the great patriotic forces of the nation as the men under fire.

"I take the liberty, therefore, of addressing this word to the farmers of the country and to all who work on the farms:

"The supreme need of our own nation and of the nations with which we are co-operating is an abundance of supplies, and especially of foodstuffs. The importance of an adequate food supply, especially for the present year, is superlative.

"Without abundant food, alike for the armies and the peoples now at war, the whole great enterprise upon which we have embarked will break down and fail.

"The world's food reserves are low. Not only during the present emergency, but for some time after peace shall have come, both our own people and a large proportion of the people of Europe must rely on the harvests in America.

FATE OF WAR IN FARMERS' HANDS.

"Upon the farmers of this country, therefore, in large measure rests the fate of the war and the fate of the nations. May the nation not count upon them to omit no step that will increase the production of their land or that will bring about the most effectual co-operation in the sale and distribution of their products?

"The time is short. It is of the most imperative importance that everything possible be done and done immediately to make sure of large harvests. I call upon young men and old alike and upon the able-bodied boys of the land to accept and act upon this duty—to turn in hosts to the farms and make certain that no pains and no labor is lacking in this great matter.

"I particularly appeal to the farmers of the south to plant abundant foodstuffs as well as cotton. They can show their patriotism in no better or more convincing way than by resisting the great temptation of the present price of cotton and helping, helping upon a great scale, to feed the nation and the peoples everywhere who are fighting for their liberties and for our own. The variety of their crops will be the visible measure of their comprehension of their national duty.

"The government of the United States and the governments of the several states stand ready to co-operate. They will do everything possible to assist farmers in securing an adequate supply of seed, an adequate force of laborers when they are most needed at harvest time and the means of expediting shipments of fertilizers and farm machinery as well as of the crops themselves when harvested.

"The course of trade shall be as unhampered as it is possible to make it, and there shall be no unwarranted manipulation of the nation's food supply by those who handle it on its way to the consumer. This is our opportunity to demonstrate the efficiency of a great democracy, and we shall not fall short of it.

"This let me say to the middlemen of every sort, whether they are handling our foodstuffs or our raw materials of manufacture or the products of our mills and factories: The eyes of the country will be especially upon you. This is your opportunity for signal service, efficient and disinterested. The country expects you, as it expects all others, to forego unusual profits, to organize and expedite shipments of every kind, but especially of food, with an eye to the service you are rendering and in the spirit of those who enlist in the ranks, for their people, not for themselves.

"I shall confidently expect you to deserve and win the confidence of people of every sort and station.

RESPONSIBILITY ON RAILWAYS.

"To the men who run the railways of the country, whether they be managers or operative employees, let me say that the railways are the arteries of the nation's life, and that upon them rests the immense responsibility of seeing to it that those arteries suffer no obstruction of any kind, no inefficiency or slackened power.

"To the merchant let me suggest the motto, 'Small profits and quick service,' and to the ship-builder the thought that the life of the war depends upon him. The food and the war supplies must be carried across the seas, no matter how many ships are sent to the bottom. The places of those that go down must be supplied, and supplied at once.

"To the miner let me say that he stands where the farmer does; the work of the world waits on him. If he slackens or fails, armies and statesmen are helpless. He also is enlisted in the great service army.

"The manufacturer does not need to be told, I hope, that the nation looks to him to speed and perfect every process; and I want only to remind his employees that their service is absolutely indispensable and is counted on by every man who loves the country and its liberties.

"Let me suggest also that every one who creates or cultivates a garden helps and helps greatly to solve the problem of the feeding of the nations; and that every housewife who practices strict economy puts herself in the ranks of those who serve the nation.

"This is the time for America to correct her unparadonable fault of wastefulness and extravagance. Let every man and every woman assume the duty of careful, provident use and expenditure as a public duty, as a dictate of patriotism which no one can now expect ever to be excused or forgiven for ignoring.

"In the hope that this statement of the needs of the nation and of the world in this hour of supreme crisis may stimulate those to whom it comes and remind all who need reminder of the solemn duties of a time such as the world has never seen before, I beg that all editors and publishers everywhere will give as prominent publication and as wide circulation as possible to this appeal.

"I venture to suggest also to all advertising agencies that they would perhaps render a very substantial and timely service to the country if they would give it widespread repetition. And I hope that clergymen will not think the theme of it an unworthy or inappropriate subject of comment and homily from their pulpits.

"The supreme test of the nation has come. We must all speak, act and serve together!

"WOODROW WILSON.

"White House, Washington, April 15, 1917."

WARNING TO TRAITORS.

Proclamation issued by President Wilson April 16:

"Whereas, All persons in the United States, citizens as well as aliens, should be informed of the penalties which they will incur for any failure to bear true allegiance to the United States; now,

"Therefore, I, Woodrow Wilson, president of the United States, hereby issue this proclamation to call especial attention to the following provisions of the constitution and the laws of the United States:

"Section 3 of article III. of the constitution provides, in part, Treason against the United States shall consist only in levying war against them, or in adhering to their enemies, giving them aid and comfort."

"The criminal code of the United States provides:

"Sec. 1. Whoever owing allegiance to the United States, levies war against them, or adheres to their enemies, giving them aid and comfort within the United States or elsewhere, is guilty of treason.

"Sec. 2. Whoever is convicted of treason shall suffer death; or, at the discretion of the court, shall be imprisoned not less than five years and fined not less than $10,000, to be levied on and collected out of any or all of his property, real and personal, of which he was the owner at the time of committing such treason, any sale or conveyance to the contrary notwithstanding, and every person so convicted of treason shall, moreover, be incapable of holding any office under the United States.

"Sec. 3. Whoever owing allegiance to the United States and having knowledge of the commission of any treason against them, conceals and does not as soon as may be disclose and make known the same to the president or to some judge of the United States, or to the governor or to some judge or justice of a particular state, is guilty of misprision of treason and shall be imprisoned not more than seven years and fined not more than $1,000.

"Sec. 6. If two or more persons in any state or territory, or in any place subject to the jurisdiction of the United States, conspire to overthrow, put down, or to destroy by force the government of the United States, or to levy war against them, or to oppose by force the authority thereof, or by force to prevent, hinder, or delay the execution of any law of the United States, or by force to seize, take, or possess any property of the United States contrary to the authority thereof, they shall each be fined not more than $5,000 or imprisoned not more than six years, or both."

"The courts of the United States have stated the following acts to be treasonable:

"The use or attempted use of any force or violence against the government of the United States or its military or naval forces.

"The acquisition, use, or disposal of any property with knowledge that it is to be, or with intent that it shall be, of assistance to the enemy in their hostilities against the United States.

"The performance of any act or the publication of statements or information which will give or supply, in any way, aid and comfort to the enemies of the United States.

"The directing, aiding, counseling or countenancing of any of the foregoing acts.

"Such acts are held to be treasonable, whether committed within the United States or elsewhere; whether committed by a citizen of the United States or by an alien domiciled or residing in the United States, inasmuch as resident aliens, as well as citizens, owe allegiance to the United States and its laws.

"Any such citizen or alien who has knowledge of the commission of such acts and conceals and does not make known the facts to the officials named in section 3 of the penal code is guilty of misprision of treason.

"And I hereby proclaim and warn all citizens of the United States and all aliens owing allegiance to the government of the United States to abstain from committing any and all acts which would constitute a violation of any of the laws herein set forth; and I further proclaim and warn all persons who may commit such acts that they will be vigorously prosecuted therefor.

"In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

"Done at the city of Washington this 16th day of April in the year of our Lord 1917, and of the independence of the United States of America the one hundred and forty-first.

"WOODROW WILSON.

"By the president. Robert Lansing, secretary of state."

PLEA FOR MILITARY DRAFT.

Owing to opposition in the house of representatives to the general staff army bill providing for selective conscription, President Wilson made public April 19 the following letter written by him in reply to one received on the same date from Representative Guy T. Helvering (Dem.) of Kansas:

"I welcome the inquiry of your letter of April 19 because I have realized the truth of what you say from my own observations—namely, that what is meant to be understood by the selective draft is not generally understood throughout the country.

"The process of the draft is, I think, very clearly set forth in the bill drafted by the war department and which I so earnestly hope the congress will adopt, but it is worth while to state the idea which underlies the bill a little more fully.

"I took occasion the other day in an address to the people of the country to point out the many forms of patriotic service that were open to them and to emphasize the fact that the military part of the service was by no means the only part, and perhaps, all things considered, not the most vital part.

"Our object is a mobilization of all the productive and active forces of the nation and their development to the highest point of co-operation and efficiency, and the idea of the selective draft is that those should be chosen for service in the army who can be most readily spared from the prosecution of the other activities which the country must engage in and to which it must devote a great deal of its best energy and capacity.

"The volunteer system does not do this. When men choose themselves they sometimes choose without due regard to their other responsibilities. Men may come from the farms or from the mines or from the factories or centers of business who ought not to come, but ought to stand back of the armies in the field and see that they get everything that they need and that the people of the country are sustained in the meantime.

"Those who feel that we are turning away altogether from the volunteer principle seem to forget that some 600,000 men will be needed to fill the ranks of the regular army and the national guard and that a very great field of individual enthusiasm lies there wide open.

"WOODROW WILSON."

DRAFT PROCLAMATION.

Immediately after signing the war army bill President Wilson issued the following proclamation:

"A proclamation by the president of the United States:

"Whereas, congress has enacted and the president has on the 18th day of May, 1917, approved a law which contains the following provisions: [The president here quotes sections 5 and 6 of the law which is given in full on another page of this volume.]

"Now, therefore, I, Woodrow Wilson, president of the United States, do call upon the governor of each of the several states and territories, the board of commissioners of the District of Columbia and all officers and agents of the several states and territories, of the District of Columbia and of the counties and municipalities therein to perform certain duties in the execution of the foregoing law, which duties will be communicated to them directly in regulations of even date herewith.

"And I do further proclaim and give notice to all persons subject to registration in the several states and in the District of Columbia in accordance with the above law that the time and place of such registration shall be between 7 a. m. and 9 p. m. on the 5th day of June, 1917, at the registration place in the precinct wherein they have their permanent homes. Those who shall have attained their 21st birthday and who shall not have attained their 31st birthday on or before the day here named are required to register, excepting only officers and enlisted men of the regular army, the navy, the marine corps and the national guard and naval militia while in the service of the United States, and officers in the officers' reserve corps and enlisted men in the enlisted reserve corps while in active service. In the territories of Alaska, Hawaii and Porto Rico a day for registration will be named in a later proclamation.

"And I do charge those who through sickness shall be unable to present themselves for registration that they apply on or before the day of registration to the county clerk of the county where they may be for instructions as to how they may be registered by agent. Those who expect to be absent on the day named from the counties in which they have their permanent homes may register by mail, but their mailed registration cards must reach the places in which they have their permanent homes by the day named herein. They should apply as soon as practicable to the county clerk of the county wherein they may be for instructions as to how they may accomplish their registration by mail. In case such persons as, through sickness or absence, may be unable to present themselves personally for registration shall be sojourning in cities of over 30,000 population, they shall apply to the city clerk of the city wherein they may be sojourning, rather than to the clerk of the county. The clerks of counties and of cities of over 30,000 population, in which numerous applications from the sick and from nonresidents are expected, are authorized to establish such subagencies and to employ and deputize such clerical force as may be necessary to accommodate these applications.

"The power against which we are arrayed has sought to impose its will upon the world by force. To this end it has increased armament until it has changed the face of war. In the sense in which we have been wont to think of armies there are no armies in this struggle. There are entire nations armed. Thus, the men who remain to till the soil and man the factories are no less a part of the army that is in France than the men beneath the battle flag. It must be so with us. It is not an army that we must shape and train for war; it is a nation. To this end our people must draw close in one compact front against a common foe. But this cannot be if each man pursues a private purpose. All must pursue one purpose. The nation needs all men; but it needs each man, not in the field that will most please him, but in the endeavor that will best serve the common good. Thus, though a sharpshooter pleases to operate a triplammer for the forging of great guns and an expert machinist desires to march with the flag, the nation is being served only when the sharpshooter marches and the machinist remains at his levers. The nation must be a team in which each man shall play the part for which he is best fitted. To this end congress has provided that the nation shall be organized for war by selection and that each man shall be classified for service in the place to which it shall best serve the general good to call him.

"The significance of this cannot be overstated. It is a new thing in our history and a landmark in our progress. It is a new manner of accepting and vitalizing our duty to give ourselves with thoughtful devotion to the common purpose of us all. It is in no sense a conscription of the unwilling; it is, rather, selection from a nation which has volunteered in mass. It is no more a choosing of those who shall march with the colors than it is a selection of those who shall serve an equally necessary and devoted purpose in the industries that lie behind the battle line.

"The day here named is the time upon which all shall present themselves for assignment to their tasks. It is for that reason destined to be remembered as one of the most conspicuous moments in our history. It is nothing less than the day upon which the manhood of the country shall step forward in one solid rank in defense of the ideals to which this nation is consecrated. It is important to those ideals no less than to the pride of this generation in manifesting its devotion to them that there be no gaps in the ranks.

"It is essential that the day be approached in thoughtful apprehension of its significance and that we accord to it the honor and the meaning that it deserves. Our industrial need prescribes that it be not made a technical holiday, but the stern sacrifice that is before us urges that it be carried in all our hearts as a great day of patriotic devotion and obligation when the duty shall lie upon every man, whether he is himself to be registered or not, to see to it that the name of every male person of the designated ages is written on these lists of honor.

"In witness whereof I hereunto set my hand and cause the seal of the United States to be affixed.

"Done at the city of Washington this 18th day of May in the year of our Lord 1917 and of the independence of the United States of America the one hundred and forty-first.

"ROBERT LANSING, Secretary of State."

EMERGENCY ARMY LAW.

Be it enacted, etc., That in view of the existing emergency, which demands the raising of troops in addition to those now available, the president be, and he is hereby, authorized—

1. Immediately to raise, organize, officer and equip all or such number of increments of the regular army provided by the national defense act approved June 3, 1916, or such parts thereof as he may deem necessary; to raise all organizations of the regular army, including those added by such increments, to the maximum enlisted strength authorized by law. Vacancies in the regular army created or caused by addition of increments as herein authorized which cannot be filled by promotion may be filled by temporary appointment for the period of the emergency or until replaced by permanent appointments or by provisional appointments made under the provisions of section 23 of the national defense act, approved June 3, 1916, and hereafter provisional appointments under said section may be terminated whenever it is determined, in the manner prescribed by the president, that the officer has not the suitability and fitness requisite for permanent appointment.

2. To draft into the military service of the United States, organize and officer, in accordance with the provisions of section 111 of said national defense act, so far as the provisions of said section may be applicable and not inconsistent with the terms of this act, any or all members of the national guard and of the national guard reserves, and said members so drafted into the military service of the United States shall serve therein for the period of the existing emergency unless sooner discharged: Provided, That when so drafted the organizations of units of the national guard shall, so far as practicable, retain the state designations of their respective organizations.

3. To raise by draft as herein provided, organize and equip an additional force of 500,000 enlisted men, or such part or parts thereof as he may at any time deem necessary, and to provide the necessary officers, line and staff, for said force and for the organizations of the other forces hereby authorized, or by combining organizations of said other forces, by ordering members of the officers' reserve corps to temporary duty in accordance with the provisions of section 38 of the national defense act of June 3, 1916; by appointment from the regular army, the officers' reserve corps, from those duly qualified and registered pursuant to section 23 of the act of Jan. 21, 1903 (32d Statutes at Large, page 775), from members of the national guard drafted into the service of the United States, from those who have been graduated from educational institutions at which military instruction is compulsory, or from those who have had honorable service in the regular army, the national guard, or in the volunteer forces, or from the country at large; by assigning retired officers of the regular army to active duty with such force with their rank on the retired list and the full pay and allowances of their grade; or by the appointment of retired officers and enlisted men, active or retired, of the regular army as commissioned officers in such forces: Provided, That the organization of said force shall be the same as that of the corresponding organizations of the regular army: Provided further, That the president is authorized to increase or decrease the number of organizations prescribed for the typical brigades, divisions or army corps of the regular army, and to prescribe such new and different organizations and personnel for army corps, divisions, brigades, regiments, battalions, squadrons, companies, troops and batteries as the efficiency of the service may require: Provided further, That the number of organizations in a regiment shall not be increased nor shall the number of regiments be decreased: Provided further, That the president in his discretion may organize, officer and equip for each infantry and cavalry brigade three machine-gun companies, and for each infantry and cavalry division four machine-gun companies, all in addition to the machine-gun companies comprised in organizations included in such brigades and divisions: Provided further, That the president in his discretion may organize for each division one armored motor car machine-gun company. The machine-gun companies organized under this section shall consist of such commissioned and enlisted personnel and be equipped in such manner as the president may prescribe: And provided further, That officers with rank not above that of colonel shall be appointed by the president alone, and officers above that grade by the president by and with the advice and consent of the senate: Provided further, That the president may in his discretion recommitment in the coast guard persons who have heretofore held commissions in the revenue cutter service or the coast guard and have left the service honorably, after ascertaining that they are qualified for service physically, morally and as to age and military fitness.

4. The president is further authorized, in his discretion and at such time as he may determine, to raise and begin the training of an additional force of 500,000 men organized, officered and equipped as provided for the force first mentioned in the preceding paragraph of this section.

5. To raise by draft, organize, equip and officer, as provided in the third paragraph of this section, in addition to and for each of the above forces, such recruit training units as he may deem necessary for the maintenance of such forces at the maximum strength.

6. To raise, organize, officer and maintain during the emergency such number of ammunition batteries and battalions, depot batteries and battalions, and such artillery parks, with such numbers and grades of personnel as he may deem necessary. Such organizations shall be officered in the manner provided in the third paragraph of this section, and enlisted men may be assigned to said organizations from any of the forces herein provided for or raised, by selective draft as by this act provided.

VOLUNTEER DIVISIONS.

7. The president is further authorized to raise and maintain by voluntary enlistment, to organize and equip not to exceed four infantry divisions, the officers of which shall be selected in the manner provided by paragraph 3 of section 1 of this act: Provided, That the organization of said force shall be the same as that of the corresponding organization of the regular army: And provided further, That there shall be no enlistments in said force of men under 25 years of age at time of enlisting: And provided further, That no such volunteer force shall be accepted in any unit smaller than a division.

SELECTIVE DRAFT.

Sec. 2. That the enlisted men required to raise and maintain the organizations of the regular army and to complete and maintain the organizations embodying members of the national guard drafted into the service of the United States, at the maximum legal strength as by this act provided, shall be raised by voluntary enlistment, or if and whenever the president decides that they cannot effectually be so raised or maintained, then by selective draft; and all other forces hereby authorized, except as provided in the seventh paragraph of section 1, shall be raised and maintained by selective draft exclusively; but this provision shall not prevent the transfer to any force of training cadres from other forces. Such draft as herein provided shall be based upon liability to military service of all male citizens, or male persons not alien enemies who have declared their intention to become citizens, between the ages of 21 and 30 years, both inclusive, and shall take place and be maintained under such regulations as the president may prescribe not inconsistent with the terms of this act. Quotas for several states, territories and District of Columbia, or subdivisions thereof, shall be determined in proportion to the population thereof, and credit shall be given to any state, territory, district, or subdivision thereof, for the number of men who were in the military service of the United States as members of the national guard on April 1, 1917, or who have since said date entered the military service of the United States from any such state, territory, district or subdivision, either as members of the regular army or national guard. All persons drafted into the service of the United States and all officers accepting commissions in the forces herein provided for shall, from the date of said draft or acceptance, be subject to the laws and regulations governing the regular army, except as to promotions, so far as such laws and regulations are applicable to persons whose permanent retention in the military service on the active or retired list is not contemplated by existing law, and those drafted shall be required to serve for the period of the existing emergency unless sooner discharged. Provided, That the president is authorized to raise and maintain by voluntary enlistment or draft, as herein provided, special and technical troops as he may deem necessary, and to embody them into organizations and to officer them as provided in the third paragraph of section 1 and section 9 of this act. Organizations of the forces herein provided for, except the regular army, shall, as far as the interests of the service permit, be composed of men who come, and of officers who are appointed from, the same state or locality.

NO BOUNTY AND NO SUBSTITUTES.

Sec. 3. No bounty shall be paid to induce any person to enlist in the military service of the United States; and no person liable to military service shall hereafter be permitted or allowed to furnish a substitute for such service; nor shall any substitute be received, enlisted or enrolled in the military service of the United States; and no such person shall be permitted to escape such service or to be discharged therefrom prior to the expiration of his term of service by the payment of money or any other valuable thing whatsoever as consideration for his release from military service or liability thereto.

EXEMPTIONS FROM SERVICE.

Sec. 4. That the vice-president of the United States, the officers, legislative, executive and judicial, of the United States and of the several states, territories and the District of Columbia, regular or duly ordained ministers of religion, students who at the time of the approval of this act are preparing for the ministry in recognized theological or divinity schools, and all persons in the military and naval service of the United States shall be exempt from the selective draft herein prescribed; and nothing in this act contained shall be construed to require or compel any person to serve in any of the forces herein provided for who is found to be a member of any well recognized religious sect or organization at present organized and existing and whose existing creed or principles forbid its members to participate in war in any form and whose religious convictions are against war or participation therein in accordance with the creed or principles of said religious organizations, but no person so exempted shall be exempted from service in any capacity that the president shall declare to be noncombatant; and the president is hereby authorized to exclude or discharge from said selective draft and from the draft under the second paragraph of section 1 hereof, or to draft for partial military service only from those liable to draft as in this act provided, persons of the following classes: County and municipal officials, custodian, clerks; persons employed by the United States in the transmission of the mails; artificers and workmen employed in the armories, arsenals and navy yards of the United States, and such other persons employed in the service of the United States as the president may designate; pilots; mariners actually employed in the sea service of any citizen or merchant within the United States; persons engaged in industries, including agriculture, found to be necessary to the maintenance of the military establishment or the effective operation of the military forces or the maintenance of national interest during the emergency; those in a status with respect to persons dependent upon them for support which renders their exclusion or discharge advisable; and those found to be physically or morally deficient. No exemption or exclusion shall continue when a cause thereof no longer exists: Provided, That notwithstanding the exemptions enumerated herein, each state, territory and the District of Columbia shall be required to supply its quota in the proportion that its population bears to the total population of the United States.

The president is hereby authorized, in his discretion, to create and establish throughout the several states and subdivisions thereof, the territories and the District of Columbia local boards, and where, in his discretion, practicable and desirable, there shall be created and established one such local board in each county or similar subdivision in each state, and one for approximately each 30,000 of population in each city of 30,000 population or over, according to the last census taken or estimates furnished by the bureau of census of the department of commerce. Such boards shall be appointed by the president, and shall consist of three or more members, none of whom shall be connected with the military establishment, to be chosen from among the local authorities of such subdivisions or from other citizens residing in the subdivision or area in which the respective boards will have jurisdiction under rules and regulations prescribed by the president. Such boards shall have power within their respective jurisdictions to hear and determine, subject to review as hereinafter provided, all questions of exemption under this act, and all questions of or claims for including or discharging individuals or classes of individuals from selective draft, which shall be made under rules and regulations prescribed by the president, except any and every question or claim for including or excluding or discharging persons or classes of persons from the selective draft under the provisions of this act authorizing the president to exclude or discharge from the selective draft "Persons engaged in industries, including agriculture, found to be necessary to the maintenance of the military establishment, or effective operation of the military forces, or the maintenance of the national interest during the emergency."

The president is hereby authorized to establish additional boards, one in each federal judicial district of the United States, consisting of such number of citizens, not connected with the military establishment, as the president may determine, who shall be appointed by the president. The president is hereby authorized, in his discretion, to establish more than one such board in any federal judicial district of the United States, or to establish one such board having jurisdiction of an area extending into more than one federal judicial district. Such district boards shall review on appeal and affirm, modify or reverse any decision of any local board having jurisdiction in the area in which any such district board has jurisdiction under the rules and regulations prescribed by the president. Such district boards shall have exclusive original jurisdiction within their respective areas to hear and determine all questions or claims for including or excluding or discharging persons or classes of persons from selective draft, under the provisions of this act, not included within the original jurisdiction of such local boards.

Decisions of district boards shall be final except that in accordance with such rules and regulations as the president may prescribe, he may affirm, modify or reverse any such decision.

Any vacancy in any such local board or district board shall be filled by the president, and any member of any such local board or district board may be removed and another appointed in his place by the president whenever he considers the interest of the nation demands it.

The president shall make rules and regulations governing the organization and procedure of such local boards and district boards, and providing for and governing appeals from such local boards to such district boards, and the reviews of decisions of any local board by the district board having jurisdiction, and determining and prescribing the several areas in which the respective local boards and district boards shall have jurisdiction, and all other rules and regulations necessary to carry out the terms and provisions of this section, and shall provide for the issuance of certificates of exemption, or partial or limited exemptions, and for a system to exclude and discharge individuals from selective draft.

REGISTRATION REQUIRED.

Sec. 5. That all male persons between the ages of 21 and 30, both inclusive, shall be subject to registration in accordance with regulations to be prescribed by the president, and upon proclamation by the president or other public notice given by him or by his direction, stating the time and place of such registration, it shall be the duty of all persons of the designated ages, except officers and enlisted men of the regular army, the navy and the national guard and naval militia while in the service of the United States, to present themselves for and submit to registration under the provisions of this act; and every such person shall be deemed to have notice of the requirements of this act upon the publication of said proclamation or other notice as aforesaid given by the president or by his direction; and any person who shall willfully fail or refuse to present himself for registration or to submit thereto as herein provided shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall, upon conviction in the District court of the United States having jurisdiction thereof, be punished by imprisonment for not more than one year and shall thereupon be duly registered: Provided, That in the call of the docket precedence shall be given, in courts trying same, to the trial of criminal proceedings under this act: Provided further, That persons shall be subject to registration as herein provided who shall have attained their 21st birthday and who shall not have attained their 31st birthday on or before the day set for the registration, and all persons so registered shall be and remain subject to draft into the forces hereby authorized, unless exempted or excused therefrom as in this act provided: Provided further, That in the case of temporary absence from actual place of legal residence of any person liable to registration as provided herein such registration may be made by mail under regulations to be prescribed by the president.

Sec. 6. That the president is hereby authorized to utilize the service of any or all departments and any or all officers or agents of the United States and of the several states, territories and the District of Columbia, and subdivisions thereof, in the execution of this act, and all officers and agents of the United States and of the several states, territories and subdivisions thereof, and of the District of Columbia, and all persons designated or appointed under regulations prescribed by the president, whether such appointments are made by the president himself or by the governor or other officer of any state or territory to perform any duty in the execution of this act, are hereby required to perform such duty as the president shall order or direct, and all such officers and agents and persons so designated or appointed shall hereby have full authority for all acts done by them in the execution of this act by the direction of the president. Correspondence in the execution of this act may be carried in penalty envelopes bearing the frank of the war department. Any person charged as herein provided with the duty of carrying into effect any of the provisions of this act or the regulations made or directions given thereunder who shall fail or neglect to perform such duty, and any person charged with such duty or having and exercising any authority under said act, regulations or directions, who shall knowingly make or be a party to the making of any false or incorrect registration, physical examination, exemption, enlistment, enrollment or muster; and any person who shall make or be a party to the making of any false statement or certificate as to the fitness or liability of himself or any other person for service under the provisions of this act or regulations made by the president thereunder or otherwise evades or aids another to evade the requirements of this act or of said regulations, or who in any manner shall fail or neglect fully to perform any duty required of him in the execution of this act, shall, if not subject to military law, be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction in the District court of the United States having jurisdiction thereof, be punished by imprisonment for not more than one year, or, if subject to military law, shall be tried by court-martial and suffer such punishment as a court-martial may direct.

VOLUNTARY ENLISTMENTS.

Sec. 7. That qualifications and conditions for voluntary enlistment as herein provided shall be the same as those prescribed by existing law for enlistments in the regular army, except that recruits must be between ages of 18 and 40 years, both inclusive, at the time of their enlistment, and such enlistments shall be for the period of the emergency unless sooner discharged. All enlistments, including those in the regular army reserve, which are in force on the date of the approval of this act and which would terminate during the emergency, shall continue in force during the emergency unless sooner discharged; but nothing herein contained shall be construed to shorten the period of any existing enlistment: Provided, That all persons enlisted or drafted under any of the provisions of this act shall, as far as practicable, be grouped into units by states and the political subdivisions of same: Provided further, That all persons who have enlisted since April 1, 1917, either in the regular army or in the national guard, and all persons who have enlisted in the national guard since June 3, 1916, upon their application shall be discharged upon the termination of the existing emergency.

The president may provide for the discharge of any or all enlisted men whose status with respect to dependents renders such discharge advisable, and he may also authorize the employment on any active duty of retired enlisted men of the regular army, either with their rank or the retired list or in the higher enlisted grades, and such retired enlisted men shall receive the full pay and allowances of the grades in which they are actively employed.

GENERAL OFFICERS.

Sec. 8. That the president, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, is authorized to appoint for the period of the existing emergency such general officers of appropriate grades as may be necessary for duty with brigades, divisions and higher units in which the forces provided for herein may be organized by the president, and general officers of appropriate grade for the several coast artillery districts. In so far as such appointments may be made from any of the forces herein provided for, the appointees may be selected irrespective of the grades held by them in such forces. Vacancies in all grades in the regular army resulting from the appointment of officers thereof to higher grades in forces other than the regular army herein provided for shall be filled by temporary promotions and appointments in the manner prescribed for filling temporary vacancies by Sec. 114 of the national defense act of June 3, 1916; and officers appointed under the provisions of this act to higher grades in the forces other than the regular army herein provided for shall not vacate their permanent commissions nor be prejudiced in their relative or lineal standing in the regular army.

Sec. 9. That the appointments authorized and made as provided by the second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh paragraphs of Sec. 1 and by Sec. 8 of this act, and the temporary appointments in the regular army authorized by the first paragraph of Sec. 1 of this act, shall be for the period of the emergency, unless sooner terminated by discharge or otherwise. The president is hereby authorized to discharge any officer from the office held by him under such appointment for any cause which, in the judgment of the president, would promote the public service; and the general commanding any division and higher tactical organization or territorial department is authorized to appoint from time to time military boards of not less than three nor more than five officers of the forces herein provided for to examine into and report upon the capacity, qualification, conduct and efficiency of any commissioned officer within his command other than officers of the regular army holding permanent or provisional commissions therein. Each member of such board shall be superior in rank to the officer whose qualifications are to be inquired into, and if the report of such board be adverse to the continuance of any such officer and be approved by the president, such officer shall be discharged from the service at the discretion of the president with one month's pay and allowances.

Sec. 10. That all officers and enlisted men of the forces herein provided for other than the regular army shall be in all respects on the same footing as to pay, allowances and pensions as officers and enlisted men of corresponding grades and length of service in the regular army; and commencing June 1, 1917, and continuing until the termination of the emergency, all enlisted men of the army of the United States in active service whose base pay does not exceed $21 per month shall receive an increase of $15 per month; those whose base pay is $24, an increase of $12 per month; those whose base pay is $30, $36 or $40, an increase of $3 per month; and those whose base pay is $45 or more, an increase of $6 per month; Provided, That the increases of pay herein authorized shall not enter into the computation of continuous-service pay.

Sec. 11. That all existing restrictions upon the detail, detachment and employment of officers and enlisted men of the regular army are hereby suspended for the period of the present emergency.

LIQUOR AND DISORDERLY RESORTS.

Sec. 12. That the president of the United States, as commander in chief of the army, is authorized to make such regulations governing the prohibition of alcoholic liquors in or near military camps and to the officers and enlisted men of the army as he may from time to time deem necessary or advisable: Provided, That no person, corporation, partnership or association shall sell, supply or have in his or its possession any intoxicating or spirituous liquors at any military station, cantonment, camp, fort, post, officers' or enlisted men's club, which is being used at the time for military purposes under this act, but the secretary of war may make regulations permitting the sale and use of intoxicating liquors for medicinal purposes. It shall be unlawful to sell any intoxicating liquor, including beer, ale or wine, to any officer or member of the military forces while in uniform, except as herein provided. Any person, corporation, partnership or association violating the provisions of this section or the regulations made thereunder shall, unless otherwise punishable under the articles of war, be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and be punished by a fine of not more than $1,000, or imprisonment for not more than twelve months, or both.

Sec. 13. That the secretary of war is hereby authorized, empowered and directed during the present war to do everything by him deemed necessary to suppress and prevent the keeping or setting up of houses of ill fame, brothels or bawdy houses within such distance as he may deem needful of any military camp, station, fort, post, cantonment, training or mobilization place, and any person, corporation, partnership or association receiving or permitting to be received for immoral purposes any person into any place, structure or building used for the purpose of lewdness, assignation or prostitution within such distance of said places as may be designated, or shall permit any such person to remain for immoral purposes in any such place, structure or building as aforesaid, or who shall violate any order, rule or regulation issued to carry out the object and purpose of this section shall, unless otherwise punishable under the articles of war, be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and be punished by a fine of not more than $1,000, or imprisonment for not more than twelve months, or both.

Sec. 14. That all laws and parts of laws in conflict with the provisions of this act are hereby suspended during the period of this emergency. (Approved May 18, 1917.)

BONDS FOR WAR PURPOSES.

The secretary of the treasury, with the approval of the president, is hereby authorized to borrow from time to time, on the credit of the United States, for the purposes of this act and to meet expenditures authorized for the national security and defense and other public purposes authorized by law not exceeding in the aggregate $5,000,000,000, exclusive of the sums authorized by section 4 of this act, and to issue therefor bonds of the United States.

The bonds herein authorized shall be in such form and subject to such terms and conditions of issue, conversion, redemption, maturities, payment and rate and time of payment of interest, not exceeding 3½ per cent per annum, as the secretary of the treasury may prescribe. The principal and interest thereon shall be payable in United States gold coin of the present standard of value and shall be exempt, both as to principal and interest, from all taxation, except estate or inheritance taxes, imposed by authority of the United States, or its possessions, or by any state or local taxing authority; but such bonds shall not bear the circulation privilege.

The bonds herein authorized shall first be offered at not less than par as a popular loan, under such regulations prescribed by the secretary of the treasury as will give all citizens of the United States an equal opportunity to participate therein; and any portion of the bonds so offered and not subscribed for may be otherwise disposed of at not less than par by the secretary of the treasury; but no commissions shall be allowed or paid on any bonds issued under authority of this act.

Sec. 2. For the purpose of more effectually providing for the national security and defense and prosecuting the war by establishing credits in the United States for foreign governments, the secretary of the treasury, with the approval of the president, is hereby authorized, on behalf of the United States, to purchase at par, from such governments then engaged in war with the enemies of the United States, their obligations hereafter issued, bearing the same rate of interest and containing in their essentials the same terms and conditions as those of the United States issued under this act; to enter into such arrangements as may be necessary or desirable for establishing such credits and for purchasing such obligations of foreign governments and for the subsequent payment thereof before maturity, but such arrangements shall provide that if any of the bonds of the United States issued and used for the purchase of such foreign obligations shall thereafter be converted into other bonds of the United States bearing a higher rate of interest than 3½ per cent per annum under the provisions of section 6 of this act, then and in that event the obligations of such foreign governments held by the United States shall be, by such foreign governments, converted in like manner and extent into obligations bearing the same rate of interest as the bonds of the United States issued under the provisions of section 5 of this act. For the purposes of this section there is appropriated, out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated, the sum of $3,000,000,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary: Provided, That the authority granted by this section to the secretary of the treasury to purchase bonds from foreign governments, as aforesaid, shall cease upon the termination of the war between the United States and the imperial German government.

Sec. 3. The secretary of the treasury, under such terms and conditions as he may prescribe, is hereby authorized to receive on or before maturity payment for any obligations of such foreign governments purchased on behalf of the United States, and to sell at not less than the purchase price any of such obligations and to apply the proceeds thereof and any payments made by foreign governments on account of their said obligations to the redemption or purchase at not more than par and accrued interest of any bonds of the United States issued under authority of this act; and if such bonds are not available for this purpose the secretary of the treasury shall redeem or purchase any other outstanding interest-bearing obligations of the United States which may at such time be subject to call or which may be purchased at not more than par and accrued interest.

Sec. 4. The secretary of the treasury, in his discretion, is hereby authorized to issue the bonds not already issued heretofore authorized by section 39 of the act approved Aug. 5, 1909, entitled "An act to provide revenue, equalize duties and encourage the industries of the United States, and for other purposes"; section 124 of the act approved June 3, 1916, entitled "An act for making further and more effectual provision for the national defense, and for other purposes"; section 13 of the act of Sept. 7, 1916, entitled "An act to establish a United States shipping board for the purpose of encouraging, developing and creating a naval auxiliary and a naval reserve and a merchant marine to meet the requirements of the commerce of the United States with its territories and possessions and with foreign countries, to regulate carriers by water engaged in the foreign and interstate commerce of the United States and for other purposes"; section 400 of the act approved March 3, 1917, entitled "An act to provide increased revenue to defray the expenses of the increased appropriations for the army and navy and the extensions of fortifications, and for other purposes"; and the public resolution approved March 4, 1917, entitled "Joint resolution to expedite the delivery of materials, equipment and munitions and to secure more expeditious construction of ships," in the manner and under the terms and conditions prescribed in section 1 of this act.

The secretary of the treasury is hereby authorized to borrow on the credit of the United States from time to time, in addition to the sum authorized in section 1 of this act, such additional amount, not exceeding $63,945,460, as may be necessary to redeem the 3 per cent loan of 1908 to 1918, maturing Aug. 1, 1918, and to issue therefor bonds of the United States in the manner and under the terms and conditions prescribed in section 1 of this act.

Sec. 5. That any series of bonds issued under authority of sections 1 and 4 of this act may, under such terms and conditions as the secretary of the treasury may prescribe, be convertible into bonds bearing a higher rate of interest than the rate at which the same were issued if any subsequent series of bonds shall be issued at a higher rate of interest before the termination of the war between the United States and the imperial German government, the date of such termination to be fixed by a proclamation of the president of the United States.

Sec. 6. In addition to the bonds authorized by sections 1 and 4 of this act, the secretary of the treasury is authorized to borrow from time to time, on the credit of the United States, for the purposes of this act and to meet public expenditures authorized by law, such sum or sums as, in his judgment, may be necessary and to issue therefor certificates of indebtedness at not less than par in such form and subject to such terms and conditions and at such rate of interest, not exceeding 3½ per cent per annum, as he may prescribe; and each certificate so issued shall be payable, with the interest accrued thereon, at such time, not exceeding one year from the date of its issue, as the secretary of the treasury may prescribe. Certificates of indebtedness herein authorized shall not bear the circulation privilege, and the sum of such certificates outstanding shall at no time exceed in the aggregate $2,000,000,000, and such certificates shall be exempt, both as to principal and interest, from all taxation, except estate or inheritance taxes, imposed by authority of the United States, or its possessions, or by any state or local taxing authority.

Sec. 7. The secretary of the treasury, in his discretion, is hereby authorized to deposit in such banks and trust companies as he may designate the proceeds, or any part thereof, arising from the sale of the bonds and certificates of indebtedness authorized by this act, or the bonds previously authorized as described in section 4 of this act, and such deposits may bear such rate of interest and be subject to such terms and conditions as the secretary of the treasury may prescribe: Provided, That the amount so deposited shall not in any case exceed the amount withdrawn from any such bank or trust company and invested in such bonds or certificates of indebtedness plus the amount so invested by such bank or trust company, and such deposits shall be secured in the manner required for other deposits by section 5153, revised statutes, and amendments thereto: Provided further, That the provisions of section 5191 of the revised statutes, as amended by the federal reserve act and the amendments thereof, with reference to the reserves required to be kept by national banking associations and other member banks of the federal reserve system, shall not apply to deposits of public moneys by the United States in designated depositories.

Sec. 8. In order to pay all necessary expenses, including rent, connected with any operations under this act, a sum not exceeding one-tenth of 1 per cent of the amount of bonds and one-tenth of 1 per cent of the amount of certificates of indebtedness herein authorized is hereby appropriated, or as much thereof as may be necessary, out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated, to be expended as the secretary of the treasury may direct: Provided, That, in addition to the reports now required by law, the secretary of the treasury shall, on the first Monday in December, 1917, and annually thereafter, transmit to the congress a detailed statement of all expenditures under this act. (Approved April 24, 1917.)

ADDITIONAL BONDS.

The secretary of the treasury is authorized to borrow on the credit of the United States to meet expenditures authorized for the national security and defense, not exceeding in the aggregate $7,535,945,460, and to issue therefor bonds of the United States in addition to the $2,000,000,000 bonds already issued or offered for subscription under the act of April 24, 1917: Provided, That of this sum $3,063,945,460 shall be in lieu of that amount of the unissued bonds authorized by sections 1 and 4 of the act of April 24, 1917, $225,000,000 shall be in lieu of that amount of unissued bonds authorized by section 39 of the act of Aug. 5, 1909, $150,000,000 shall be in lieu of the unissued bonds authorized by the joint resolution of March 4, 1917, and $100,000,000 shall be in lieu of the unissued bonds authorized by section 400 of the act approved March 3, 1917.

The bonds herein authorized shall be in such form or forms and denominations and subject to such terms and conditions of issue, conversion, redemption, maturities, payment and rate or rates of interest, not exceeding 4 per cent per annum, as the secretary of the treasury may prescribe. The principal and interest shall be payable in United States gold coin of the present standard of value.

The bonds shall, from time to time, first be offered at not less than par as a popular loan under such regulations as will give the people of the United States an equal opportunity to participate therein, but the secretary may make allotment in full upon applications for smaller amounts of bonds in advance of any date which he may set for the closing of subscriptions.

Section 2 authorizes the secretary of the treasury to establish credits with the United States for any foreign governments then engaged in war with the enemies of the United States; and, to the extent of the credits so established, the secretary is authorized to purchase at war from such foreign governments respectively their several obligations hereafter issued, bearing such rate or rates of interest, maturing at such date or dates, not later than the bonds of the United States then last issued under the authority of this act, or of such act approved April 24, 1917, and containing such terms and conditions as the secretary may determine, or to make advances to or for the account of any such foreign governments and to receive such obligations at par for the amount of any such advances; but the rate or rates of interest borne by any such obligations shall not be less than the highest rate borne by any bonds of the United States which, at the time of the acquisition thereof, shall have been issued under authority of the act approved April 24, 1917, or of this act, and any such obligations shall contain such provisions as the secretary may determine for the conversion of a proportionate part of such obligations into obligations bearing a higher rate of interest if bonds of the United States issued under authority of this act shall be converted into other bonds of the United States bearing a higher rate of interest, but the rate of interest in such foreign obligations issued upon such conversion shall not be less than the highest rate of interest borne by such bonds of the United States; and the secretary of the treasury is authorized to enter into such arrangements from time to time with any such foreign governments as may be necessary or desirable for establishing such credits and for the payment of such obligations of foreign governments before maturity. For the purposes of this section there is appropriated the sum of $4,000,000,000, and in addition thereto the unexpended balance of the appropriations made by section 2 of said act approved April 24, 1917, or so much thereof as may be necessary.

Section 3 authorizes the secretary of the treasury to exercise, in respect to the obligations of foreign governments acquired under the authority of this act and the act of April 24, 1917, any privilege of conversion into obligations bearing interest at a higher rate and to convert any short-time obligations of foreign governments which may have been purchased into long-time obligations of such foreign governments, maturing not later than the bonds of the United States issued under this act or the act of April 24, 1917. The rates of interest of such long-time obligations shall not be less than the rates borne by the short-time obligations so converted.

Section 4 authorizes the secretary of the treasury to issue convertible bonds and provides that in case of a subsequent issue of bonds bearing a higher rate of interest the holders of the convertible bonds may exchange them for the bonds paying a higher rate of interest under such terms as the secretary may prescribe. The bonds to be issued upon such conversion under this act shall be substantially the same in form and terms as shall be prescribed by or pursuant to law with respect to the bonds of such subsequent series, not only as to interest rate but also as to convertibility (if future bonds be issued at a still higher rate of interest) or non-convertibility, and as to exemption from taxation, if any, and in all other respects, except that the bonds issued upon such conversion shall have the same dates of maturity, of principal and of interest, and be subject to the same terms of redemption before maturity, as the bonds converted. If the privilege of conversion so conferred under this act shall once arise, and shall not be exercised with respect to any convertible bonds within the period so prescribed by the secretary of the treasury, then such privilege shall terminate as to such bonds and shall not arise again though again thereafter bonds be issued bearing interest at a higher rate or rates.

Sec. 5. In addition to the bonds authorized by section 1 of this act the secretary of the treasury is authorized to borrow on the credit of the United States such sum or sums as in his judgment may be necessary, and to issue therefor certificates of indebtedness of the United States at not less than par; and each certificate so issued shall be payable at such time not exceeding one year from the date of its issue, and may be redeemable before maturity upon such terms and conditions, and the interest accruing thereon shall be payable at such time or times as the secretary of the treasury may prescribe. The sum of such certificates outstanding hereunder and under section 6 of this act of April 24, 1917, shall not at any one time exceed in the aggregate $4,000,000,000.

Sec. 6. In addition to the bonds authorized by section 1 of this act and the certificates of indebtedness authorized by section 5, the secretary of the treasury is authorized to borrow such sum or sums as in his judgment may be necessary, and to issue therefor, at such price or prices and upon such terms and conditions as he may determine, war-savings certificates of the United States on which interest to maturity may be computed in advance at such rate or rates as may be determined in such manner as he may prescribe. Each war-savings certificate so issued shall be payable at such time, not exceeding five years from the date of its issue, and may be redeemable before maturity, upon such terms and conditions as the secretary of the treasury may prescribe. The sum of such war-savings certificates outstanding shall not at any one time exceed in the aggregate $2,000,000,000. The amount of war-savings certificates sold to any one person at any one time shall not exceed $100, and it shall not be lawful for any one person at any one time to hold more than $1,000 in such certificates.

Section 7 provides that none of the bonds authorized by section 1 or certificates authorized by sections 5 and 6 shall bear the circulation privilege. All such bonds and certificates shall be exempt both as to principal and interest from all taxation now or hereafter imposed by the United States, any state or any of the possessions of the United States, or by any local taxing authority, except (a) estate or inheritance taxes, and (b) graduated income taxes, commonly known as surtaxes, and excess profits and war-profits taxes, now or hereafter imposed by the United States, upon the income or profits of individuals, partnerships, associations or corporations. The interest on an amount of such bonds and certificates, the principal of which does not exceed in the aggregate $5,000, owned by any individual, partnership, association or corporation, shall be exempt from the taxes provided for in subdivision (b) of this section.

Section 8 provides that the secretary may deposit in such incorporated bank and trust companies as he may designate, the proceeds arising from the sale of the bonds and certificates. He is also authorized to designate depositories in foreign countries to provide for the current disbursements to the military and naval forces and diplomatic, consular and other representatives of the United States until six months after the close of the war.

Section 9 requires postoffice employees to render such services as may be necessary in connection with the sale and delivery of bonds and certificates. Section 10 appropriates a sum not exceeding one-fifth of 1 per cent of bonds and war-savings certificates and one-tenth of 1 per cent of certificates of indebtedness to pay all necessary expenses connected with operations under the act. Sections 11 and 12 relate to various matters connected with the administration of the act, and section 13 provides that for the purposes of the act the date of the termination of the war shall be fixed by the proclamation of the president of the United States. (Approved Sept. 24, 1917.)

MINORITY ENLISTMENTS.

Hereafter any enlistment for minority in the navy or marine corps may be extended as is provided by law for extending an enlistment for a term of four years, under similar conditions and with like rights, privileges, benefits and obligations. (Approved April 25, 1917.)

OFFICERS FOR HYDROGRAPHIC OFFICE.

The secretary of the navy is authorized to detail such naval officers as may be necessary to the hydrographic office during the continuance of the present war. (Approved April 25, 1917.)

AGE LIMIT FOR NAVAL RESERVE OFFICERS.

The maximum limit of age for officers of the naval reserve force on first enlistment as such therein is increased from 35 to 50 years. (Approved April 25, 1917.)

INCREASE IN NUMBER OF MIDSHIPMEN.

In addition to the number of midshipmen now authorized by law, there shall be appointed during the period from the date of passage of this act until Sept. 1, 1918, one additional midshipman for each senator, representative and delegate in congress. Nominations shall be made for these vacancies by the senators, representatives and delegates concerned for any regular or special examination that may be ordered before that date. (Approved April 25, 1917.)

SEIZURE OF INTERNED GERMAN SHIPS.

The president is hereby authorized to take over to the United States the immediate possession and title of any vessel within the jurisdiction thereof, including the Canal Zone and all territories and insular possessions of the United States except the American Virgin Islands, which at the time of coming into such jurisdiction was owned in whole or in part by any corporation, citizen or subject of any nation with which the United States may be at war when such vessel shall be taken, or was flying the flag of or was under register of any such nation or any political subdivision or municipality thereof; and, through the United States shipping board, or any department or agency of the government, to operate, lease, charter and equip such vessel in any service of the United States, or in any commerce, foreign or coastwise.

The secretary of the navy is hereby authorized and directed to appoint, subject to the approval of the president, a board of survey, whose duty it shall be to ascertain the actual value of the vessel, its equipment, appurtenances and all property contained therein at the time of its taking and to make a written report of their findings to the secretary of the navy, who shall preserve such report with the records of his department. These findings shall be considered as competent evidence in all proceedings on any claim for compensation. (Approved May 12, 1917.)

APPROPRIATIONS FOR WAR EXPENSES.

In the following synopsis of the act "making appropriations to supply urgent deficiencies in appropriations for the military and naval establishments on account of war expenses for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1917," only the larger appropriations and more important legislative provisions are given:

COUNCIL OF NATIONAL DEFENSE.

For expenses of experimental work and investigations undertaken by the council of national defense, $500,000.

EMERGENCY SHIPPING FUND.

The president is authorized and empowered, within the limits of the amounts herein authorized—

(a) To place an order with any person for such ships or material as the necessities of the government, to be determined by the president, may require during the period of the war and which are of the nature, kind and quality usually produced or capable of being produced by such person.

(b) To modify, suspend, cancel, or requisition any existing or future contract for the building, production or purchase of ships or material.

(c) To require the owner or occupier of any plant in which ships or materials are built or produced to place at the disposal of the United States the whole or any part of the output of such plant, to deliver such output or part thereof in such quantities and at such times as may be specified in the order.

(d) To requisition and take over for use or operation by the United States any plant, or any part thereof without taking possession of the entire plant, whether the United States has or has not any contract or agreement with the owner or occupier of such plant.

(e) To purchase, requisition, or take over the title to, or the possession of, for use or operation by the United States, any ship now constructed or in the process of construction or hereafter constructed, or any part thereof, or charter of such ship.

Compliance with all orders issued hereunder shall be obligatory on any person to whom such order is given, and such order shall take precedence over all other orders and contracts placed with such person. If any person owning any ship, charter, or material, or owning, leasing, or operating any plant equipped for the building or production of ships or material shall refuse or fail to comply therewith or to give to the United States such preference in the execution of such order or shall refuse to build, supply, furnish or manufacture the kind, quantities or qualities of the ships or material so ordered, at such reasonable price as shall be determined by the president, the president may take immediate possession of any ship, charter, material or plant of such person, or any part thereof without taking possession of the entire plant, and may use the same at such times and in such manner as he may consider necessary or expedient.

Whenever the United States shall cancel, modify, suspend or requisition any contract, make use of, assume, occupy, requisition, acquire or take over any plant or part thereof, or any ship, charter or material, in accordance with the provisions hereof, it shall make just compensation therefor, to be determined by the president; and if the amount thereof, so determined by the president, is unsatisfactory to the person entitled to receive the same, such person shall be paid 75 per cent of the amount so determined by the president and shall be entitled to sue the United States to recover such further sum as, added to said 75 per cent, will make up such amount as will be just compensation therefor, in the manner provided for by section 24, paragraph 20, and section 145 of the judicial code.

The president may exercise the power and authority hereby vested in him, and expend the money herein and hereafter appropriated through such agency or agencies as he shall determine from time to time: Provided, That all money turned over to the United States Shipping Board Emergency Fleet corporation may be expended as other moneys of said corporation are now expended. All ships constructed, purchased or requisitioned under authority herein, or heretofore or hereafter acquired by the United States, shall be managed, operated and disposed of as the president may direct.

All authority granted to the president herein, or by him delegated, shall cease six months after a final treaty of peace is proclaimed between this government and the German empire.

The cost of purchasing, requisitioning or otherwise acquiring plants, material, charters or ships now constructed or in the course of construction and the expediting of construction of ships thus under construction shall not exceed the sum of $250,000,000, exclusive of the cost of ships turned over to the army and navy, the expenditure of which is hereby authorized, and in executing the authority granted by this act for such purpose the president shall not expend or obligate the United States to expend more than said sum; and there is hereby appropriated for said purpose $150,000,000: Provided, That this appropriation shall be reimbursed from available funds under the war and navy departments for vessels turned over for the exclusive use of those departments or either of them.

The cost of construction of ships authorized herein shall not exceed the sum of $500,000,000, the expenditure of which is hereby authorized, and in executing the authority granted herein for such purpose the president shall not expend or obligate the United States to expend more than said sum; and there is hereby appropriated for said purpose $250,000,000.

For the operation of the ships herein authorized or in any way acquired by the United States, except those acquired for the army or navy, and for every expenditure incident thereto, $5,000,000.

WAR DEPARTMENT.

For extra clerks in war department, $900,000.
Contingent expenses, $415,000.
Stationery, $230,000.

Printing and binding, $630,000.

TERMS OF DRAFTED SOLDIERS.

The service of all persons selected by draft and all enlistments under the provisions of the act entitled "An act to authorize the president to increase temporarily the military establishment of the United States," approved May 13, 1917, shall be for the period of the war, unless sooner terminated by discharge or otherwise. Whenever the war shall cease by the conclusion of peace between the United States and its enemies in the present war, the president shall so declare by a public proclamation, and within four months after the proclamation, or as soon thereafter as it may be practicable, to transport the forces then serving without the United States to their home station, the provisions of the act, in so far as they authorize compulsory service by selective draft or otherwise, shall cease to be of force and effect. (Approved June 15, 1917.)

INCREASE OF NAVAL PERSONNEL AND MARINE CORPS.

An act to increase temporarily the commissioned and warrant and enlisted strength of the navy and marine corps, and for other purposes.

Be it enacted, etc., That the authorized enlisted strength of the active list of the navy is hereby by temporarily increased from 87,000 to 150,000, including 4,000 additional apprentice seamen.

Sec. 2. That the authorized enlisted strength of the active list of the marine corps is hereby temporarily increased from 17,400 to 30,000, this authorized strength being distributed in the various grades of the enlisted force in the same proportion as those authorized at the date of the approval of this act.

Sec. 3. That enlistments in the navy and marine corps, during such time as the United States may be at war, shall be for four years or for such shorter period or periods as the president may prescribe, or for the period of the present war.

Sec. 4. Additional commissioned officers in the navy and marine corps, based upon the temporary increases herein authorized in the number of enlisted men, shall be temporarily appointed by the president, in his discretion, with the advice and consent of the senate, not above the grades and ranks of lieutenant in the line and staff of the navy and major in the marine corps, the distribution in said grades and ranks to be made in accordance with the provisions of the act of Aug. 29, 1916: Provided, That all temporary original appointments shall be made in the lowest commissioned grades of the line and staff of the navy and marine corps, exclusive of commissioned warrant officers, and that there shall be no permanent or temporary appointments in or permanent or temporary promotions to any grade or rank above that of lieutenant in the navy or major in the marine corps by reason of the temporary appointment of officers authorized by this act in excess of the total number of officers authorized by existing law or on account of the increase of enlisted men herein authorized: Provided further, That, during the period of the present war, the deficiency existing prior to the passage of this act in the total number of commissioned officers of the navy and marine corps authorized by the act of Aug. 29, 1916, may also be supplied by temporary appointments in the lowest grades and by temporary promotions to all other grades until a sufficient number of officers shall be available for regular appointment or promotion in accordance with existing law: Provided further, That nothing herein shall be held or construed to limit or abridge the use or service of the officers of the navy and marine corps on the retired list or of the officers of the naval militia and national naval volunteers, naval reserve force and marine corps reserve, as provided and authorized under existing law: Provided further, That temporary chaplains and temporary acting chaplains in the navy may be appointed for service during the period of the war in the proportion of the personnel of the navy as now prescribed by existing law.

Sec. 5. That the additional temporary officers authorized in the various grades and ranks of the navy and marine corps in accordance with the next preceding section may be temporarily appointed to serve in the grades or ranks to which appointed or promoted by the temporary advancement of officers holding permanent and probationary commissions, by temporary appointment of commissioned warrant officers, warrant officers and enlisted men of the navy, and warrant officers, noncommissioned officers and clerks to assistant paymasters of the marine corps, commissioned and warrant officers of the United States coast guard, citizens of the United States who have had previous naval or military service or training, and other citizens of the United States specially qualified: Provided, That in making appointments authorized herein the maximum age limit shall be 50 years for commissioned warrant officers, warrant officers and enlisted men to ensign, enlisted men of the navy to warrant rank, candidates for assistant surgeon, noncommissioned officers of the marine corps to commissioned rank, members of the marine corps branch of the naval militia and national naval volunteers, marine corps reserve and civilians specially qualified to commissioned rank and warrant officers of the active list of the marine corps appointed to commissioned rank and temporary chaplains and temporary acting chaplains: Provided further, That graduates of the naval academy and warrant officers duly commissioned in the navy or marine corps in accordance with existing law shall not, by virtue of this act, be required to receive temporary appointments; and the class of midshipmen graduated from the naval academy on March 23, 1917, and the classes to be graduated hereafter, may be commissioned effective from date of graduation: Provided further, That temporary appointments as warrant officers of the navy may be made by the secretary of the navy: Provided further, That lieutenants (junior grade) and ensigns may be considered eligible for temporary promotions to the grades of lieutenant and lieutenant (junior grade), respectively, without regard to length of service in grade.

Sec. 6. That during the period of the present war the computations to be made by the secretary of the navy as prescribed by the act of Aug. 29, 1916, shall be made semiannually as of July 1 and Jan. 1 of each year and at such other times as he may deem necessary; and the board of rear-admirals for selection for promotion prescribed in said act may be convened at such times as the exigencies of the service may require and shall recommend for promotion such number of officers as the secretary of the navy may prescribe to fill vacancies in the several grades as provided by existing law.

Sec. 7. That the permanent and probationary commissions, appointments and warrants of officers shall not be vacated by reason of their temporary advancement or appointment, nor shall said officers be prejudiced in their relative lineal rank in regard to promotion in accordance with the act of Aug. 29, 1916: Provided, That the rights, benefits, privileges and gratuities of all enlisted men of the navy and marine corps now authorized by law shall not be lost or abridged in any respect whatever by their acceptance of temporary commissions or warrants hereunder: Provided further, That no person who shall receive a temporary appointment shall be entitled to pay or allowances except under such temporary appointment: And provided further, That upon the termination of temporary appointments in a higher grade or rank as authorized by this act the officers so advanced, including probationary second lieutenants, warrant officers, clerks to assistant paymasters and enlisted men of the navy and marine corps, commissioned and warrant officers of the United States coast guard, shall revert to the grade, rank or rating from which temporarily advanced, unless such officers or enlisted men in the meantime, in accordance with law, become entitled to promotion to a higher grade or rank in the permanent navy or marine corps, in which case they shall revert to said higher grade or rank and shall, after passing the prescribed examinations, be commissioned accordingly.

Sec. 8. That all temporary appointments or advancements authorized by this act shall continue in force only until otherwise directed by the president or until congress shall amend or repeal the authorization for the increases herein provided and not later than six months after the termination of the present war.

Sec. 9. That any officer of the permanent navy or marine corps temporarily advanced in grade or rank in accordance with the provisions of this act, who shall be retired from active service under his permanent commission while holding such temporary rank, except for physical disability incurred in line of duty, shall be placed on the retired list with the grade or rank to which his position in the permanent navy or marine corps at the date of his retirement would entitle him, and any person originally appointed temporarily, as provided in this act, shall not be entitled to any rights of retirement except for physical disability incurred in line of duty.

Sec. 10. That, during the continuance of the present war, should any second lieutenant of the marine corps holding a probationary appointment for the period of two years become eligible for promotion to a higher grade and qualify therefor before the expiration of two years from the date of original appointment, he shall receive a probationary appointment in such higher grade, which appointment shall be made permanent or shall be vacated in the manner prescribed by the act of Aug. 29, 1916.

Sec. 11. That the appointment of thirty marine gunners, thirty quartermaster's clerks and nine clerks to assistant paymasters, additional to the number now prescribed by law, and the temporary appointment of eight clerks to assistant paymasters for the war, is hereby authorized, such appointments to be made in the manner now provided by law.

Sec. 12. That the temporary appointments and promotions herein authorized shall be made by the president, with the advice and consent of the senate.

Sec. 13. Nothing contained in this act shall operate to reduce the rank pay or allowances that would have been received by any person in the navy, marine corps or coast guard except for the passage of this act.

Sec. 14. That the provisions of the act entitled "An act making appropriations for the naval service for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1917, and for other purposes," approved Aug. 29, 1916, which read as follows: "Provided further, That the increase in the number of captains herein authorized shall be made at the rate of not more than ten captains in any one year," and "That officers of the marine corps that would have been received by any person faithfully for forty-five years on the active list shall, when retired, have the rank of brigadier-general; and such officers who shall hereafter be retired at the age of 64 years before having served for forty-five years, but who shall have served faithfully on the active list until retired, shall, on the completion of forty years from their entry in the naval service, have the rank of brigadier-general," are hereby repealed.

Sec. 15. That commencing June 1, 1917, and continuing until not later than six months after the termination of the present war, all enlisted men of the navy of the United States in active service whose base pay does not exceed $21 per month shall receive an increase of $15 per month; those whose base pay is over $21 and does not exceed $24 per month, an increase of $12 per month; those whose base pay is over $24 and less than $45 per month, an increase of $8 per month; and those whose base pay is $45 or more per month, an increase of $6 per month: Provided, That the increases of pay herein authorized shall not enter into the computation of continuous-service pay: Provided, That during the continuance of the present war warrant officers, petty officers and enlisted men of the United States coast guard shall receive the same rates of pay as are or may hereafter be prescribed for corresponding grades or ratings and length of service in the navy.

Sec. 16. That the president is hereby authorized, whenever in his judgment a sufficient national emergency exists, to transfer to the service and jurisdiction of the war department, or of the navy department, such vessels, equipment, stations and personnel of the coast and geodetic survey as he may deem to be the best interest of the country, and after such transfer all expenses connected therewith shall be defrayed out of the appropriations for the department to which transfer is made: Provided, That such vessels, equipment, stations and personnel shall be returned to the coast and geodetic survey when such national emergency ceases, in the opinion of the president, and nothing in this act shall be construed as transferring the coast and geodetic survey or any of its functions from the department of commerce except in time of national emergency and to the extent herein provided: Provided further, That any of the personnel of the coast and geodetic survey who may be transferred as herein provided shall, while under the jurisdiction of the war department or navy department, have proper military status and shall be subject to the laws, regulations and orders for the government of the army or navy, as the case may be, in so far as the same may be applicable to persons whose retention permanently in the military service of the United States is not contemplated by law: And provided further, That the president is authorized to appoint, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, the field officers of the coast and geodetic survey, who are now officially designated assistants and aids, as follows: Officers now designated assistants and receiving a salary of $2,000 or more per annum shall be appointed hydrographic and geodetic engineers; officers now designated assistants and receiving a salary of $1,200 or greater but less than $2,000 per annum shall be appointed junior hydrographic and geodetic engineers; officers now designated aids shall be appointed aids: Provided, That no person shall be appointed aid or shall be promoted from aid to junior hydrographic and geodetic engineer or from junior hydrographic and geodetic engineer to hydrographic and geodetic engineer until after passing a satisfactory mental and physical examination conducted in accordance with regulations prescribed by the secretary of commerce, except that the president is authorized to nominate for confirmation the assistants and aids in the service on the date of the passage of this act.

Nothing in this act shall reduce the total amount of pay and allowances they were receiving at the time of transfer. While actually employed in active service under direct orders of the war department or of the navy department members of the coast and geodetic survey shall receive the benefit of all provisions of laws relating to disability incurred in line of duty or loss of life.

When serving with the army or navy the relative rank shall be as follows:

Hydrographic and geodetic engineers receiving $4,000 or more shall rank with and after colonels in the army and captains in the navy.

Hydrographic and geodetic engineers receiving $3,000 or more but less than $4,000 shall rank with and after lieutenant-colonels in the army and commanders in the navy.

Hydrographic and geodetic engineers receiving $2,500 or more but less than $3,000 shall rank with and after majors in the army and lieutenant-commanders in the navy.

Hydrographic and geodetic engineers receiving $2,000 or more but less than $2,500 shall rank with and after captains in the army and lieutenants in the navy.

Junior hydrographic and geodetic engineers shall rank with and after first lieutenants in the army and lieutenants (junior grade) in the navy.

Aids shall rank with and after second lieutenants in the army and ensigns in the navy.

And nothing in this act shall be construed to affect or alter their rates of pay and allowances when not assigned to military duty as hereinbefore mentioned.

The secretary of war, the secretary of the navy and the secretary of commerce shall jointly prescribe regulations governing the duties to be performed by the coast and geodetic survey in time of war, and for the co-operation of that service with the war and navy departments in time of peace in preparation for its duties in war, which regulations shall not be effective unless approved by each of the said secretaries, and included therein may be rules and regulations for making reports and communications between the officers or bureaus of the war and navy departments and the coast and geodetic survey.

Sec. 17. That nothing contained in the act of Aug. 23, 1916, shall operate to disturb the relative position of officers in the medical corps with reference to precedence or promotion, but all such officers otherwise qualified shall be advanced in rank with or ahead of officers in said corps who were their juniors on the date of said act.

Sec. 18. That the president be, and he is hereby, further authorized to designate six officers of the navy for the command of fleets or subdivisions thereof and, after being so designated from the date of assuming such command until relinquishing thereof, not more than three of such officers shall each have the rank and pay of an admiral, and the others shall each have the rank and pay of a vice-admiral; and the grades of admiral and vice-admiral are hereby authorized and continued for the purpose of this act: Provided, That in time of war the selections under the provisions of this section shall be made from the grades of rear-admiral or captain on the active list of the navy: Provided further, That the pay of an admiral shall be $10,000 and the pay of a vice-admiral $9,000 per annum: Provided further, That in time of peace officers for the command of fleets and subdivisions thereof, as herein authorized, shall be designated from among the rear-admirals on the active list of the navy: Provided further, That nothing herein contained shall create any vacancy in any grade in the navy or increase the total number of officers authorized by law: Provided further, That when an officer with the rank of admiral or vice-admiral is detached from the command of a fleet or subdivision thereof, as herein authorized, he shall return to his regular rank in the list of officers of the navy and shall thereafter receive only the pay and allowances of such rank: And provided further, That nothing in this act shall be held or construed as amending or repealing the provisions of sections 144, 143 and 146 of the revised statutes of the United States.

That the provision in the act approved March 3, 1915, for the designation of commanders in chief of certain fleets with the rank of admiral and for the designation of officers second in command of such fleets with the rank of vice-admiral, and the same is hereby, repealed.

Sec. 19. That section 44 of the act entitled "An act to codify, revise and amend the penal laws of the United States," approved March 4, 1909, as amended by an act entitled "An act making appropriation for the naval service for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1918, and for other purposes," approved March 4, 1917, be, and is hereby, amended by adding the following to said section:

"Provided, That offenses hereunder committed within the Canal Zone or within any defensive sea areas which the president is authorized to establish by said section, shall be cognizable in the District court of the Canal Zone, and jurisdiction is hereby conferred upon said court to hear and determine all such cases arising under said section and to impose the penalties therein provided for the violation of any of the provisions of said section."

Sec. 20. That hereafter all laws relating to the examination of officers of the navy for promotion shall be construed to apply to the regular advancement of staff officers to higher ranks on the active list the same as though such advancements in rank were promotions to higher grades: Provided, That examinations for such staff officers shall not be required except for such regular advancements in rank: Provided further, That the president be, and he is hereby, authorized to direct the secretary of the navy to take such action on the records of proceedings of naval examining boards and boards of naval surgeons for the promotion of officers of the navy as is now required by law to be taken by the president.

Sec. 21. That during the continuance of the present war an extra allowance of one ounce of coffee or cocoa, two ounces of sugar, four ounces of hard bread or its equivalent, and four ounces of preserved meat or its equivalent shall be allowed to enlisted men of the deck force when standing night watches between 8 o'clock postmeridian and 8 o'clock antemeridian. (Approved, May 22, 1917.)

PUNISHMENT OF ESPIONAGE.

An act to punish acts of interference with the foreign relations, the neutrality and the foreign commerce of the United States, to punish espionage and to enforce the criminal laws of the United States, etc.

Be it enacted by the senate and house of representatives of the United States in congress assembled:

TITLE I.—ESPIONAGE.

Section 1. That (a) whoever, for the purpose of obtaining information respecting the national defense with intent or reason to believe that the information to be obtained is to be used to the injury of the United States, or to the advantage of any foreign nation, goes upon, enters, flies over or otherwise obtains information concerning any vessel, aircraft, work of defense, navy yard, naval station, submarine base, coaling station, fort, battery, torpedo station, dockyard, canal, railroad, arsenal, camp, factory, mine, telegraph, telephone, wireless or signal station, building, office or other place connected with the national defense, owned or constructed, or in progress of construction, by the United States or under the control of the United States, or of any of its officers or agents, or within the exclusive jurisdiction of the United States, or any place in which any vessel, aircraft, arms, munitions or other materials or instruments for use in time of war are being made, prepared, repaired or stored, under any contract or agreement with the United States or with any person on behalf of the United States, or otherwise on behalf of the United States, or any prohibited place within the meaning of section 6 of this title; or (b) whoever for the purpose aforesaid, and with like intent or reason to believe, copies, takes, makes or obtains, or attempts, or induces or aids another to copy, take, make or obtain, any sketch, photograph, photographic negative, blue print, plan, map, model, instrument, appliance, document, writing or note of anything connected with the national defense; or (c) whoever, for the purpose aforesaid, receives or obtains or agrees or attempts or induces or aids another to receive or obtain from any person, or from any source whatever, any document, writing, code book, signal book, sketch, photograph, photographic negative, blue print, plan, map, model, instrument, appliance or note of anything connected with the national defense, knowing or having reason to believe, at the time he receives or obtains, or agrees or attempts or induces or aids another to receive or obtain it, that it has been or will be obtained, taken, made or disposed of by any person contrary to the provisions of this title; or (d) whoever, lawfully or unlawfully having possession of, access to, control over, or being intrusted with, any document, writing, code book, signal book, sketch, photograph, photographic negative, blue print, plan, map, model, instrument, appliance or note relating to the national defense, willfully communicates or transmits or attempts to communicate or transmit the same to any person not entitled to receive it, or willfully retains the same and fails to deliver it on demand to the officer or employee of the United States entitled to receive it; or (e) whoever, being intrusted with or having lawful possession or control of any document, writing, code book, signal book, sketch, photograph, photographic negative, blue print, plan, map, model, note or information, relating to the national defense, through gross negligence permits the same to be removed from its proper place of custody or delivered to any one in violation of his trust, or to be lost, stolen, abstracted or destroyed, shall be punished by a fine of not more than $10,000, or by imprisonment for not more than two years, or both.

Sec. 2. (a) Whoever, with intent or reason to believe that it is to be used to the injury of the United States or to the advantage of a foreign nation, communicates, delivers or transmits, or attempts to, or aids or induces another to, communicate, deliver or transmit, to any foreign government, or to any faction or party or military or naval force within a foreign country, whether recognized or unrecognized by the United States, or to any representative, officer, agent, employee, subject or citizen thereof, either directly or indirectly, any document, writing, code book, signal book, sketch, photograph, photographic negative, blue print, plan, map, model, note, instrument, appliance or information relating to the national defense, shall be punished by imprisonment for not more than twenty years: Provided, That whoever shall violate the provisions of subsection (a) of this section in time of war shall be punished by death or by imprisonment for not more than thirty years; and (b) whoever, in time of war, with intent that the same shall be communicated to the enemy, shall collect, record, publish or communicate, or attempt to elicit any information with respect to the movement, numbers, description, condition or disposition of any of the armed forces, ships, aircraft or war materials of the United States, or with respect to the plans or conduct, or supposed plans or conduct of any naval or military operations, or with respect to any works or measures undertaken for or connected with, or intended for the fortification or defense of any place, or any other information relating to the public defense which might be useful to the enemy, shall be punished by death or by imprisonment for not more than thirty years.

Sec. 3. Whoever, when the United States is at war, shall willfully make or convey false reports or false statements with intent to interfere with the operation or success of the military or naval forces of the United States, or to promote the success of its enemies, and whoever, when the United States is at war, shall willfully cause or attempt to cause insubordination, disloyalty, mutiny or refusal of duty, in the military or naval forces of the United States, or shall willfully obstruct the recruiting or enlistment service of the United States, to the injury of the service or of the United States, shall be punished by a fine of not more than $10,000 or imprisonment for not more than twenty years, or both.

Sec. 4. If two or more persons conspire to violate the provisions of sections 2 or 3 of this title, and one or more of such persons does any act to effect the object of the conspiracy, each of the parties to such conspiracy shall be punished as in said sections provided in the case of the doing of the act the accomplishment of which is the object of such conspiracy. Except as above provided conspiracies to commit offenses under this title shall be punished as provided by section 37 of the act to codify, revise and amend the penal laws of the United States approved March 4, 1909.

Sec. 5. Whoever harbors or conceals any person who he knows, or has reasonable grounds to believe or suspect, has committed, or is about to commit, an offense under this title shall be punished by a fine of not more than $10,000 or by imprisonment for not more than two years, or both.

Sec. 6. The president in time of war or in case of national emergency may by proclamation designate any place other than those set forth in subsection (a) of section 1 hereof in which anything for the use of the army or navy is being prepared or constructed or stored as a prohibited place for the purposes of this title: Provided, That he shall determine that information with respect thereto would be prejudicial to the national defense.

Sec. 7. Nothing contained in this title shall be deemed to limit the jurisdiction of the general courts-martial, military commissions or naval courts-martial under sections 1342, 1343 and 1624 of the revised statutes as amended.

Sec. 8. The provisions of this title shall extend to all territories, possessions and places subject to the jurisdiction of the United States whether or not contiguous thereto, and offenses under this title when committed upon the high seas or elsewhere within the admiralty and maritime jurisdiction of the United States and outside the territorial limits thereof shall be punishable hereunder.

Sec. 9. The act entitled "An act to prevent the disclosure of national defense secrets," approved March 3, 1911, is hereby repealed.

TITLE II.—VESSELS IN PORTS OF THE UNITED STATES.

Section 1. Whenever the president by proclamation or executive order declares a national emergency to exist by reason of actual or threatened war, insurrection or invasion, or disturbance or threatened disturbance of the international relations of the United States, the secretary of the treasury may make, subject to the approval of the president, rules and regulations governing the anchorage and movement of any vessel, foreign or domestic, in the territorial waters of the United States, may inspect such vessel at any time, place guards thereon, and if necessary in his opinion in order to secure such vessels from damage or injury, or to prevent damage or injury to any harbor or waters of the United States, or to secure the observance of the rights and obligations of the United States, may take, by and with the consent of the president, for such purposes, full possession and control of such vessel and remove therefrom the officers and crew thereof and all other persons not specially authorized by him to go or remain on board thereof.

Within the territory and waters of the Canal Zone the governor of the Panama canal, with the approval of the president, shall exercise all the powers conferred by this section on the secretary of the treasury.

Sec. 2. If any owner, agent, master, officer or person in charge, or any member of the crew of any such vessel fails to comply with any regulation or rule issued or order given by the secretary of the treasury or the governor of the Panama canal under the provisions of this title, or obstructs or interferes with the exercise of any power conferred by this title, the vessel, together with her tackle, apparel, furniture and equipment, shall be subject to seizure and forfeiture to the United States in the same manner as merchandise is forfeited for violation of the customs revenue laws; and the person guilty of such failure, obstruction or interference shall be fined not more than $10,000, or imprisoned not more than two years, or both.

Sec. 3. It shall be unlawful for the owner or master or any other person in charge or command of any private vessel, or the owner or master or any member of the crew or other person, within the territorial waters of the United States, willfully to cause or permit the destruction or injury of such vessel or knowingly to permit said vessel to be used as a place of resort for any person conspiring with another or preparing to commit any offense against the United States, or in violation of the treaties of the United States or of the obligations of the United States under the law of nations, or to defraud the United States, or knowingly to permit such vessel to be used in violation of the rights and obligations of the United States under the law of nations; and in case such vessel shall be so used, with the knowledge of the owner or master or other person in charge or command thereof, the vessel, together with her tackle, apparel, furniture and equipment, shall be subject to seizure and forfeiture to the United States in the same manner as merchandise is forfeited for violation of the customs revenue laws; and whoever violates this section shall be fined not more than $10,000 or imprisoned not more than two years, or both.

Sec. 4. The president may employ such part of the land or naval forces of the United States as he may deem necessary to carry out the purpose of this title.

TITLE III.—INJURING VESSELS ENGAGED IN FOREIGN COMMERCE.

Section 1. Whoever shall set fire to any vessel of foreign registry, or any vessel of American registry entitled to engage in commerce with foreign nations, or to any vessel of the United States as defined in section 310 of the act of March 4, 1909, entitled "An act to codify, revise and amend the penal laws of the United States," or to the cargo of the same, or shall tamper with the motive power or mechanical facilities of navigation of such vessel, or shall place bombs or explosives in or upon such vessel, or shall do any other act to or upon such vessel while within the jurisdiction of the United States, or, if such vessel is of American registry, while she is on the high sea, with intent to injure or endanger the safety of the vessel or of her cargo, or of persons on board, whether the injury or danger is so intended to take place within the jurisdiction of the United States, or after the vessel shall have departed therefrom; or whoever shall attempt or conspire to do any such act with such intent, shall be fined not more than $10,000 or imprisoned not more than twenty years, or both.

TITLE IV.—INTERFERENCE WITH FOREIGN COMMERCE BY VIOLENT MEANS.

Section 1. Whoever, with intent to prevent, interfere with, or obstruct or attempt to prevent, interfere with or obstruct the exportation to foreign countries of articles from the United States shall injure or destroy, by fire or explosives, such articles or the places where they may be while in such foreign commerce, shall be fined not more than $10,000, or imprisoned not more than ten years, or both.

TITLE V.—ENFORCEMENT OF NEUTRALITY.

Section 1. During a war in which the United States is a neutral nation, the president, or any person thereunto authorized by him, may withhold clearance from or to any vessel, domestic or foreign, which is required by law to secure clearance before departing from port or from the jurisdiction of the United States, or, by service of formal notice upon the owner, master or person in command or having charge of any domestic vessel not required by law to secure clearances before so departing, to forbid its departure from port or from the jurisdiction of the United States, whenever there is reasonable cause to believe that any such vessel, domestic or foreign, whether requiring clearance or not, is about to carry fuel, arms, ammunition, men, supplies, dispatches or information to any warship, tender or supply ship of a foreign belligerent nation in violation of the laws, treaties or obligations of the United States under the law of nations, and it shall thereupon be unlawful for such vessel to depart.

Sec. 2. During a war in which the United States is a neutral nation, the president, or any person thereunto authorized by him, may detain any armed vessel owned wholly or in part by American citizens, or any vessel, domestic or foreign (other than one which has entered the ports of the United States as a public vessel), which is manifestly built for warlike purposes or has been converted or adapted from a private vessel to one suitable for warlike use, until the owner, or master, or person having charge of such vessel, shall furnish proof satisfactory to the president, or to the person duly authorized by him, that the vessel will not be employed by the said owners or master, or person having charge thereof, to cruise against or commit or attempt to commit hostilities upon the subjects, citizens or property of any foreign prince or state, or of any colony, district or people with which the United States is at peace, and that the said vessel will not be sold or delivered to any belligerent nation, or to an agent, officer or citizen of such nation, by them or any of them, within the jurisdiction of the United States, or, having left that jurisdiction, upon the high seas.

Sec. 3. During a war in which the United States is a neutral nation, it shall be unlawful to send out of the jurisdiction of the United States any vessel built, armed or equipped as a vessel of war, or converted from a private vessel into a vessel of war, with any intent or under any agreement or contract, written or oral, that such vessel shall be delivered to a belligerent nation, or to an agent, officer or citizen of such nation, or with reasonable cause to believe that the said vessel shall or will be employed in the service of any such belligerent nation after its departure from the jurisdiction of the United States.

Sec. 4. During a war in which the United States is a neutral nation, in addition to the facts required by sections 437, 4198 and 4200 of the revised statutes to be set out in the masters' and shipper's manifest before clearance will be issued to vessels bound to foreign ports, each of which sections of the revised statutes is hereby declared to be and is continued in full force and effect, every master or person having charge or command of any vessel, domestic or foreign, whether requiring clearance or not, before departure of such vessel from port shall deliver to the collector of customs for the district wherein such vessel is then located a statement, duly verified by oath, that the cargo or any part of the cargo is or is not to be delivered to other vessels in port or to be transhipped on the high seas and if it is to be so delivered or transhipped, stating the kind and quantities and the value of the total quantity of each kind of article so to be delivered or transhipped, and the name of the person, corporation, vessel or government to whom the delivery or transshipment is to be made, and the owners, shippers or consignors of the cargo of such vessel shall in the same manner and under the same conditions deliver to the collector like statements under oath as to the cargo or the parts thereof laden or shipped by them, respectively.

Sec. 5. Whenever it appears that the vessel is not entitled to clearance, or whenever there is reasonable cause to believe that the additional statements under oath required in the foregoing section are false, the collector of customs for the district in which the vessel is located may, subject to review by the secretary of commerce, refuse clearance to any vessel, domestic or foreign, and by formal notice served upon the owners, master or person or persons in command or charge of any domestic vessel for which clearance is not required by law, forbid the departure of the vessel from the port or from the jurisdiction of the United States, and it shall thereupon be unlawful for the vessel to depart.

Sec. 6. Whoever, in violation of any of the provisions of this title, shall take, or attempt or conspire to take, or authorize the taking of any such vessel out of port or from the jurisdiction of the United States shall be fined not more than $10,000 or imprisoned not more than five years, or both, and, in addition, such vessel, her tackle, apparel, furniture, equipment and her cargo shall be forfeited to the United States.

Sec. 7. Whoever, being a person belonging to the armed land or naval forces of a belligerent nation or belligerent faction of any nation and being interned in the United States, in accordance with the law of nations, shall leave or attempt to leave said jurisdiction, or shall leave or attempt to leave the limits of internment in which freedom of movement has been allowed, without permission from the proper official of the United States in charge, or shall willfully overstay a leave of absence granted by such official, shall be subject to arrest by any marshal or deputy marshal of the United States, or by the military or naval authorities thereof, and shall be returned to the place of internment and there confined and safely kept for such period of time as the official of the United States in charge shall direct, and whoever, within the jurisdiction of the United States and subject thereto, shall aid or entice any interned person to escape or attempt to escape from the jurisdiction of the United States, or from the limits of internment prescribed, shall be fined not more than $1,000 or imprisoned not more than one year, or both.

Sec. 8. Section 13 of the act entitled "An act to codify, revise and amend the penal laws of the United States," approved March 4, 1909, is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

"Sec. 13. Whoever, within the territory or jurisdiction of the United States or of any of its possessions, knowingly begins or sets on foot or provides or prepares a means for or furnishes the money for, or who takes part in, any military or naval expedition or enterprise to be carried on from thence against the territory or dominion of any foreign prince or state, or of any colony, district or people with whom the United States is at peace, shall be fined not more than $1,000 or imprisoned not more than three years, or both."

Sec. 9. That the president may employ such part of the land or naval forces of the United States as he may deem necessary to carry out the purposes of this title.

Sec. 10. Section fifteen of the act entitled "An act to codify, revise and amend the penal laws of the United States," approved March 4, 1909, is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

"Sec. 15. It shall be lawful for the president to employ such part of the land or naval forces of the United States, or of the militia thereof, as he may deem necessary to compel any foreign vessel to depart from the United States or any of its possessions in all cases in which, by the law of nations or the treaties of the United States, it ought not to remain, and to detain or prevent any foreign vessel from so departing in all cases in which, by the law of nations or the treaties of the United States, it is not entitled to depart."

Sec. 11. The joint resolution approved March 4, 1915, "To empower the president to better enforce and maintain the neutrality of the United States," and any act or parts of acts in conflict with the provisions of this title are hereby repealed.

TITLE VI.—SEIZURE OF ARMS AND OTHER ARTICLES INTENDED FOR EXPORT.

Section 1. Whenever an attempt is made to export or ship from or take out of the United States any arms or munitions of war, or other articles, in violation of law, or whenever there shall be known or probable cause to believe that any such arms or munitions of war, or other articles, are being or are intended to be exported, or shipped from, or taken out of the United States, in violation of law, the several collectors, naval officers, surveyors, inspectors of customs, marshals and deputy marshals of the United States, and every other person duly authorized for the purpose by the president, may seize and detain any articles or munitions of war about to be exported, or shipped from, or taken out of the United States, in violation of law, and the vessels or vehicles containing the same, and retain possession thereof until released or disposed of as hereinafter directed. If upon due inquiry, as hereinafter provided, the property seized shall appear to have been about to be so unlawfully exported, shipped from or taken out of the United States, the same shall be forfeited to the United States.

Sec. 2. It shall be the duty of the person making any seizure under this title to apply, with due diligence, to the judge of the District court of the United States, or to the judge of the United States District court of the Canal Zone, or to the judge of a court of first instance in the Philippine islands having jurisdiction over the place within which the seizure is made, for a warrant to justify the further detention of the property so seized, which warrant shall be granted only on oath or affirmation showing that there is known or probable cause to believe that the property seized is being or is intended to be exported or shipped from or taken out of the United States in violation of law, and if the judge refuses to issue the warrant, or application therefor is not made by the person making the seizure within a reasonable time, not exceeding ten days after the seizure, the property shall forthwith be restored to the owner or person from whom seized. If the judge is satisfied that the seizure was justified under the provisions of this title and issues his warrant accordingly, then the property shall be detained by the person seizing it until the president, who is hereby expressly authorized so to do, orders it to be restored to the owner or claimant, or until it is discharged in due course of law on petition of the claimant, or on trial of condemnation proceedings, as hereinafter provided.

Sec. 3. The owner or claimant of any property seized under this title may, at any time before condemnation proceedings have been instituted, as hereinafter provided, file his petition for its restoration in the District court of the United States, or the District court of the Canal Zone, or the court of first instance in the Philippine islands having jurisdiction over the place in which the seizure was made, whereupon the court shall advance the cause for hearing and determination with all possible dispatch, and, after causing notice to be given to the United States attorney for the district and to the person making the seizure, shall proceed to hear and decide whether the property seized shall be restored to the petitioner or forfeited to the United States.

Sec. 4. Whenever the person making any seizure under this title applies for and obtains a warrant for the detention of the property, and (a) upon the hearing and determination of the petition of the owner or claimant restoration is denied, or (b) the owner or claimant fails to file a petition for restoration within thirty days after the seizure, the United States attorney for the district wherein it was seized, upon direction of the attorney-general, shall institute libel proceedings in the United States District court or the District court of the Canal Zone or the court of first instance of the Philippine islands having jurisdiction over the place wherein the seizure was made, against the property for condemnation, and if, after trial and hearing of the issues involved, the property is condemned, it shall be disposed of by sale and the proceeds thereof, less the legal costs and charges, paid into the treasury.

Sec. 5. The proceedings in such summary trials upon the petition of the owner or claimant of the property seized, as well as in the libel cases herein provided for, shall conform, as near as may be, to the proceedings in admiralty, except that either party may demand trial by jury of any issue of fact joined in such libel cases, and all such proceedings shall be at the suit of and in the name of the United States: Provided, That upon the payment of the costs and legal expenses of both the summary trials and the libel proceedings herein provided for, and the execution and delivery of a good and sufficient bond in an amount double the value of the property seized, conditioned that it will not be exported or used or employed contrary to the provisions of this title, the court, in its discretion, may direct that it be delivered to the owners thereof or to the claimants thereof.

Sec. 6. Except in those cases in which the exportation of arms and munitions of war or other articles is forbidden by proclamation or otherwise by the president, as provided in section 1 of this title, nothing herein contained shall be construed to extend to or interfere with any trade in such commodities, conducted with any foreign port or place wheresoever, or with any other trade which might have been lawfully carried on before the passage of this title, under the law of nations, or under the treaties or conventions entered into by the United States, or under the laws thereof.

Sec. 7. Upon payment of the costs and legal expenses incurred in any such summary trial for possession, or libel proceedings, the president is hereby authorized, in his discretion, to order the release and restoration to the owner or claimant, as the case may be, of any property seized or condemned under the provisions of this title.

Sec. 8. The president may employ such part of the land or naval forces of the United States as he may deem necessary to carry out the purposes of this title.

TITLE VII.—CERTAIN EXPORTS IN TIME OF WAR

UNLAWFUL

Section 1. Whenever during the present war the president shall find that the public safety shall so require, and shall make proclamation thereof, it shall be unlawful to export from or ship from or take out of the United States to any country named in such proclamation any article or articles mentioned in such proclamation, except at such time or times, and under such regulations and orders, and subject to such limitations and exceptions as the president shall prescribe, until otherwise ordered by the president or by congress: Provided, however, That no preference shall be given to the ports of one state over those of another.

Sec. 2. Any person who shall export, ship or take out, or deliver or attempt to deliver for export, shipment or taking out any article, in violation of this title, or of any regulation or order made hereunder, shall be fined not more than $10,000, or, if a natural person, imprisoned for not more than two years, or both; and any article so delivered or exported, shipped or taken out, or so attempted to be delivered or exported, shipped or taken out, shall be seized and forfeited to the United States, and any officer, director or agent of a corporation who participates in any such violation shall be liable to like fine or imprisonment, or both.

Sec. 3. Whenever there is reasonable cause to believe that any vessel, domestic or foreign, is about to carry out of the United States any article or articles in violation of the provisions of this title, the collector of customs for the district in which such vessel is located is hereby authorized and empowered, subject to review by the secretary of commerce, to refuse clearance to any such vessel, domestic or foreign, for which clearance is required by law, and by formal notice served upon the owners, master or person or persons in command or charge of any domestic vessel for which clearance is not required by law, to forbid the departure of such vessel from the port, and it shall thereupon be unlawful for such vessel to depart. Whoever in violation of any of the provisions of this section shall take or attempt to take or authorize the taking of any such vessel out of port or from the jurisdiction of the United States shall be fined not more than $10,000 or imprisoned not more than two years, or both, and in addition, such vessel, her tackle, apparel, furniture, equipment and her forbidden cargo shall be forfeited to the United States.

TITLE VIII.—DISTURBANCE OF FOREIGN RELATIONS.

Section 1. Whoever, in relation to any dispute or controversy between a foreign government and the United States, shall willfully and knowingly make any untrue statement, either orally or in writing, under oath before any person authorized and empowered to administer oaths, which the affiant has knowledge or reason to believe will or may be used to influence the measures or conduct of any foreign government, or of any officer or agent of any foreign government, to the injury of the United States, or with a view or intent to influence any measure of or action by the government of the United States, or any branch thereof, to the injury of the United States, shall be fined not more than $5,000 or imprisoned not more than five years, or both.

Sec. 2. Whoever within the jurisdiction of the United States shall falsely assume or pretend to be a diplomatic or consular or other official of a foreign government duly accredited as such to the government of the United States with intent to defraud such foreign government or any person, and shall take upon himself to act as such, or in such pretended character shall demand or obtain, or attempt to obtain from any person or from said foreign government, or from any officer thereof, any money, paper, document or other thing of value, shall be fined not more than $5,000 or imprisoned not more than five years, or both.

Sec. 3. Whoever, other than a diplomatic or consular officer or attache, shall act in the United States as an agent of a foreign government without prior notification to the secretary of state shall be fined not more than $5,000 or imprisoned not more than five years, or both.

Sec. 4. The words "foreign government," as used in this act and in sections 156, 157, 161, 170, 171, 172, 173 and 220 of the act of March 4, 1909, entitled "An act to codify, revise and amend the penal laws of the United States," shall be deemed to include any government, faction or body of insurgents within a country with which the United States is at peace, which government, faction or body of insurgents may or may not have been recognized by the United States as a government.

Sec. 5. If two or more persons within the jurisdiction of the United States conspire to injure or destroy specific property situated within a foreign country and belonging to a foreign government or to any political subdivision thereof with which the United States is at peace, or any railroad, canal, bridge or other public utility so situated, and if one or more of such persons commits an act within the jurisdiction of the United States to effect the object of the conspiracy each of the parties to the conspiracy shall be fined not more than $5,000, or imprisoned not more than three years, or both. Any indictment or information under this section shall describe the specific property which it was the object of the conspiracy to injure or destroy.

TITLE IX.—PASSPORTS.

Section 1. Before a passport is issued to any person by or under authority of the United States such person shall subscribe to and submit a written application duly verified by his oath before a person authorized and empowered to administer oaths, which said application shall contain a true recital of each and every matter of fact which may be required by law or by any rules authorized by the state to be stated as a prerequisite to the issuance of any such passport. Clerks of United States courts, agents of the department of state or other federal officials authorized, or who may be authorized, to take passport applications and administer oaths thereon, shall collect, for all services in connection therewith, a fee of $1, and no more, in lieu of all fees prescribed by any statute of the United States, whether the application is executed singly, in duplicate or in triplicate.

Sec. 2. Whoever shall willfully and knowingly make any false statement in an application for passport with intent to induce or secure the issuance of a passport under the authority of the United States, either for his own use or the use of another, contrary to the laws regulating the issuance of passports or the rules prescribed pursuant to such laws, or whoever shall willfully and knowingly use or attempt to use, or furnish to another for use, any passport the issue of which was secured in any way by reason of any false statement, shall be fined not more than $2,000 or imprisoned not more than five years, or both.

Sec. 3. Whoever shall willfully and knowingly use, or attempt to use, any passport issued or designed for the use of another than himself, or whoever shall willfully and knowingly use or attempt to use any passport in violation of the conditions or restrictions therein contained, or of the rules prescribed pursuant to the laws regulating the issuance of passports, which said rules shall be printed on the passport, or whoever shall willfully and knowingly furnish, dispose of or deliver a passport to any person, for use by another than the person for whose use it was originally issued and designed, shall be fined not more than $2,000 or imprisoned not more than five years, or both.

Sec. 4. Whoever shall falsely make, forge, counterfeit, mutilate or alter, or cause or procure to be falsely made, forged, counterfeited, mutilated or altered any passport or instrument purporting to be a passport, with intent to use the same, or with intent that the same may be used by another, or whoever shall willfully or knowingly use or attempt to use, or furnish to another for use any such false, forged, counterfeited, mutilated or altered passport or instrument purporting to be a passport, or any passport validly issued which has become void by the occurrence of any condition thereon prescribed invalidating the same, shall be fined not more than $2,000 or imprisoned not more than five years, or both.

TITLE X.—COUNTERFEITING GOVERNMENT SEAL.

Section 1. Whoever shall fraudulently or wrongfully affix or impress the seal of any executive department, or of any bureau, commission or office of the United States, to or upon any certificate, instrument, commission, document or paper of any description, or whoever, with knowledge of its fraudulent character, shall with wrongful or fraudulent intent use, buy, procure, sell or transfer to another any such certificate, instrument, commission, document or paper to which or upon which said seal has been so fraudulently affixed or impressed, shall be fined not more than $5,000 or imprisoned not more than five years, or both.

Sec. 2. Whoever shall falsely make, forge, counterfeit, mutilate or alter, or cause or procure to be made, forged, counterfeited, mutilated or altered, or shall willingly assist in falsely making, forging, counterfeiting, mutilating or altering the seal of any executive department, or any bureau, commission or office of the United States, or whoever shall knowingly use, affix or impress any such fraudulently made, forged, counterfeited, mutilated or altered seal to or upon any certificate, instrument, commission, document or paper of any description, or whoever with wrongful or fraudulent intent shall have possession of any such falsely made, forged, counterfeited, mutilated or altered seal, knowing the same to have been so falsely made, forged, counterfeited, mutilated or altered, shall be fined not more than $5,000 or imprisoned not more than ten years, or both.

Sec. 3. Whoever shall falsely make, forge, counterfeit, alter or tamper with any naval, military or official pass or permit, issued by or under the authority of the United States, or with wrongful or fraudulent intent shall use or have in his possession any such pass or permit, or shall personate or falsely represent himself to be or not to be a person to whom such pass or permit has been duly issued, or shall willfully allow any other person to have or use any such pass or permit, issued for his use alone, shall be fined not more than $2,000 or imprisoned not more than five years, or both.

TITLE XI.—SEARCH WARRANTS.

Section 1. A search warrant authorized by this title may be issued by a judge of a United States District court, or by a judge of a state or territorial court of record, or by a United States commissioner for the district wherein the property sought is located.

Sec. 2. A search warrant may be issued under this title upon either of the following grounds:

1. When the property was stolen or embezzled in violation of a law of the United States; in which case it may be taken on the warrant from any house or other place in which it is concealed or from the possession of the person by whom it was stolen or embezzled, or from any person in whose possession it may be.

2. When the property was used as the means of committing a felony; in which case it may be taken on the warrant from any house or other place in which it is concealed, or from the possession of the person by whom it was used in the commission of the offense, or from any person in whose possession it may be.

3. When the property, or any paper, is possessed, controlled or used in violation of section 22 of this title; in which case it may be taken on the warrant from the person violating said section, or from any person in whose possession it may be, or from any house or other place in which it is concealed.

Sec. 3. A search warrant cannot be issued but upon probable cause, supported by affidavit, naming or describing the person and particularly describing the property and the place to be searched.

Sec. 4. The judge or commissioner must, before issuing the warrant, examine on oath the complainant and any witness he may produce, and require their affidavits or take their depositions in writing and cause them to be subscribed by the parties making them.

Sec. 5. The affidavits or depositions must set forth the facts tending to establish the grounds of the application or probable cause for believing that they exist.

Sec. 6. If the judge or commissioner is thereupon satisfied of the existence of the grounds of the application or that there is probable cause to believe their existence, he must issue a search warrant, signed by him with his name of office, to a civil officer of the United States duly authorized to enforce or assist in enforcing any law thereof, or to a person so duly authorized by the president of the United States, stating the particular grounds or probable cause for its issue and the names of the persons whose affidavits have been taken in support thereof, and commanding him forthwith to search the person or place named, for the property specified, and to bring it before the judge or commissioner.

Sec. 7. A search warrant may in all cases be served by any of the officers mentioned in its direction, but by no other person, except in aid of the officer on his requiring it, he being present and acting in its execution.

Sec. 8. The officer may break open any outer or inner door or window of a house, or any part of a house, or anything therein, to execute the warrant, if, after notice of his authority and purpose, he is refused admittance.

Sec. 9. He may also open any outer or inner door or window of a house for the purpose of liberating a person who, having entered to aid him in the execution of the warrant, is detained therein, or when necessary for his own liberation.

Sec. 10. The judge or commissioner must insert a direction in the warrant that it be served in the daytime, unless the affidavits are positive that the property is on the person or in the place to be searched, in which case he may insert a direction that it be served at any time of the day or night.

Sec. 11. A search warrant must be executed and returned to the judge or commissioner who issued it within ten days after its date; after the expiration of this time the warrant, unless executed, is void.

Sec. 12. When the officer takes property under the warrant he must give a copy of the warrant together with a receipt for the property taken (specifying it in detail) to the person from whom it was taken by him, or in whose possession it was found; or, in the absence of any person, he must leave it in the place where he found the property.

Sec. 13. The officer must forthwith return the warrant to the judge or commissioner and deliver to him a written inventory of the property taken, made publicly or in the presence of the person from whose possession it was taken, and of the applicant for the warrant, if they are present, verified by the affidavit of the officer at the foot of the inventory and taken before the judge or commissioner at the time, to the following effect: "I, R. S., the officer by whom this warrant was executed, do swear that the above inventory contains a true and detailed account of all the property taken by me on the warrant."

Sec. 14. The judge or commissioner must thereupon, if required, deliver a copy of the inventory to the person from whose possession the property was taken and to the applicant for the warrant.

Sec. 15. If the grounds on which the warrant was issued be controverted, the judge or commissioner must proceed to take testimony in relation thereto, and the testimony of each witness must be reduced to writing and subscribed by each witness.

Sec. 16. If it appears that the property or paper taken is not the same as that described in the warrant or that there is no probable cause for believing the existence of the grounds on which the warrant was issued, the judge or commissioner must cause it to be restored to the person from whom it was taken; but if it appears that the property or paper taken is the same as that described in the warrant and that there is probable cause for believing the existence of the grounds on which the warrant was issued, then the judge or commissioner shall order the same detained in the custody of the person seizing it or to be otherwise disposed of according to law.

Sec. 17. The judge or commissioner must annex the affidavits, search warrant, return, inventory and evidence, and if he has not power to inquire into the offense in respect to which the warrant was issued he must at once file the same together with a copy of the record of his proceedings, with the clerk of the court having power to so inquire.

Sec. 18. Whoever shall knowingly and willfully obstruct, resist or oppose any such officer or person in serving or attempting to serve or execute any such search warrant, or shall assault, beat or wound any such officer or person, knowing him to be an officer or person so authorized, shall be fined not more than $1,000 or imprisoned not more than two years.

Sec. 19. Sections 125 and 126 of the criminal code of the United States shall apply to and embrace all persons making oath or affirmation or procuring the same under the provisions of this title, and such persons shall be subject to all the pains and penalties of said sections.

Sec. 20. A person who maliciously and without probable cause procures a search warrant to be issued and executed shall be fined not more than $1,000 or imprisoned not more than one year.

Sec. 21. An officer who in executing a search warrant willfully exceeds his authority, or exercises it with unnecessary severity, shall be fined not more than $1,000 or imprisoned not more than one year.

Sec. 22. Whoever, in aid of any foreign government, shall knowingly and willfully have possession of or control over any property or papers designed or intended for use or which are used as the means of violating any penal statute, or any of the rights or obligations of the United States under any treaty or the law of nations, shall be fined not more than $1,000 or imprisoned not more than two years, or both.

Sec. 23. Nothing contained in this title shall be held to repeal or impair any existing provisions of law regulating search and the issue of search warrants.

TITLE XII.—USE OF MAILS.

Section 1. Every letter, writing, circular, postal card, picture, print, engraving, photograph, newspaper, pamphlet, book or other publication, matter or thing of any kind, in violation of any of the provisions of this act is hereby declared to be nonmailable matter and shall not be conveyed in the mails or delivered from any post-office or by any letter carrier: Provided, That nothing in this act shall be so construed as to authorize any person other than an employee of the dead letter office, duly authorized thereto, or other person upon a search warrant authorized by law, to open any letter not addressed to himself.

Sec. 2. Every letter, writing, circular, postal card, picture, print, engraving, photograph, newspaper, pamphlet, book or other publication, matter or thing of any kind, containing any matter advocating or urging treason, insurrection or forcible resistance to any law of the United States, is hereby declared to be non-available.

Sec. 3. Whoever shall use or attempt to use the mails or postal service of the United States for the transmission of any matter declared by this title to be nonavailable, shall be fined not more than $5,000 or imprisoned not more than five years, or both. Any person violating any provision of this title may be tried and punished either in the district in which the unlawful matter or publication was mailed, or to which it was carried by mail for delivery according to the direction thereon, or in which it was caused to be delivered by mail to the person to whom it was addressed.

TITLE XIII.—GENERAL PROVISIONS.

Section 1. The term "United States" as used in this act includes the Canal Zone and all territory and waters, continental or insular, subject to the jurisdiction of the United States.

Sec. 2. The several courts of first instance in the Philippine Islands and the District court of the Canal Zone shall have jurisdiction of offenses under this act committed within their respective districts, and concurrent jurisdiction with the District courts of the United States of offenses under this act committed upon the high seas, and of conspiracies to commit such offenses, as defined by section 37 of the act entitled "An act to codify, revise and amend the penal laws of the United States," approved March 4, 1909, and the provisions of said section, for the purpose of this act, are hereby extended to the Philippine Islands and to the Canal Zone. In such cases the district attorneys of the Philippine Islands and of the Canal Zone shall have the powers and perform the duties provided in this act for United States attorneys.

Sec. 3. Offenses committed and penalties, forfeitures or liabilities incurred prior to the taking effect hereof under any law embraced in or changed, modified or repealed by any chapter of this act may be prosecuted and punished, and suits and proceedings for causes arising or acts done or committed prior to the taking effect hereof may be commenced and prosecuted, in the same manner and with the same effect as if this act had not been passed.

Sec. 4. If any clause, sentence, paragraph or part of this act shall for any reason be adjudged by any court of competent jurisdiction to be invalid, such judgment shall not affect, impair or invalidate the remainder thereof, but shall be confined in its operation to the clause, sentence, paragraph or part thereof directly involved in the controversy in which such judgment shall have been rendered. (Approved June 15, 1917.)

EQUIPMENT OF HOME GUARDS.

The secretary of war is authorized during this emergency to issue to the several states and territories and the District of Columbia for the equipment of such home guards having the character of state police or constabulary as may be organized, or other state troops or militia, such rifles and ammunition therefor, cartridge belts, haversacks and canteens as may be available, provided the property so issued shall remain the property of the United States and shall be receipted and accounted for. Such property when no longer needed for the purposes for which issued or if required by federal exigencies shall be returned. Home guards, state troops and militia receiving arms and equipment shall have the use of rifle ranges owned or controlled by the United States. (Approved June 14, 1917.)

FOREIGN ENLISTMENTS.

The act to codify, revise and amend the penal laws of the United States approved March 4, 1909, is amended so as to read:

"Sec. 10. Whoever, within the territory or jurisdiction of the United States, enlists or enters himself, or hires or retains another person to enlist or enter himself, or to go beyond the limits or jurisdiction of the United States with intent to be enlisted or entered in the service of any foreign prince, state, colony, district or people as a soldier or as a marine or seaman on board of any vessel of war, letter of marque, or privateer shall be fined not more than $1,000 and imprisoned not more than three years: Provided, That this section shall not apply to citizens or subjects of any country engaged in war with a country with which the United States is at war, unless such citizen, or subject of such foreign country shall hire or solicit a citizen of the United States to enlist or go beyond the jurisdiction of the United States with intent to enlist or enter the service of a foreign country. Enlistments under this proviso shall be under regulations prescribed by the secretary of war." (Approved May 7, 1917.)

LANDS FOR MILITARY PURPOSES.

Hereafter the secretary of war may cause proceedings to be instituted in the name of the United States, in any court having jurisdiction of such proceedings, for the acquisition by condemnation of any land needed for the site, location, construction or prosecution of work, fortifications, coast defenses and military training camps, such proceedings to be prosecuted in accordance with the laws relating to suits for the condemnation of property of the states wherein the proceedings may be instituted. When the owner of such land thereto shall fix a price for the same which, in the opinion of the secretary of war, shall be reasonable, he may purchase or enter into a contract for the use of the same at such price without further delay. The secretary of war is authorized to accept on behalf of the United States donations of land for the above-mentioned purposes. When such property is acquired in time of war, upon the filing of the petition for condemnation, immediate possession may be taken to the extent of the interest to be acquired and the lands may be occupied and used for military purposes and the provision of section 355 of the revised statutes, providing that no public money shall be expended upon such land until the written opinion of the attorney-general shall be had in favor of the validity of the title, nor until the consent of the legislature of the state in which the land is located has been given, shall be suspended during the period of the existing emergency. (Approved July 2, 1917.)

MARINE WAR RISK INSURANCE.

The act of Sept. 2, 1914, providing for a bureau of war risk insurance in the treasury department, is amended so as to make the first section read:

"That there is established in the treasury department a bureau to be known as the bureau of war risk insurance, the director of which shall be entitled to a salary at the rate of $5,000 per annum."

That section 2 is amended to read as follows: "Sec. 2. That the said bureau of war risk insurance, subject to the general direction of the secretary of the treasury, shall, as soon as practicable, make provisions for the insurance by the United States of American vessels, their freight and passage moneys, cargoes shipped or to be shipped therein, and personal effects of the masters, officers and crews thereof against loss or damage by the risks of war, whenever it shall appear to the secretary that American vessels, shippers or importers in American vessels, or the masters, officers or crews of such vessels, are unable in any trade to secure adequate war risk insurance on reasonable terms.

"The bureau of war risk insurance shall, as soon as practicable, make provisions for the insurance by the United States of masters, officers and crews of American merchant vessels against loss of life or personal injury by the risks of war, and for compensation during detention following capture by enemies of the United States whenever it shall appear to the secretary that in any trade the need for such insurance exists."

There is added a new section to read as follows:

"Sec. 2a. That the bureau of war risk insurance is hereby authorized to make provisions for the reinsurance by the United States of vessels of foreign friendly flags or their cargoes, or both, when such vessels or their cargoes are insured by the government of any country which is at war with an enemy of the United States; and, further, to reinsure with the governments of any countries which are at war with an enemy of the United States American vessels and their cargoes."

Section 3 is amended to read as follows:

"Sec. 3. That the bureau of war risk insurance is hereby authorized to adopt and publish forms of war risk policies and to fix reasonable rates of premium for the policies which it is authorized to issue under this act, which rates shall be subject to such change to each port and for each class as the secretary shall find may be required by the circumstances. All proceeds of the premium and from salvage which have been or are hereafter received shall be covered into the treasury of the United States to the credit of the bureau of war risk insurance, and in addition to all other appropriations made under this act are hereby permanently appropriated for the purpose of paying losses and return premiums accruing under this act."

There is added a new section to read as follows:

"Sec. 3a. That whenever it shall appear to the secretary of the treasury that the effecting of such insurance is desirable in the national interest in the case of vessels engaged in any trade, the owner of every American merchant vessel engaged in such trade shall insure the master, officers and crew of such vessel against loss of life or personal injury from war risks as well as for compensation during detention by an enemy of the United States following capture.

"Such insurance shall be effected either with the bureau of war risk insurance or in insurance companies and on terms satisfactory to the secretary of the treasury.

"Such insurance shall provide, and the bureau of war risk insurance is authorized to write policies so providing:

"(a) In case of death, permanent disability which prevents the person injured from performing any and every kind of duty pertaining to his occupation, or the loss of both hands, both arms, both feet, both legs or both eyes, or any two thereof, for the payment of an amount equivalent to one year's earnings, or to twelve times the monthly earnings of the insured, as fixed in the articles for the voyage (hereinafter referred to as the principal sum), but in no case shall such amount be more than $5,000 or less than $1,500.

"(b) In case of any of the following losses, for the payment of the percentage of the principal sum indicated in the following tables:

"One hand, 50 per centum;

"One arm, 65 per centum;

"One foot, 50 per centum;

"One leg, 65 per centum;

"One eye, 45 per centum;

"Total destruction of hearing, 50 per centum;

"That the bureau of war risk insurance may include in its policy undertakings to pay specified percentages of the principal sum for other losses or disabilities; and

"(c) In case of detention by an enemy of the United States, following capture, for the payment during the continuance of such detention of compensation at the same rate as the earnings of the insured immediately preceding such detention, to be determined in substantially the same manner as provided in subdivision (a) of this section.

"The aggregate payments under this section in respect to any one person shall not exceed the amount of the principal sum.

"Payments provided for in this section shall be made only to the master, officer or member of the crew concerned, except that a payment for loss of life shall be made to the estate of the insured for distribution to his family free from liability of debt, and payment on account of detention by an enemy following capture shall be made to dependents of the person detained, if designated by him.

"No claim under this section shall be valid unless made by the master, officer or member of the crew concerned, or his estate, or a person designated under this section, within two years after the date on which the president suspends the operations of this act in so far as it authorizes insurance by the United States."

There is added a new section, to read as follows:

"Sec. 3b. That in the event of failure of the owner of any vessel to effect insurance of the master, officers and crew of such vessel prior to sailing, in accordance with section 3a of this act, the secretary of the treasury is hereby authorized to effect such insurance with the bureau of war risk insurance at the expense of the owner of such vessel, and the latter shall be liable for such expense, and in addition to a penalty of not exceeding $1,000. The amount of such premium, with interest, and of the penalty and of all costs shall be a lien on the vessel."

Section 5 is amended to read as follows:

"Sec. 5. That the secretary of the treasury is authorized to establish an advisory board, to consist of three members skilled in the practices of war risk insurance, for the purpose of assisting the bureau of war risk insurance in fixing rates of premium and in adjustment of claims for losses, and generally in carrying out the purposes of this act; the compensation of the members of said board to be determined by the secretary of the treasury, but not to exceed $20 a day each, while actually employed. He is likewise authorized to appoint two persons skilled in the practices of accident insurance for the purpose of assisting the bureau of war risk insurance in the adjustment of claims for death, personal injury or detention; the compensation of the persons so appointed to be determined by the secretary of the treasury, but not to exceed $20 a day each, while actually employed. In the event of disagreement as to the claim for losses or amount thereof, between the said bureau and the parties to such contract of insurance, an action on the claim may be brought against the United States in the District court of the United States, sitting in admiralty, in the district in which the claimant or his agent may reside."

There is added a new section to read as follows:

"Sec. 5a. No claim agent or attorney shall be entitled to receive any compensation whatever for services in the collection of claims against the bureau of war risk insurance for death, personal injury or detention, except when proceedings are taken in accordance with section 5 in a District court of the United States, in which case the judge shall, as a part of his determination and order, settle and determine the amount of compensation, not to exceed 10 per centum of amount recovered, to be paid by the claimant on behalf of whom such proceedings are instituted to his legal adviser or advisers, and it shall be unlawful for any lawyer or other person acting in that behalf to ask for, contract for or receive any larger sum than the amount so fixed."

Section 7 is amended to read as follows:

"Sec. 7. That for the purpose of paying losses and return premiums accruing under the provisions of this act there is hereby appropriated out of any money in the treasury of the United States, not otherwise appropriated, the sum of $50,000,000."

Section 8 is amended to read as follows:

"Sec. 8. That there is hereby appropriated for the purpose of defraying the expenses of the establishment and maintenance of the bureau of war risk insurance, including the payment of salaries herein authorized and other personal services, and for the purchase of necessary books of reference, periodicals, etc., the sum of $250,000."

Section 9 is amended to read as follows:

"Sec. 9. That the president is authorized whenever in his judgment the necessity of further war insurance by the United States shall have ceased to exist to suspend the operation of the act, in so far as it authorizes insurance by the United States against loss or damage by risks of war, which suspension shall be made, in any event, within four years after the passage of this act, but shall not affect any insurance outstanding at the time or any claims pending adjustment. For the purpose of the final adjustment of any such outstanding insurance or claims the bureau of war risk insurance may, in the discretion of the president, be continued in existence a further period not exceeding three years."

The amendments of Aug. 11, 1916, and March 3, 1917, are repealed. (Approved June 12, 1917.)

FOOD CONSERVATION LAW.

An act (H. R. 4961) to provide further for the national security and defense by encouraging the production, conserving the supply and controlling the distribution of food products and fuel.

Be it enacted, etc., That, by reason of the existence of a state of war, it is essential to the national security and defense, for the successful prosecution of the war and for the support and maintenance of the army and navy, to assure an adequate supply and equitable distribution, and to facilitate the movement of foods, feeds, fuel, including fuel oil and natural gas, and fertilizer and fertilizer ingredients, tools, utensils, implements, machinery and equipment required for the actual production of foods, feeds and fuel, hereafter in this act called necessities; to prevent, locally or generally, scarcity, monopolization, hoarding, injurious speculation, manipulations and private controls affecting such supply, distribution and movement; and to establish and maintain governmental control of such necessities during the war. For such purposes the instrumentalities, means, methods, powers, authorities, duties, obligations and prohibitions hereinafter set forth are created, established, conferred and prescribed. The president is authorized to make such regulations and to issue such orders as are essential effectively to carry out the provisions of this act.

Sec. 2. That in carrying out the purposes of this act the president is authorized to enter into any voluntary arrangements or agreements, to create and use any agency or agencies, to accept the services of any person without compensation, to co-operate with any agency or person, to utilize any department or agency of the government and to co-ordinate their activities so as to avoid any preventable loss or duplication of effort or funds.

Sec. 3. That no person acting either as a voluntary or paid agent or employee of the United States in any capacity, including an advisory capacity, shall solicit, induce or attempt to induce any person or officer authorized to execute or to direct the execution of contracts on behalf of the United States to make any contract or give any order for the furnishing to the United States of work, labor or services, or of materials, supplies or other property of any kind or character, if such agent or employee has any pecuniary interest in such contract or order, or if he or any firm of which he is a member, or corporation, joint stock company, or association of which he is an officer or stockholder, or in the pecuniary profits of which he is directly or indirectly interested, shall be a party thereto. Nor shall any agent or employee make or permit any committee or other body of which he is a member to make, or participate in making, any recommendation concerning such contract or order to any council, board or commission of the United States, or any member or subordinate thereof, without making to the best of his knowledge and belief a full and complete disclosure in writing to such council, board, commission or subordinate of any and every pecuniary interest which he may have in such contract or order and of his interest in any firm, corporation, company or association being a party thereto. Nor shall he participate in the awarding of such contract or giving such order. Any willful violation of any of the provisions of this section shall be punishable by a fine of not more than $10,000, or by imprisonment of not more than five years, or both: Provided, That the provisions of this section shall not change, alter or repeal section 41 of chapter 321, 35th statutes at large.

WASTE PROHIBITED.

Sec. 4. That it is hereby made unlawful for any person willfully to destroy any necessities for the purpose of enhancing the price or restricting the supply thereof; knowingly to commit waste or willfully to permit preventable deterioration of any necessities in or in connection with their production, manufacture or distribution; to board, as defined in section 6 of this act, any necessities; to monopolize or attempt to monopolize, either locally or generally, any necessities; to engage in any discriminatory and unfair, or any deceptive or wasteful practice or device, or to make any unjust or unreasonable rate or charge, in handling or dealing in or with any necessities; to conspire, combine, agree or arrange with any other person (a) to limit the facilities for transporting, producing, harvesting, manufacturing, supplying, storing or dealing in any necessities; (b) to restrict the supply of any necessities; (c) to restrict distribution of any necessities; (d) to prevent, limit or lessen the manufacture or production of any necessities in order to enhance the price thereof; or (e) to exact excessive prices for any necessities or to aid or abet the doing of any act made unlawful by this section.

Sec. 5. That, from time to time, whenever the president shall find it essential to license the importation, manufacture, storage, mining or distribution of any necessities in order to carry into effect any of the purposes of this act, and shall publicly so announce, no person shall, after a date fixed in the announcement, engage in or carry on any such business specified in the announcement of importation, manufacture, storage, mining or distribution of any necessities as set forth in such announcement, unless he shall secure and hold a license issued pursuant to this section. The president is authorized to issue such licenses and to prescribe regulations for the issuance of licenses and requirements for systems of accounts and auditing of accounts to be kept by licensees, submission of reports by them, with or without oath or affirmation, and the entry and inspection by the president's duly authorized agents of the places of business of licensees. Whenever the president shall find that any storage charge, commission, profit or practice of any licensee is unjust or unreasonable, or discriminatory and unfair, or wasteful, and shall order such licensee, within a reasonable time fixed in the order, to discontinue the same, unless such order, which shall recite the facts found, is revoked or suspended, such licensee shall, within the time prescribed in the order, discontinue such unjust, unreasonable, discriminatory and unfair storage charge, commission, profit or practice. The president may, in lieu of any such unjust, unreasonable, discriminatory and unfair storage charge, commission, profit or practice, find what is a just, reasonable, nondiscriminatory and fair storage charge, commission, profit or practice, and in any proceeding brought in any court such order of the president shall be prima facie evidence. Any person who, without a license issued pursuant to this section, or whose license shall have been revoked, knowingly engages in or carries on any business for which a license is required under this section, or willfully fails or refuses to discontinue any unjust, unreasonable, discriminatory and unfair storage charge, commission, profit or practice, in accordance with the requirement of an order issued under this section, or any regulation prescribed under this section, shall, upon conviction thereof, be punished by a fine not exceeding $5,000, or by imprisonment for not more than two years, or both: Provided, That this section shall not apply to any farmer, gardener, co-operative association of farmers or gardeners, including live stock farmers, or other persons with respect to the products of any farm, garden or other land owned, leased or cultivated by him, nor to any retailer with respect to the retail business actually conducted by him, nor to any common carrier, nor shall anything in this section be construed to authorize the fixing or imposition of a duty or tax upon any article imported into or exported from the United States or any state, territory or the District of Columbia: Provided further, That for the purposes of this act a retailer shall be deemed to be a person, co-partnership, firm, corporation or association not engaging in the wholesale business whose gross sales do not exceed $100,000 per annum.

RESTRICTIONS OF NECESSARIES.

Sec. 6. That any person who willfully hoards any necessities shall upon conviction thereof be fined not exceeding $5,000, or be imprisoned for not more than two years, or both. Necessaries shall be deemed to be hoarded within the meaning of this act when either (a) held, contracted for or arranged for by any person in a quantity in excess of his reasonable requirement for use or consumption by himself and dependents for a reasonable time; (b) held, contracted for or arranged for by any manufacturer, wholesaler, retailer or other dealer in a quantity in excess of the reasonable requirements of his business for use or sale by him for a reasonable time, or reasonably required to furnish necessities produced in surplus quantities seasonally throughout the period of scant or no production; or (c) withheld whether by possession or under any contract or arrangement, from the market by any person for the purpose of unreasonably increasing or diminishing the price: Provided, That this section shall not include or relate to transactions on any exchange, board of trade or similar institution or place of business as described in section 13 of this act that may be permitted by the president under the authority conferred upon him by said section 13: Provided, however, That any accumulating or withholding by any farmer or gardener, co-operative association of farmers or gardeners, including live stock farmers, or any other person, of the products of any farm, garden or other land owned, leased or cultivated by him shall not be deemed to be hoarding within the meaning of this act.

Sec. 7. That whenever any necessities shall be hoarded as defined in section 6 they shall be liable to be proceeded against in any District court of the United States within the district where the same are found and seized by a process of libel for condemnation, and if such necessities shall be adjudged to be hoarded they shall be disposed of by sale in such manner as to provide the most equitable distribution thereof, as the court may direct, and the proceeds thereof, less the legal costs and charges, shall be paid to the party entitled thereto. The proceedings of such libel cases shall conform as near as may be to the proceedings in admiralty, except that either party may demand trial by jury of any issue of fact joined in any such case, and all such proceedings shall be at the suit of and in the name of the United States. It shall be the duty of the United States attorney for the proper district to institute and prosecute any such action upon presentation to him of satisfactory evidence to sustain the same.

Sec. 8. That any person who willfully destroys any necessities for the purpose of enhancing the price or restricting the supply thereof shall, upon conviction thereof, be fined not exceeding $5,000, or imprisoned for not more than two years, or both.

Sec. 9. That any person who conspires, combines, agrees or arranges with any other person (a) to limit the facilities for transporting, producing, manufacturing, supplying, storing or dealing in any necessities; (b) to restrict the supply of any necessities; (c) to restrict the distribution of any necessities; (d) to prevent, limit or lessen the manufacture or production of any necessities in order to enhance the price thereof, shall, upon conviction thereof, be fined not exceeding $10,000, or be imprisoned for not more than two years, or both.

SUPPLIES FOR ARMY AND NAVY.

Sec. 10. That the president is authorized, from time to time, to requisition foods, feeds, fuels and other supplies necessary to the support of the army or the maintenance of the navy or any other public use connected with the common defense, and to requisition or otherwise provide, storage facilities for such supplies; and he shall ascertain and pay a just compensation therefor. If the compensation so determined be not satisfactory to the person entitled to receive the same, such person shall be paid 75 per cent of the amount so determined by the president, and shall be entitled to sue the United States to recover such further sum as, added to said 75 per cent, will make up such amount as will be just compensation for such necessities or storage space, and jurisdiction is hereby conferred on the United States District courts to hear and determine all such controversies: Provided, That nothing in this section, or in the section that follows, shall be construed to require any natural person to furnish to the government any necessities held by him and reasonably required for consumption or use by himself and dependents, nor shall any person, firm, corporation or association be required to furnish to the government any seed necessary for the seeding of land owned, leased or cultivated by them.

Sec. 11. That the president is authorized, from time to time, to purchase, to store, to provide storage facilities for, and to sell for cash at reasonable prices, wheat, flour, meal, beans and potatoes: Provided, That if any minimum price shall have been theretofore fixed, pursuant to the provisions of section 14 of this act, then the price paid for any such articles so purchased shall not be less than such minimum price. Any moneys received by the United States from or in connection with the disposal by the United States of necessities under this section may, in the discretion of the president, be used as a revolving fund for further carrying out the purposes of this section. Any balance of such moneys not used as part of such revolving fund shall be covered into the treasury as miscellaneous receipts.

Sec. 12. That whenever the president shall find it necessary to secure an adequate supply of necessities for the support of the army or the maintenance of the navy, or for any other public use connected with the common defense, he is authorized to requisition and take over, for use or operation by the government, any factory, packing house, oil pipe line, mine or other plant, or any part thereof, or through which any necessities are or may be manufactured, produced, prepared or mined, and to operate the same. Whenever the president shall determine that the further use or operation by the government of any such factory, mine or plant, or part thereof, is not essential for the national security or defense, the same shall be restored to the person entitled to the possession thereof. The United States shall make just compensation, to be determined by the president, for the taking over, use, occupation and operation by the government of any such factory, mine or plant, or any part thereof. If the compensation so determined be unsatisfactory to the person entitled to receive the same, such person shall be paid 75 per cent of the amount so determined by the president, and shall be entitled to sue the United States to recover such further sum as, added to said 75 per cent, will make up such amount as will be just compensation, in the manner provided by section 24, paragraph 20 and section 145 of the judicial code. The president is authorized to prescribe such regulations as he may deem essential for carrying out the purposes of this section, including the operation of any such factory, mine or plant, or part thereof, the purchase, sale or other disposition of articles used, manufactured, produced, prepared or mined therein, and the employment, control and compensation of employees. Any moneys received by the United States from or in connection with the use or operation of any such factory, mine or plant, or part thereof, may in the discretion of the president, be used as a revolving fund for the purpose of the continued use or operation of any such factory, mine or plant, or part thereof, and the accounts of each such factory, mine, plant or part thereof shall be kept separate and distinct. Any balance of such moneys not used as part of such revolving fund shall be paid into the treasury as miscellaneous receipts.

REGULATION OF EXCHANGES.

Sec. 13. That whenever the president finds it essential in order to prevent undue enhancement, depression or fluctuation of prices of, or in order to prevent injurious speculation in, or in order to prevent unjust market manipulation or unfair and misleading market quotations of the prices of necessities, hereafter in this section called evil practices, he is authorized to prescribe such regulations governing, or may either wholly or partly prohibit, operations, practices and transactions at, on, in, or under the rules of any exchange, board of trade or similar institution or place of business as he may find essential in order to prevent, correct or remove such evil practices. Such regulations may require all persons coming within their provisions to keep such records and statements of account and may require such persons to make such returns, verified under oath or otherwise, as will fully and correctly disclose all transactions at, in, or on, or under the rules of any such exchange, board of trade or similar institution or place of business, including the making, execution, settlement and fulfillment thereof. He may also require all persons acting in the capacity of a clearing house, clearing association or similar institution for the purpose of clearing, settling or adjusting transactions at, in, or on, or under the rules of any such exchange, board of trade or similar institution or place of business, to keep such records and to make such returns as will fully and correctly disclose all facts in their possession relating to such transactions, and he may appoint agents to conduct the investigations necessary to enforce the provisions of this section and all rules and regulations made by him in pursuance thereof, and may fix and may the compensation of such agents. Any person who willfully violates any regulation made pursuant to this section, or who knowingly engages in any operation, practice or transaction prohibited pursuant to this section, or who willfully aids or abets any such violation or any such prohibited operation, practice or transaction, shall, upon conviction thereof, be punished by a fine not exceeding $10,000, or by imprisonment for not more than four years, or both.

PRODUCTION AND PRICE OF WHEAT.

Sec. 14. That whenever the president shall find that an emergency exists requiring stimulation of the production of wheat and that it is essential that the producers of wheat, produced within the United States, shall have the benefits of the guaranty provided for in this section, he is authorized, from time to time, seasonably and as far in advance of seeding time as practicable, to determine and fix and to give public notice of what, under specified conditions, is a reasonable guaranteed price for wheat, in order to assure such producers a reasonable profit. The president shall thereupon fix such guaranteed price for each of the official grain standards for wheat as established under the United States grain standards act, approved Aug. 11, 1916.

The president shall from time to time establish and promulgate such regulations as he shall deem wise in connection with such guaranteed prices, and in particular governing conditions of delivery and payment, and differences in price for the several standard grades in the principal primary markets of the United States, adopting No. 1 northern spring or its equivalent at the principal interior primary markets as the basis. Thereupon the government of the United States hereby guarantees every producer of wheat produced within the United States that, upon compliance by him with the regulations prescribed, he shall receive for any wheat produced in reliance upon this guaranty within the period, not exceeding eighteen months, prescribed in the notice, a price not less than the guaranteed price therefor as fixed pursuant to this section. In such regulations the president shall prescribe the terms and conditions upon which any such producer shall be entitled to the benefits of such guaranty. The guaranteed prices for the several standard grades of wheat for the crop of 1918 shall be based upon No. 1 northern spring or its equivalent at not less than $2 per bushel at the principal interior primary markets. This guaranty shall not be dependent upon the action of the president under the first part of this section, but is hereby made absolute and shall be binding until May 1, 1919. When the president finds that the importation into the United States of any wheat produced outside of the United States materially enhances or is likely materially to enhance the liabilities of the United States under guaranties of prices thereof made pursuant to this section, and ascertains what rate of duty, added to the then existing rate of duty on wheat and to the value of wheat at the time of importation, would be sufficient to bring the price thereof at which imported up to the price fixed therefor pursuant to the foregoing provisions of this section, he shall proclaim such facts, and thereafter there shall be levied, collected and paid upon wheat when imported, in addition to the then existing rate of duty, the rate of duty so ascertained; but in no case shall any such rate of duty be fixed at an amount which will effect a reduction of the rate of duty upon wheat under any then existing tariff law of the United States. For the purpose of making any guaranteed price effective under this section, or whenever he deems it essential in order to protect the government of the United States against material enhancement of its liabilities arising out of any guaranty under this section, the president is authorized also, in his discretion, to purchase any wheat for which a guaranteed price shall be fixed under this section, and to hold, transport or store it, or to sell, dispose of and deliver the same to any citizen of the United States or to any government engaged in war with any country with which the government of the United States is or may be at war or to use the same as supplies for any department or agency of the government of the United States. Any moneys received by the United States from or in connection with the sale or disposal of wheat under this section may, in the discretion of the president, be used as a revolving fund for further carrying out the purposes of this section. Any balance of such moneys not used as part of such revolving fund shall be covered into the treasury as miscellaneous receipts.

DISTILLED SPIRITS.

Sec. 15. That from and after thirty days from the date of the approval of this act no foods, fruits, food materials or feeds shall be used in the production of distilled spirits for beverage purposes: Provided, That under such rules, regulations and bonds as the president may prescribe such materials may be used in the production of distilled spirits exclusively for other than beverage purposes, or for the fortification of pure sweet wines as defined by the act entitled "An act to increase the revenue, and for other purposes," approved Sept.

8, 1916. Nor shall there be imported into the United States any distilled spirits. Whenever the president shall find that limitation, regulation or prohibition of the use of foods, fruits, food materials or feeds in the production of malt or vinous liquors for beverage purposes, or that reduction of the alcoholic content of any such malt or vinous liquor, is essential in order to assure an adequate and continuous supply of food, or that the national security and defense will be subserved thereby, he is authorized, from time to time, to prescribe and give public notice of the extent of the limitation, regulation, prohibition or reduction so necessitated. Whenever such notice shall have been given and shall remain unrevoked no person shall, after a reasonable time prescribed in such notice, use any foods, fruits, food materials or feeds in the production of malt or vinous liquors, or import any such liquors except under license issued by the president and in compliance with rules and regulations determined by him governing the production and importation of such liquors and the alcoholic content thereof. Any person who willfully violates the provisions of this section or who shall use any foods, fruits, food materials or feeds in the production of malt or vinous liquors, or who shall import any such liquors, without first obtaining a license so to do when a license is required under this section, or who shall violate any rule or regulation made under this section, shall be punished by a fine not exceeding $5,000 or by imprisonment for not more than two years, or both: Provided further, That nothing in this section shall be construed to authorize the licensing of the manufacture of vinous or malt liquors in any state, territory or the District of Columbia, or any civil subdivision thereof, where the manufacture of such vinous or malt liquor is prohibited.

Sec. 16. That the president is authorized and directed to commandeer any or all distilled spirits in bond or in stock at the date of the approval of this act for redistillation, in so far as such redistillation may be necessary to meet the requirements of the government in the manufacture of munitions and other military and hospital supplies, or in so far as such redistillation would dispense with the necessity of utilizing products and materials suitable for foods and feeds in the future manufacture of distilled spirits for the purposes herein enumerated. The president shall determine and pay a just compensation for the distilled spirits so commandeered; and if the compensation so determined be not satisfactory to the person entitled to receive the same, such person shall be paid 75 per cent of the amount so determined by the president and shall be entitled to sue the United States to recover such further sum as, added to said 75 per cent, will make up such amount as will be just compensation for such spirits, in the manner provided by section 24, paragraph 20 and section 145 of the judicial code.

Sec. 17. That every person who willfully assaults, resists, impedes or interferes with any officer, employee or agent of the United States in the execution of any duty authorized to be performed by or pursuant to this act shall upon conviction thereof be fined not exceeding $1,000 or be imprisoned for not more than one year, or both.

Sec. 18. That the sum of $2,500,000 is hereby appropriated, out of any moneys in the treasury not otherwise appropriated, to be available until June 30, 1918, for the payment of such rent, the expense, including postage, of such printing and publications, the purchase of such material and equipment, and the employment of such persons and means, in the city of Washington and elsewhere, as the president may deem essential.

Sec. 19. That for the purposes of this act the sum of $150,000,000 is hereby appropriated, out of any moneys in the treasury not otherwise appropriated, to be available during the time this act is in effect: Provided, That no part of this appropriation shall be expended for the purposes described in the preceding section: Provided further, That itemized statements covering all purchases and disbursements under this and the preceding section shall be filed with the secretary of the senate and the clerk of the house of representatives on or before the 25th day of each month after the taking effect of this act, covering the business of the preceding month, and said statements shall be subject to public inspection.

Sec. 20. That the employment of any person under the provisions of this act shall not exempt any such person from military service under the provisions of the selective draft law approved May 13, 1917.

Sec. 21. That the president shall cause a detailed report to be made to the congress on the 1st day of January each year of all proceedings had under this act during the year preceding. Such report shall, in addition to other matters, contain an account of all persons appointed or employed, the salary or compensation paid or allowed each, the aggregate amount of the different kinds of property purchased or requisitioned, the use and disposition made of such property, and a statement of all receipts, payments and expenditures, together with a statement showing the general character and estimated value of all property then on hand, and the aggregate amount and character of all claims against the United States growing out of this act.

Sec. 22. That if any clause, sentence, paragraph or part of this act shall for any reason be adjudged by any court of competent jurisdiction to be invalid, such judgment shall not affect, impair or invalidate the remainder thereof, but shall be confined in its operation to the clause, sentence, paragraph or part thereof directly involved in the controversy in which such judgment shall have been rendered.

Sec. 23. That words used in this act shall be construed to import the plural or the singular, as the case demands. The word "person," wherever used in this act, shall include individuals, partnerships, associations and corporations. When construing and enforcing the provisions of this act the act, omission or failure of any official, agent or other person acting for or employed by any partnership, association or corporation within the scope of his employment or office shall, in every case, also be deemed the act, omission or failure of such partnership, association or corporation as well as that of the person.

Sec. 24. That the provisions of this act shall cease to be in effect when the existing state of war between the United States and Germany shall have terminated, and the fact and date of such termination shall be ascertained and proclaimed by the president; but the termination of this act shall not affect any act done, or any right or obligation accruing or accrued, or any suit or proceeding had or commenced in any civil case before the said termination pursuant to this act; but all rights and liabilities under this act arising before its termination shall continue and may be enforced in the same manner as if the act had not terminated. Any offense committed and all penalties, forfeitures or liabilities incurred prior to such termination may be prosecuted or punished in the same manner and with the same effect as if this act had not been terminated.

COAL AND COKE.

Sec. 25. That the president of the United States shall be, and he is hereby, authorized and empowered, whenever and wherever in his judgment necessary for the efficient prosecution of the war, to fix the price of coal and coke, wherever and whenever sold, either by producer or dealer, to establish rules for the regulation of and to regulate the method of production, sale, shipment, distribution, apportionment or storage thereof among dealers and consumers, domestic or foreign; said authority and power may be exercised by him in each case through the agency of the federal trade commission, during the war or for such part of said time as in his judgment may be necessary.

That if, in the opinion of the president, any such producer or dealer fails or neglects to conform to such prices or regulations, or to conduct his business efficiently under the regulations and control of the president as aforesaid, or conducts it in a manner prejudicial to the public interest, then the president is hereby authorized and empowered in every such case to requisition and take over the plant, business and all appurtenances thereof belonging to such producer or dealer as a going concern, and to operate or cause the same to be operated in such manner and through such agency as he may direct during the period of the war or for such part of said time as in his judgment may be necessary.

That any producer or dealer whose plant, business and appurtenances shall have been requisitioned or taken over by the president shall be paid a just compensation for the use thereof during the period that the same may be requisitioned or taken over as aforesaid, which compensation the president shall fix or cause to be fixed by the federal trade commission.

That if the prices so fixed, or if, in the case of the taking over or requisitioning of the mines or business of any such producer or dealer, the compensation therefor as determined by the provisions of this act be not satisfactory to the person or persons entitled to receive the same, such person shall be paid 75 per cent of the amount so determined, and shall be entitled to sue the United States to recover such further sum as, added to said 75 per cent, will make up such amount as will be just compensation in the manner provided by section 24, paragraph 20, and section 145 of the judicial code.

While operating or causing to be operated any such plants or business, the president is authorized to prescribe such regulations as he may deem essential for the employment, control and compensation of the employees necessary to conduct the same.

Or if the president of the United States shall be of the opinion that he can thereby better provide for the common defense, and whenever, in his judgment, it shall be necessary for the efficient prosecution of the war, then he is hereby authorized and empowered to require any or all producers of coal and coke, either in any special area or in any special coal fields, or in the entire United States, to sell their products only to the United States through an agency to be designated by the president, such agency to regulate the resale of such coal and coke, and the prices thereof, and to establish rules for the regulation of and to regulate the methods of production, shipment, distribution, apportionment or storage thereof among dealers, consumers, domestic or foreign, and to make payment of the purchase price thereof to the producers thereof, or to the person or persons legally entitled to said payment.

That within 15 days after notice from the agency so designated to any producer of coal and coke that his, or its, output is to be so purchased by the United States as hereinbefore described, such producer shall cause shipments of said product upon his own account and shall transmit to such agency all orders received and unfilled or partially unfilled, showing the exact extent to which shipments have been made thereon, and thereafter all shipments shall be made only on authority of the agency designated by the president, and thereafter no such producer shall sell any of said products except to the United States through such agency, and the said agency alone is hereby authorized and empowered to purchase during the continuance of the requirement the output of such producers.

That the prices to be paid for such products so purchased shall be based upon a fair and just profit over and above the cost of production, including proper maintenance and depletion charges, the reasonableness of such profits and cost of production to be determined by the federal trade commission, and if the prices fixed by the said commission of any such product purchased by the United States as hereinbefore described be unsatisfactory to the person or persons entitled to receive the same, such person or persons shall be paid 75 per cent of the amount so determined and shall be entitled to sue the United States to recover such further sum as added to said 75 per cent will make up such amount as will be just compensation in the manner provided by section 24, paragraph 20, and section 145 of the judicial code. All such products so sold to the United States shall be sold by the United States at such uniform prices quality considered, as may be practicable and as may be determined by said agency to be just and fair.

Any moneys received by the United States for the sale of any such coal and coke may, in the discretion of the president, be used as a revolving fund for further carrying out the purposes of this section. Any moneys not so used shall be covered into the treasury as miscellaneous receipts.

That when directed by the president the federal trade commission is hereby required to proceed to make full inquiry, giving such notice as it may deem practicable, into the cost of producing and reasonably efficient management at the various places of production the following commodities, to-wit: Coal and coke.

The books, correspondence, records and papers in any way referring to transactions of any kind relating to the mining, production, sale or distribution of all mine operators or other persons whose coal and coke have or may become subject to this section, and the books, correspondence, records and papers of any person applying for the purchase of coal and coke from the United States shall at all times be subject to inspection by the said agency, and such person or persons shall promptly furnish said agency any data or information relating to the business of such person or persons which said agency may call for, and said agency is hereby authorized to procure the information in reference to the business of such coal-mine operators and producers of coke and customers therefor in the manner provided for in sections 6 and 9 of the act of congress approved Sept. 26, 1914, entitled "An act to create a federal trade commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes," and said agency is hereby authorized and empowered to exercise all the powers granted to the federal trade commission by said act for the carrying out of the purposes of this section.

Having completed its inquiry respecting any commodity in any locality it shall, if the president has decided to fix the prices at which any such commodity shall be sold by producers and dealers generally, fix and publish maximum prices for both producers of and dealers in any such commodity, which maximum prices shall be observed by all producers and dealers until further action thereon is taken by the commission.

In fixing maximum prices for producers the commission shall allow the cost of production, including the expense of operation, maintenance, depreciation and depletion, and shall add thereto a just and reasonable profit.

In fixing such prices for dealers the commission shall allow the cost to the dealer and shall add thereto a just and reasonable sum for his profit in the transaction.

The maximum prices so fixed and published shall not be construed as invalidating any contract in which prices are fixed, made in good faith, prior to the establishment and publication of maximum prices by the commission.

Whoever shall, with knowledge that the prices of any such commodity have been fixed as herein provided, ask, demand or receive a higher price, or whoever shall, with knowledge that the regulation have been prescribed as herein provided, violate or refuse to conform to any of the same, shall, upon conviction, be punished by a fine of not more than $5,000 or by imprisonment for not more than two years, or both. Each independent transaction shall constitute a separate offense.

Nothing in this section shall be construed as restricting or modifying in any manner the right the government of the United States may have in its own behalf or in behalf of any other government at war with Germany to purchase, requisition or take over any such commodities for the equipment, maintenance or support of armed forces at any price or upon any terms that may be agreed upon or otherwise lawfully determined.

PENALTIES.

Sec. 26. That any person carrying on or employed in commerce among the several states, or with foreign nations, or with or in the territories or other possessions of the United States in any article suitable for human food, fuel or other necessities of life, who, either in his individual capacity or as an officer, agent or employee of a corporation or member of a partnership carrying on or employed in such trade, shall store, acquire or hold, or who shall destroy or make away with any such article for the purpose of limiting the supply thereof to the public or affecting the market price thereof in such commerce, whether temporarily or otherwise, shall be deemed guilty of a felony and, upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by a fine of not more than $5,000, or by imprisonment for not more than two years, or both. Provided, That any storing or holding by any farmer, gardener or other person of the products of any farm, garden or other land cultivated by him shall not be deemed to be a storing or holding within the meaning of this act: Provided further, That farmers and fruit growers, co-operative and other exchanges, or societies of a similar character shall not be included within the provisions of this section: Provided further, That this section shall not be construed to prohibit the holding or accumulating of any such article by any such person in a quantity not in excess of the reasonable requirements of his business for a reasonable time or in a quantity reasonably required to furnish said articles produced in surplus quantities seasonally throughout the period of scant or no production. Nothing contained in this section shall be construed to repeal the act entitled "An act to protect trade and commerce against unlawful restraints and monopolies," approved July 2, 1890, commonly known as the Sherman Antitrust act.

USE OF NITRATE OF SODA.

Sec. 27. That the president is authorized to procure, or aid in procuring, such stock of nitrate of soda as he may determine to be necessary and find available for increasing agricultural production during the calendar years 1917-18, and to dispose of the same for cash at cost, including all expenses connected therewith. For carrying out the purposes of this section there is hereby appropriated out of any moneys in the treasury not otherwise appropriated, available immediately and until expended, the sum of $10,000,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, and the president is authorized to make such regulations and to use such means and agencies of the government as, in his discretion, he may deem best. The proceeds arising from the disposition of the nitrate of soda shall go into the treasury as miscellaneous receipts. (Approved Aug. 10, 1917.)

FEDERAL RESERVE ACT AMENDED.

The federal reserve act of Dec. 23, 1913, as amended Aug. 3, 1914, Aug. 15, 1914, March 3, 1915, and Sept. 7, 1916, was further amended by an act approved June 21, 1917. Following is a synopsis prepared by the federal reserve board of the changes made in the law by the act of June 21, 1917:

Section 3 of the federal reserve act is amended so as to authorize the board to permit or require federal reserve banks to establish branch banks within its district and provides that the number of directors of such branches shall at the option of the board be not more than seven nor less than three.

Section 4 is amended so as to provide for the appointment of assistants to the federal reserve agent who shall have power to act in his name and stand during his absence or disability. The office of deputy federal reserve agent formerly held by one of the class C directors is abolished.

Section 9 relating to the admission of state banks and trust companies to the federal reserve system is amended so as to provide that, subject to the provisions of the federal reserve act and to the regulations of the board made pursuant thereto, any state bank or trust company which becomes a member of the federal reserve system shall retain its full charter and statutory rights and may continue to exercise all corporate powers granted to it by the state in which it was created and shall be entitled to all the privileges of member banks: Provided, however, That no federal reserve bank may discount for such a member bank any note, draft or bill of exchange of any one borrower who is liable to the member bank for more than 10 per cent of its capital and surplus.

State banks and trust companies which are member banks are made subject to examinations made by direction of the federal reserve board or of the federal reserve bank by examiners selected or approved by the federal reserve board. Examinations by state authorities when approved by the directors of the federal reserve bank may be accepted in lieu of examinations by examiners approved by the federal reserve board. Reports of condition and of payments of dividends must be made to the federal reserve bank instead of the comptroller of the currency as in the past. State banks and trust companies which have become member banks are authorized to withdraw from the federal reserve system after six months' written notice.

Section 13 is amended so as to authorize federal reserve banks, solely for purposes of exchange or of collection, to receive deposits of currency, checks, drafts and maturing notes or bills from any nonmember bank or trust company which maintains with the federal reserve bank a balance sufficient to offset the items in transit held for its account by the federal reserve bank. This section also authorizes any member bank to make reasonable charges to be determined and regulated by the federal reserve board, but in no case to exceed 10 cents per $100 or fraction thereof, for the collection or payment of checks and drafts and remission therefor by exchange or otherwise. Federal reserve banks, however, are not subject to these charges.

Section 13 is further amended so as to authorize the federal reserve board to permit member banks to accept drafts and bills of exchange drawn against shipments of goods or against warehouse receipts covering readily marketable staples up to 100 per cent of the capital and surplus of the accepting bank.

Section 14, subsection (e), is amended so as to authorize the federal reserve board to give its consent to or require reserve banks to open and maintain accounts in foreign countries, etc., and also to provide for participation accounts.

Section 16 is amended so as to authorize the issue of federal reserve notes upon the security of gold or gold certificates and so as to provide that gold or gold certificates held by the federal reserve agent as collateral security shall be counted as part of the gold reserve which the federal reserve bank is required to maintain against its notes in actual circulation. This section is amended also to authorize the issue of federal reserve notes on the security of the fifteen day notes of member banks secured by eligible commercial paper or by bonds or notes of the United States.

Section 16 is amended so as to authorize the treasurer or any assistant treasurer of the United States to receive deposits of gold or gold certificates when tendered by any federal reserve bank or federal reserve agent for credit to its or his account with the federal reserve board.

Section 17 is amended so as to repeal any provision of law requiring any national bank to maintain a minimum deposit of bonds with the treasurer of the United States.

Section 19 is amended so as to provide for an immediate transfer of all reserves to federal reserve banks. Under this section, as amended, the total amount of reserves to be maintained by a member bank must be carried with the federal reserve bank of its district. The amount of these reserves is as follows:

	Demand deposits, Per cent.	Time deposits, Per cent.
Country banks.....	7	3
Reserve city banks.....	10	3
Central reserve city banks.....	13	3

Member banks are no longer required to maintain any reserves in their own vaults.

Section 22, relating to the salaries or fees paid to officers, directors or employees of member banks, is amended by the addition of provisos to the effect that directors, officers, employees or attorneys shall not be prohibited from receiving the same rates of interest paid to other depositors of the bank, and that notes, drafts, bills or other evidences of debt executed or indorsed by directors or attorneys of the bank may be discounted with such bank on the same terms and conditions as other notes, drafts or bills, or other evidences of debt, upon the affirmative vote or written assent of a majority of the members of the board of directors of such member bank.

AVIATION SERVICE.

An act to authorize the president to increase temporarily the signal corps of the army and to purchase, manufacture, maintain, repair and operate airships, and to make appropriations therefor, and for other purposes.

Be it enacted, etc., That for and during the existing emergency the president be and is hereby authorized to increase the present authorized commissioned and enlisted strength of the signal corps of the army, including the aviation section thereof.

Sec. 2. That to provide the additional commissioned personnel required by this act the president is authorized to promote, appoint, detail or attach as temporary officers in the signal corps, including the aviation section thereof, officers of the regular army, national army or national guard, or the officers' reserve corps, or to the men of the enlisted reserve corps or persons from civil life: Provided, That no person shall be so promoted, appointed, detailed or attached until he shall have been found physically, mentally and morally qualified under regulations prescribed by the secretary of war: Provided further, That officers with rank not above that of colonel shall be appointed and commissioned by the president alone, irrespective of the rank or grade held by them on the date of the passage of this act, and that officers above the grade of colonel shall be appointed by the president, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, irrespective of the grade or rank held by them on the date of the passage of this act.

Sec. 3. That to provide the additional men required by this act the president is authorized to raise and maintain, by voluntary enlistment or draft, such number of enlisted men as he may deem necessary and to embody them into organizations hereinafter provided for in section 4: Provided, That the draft herein provided for shall not apply to any person under the age of 21 years or to any person above the age of 31 years: Provided further, That the grades of chauffeur, first class, and chauffeur are hereby created in the signal corps. The pay and allowances of a chauffeur, first class, shall be the same as a sergeant, first class, in the signal corps. Pay and allowances of a chauffeur shall be the same as a sergeant in the signal corps. All chauffeurs while serving as such shall rank with corporals of the signal corps and shall be subject to promotion and reduction to any other grade now authorized in the signal corps.

Sec. 4. That the president is hereby authorized to appropriately officer and organize the personnel of the signal corps into such number of divisions, brigades, regiments, wings, squadrons, battalions, companies and flights as may be necessary, and to increase or decrease the number of organizations prescribed for the divisions, brigades, regiments, wings, squadrons, battalions, companies and flights, and to prescribe such new and different organizations and personnel for divisions, brigades, regiments, wings, squadrons, battalions, companies and flights as the efficiency of the service may require.

The president is further authorized to organize such headquarters and headquarters detachments for divisions, brigades, regiments, wings, squadrons, battalions, companies and flights as may be necessary, and to prescribe new and different organizations for such headquarters and headquarters detachments whenever the efficiency of the service may require.

Sec. 5. That the president, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, is authorized to appoint for the period of the existing emergency such general officers of appropriate grades as may be necessary for staff duty and for duty with such brigades and divisions of the troops of the signal corps, including the aviation section thereof, as may be organized by the president.

Vacancies in all grades of the regular army, national army or national guard resulting from the temporary appointment of officers thereof to higher grades shall be filled or vacated as provided for in sections 8 and 9 of the act authorizing the president to increase temporarily the military establishment of the United States and approved May 18, 1917.

Sec. 6. That officers detailed in or attached to the aviation section of the signal corps may, when qualified therefor, be rated as junior military aviators, military aviators, junior military aeronauts and military aeronauts, but no person shall be so rated until there shall have been issued to him a certificate to the effect that he is qualified for the rating, and no certificate shall be issued to any person until an examining board, which shall be composed of two officers of experience of the aviation section of the signal corps and one medical officer, shall have examined him under general regulations to be prescribed by the secretary of war and published to the army by the war department, and shall have reported him to be qualified for the rating. No person shall receive the rating of military aviator or military aeronaut until he shall have served creditably for three years as an aviation officer with the rating of a junior military aviator or the rating of a junior military aeronaut, except that in time of war any officer or enlisted man who specially distinguishes himself in active service may, upon recommendation of the chief signal officer of the army, be rated as a junior military aviator, military aviator, junior military aeronaut or military aeronaut without regard to examination or to length of service: Provided, That junior military aeronauts and military aeronauts shall be entitled to the same increase in rank and pay as are now authorized by law for junior military aviators and military aviators, respectively: Provided further, That any officer attached to the aviation section of the signal corps for any military duty requiring him to make regular and frequent flights shall receive an increase of 25 per centum of the pay of his grade and length of service under his commission.

Sec. 7. That the secretary of war is authorized from time to time to cause such number of the enlisted men of the aviation section of the signal corps above the grade of corporal as he may deem necessary to be rated as aviation mechanics or as balloon mechanics in the manner now prescribed by law; Provided, That balloon mechanics shall receive the same increase of pay as now prescribed by law for aviation mechanics.

Sec. 8. That all officers and enlisted men of the temporary forces of the signal corps, including the aviation section thereof provided for herein, shall be in all respects on the same footing as to pay, allowances and pensions as permanent officers and enlisted men of corresponding grades and length of service in the regular army; Provided, That nothing in this act shall operate to decrease the present authorized strength of the regular army or national army heretofore authorized by law.

Sec. 9. That during the existing emergency authority is hereby given to the president, through the war department, for the purchase, manufacture, maintenance, repair and operation of airships or other aerial machines, including instruments and appliances of every sort and description necessary for the operation, construction or equipment of all types of aircraft, including guns, armament, ammunition and all necessary spare parts and equipment connected therewith, and all necessary buildings for equipment and personnel in the aviation section and for the purchase, maintenance, repair and operation, through the chief signal officer of the army, of all motor propelled passenger and equipment carrying vehicles which may be necessary for the aviation section of the signal corps.

And during the existing emergency authority is hereby further given for the establishment, equipment, maintenance and operation of aviation stations, including (a) the acquisition of land, or any interest in land, with any buildings and improvements thereon, by purchase, lease, donation, condemnation or otherwise; Provided, That by order of the president any unappropriated or reserved public lands may be reserved from entry, designated and used for such aviation stations; (b) the improvement of such land by clearing, grading, draining, seeding and otherwise making the same suitable for the purpose intended; (c) the construction, maintenance and repair of permanent or temporary barracks, quarters, hospitals, messhouses, administration, instructional and recreational buildings, hangars, magazines, storehouses, sheds, shops, garages, bombhouses, docks, radio stations, laboratories, observation stations and all other buildings and structures necessary or advisable; (d) procuring and introducing water, electric light and power, telephones, telegraph and sewerage to aviation stations and buildings and structures thereon by the extension of existing systems or the creation of new systems and their maintenance, operation and repair, installation of plumbing, electric fixtures and telephones, fire apparatus and alarm systems and the maintenance, operation and repair of all such systems, fixtures and apparatus; (e) construction and repair of roads, walks, sea walls, breakwaters, bridges and wharves, dredging, filling and otherwise improving land and water sites; (f) purchase of stoves and other cooking and heating apparatus, kitchen and tableware, and furniture and equipment for kitchens, mess halls, officers' quarters, barracks, hospitals and other buildings, screens, lockers, refrigerators and all other necessary equipment; (g) purchase of gasoline, oil, fuel and all supplies of every kind and character necessary or advisable for maintenance and operation of aviation stations, including electric light and power, telephones, water supply and sewerage service; (h) purchase and manufacture and installation of all kinds of machinery, tools, material, supplies and equipment for construction, maintenance and repair of aircraft, buildings and improvements at aviation stations, or property or appliances used in connection with aviation.

And also for the purchase or manufacture and issue of special clothing, wearing apparel and similar equipment for aviation purposes.

And also for the actual and necessary expenses of officers, enlisted men and civilian employees of the army and authorized agents sent on special duty at home and abroad for aviation purposes, including observation and investigation of foreign military operations and organization, manufacture of aircraft and engines, also special courses in foreign aviation schools and manufacturing establishments, to be paid upon certificates of the secretary of war certifying that the expenditures were necessary for military purposes.

And also for vocational training, including employment of necessary civilian instructors in important trades related to aviation, purchase of tools, equipment, materials and machines required for such training, purchase of text books, books of reference, scientific and professional papers, periodicals and magazines, and instruments and material for theoretical and practical instruction at aviation schools and stations, and all other means to carry out the provisions of section 27 of the act approved June 3, 1916, authorizing, in addition to the military training of soldiers while in active service, means for securing educational and vocational training of a character to increase their military efficiency and enable them to return to civil life better equipped for industrial, commercial and general business occupations.

And also to pay and otherwise provide for such officers of the officers' reserve corps of the aviation section of the signal corps and such enlisted men of the enlisted reserve corps of the aviation section of the signal corps as may be called into active service and such enlisted men as may be enlisted in the aviation section of the signal corps under the provisions of section 2 of the act to increase temporarily the military establishment of the United States, approved May 13, 1917, or any subsequent act temporarily increasing the commissioned or enlisted personnel of the aviation section of the signal corps and such civilian employees as may be necessary, for the payment of their traveling and other necessary expenses when not traveling with troops; Provided, That hereafter all reserve officers and enlisted men of the aviation section of the signal corps shall be paid by quartermaster corps disbursing officers from funds transferred to their credit from signal corps appropriations.

And also for the payment of all expenses in connection with the development of suitable types of aviation engines, airplanes and other aircraft appurtenances, including the cost of sample engines, airplanes and appurtenances, cost of any patents and other rights therein, and costs of investigation, experimentation and research in respect thereto.

And also for the payment of all expenses in connection with the creation, expansion, acquisition and development of plants, factories and establishments for the manufacture of airplanes, aircraft, engines and appurtenances, including provision for the purchase or lease of land with the buildings thereon, construction of permanent or temporary buildings for all purposes, purchase of machinery, tools and employment of operatives, together with all administrative expenses necessary, the purchase and supply of raw and semifinished materials and of fuel and all other things necessary for creating and extending the production of airplanes, aircraft, engines and all appurtenances.

And also for creating, maintaining and operating at technical schools and colleges courses of instruction for aviation students, including cost of instruction, equipment and supplies necessary for instruction and subsistence of students while receiving such instruction.

Provided, That, subject to the approval of the secretary of war, motor propelled vehicles, airplanes, engines, parts thereof and appurtenances may be exchanged in part payment for new equipment of the same or similar character to be used for the same purpose as those proposed to be exchanged.

Provided further, That during the present emergency, officers and enlisted men of foreign armies attached to the aviation section of the signal corps as instructors or inspectors when traveling in the United States on official business pertaining to the aviation section of the signal corps shall be authorized from funds appropriated by this act, the same mileage and transportation allowances as are authorized for officers or enlisted men of the regular army.

Sec. 10. That for the purpose of carrying this act into effect the sum of $640,000,000 is hereby appropriated out of any funds in the treasury not otherwise appropriated, to be available until June 30, 1918. (Approved July 24, 1917.)

AIRCRAFT BOARD.

For the purpose of expanding and co-ordinating the industrial activities relating to aircraft, or parts of aircraft, produced for any purpose in the United States, and to facilitate generally the development of air service a board is created to be known as the aircraft board. The board shall number not more than nine in all and shall include a civilian chairman, the chief signal officer of the army and two other officers of the army to be appointed by the secretary of war; the chief constructor of the navy and two other officers of the navy to be appointed by the secretary of the navy; and two additional civilian members. The chairman and civilian members shall be appointed by the president, by and with the advice and consent of the senate.

The board and tenure of office of the members thereof shall continue during the pleasure of the president, but not longer than six months after the present war. The civilian members of the board shall serve without compensation.

The board is empowered, under the direction and control of and as authorized by the secretary of war and the secretary of the navy, respectively, on behalf of the departments of war and navy, to supervise and direct, in accordance with the requirements prescribed or approved by the respective departments, the purchase, production and manufacture of aircraft, engines, and all ordnance and instruments used in connection therewith, and accessories and materials therefor, including the purchase, lease, acquisition, or construction of plants for the manufacture of aircraft, engines, and accessories: Provided, That the board may make recommendations as to contracts and their distribution in connection with the foregoing, but every contract shall be made by the already constituted authorities of the respective departments.

The board is also empowered to employ, either in the District of Columbia or elsewhere, such clerks and other employees as may be necessary to the conduct of its business, including such technical experts and advisers as may be found necessary, and to fix their salaries. Such salaries shall conform to those usually paid by the government for similar service: Provided, That by unanimous approval of the board higher compensation may be paid to technical experts and advisers. The board may rent suitable offices in the District of Columbia or elsewhere, purchase necessary office equipment and supplies, including scientific publications and printing, and may incur necessary administrative and contingent expenses, and for all of the expenses enumerated in this paragraph there shall be allotted by the chief signal officer of the army for the fiscal year 1917 and 1918 the sum of $100,000, or so much thereof as shall be necessary, from any appropriation now existing for or hereinafter made to the signal corps of the army, and such appropriation is hereby made available for these purposes: Provided further, That except upon the joint and concurrent approval of the secretary of war and the secretary of the navy there shall not be established or maintained under the board any office or organization duplicating or replacing, in whole or in part, any office or organization now existing that can be properly established or maintained by appropriations made for or available for the military or naval services:

Provided further, That a report shall be made to congress on the first day of each regular session of the salaries paid from this appropriation to clerks and employees by grades, and the number in each such grade. (Approved Oct. 1, 1917.)

CAPE MAY AIR STATION.

The secretary of the navy is authorized to acquire at a cost not exceeding $150,000 a tract of land at Cape May, N. J., with an area of approximately fifty-seven acres, to be used as the site of an aviation station for the United States navy. (Approved Oct. 6, 1917.)

ISLAND FOR AVIATION STATIONS.

The president of the United States is authorized to take possession of the whole of North island in the harbor of San Diego, Cal., for use for national defense and in connection therewith as sites for permanent aviation stations for the army and navy and for aviation school purposes. The rights of private parties in the island are to be determined by the federal District court for the southern district of California. (Approved July 27, 1917.)

PREFERENCE IN TRANSPORTATION.

An act to amend the act to regulate commerce, as amended, and for other purposes.

Be it enacted, etc., That section 1 of the act entitled "An act to regulate commerce," approved Feb. 4, 1887, as heretofore amended, be further amended by adding thereto the following:

"That on and after the approval of this act any person or persons who shall, during the war in which the United States is now engaged, knowingly and willfully, by physical force or intimidation by threats of physical force, obstruct or retard, or aid in obstructing or retarding, the orderly conduct or movement in the United States of interstate or foreign commerce, or the orderly makeup or movement or disposition of any train, or the movement or disposition of any locomotive, car or other vehicle on any railroad or elsewhere in the United States engaged in interstate or foreign commerce shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and for every such offense shall be punishable by a fine of not exceeding $100 or by imprisonment for not exceeding six months, or by both such fine and imprisonment; and the president of the United States is hereby authorized, whenever in his judgment the public interest requires, to employ the armed forces of the United States to prevent any such obstruction or retardation of the passage of the mail or of the orderly conduct or movement of interstate or foreign commerce in any part of the United States, or of any train, locomotive, car or other vehicle upon any railroad or elsewhere in the United States engaged in interstate or foreign commerce: Provided, That nothing in this section shall be construed to repeal, modify or affect either section 6 or section 20 of an act entitled 'An act to supplement existing laws against unlawful restraints and monopolies, and for other purposes,' approved Feb. 15, 1914."

"That during the continuance of the war in which the United States is now engaged the president is authorized, if he finds it necessary for the national defense and security, to direct that such traffic or such shipments of commodities as, in his judgment, may be essential to the national defense and security shall have preference or priority in transportation by any common carrier by railroad, water or otherwise. He may give these directions at and for such times as he may determine, and may modify, change, suspend or annul them, and for any such purpose he is hereby authorized to issue orders direct or through such person or persons as he may designate for the purpose or through the interstate commerce commission. Officials of the United States, when so designated, shall receive no compensation for their services rendered hereunder. Persons not in the employ of the United States so designated shall receive such compensation as the president may fix. Suitable offices may be rented and all necessary expenses, including compensation of persons so designated, shall be paid as directed by the president out of funds which may have been or may be provided to meet expenditures for the national security and defense. The common carriers subject to the act to regulate commerce or as many of them as desire so to do are hereby authorized without responsibility or liability on the part of the United States, financial or otherwise, to establish and maintain in the city of Washington during the period of the war an agency empowered by such carriers as join in the arrangement to receive on behalf of them all notice and service of such orders and directions as may be issued in accordance with this act, and service upon such agency shall be good service as to all the carriers joining in the establishment thereof. And it shall be the duty of any and all the officers, agents and employees of such carriers by railroad, or water or otherwise, to obey strictly and conform promptly to such orders, and failure knowingly and willfully to comply therewith, or to do or perform whatever is necessary to the prompt execution of such order, shall render such officers, agents and employees guilty of a misdemeanor, and any such officer, agent or employee shall, upon conviction, be fined not more than $5,000 or imprisoned not more than one year, or both, in the discretion of the court. For the transportation of persons or property in carrying out the orders and directions of the president just and reasonable rates shall be fixed by the interstate commerce commission; and if the transportation be for the government of the United States, it shall be paid for currently or monthly by the secretary of the treasury out of any funds not otherwise appropriated. Any carrier complying with such order or direction for preference or priority herein authorized shall be exempt from any and all provisions in existing law imposing civil or criminal pains and penalties, obligations or liabilities upon carriers by reason of giving preference or priority in compliance with such order or direction." (Approved Aug. 10, 1917.)

WATERWAYS COMMISSION.

Section 18 of the rivers and harbors appropriation act approved Aug. 8, 1917, provides: A commission to be known as the waterways commission, consisting of seven members to be appointed by the president of the United States, at least one of whom shall be chosen from the active or retired list of the engineer corps of the army, at least one of whom shall be an expert hydraulic engineer from civil life, and the remaining five of whom may each be selected either from civil life or the public service, is hereby created and authorized, under such rules and regulations as the president may prescribe, to bring into co-ordination and co-operation the engineering, scientific and constructive services, bureaus, boards, and commissions of the several governmental departments of the United States and commissions created by congress that relate to the study, development or control of waterways and water resources and subjects related thereto, or to the development and regulation of interstate and foreign commerce, with a view to uplifting such services in investigating, with respect to all watersheds in the United States, questions relating to the development, improvement, regulation and control of navigation as a part of interstate and foreign commerce, including therein the related questions of irrigation, drainage, forestry, arid and swamp land reclamation, clarification of streams, regulation of flow, control of floods, utilization of water power, prevention of soil erosion and waste, storage and conservation of water for agricultural, industrial, municipal and domestic uses, co-operation of railways and waterways, and promotion of terminal and transfer facilities, to secure the necessary data and to formulate and report to congress, as early as practicable, a comprehensive plan or plans for the development of waterways and the water resources of the United States for the purposes of navigation and for every useful purpose, and recommendations for the modification or discontinuance of any project herein or heretofore adopted. Any member appointed from the retired list shall receive the same pay and allowances as he would if on the active list, and no member selected from the public service shall receive additional compensation for services on said commission, and members selected from civil life shall receive compensation of $7,500 per annum.

PROTECTION OF DESERT LAND ENTRYMEN.

No desert land entry made by an officer or enlisted man in the army, navy, marine corps or organized militia of the United States shall be subject to contest or cancellation for failure to expend $1 per acre per year in improvements upon such claim during the period he or his successor has interest in the military service of the United States during the present war with Germany. (Approved Aug. 7, 1917.)

RELIEF OF HOMESTEAD ENTRYMEN.

Any settler upon the public lands of the United States; or any entryman whose application has been allowed; or any person who has made application for public lands which thereafter may be allowed under the homestead laws, who, after such settlement, entry or application, enlists or is actually engaged in the military or naval service of the United States as a private soldier, officer, seaman, marine, national guardsman or member of any other organization for offense or defense authorized by congress during any war in which the United States may be engaged, shall, in the administration of the homestead laws, have his services therein construed to be equivalent to all intents and purposes to residence and cultivation for the same length of time upon the tract entered or settled upon; and hereafter no contest shall be initiated on the ground of abandonment, nor allegation of abandonment sustained against any such settler, entryman or person unless it shall be alleged in the preliminary affidavit or affidavits of contest and proved at the hearing in cases hereinafter initiated that the alleged absence from the land was not due to his employment in such military or naval service; that if he shall be discharged on account of wounds received or disability incurred in the line of duty, then the term of his enlistment shall be deducted from the required length of residence, without reference to the time of actual service; Provided, That no patent shall issue to any homestead settler who has not resided upon, improved and cultivated his homestead for a period of at least one year.

Any settler upon the public lands of the United States; or any entryman whose application has been allowed; or any person who has made application for public lands which thereafter may be allowed under the homestead laws, who dies while actually engaged in the military or naval service of the United States as a private soldier, officer, seaman, marine, national guardsman or member of any other organization for offense or defense authorized by congress during any war in which the United States may be engaged, then his widow, if unmarried, or in case of her death or marriage, his minor orphan children or his or their legal representatives may proceed forthwith to make final proof upon such entry or application thereafter allowed, and shall be entitled to receive government patent for such land; and that the death of such soldier while so engaged in the service of the United States shall, in the administration of the homestead laws, be construed to be equivalent to a performance of all requirements as to residence and cultivation upon such homestead. (Approved July 28, 1917.)

ASSESSMENT WORK SUSPENDED.

The law requiring not less than $100 worth of labor on each mining claim annually shall not apply to claims or parts of claims owned by officers or enlisted men in the military or naval service of the United States during the war with Germany provided notice is given by them. (Approved July 17, 1917.)

INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSION ENLARGED.

The act to regulate commerce is so amended as to enlarge the interstate commerce commission to nine members by the addition of two members, one for a term expiring Dec. 31, 1921, and one for a term expiring Dec. 31, 1922. The terms of the present commissioners are unchanged. Not more than five commissioners shall be appointed from the same political party. (Approved Aug. 9, 1917.)

STIMULATION OF AGRICULTURE.

An act (H. R. 4183) to provide further for the national security and defense by stimulating agriculture and facilitating the distribution of agricultural products.

Be it enacted, etc., That for the purpose of more effectually providing for the national security and defense and carrying on the war with Germany by gathering authoritative information concerning the food supply, by increasing production, by preventing waste of the food supply, by regulating the distribution thereof, and by such other means and methods as are hereinafter provided, the powers, authorities, duties, obligations and prohibitions hereinafter set forth are conferred and prescribed.

Sec. 2. That the secretary of agriculture, with the approval of the president, is authorized to investigate and ascertain the demand for, the supply, consumption, costs and prices of, and the basic facts relating to the ownership, production, transportation, manufacture, storage and distribution of foods, food materials, feeds, seeds, fertilizers, agricultural implements and machinery, and any article required in connection with the production, distribution or utilization of food. It shall be the duty of any person, when requested by the secretary of agriculture, or any agent acting under his instructions, to answer correctly, to the best of his knowledge, under oath or otherwise, all questions touching his knowledge of any matter authorized to be investigated under this section, or to produce all books, letters, papers or documents in his possession, or under his control, relating to such matter. Any person who shall, within a reasonable time to be prescribed by the secretary of agriculture, not exceeding thirty days from the date of the receipt of the request, willfully fail or refuse to answer such questions or to produce such books, letters, papers or documents, or who shall willfully give an answer that is false or misleading, shall be guilty of misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine not exceeding $1,000 or by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or both.

Sec. 3. That whenever the secretary of agriculture shall find that there is or may be a special need in any restricted area for seeds suitable for the production of food or feed crops, he is authorized to purchase, or contract with persons to grow such seeds, to store them and to furnish them to farmers for cash, at cost, including the expense of packing and transportation.

Sec. 4. That the secretary of agriculture is authorized to co-operate with such state and local officials, and with such public and private agencies, or persons, as he finds necessary, and to make such rules and regulations as are necessary effectively to carry out the preceding sections of this act.

Sec. 5. That the president, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, may appoint two additional assistant secretaries of agriculture, who shall perform such duties as may be required by law or prescribed by the secretary of agriculture, and who shall each be paid a salary of $5,000 per annum.

Sec. 6. That the president is authorized to direct any agency or organization of the government to co-operate with the secretary of agriculture in carrying out the purposes of this act and to co-ordinate their activities so as to avoid any preventable loss or duplication of work.

Sec. 7. That words used in this act shall be construed to import the plural or the singular as the case demands, and the word "person," wherever used in this act, shall include individuals, partnerships, associations and corporations.

Sec. 8. That for the purposes of this act, the following sums are hereby appropriated, out of any moneys in the treasury not otherwise appropriated, available immediately and until June 30, 1918: For the prevention, control and eradication of the diseases and pests of live stock; the enlargement of live stock production, and the conservation and utilization of meat, poultry, dairy and other animal products, $885,000.

For procuring, storing and furnishing seeds, as authorized by section 3 of this act, $2,500,000, and this fund may be used as a revolving fund until June 30, 1918.

For the prevention, control and eradication of insects and plant diseases injurious to agriculture, and the conservation and utilization of plant products, $441,000.

For increasing food production and eliminating waste and promoting conservation of food by educational and demonstrational methods, through county, district and urban agents and others, $4,348,400.

For gathering authoritative information in connection with the demand for and the production, supply, distribution and utilization of food, and otherwise carrying out the purpose of section 2 of this act; extending and enlarging the market news service and preventing waste of food in storage, in transit or held for sale; advise concerning the market movement or distribution of perishable products; for enabling the secretary of agriculture to investigate and certify to shippers the condition as to soundness of fruits, vegetables and other food products, when received at such important central markets as the secretary of agriculture may from time to time designate and under such rules and regulations as he may prescribe: Provided, That certificates issued by the authorized agents of the department shall be received in all courts as prima facie evidence of the truth of the statements therein contained, and otherwise carrying out the purposes of this act, $2,522,000: Provided further, That the secretary of agriculture shall, so far as practicable, engage the services of women for the work herein provided for.

For miscellaneous items, including the salaries of assistant secretaries appointed under this act; special work in crop estimating; aiding agencies in the various states in supplying farm labor; enlarging the informational and printing and distributing emergency leaflets, posters and other publications requiring quick issue or large editions, $650,000.

Provided, That the employment of any person under the provisions of this act shall not exempt any such person from military service under the provisions of the selective draft law approved May 18, 1917.

It shall be the duty of the secretary of agriculture to submit to congress at its regular session in December of each year a detailed report of the expenditure of all moneys herein appropriated.

Sec. 9. That the act of Aug. 30, 1890, entitled "An act providing for an inspection of meats for exportation, prohibiting the importation of adulterated articles of food or drink, and authorizing the president to make proclamation in certain cases, and for other purposes" (26th Statutes at Large, page 414), is hereby amended so as to authorize the secretary of agriculture, within his discretion and under such joint regulations as may be prescribed by the secretary of agriculture and the secretary of the treasury, to permit the admission for immediate slaughter at ports of entry of tick-infested cattle which are otherwise free from disease and which have not been exposed to the infection of any other disease within sixty days next before their exportation from Mexico, South and Central America, the islands of the Gulf of Mexico and the Caribbean sea into those parts of the United States below the southern cattle quarantine line at such ports of entry as may be designated by said joint regulations and also subject to the provisions of sections 7, 8, 9 and 10 of said act of Aug. 30, 1890: Provided, That the importation of tick-infested cattle from any country referred to in this section in which foot and mouth disease exists, which existence shall be determined by the secretary of agriculture, is prohibited: Provided, further, That all cattle imported under the provisions of this section shall be slaughtered in accordance with the provisions of the act of June 30, 1906 (34th Statutes at Large, page 674), commonly called the meat inspection amendment, and the rules and regulations promulgated thereunder by the secretary of agriculture, and that their hides shall be disposed of under rules and regulations to be prescribed by the secretary of agriculture.

Sec. 10. That section 6 of the act of congress approved June 17, 1910, "An act to provide for an enlarged homestead," be and the same is hereby amended to read as follows:

"Sec. 6. That whenever the secretary of the interior shall find any tracts of land in the state of Idaho, subject to entry under this act, do not have upon them such a sufficient supply of water suitable for domestic purposes as would make continuous residence upon the lands possible he may, in his discretion, designate such tracts of land, not to exceed in the aggregate 1,000,000 acres, and thereafter they shall be subject to entry under this act without the necessity of residence upon the land entered: Provided, That the entryman shall in good faith cultivate not less than one-sixteenth of the entire area of the entry which is susceptible of cultivation during the first year of the entry, not less than one-eighth during the second year, and not less than one-fourth during the third year of the entry and until final proof: Provided further, That after six months from the date of entry and until final proof the entryman shall be a resident of the state of Idaho."

Sec. 11. That the secretary of the interior is hereby authorized, in his discretion, to suspend during the continuance of this act that provision of the act known as the "reclamation act" requiring residence upon lands in private ownership or within the neighborhood for securing water for the irrigation of the same, and he is authorized to permit the use of the available water thereon upon such terms and conditions as he may deem proper.

Sec. 12. That the provisions of this act shall cease to be in effect when the national emergency resulting from the existing state of war shall have passed, the date of which shall be ascertained and proclaimed by the president; but the date when this act shall cease to be in effect shall not be later than the beginning of the next fiscal year after the termination as ascertained by the president, of the present war between the United States and Germany. (Approved Aug. 10, 1917.)

WAR REVENUE ACT.

Following is the full text of the "Act to provide revenue to defray war expenses and for other purposes":

Be it enacted by the senate and house of representatives of the United States of America in congress assembled:

TITLE I.—WAR INCOME TAX.

Section 1. That in addition to the normal tax imposed by subdivision (a) of section 1 of the act entitled "An act to increase the revenue and for other purposes," approved Sept. 8, 1916, there shall be levied, assessed, collected and paid a like normal tax of 2 per centum upon the income of every individual, a citizen or resident of the United States, received in the calendar year 1917 and every calendar year thereafter.

Sec. 2. That in addition to the additional tax imposed by subdivision (b) of section 1 of such act of Sept. 8, 1916, there shall be levied, assessed, collected and paid a like additional tax upon the income of every individual received in the calendar year 1917 and every calendar year thereafter, as follows:

One per centum per annum upon the amount by which the total net income exceeds $5,000 and does not exceed $7,500.

Two per centum per annum upon the amount by which the total net income exceeds $7,500 and does not exceed $10,000.

Three per centum per annum upon the amount by which the total net income exceeds $10,000 and does not exceed $12,500.

Four per centum per annum upon the amount by which the total net income exceeds $12,500 and does not exceed $15,000.

Five per centum per annum upon the amount by which the total net income exceeds $15,000 and does not exceed $20,000.

Seven per centum per annum upon the amount by which the total net income exceeds $20,000 and does not exceed $40,000.

Ten per centum per annum upon the amount by which the total net income exceeds $40,000 and does not exceed $60,000.

Fourteen per centum per annum upon the amount by which the total net income exceeds $60,000 and does not exceed $80,000.

Eighteen per centum per annum upon the amount by which the total net income exceeds $80,000 and does not exceed $100,000.

Twenty-two per centum per annum upon the amount by which the total net income exceeds $100,000 and does not exceed $150,000.

Twenty-five per centum per annum upon the amount by which the total net income exceeds $150,000 and does not exceed $200,000.

Thirty per centum per annum upon the amount by which the total net income exceeds $200,000 and does not exceed $250,000.

Thirty-four per centum per annum upon the amount by which the total net income exceeds $250,000 and does not exceed $300,000.

Thirty-seven per centum per annum upon the amount by which the total net income exceeds $300,000 and does not exceed $500,000.

Forty per centum per annum upon the amount by which the total net income exceeds $500,000 and does not exceed $750,000.

Forty-five per centum per annum upon the amount by which the total net income exceeds $750,000 and does not exceed $1,000,000.

Fifty per centum per annum upon the amount by which the total net income exceeds $1,000,000.

Sec. 3. That the taxes imposed by sections 1 and 2 of this act shall be computed, levied, assessed, collected and paid upon the same basis and in the same manner as the similar taxes imposed by section 1 of such act of Sept. 8, 1916, except that in the case of the tax imposed by section 1 of this act (a) the exemptions of $3,000 and $4,000 provided in section 7 of such act of Sept. 8, 1916, as amended by this act, shall be, respectively, $1,000 and $2,000, and (b) the returns required under subdivisions (b) and (c) of section 8 of such act as amended by this act shall be required in the cases of net incomes of $1,000 or over in the case of unmarried persons, and $2,000 or over in the case of married persons, instead of $3,000 or over, as therein provided, and (c) the provisions of subdivision (c) of section 9 of such act, as amended by this act, requiring the normal tax of individuals on income derived from interest to be deducted and withheld at the source of the income shall not apply to the new 2 per centum normal tax prescribed in section 1 of this act until on and after Jan. 1, 1918, and thereafter only one 2 per centum normal tax shall be deducted and withheld at the source under the provisions of such subdivision (c), and any further normal tax for which the recipient of such income is liable under this act or such act of Sept. 8, 1916, as amended by this act, shall be paid by this recipient.

Sec. 4. That in addition to the tax imposed by subdivision (a) of section 10 of such act of Sept. 8, 1916, as amended by this act, there shall be levied, assessed, collected and paid a like tax of 4 per centum upon the income received in the calendar year 1917 and every calendar year thereafter, by every corporation, joint stock company or association or insurance company, subject to the tax imposed by that subdivision of that section, except that if it has fixed its own fiscal year the tax imposed by this section for the fiscal year ending during the calendar year 1917 shall be levied, assessed, collected and paid only on that proportion of its income for such fiscal year which the period between Jan. 1, 1917, and the end of such fiscal year bears to the whole of such fiscal year.

The tax imposed by this section shall be computed, levied, assessed, collected and paid upon the same incomes and in the same manner as the tax imposed by subdivision (a) of section 10 of such act of Sept. 8, 1916, as amended by this act, except that for the purpose of the tax imposed by this section the income embraced in a return of a corporation, joint stock company, association or insurance company shall be credited with the amount received as dividends upon the stock or from the net earnings of any other corporation, joint stock company, or association or insurance company which is taxable upon its net income as provided in this title.

Sec. 5. That the provisions of this title shall not extend to Porto Rico or the Philippine Islands, and the Porto Rican or Philippine legislature shall have power by due enactment to amend, alter, modify or repeal the income tax laws in force in Porto Rico or the Philippine Islands, respectively.

TITLE II.—WAR EXCESS PROFITS TAX.

Sec. 200. That when used in this title—
The term "corporation" includes joint stock companies or associations and insurance companies;

The term "domestic" means created under the law of the United States or of any state, territory or district thereof, and the term "foreign" means created under the law of any other possession of the United States or of any foreign country or government;

The term "United States" means only the states, the territories of Alaska and Hawaii and the District of Columbia;

The term "taxable year" means the twelve months ending Dec. 31, excepting in the case of a corporation or partnership which has fixed its own fiscal year, in which case it means such fiscal year. The first taxable year shall be the year ending Dec. 31, 1917, except that in the case of a corporation or partnership which has fixed its own fiscal year, it shall be the fiscal year ending during the calendar year 1917. If a corporation or partnership, prior to March 1, 1918, makes a return covering its own fiscal year, and includes therein the income received during that part of the fiscal year falling within the calendar year 1916, the tax for such taxable year shall be that proportion of the tax computed upon the net income during such fiscal year which the time from Jan. 1, 1917, to the end of such fiscal year bears to the full fiscal year; and

The term "prewar period" means the calendar years 1911, 1912 and 1913, or, if a corporation or partnership was not in existence or an individual was not engaged in a trade or business during the whole of such period, then as many of such years during the whole of which the corporation or partnership was in existence or the individual was engaged in the trade or business.

The terms "trade" and "business" include professions and occupations.

The term "net income" means in the case of a foreign corporation or partnership or a nonresident alien individual the net income received from sources within the United States.

Sec. 201. That in addition to the taxes under existing law and under this act there shall be levied, assessed, collected and paid for each taxable year upon the income of every corporation, partnership or individual a tax (hereinafter in this title referred to as the tax) equal to the following percentages of the net income:

Twenty per centum of the amount of the net income in excess of the deduction (determined as hereinafter provided) and not in excess of 15 per centum of the invested capital for the taxable year;

Twenty-five per centum of the amount of the net income in excess of 15 per centum and not in excess of 20 per centum of such capital;

Thirty-five per centum of the amount of the net income in excess of 20 per centum and not in excess of 25 per centum of such capital;

Forty-five per centum of the amount of the net income in excess of 25 per centum and not in excess of 33 per centum of such capital; and

Sixty per centum of the amount of the net income in excess of 33 per centum of such capital.

For the purpose of this title every corporation or partnership not exempt under the provisions of this section shall be deemed to be engaged in business, and all the trades and businesses in which it is engaged shall be treated as a single trade or business, and all its income from whatever source derived shall be deemed to be received from such trade or business.

This title shall apply to all trades or businesses of whatever description, whether continuously carried on or not, except—

(a) In the case of officers and employees under the United States, or any state, territory or the District of Columbia, or any local subdivision thereof, the compensation or fees received by them as such officers or employees;

(b) Corporations exempt from tax under the provisions of section 11 of title I, of such act of Sept. 8, 1916, as amended by this act, and partnerships and individuals carrying on or doing the same business, or coming within the same description; and

(c) Incomes derived from the business of life, health and accident insurance combined in one policy issued on the weekly premium payment plan.

Sec. 202. That the tax shall not be imposed in the case of the trade or business of a foreign corporation or partnership or a nonresident alien individual, the net income of which trade or business during the taxable year is less than $3,000.

Sec. 203. That for the purposes of this title the deduction shall be as follows, except as otherwise in this title provided—

(a) In the case of a domestic corporation, the sum of (1) an amount equal to the same percentage of the invested capital for the taxable year which the average amount of the annual net income of the trade or business during the prewar period was of the invested capital for the prewar period (but not less than 7 or more than 9 per centum of the invested capital for the taxable year), and (2) $3,000;

(b) In the case of a domestic partnership of a citizen or resident of the United States, the sum of (1) an amount equal to the same percentage of the invested capital for the taxable year which the average amount of the annual net income of the trade or business during the prewar period was of the invested capital for the prewar period (but not less than 7 or more than 9 per centum of the invested capital for the taxable year), and (2) $6,000;

(c) In the case of a foreign corporation or partnership or of a nonresident alien individual, an amount ascertained in the same manner as provided in subdivisions (a) and (b), without any exemption of $3,000 or $6,000.

(3) If the secretary of the treasury is unable satisfactorily to determine the average amount of the annual net income of the trade or business during the prewar period, the deduction shall be determined in the same manner as provided in section 205.

Sec. 204. That if a corporation or partnership was not in existence, or an individual was not engaged in the trade or business during the whole of any one calendar year during the prewar period, the deduction shall be an amount equal to 8 per centum of the invested capital for the taxable year, plus in the case of a domestic corporation $3,000, and in the case of a domestic partnership or a citizen or resident of the United States, $6,000.

A trade or business carried on by a corporation, partnership or individual, although formally organized or reorganized on or after Jan. 2, 1913, which is substantially a continuation of a trade or business carried on prior to that date, shall, for the purpose of this title, be deemed to have been in existence prior to that date, and the net income and invested capital of its predecessor prior to that date shall be deemed to have been its net income and invested capital.

Sec. 205. (a) That if the secretary of the treasury, upon complaint, finds either (1) that during the prewar period a domestic corporation or partnership, or a citizen or resident of the United States, had no net income from the trade or business, or (2) that during the prewar period the percentage which the net income was of the invested capital, was low as compared with the percentage which the net income during such period of representative corporations, partnerships and individuals, engaged in a like or similar trade or business, was of their invested capital then the deduction shall be the sum of (1) an amount equal to the same percentage of its invested capital for the taxable year which the average deduction (determined in the same manner as provided in section 203, without including the $3,000 or $6,000 therein referred to) for such year, of representative corporations, partnerships or individuals, engaged in a like or similar trade or business, is of their average invested capital for such year, plus (2) in the case of a domestic corporation $3,000, and in the case of a domestic partnership or a citizen or resident of the United States $6,000.

The percentage which the net income was of the invested capital in each trade or business shall be determined by the commissioner of internal revenue, in accordance with regulations prescribed by him, with the approval of the secretary of the treasury. In the case of a corporation or partnership which has fixed its own fiscal year, the percentage determined for the calendar year ending during such fiscal year shall be used.

(b) The tax shall be assessed upon the basis of the deduction determined as provided in section 203, but the taxpayer claiming the benefit of this section may at the time of making the returns file a claim for abatement of the amount by which the tax so assessed exceeds a tax computed upon the basis of the deduction determined as provided in this section. In such event, collection of the part of the tax covered by such claim for abatement shall not be made until the claim is decided, but if in the judgment of the commissioner of internal revenue the interests of the United States would be jeopardized thereby he may require the claimant to give a bond in such amount and with such sureties as the commissioner may think wise to safeguard such interests, conditioned for the payment of any tax found to be due, with the interest thereon, and if such bond, satisfactory to the commissioner, is not given within such time as he prescribes the full amount of tax assessed shall be collected and the amount overpaid, if any, shall upon final decision of the application be refunded as a tax erroneously or illegally collected.

Sec. 206. That for the purposes of this title the net income of a corporation shall be ascertained and returned (a) for the calendar years 1911 and 1912 upon the same basis and in the same manner as provided in section 38 of the act entitled "An act to provide revenue, equalize duties and encourage the industries of the United States, and for other purposes," approved Aug. 5, 1909, except that income taxes paid by it within the year imposed by the authority of the United States shall be included; (b) for the calendar year 1913 upon the same basis and in the same manner as provided in section 2 of the act entitled "An act to reduce tariff duties and to provide revenue for the government, and for other purposes," approved Oct. 3, 1913, except that income taxes paid by it within the year imposed by the authority of the United States shall be included, and except that the amounts received by it as dividends upon the stock or from the net earnings of other corporations, joint-stock companies or associations, or insurance companies, subject to the tax imposed by section 2 of such act of Oct. 3, 1913, shall be deducted; and (c) for the taxable year upon the same basis and in the same manner as provided in title I. of the act entitled "An act to increase the revenue, and for other purposes," approved Sept. 8, 1916, as amended by this act, except that the amounts received by it as dividends upon the stock or from the net earnings of other corporations, joint-stock companies or associations, or insurance companies subject to the tax imposed by title I. of such act of Sept. 8, 1916, shall be deducted.

The net income of a partnership or individual shall be ascertained and returned for the calendar years 1911, 1912 and 1913, and for the taxable year, upon the same basis and in the same manner as provided in the same act of Sept. 8, 1916, as amended by this act, except that the credit allowed by subdivision (b) of section 5 of such act shall be deducted. There shall be allowed (a) in the case of a domestic partnership the same deductions as allowed to individuals in subdivision (a) of section 5 of such act of Sept. 8, 1916, as amended by this act; and (b) in the case of a foreign partnership the same deductions as allowed to individuals in subdivision (a) of section 6 of such act as amended by this act.

Sec. 207. That as used in this title the term "invested capital" for any year means the average invested capital for the year, as defined and limited in this title, averaged monthly.

As used in this title "invested capital" does not include stocks, bonds (other than obligations of the United States), or other assets, the income from which is not subject to the tax imposed by this title, nor money or other property borrowed, and means, subject to the above limitations:

(a) In the case of a corporation or partnership: (1) actual cash paid in; (2) the actual cash value of tangible property paid in other than cash, for stock or shares in such corporation or partnership, at the time of such payment (but in case such tangible property was paid in prior to Jan. 1, 1914, the actual cash value of such property as of Jan. 1, 1914, but in no case to exceed the par value of the original stock or shares specifically issued therefor); and (3) paid in or earned surplus and undivided profits used or employed in the business, exclusive of undivided profits earned during the taxable year; provided, that (a) the actual cash value of patents and copyrights paid in for stock or shares in such corporation or partnership, at the time of such payment, shall be included as invested capital, but not to exceed the par value of such stock or shares at the time of such payment, and (b) the good will, trade-marks, trade brands, the franchise of a corporation or partnership, or other intangible property, shall be included as invested capital if the corporation or partnership made payment bona fide therefor specifically as such in cash or tangible property, the value of such good will, trade-marks, trade brands, franchise or intangible property not to exceed the actual cash, or actual cash value of the tangible property paid therefor at the time of such payment; but good will, trade-marks, trade brands, franchise of a corporation or partnership, or other intangible property, bona fide purchased, prior to March 3, 1917, for and with interests or shares in a partnership or for and with shares in the capital stock of a corporation (issued prior to March 3, 1917), in an amount not to exceed, on March 3, 1917, 20 per centum of the total interests or shares in the partnership or of the total shares of the capital stock of the corporation, shall be included in invested capital at a value not to exceed the actual cash value at the time of such purchase, and in case of issue of stock therefor not to exceed the par value of such stock;

(b) In the case of an individual, (1) actual cash paid into the trade or business, and (2) the actual cash value of tangible property paid into the trade or business, other than cash, at the time of such payment (but in case such tangible property was paid in prior to Jan. 1, 1914, the actual cash value of such property as of Jan. 1, 1914), and (3) the actual cash value of patents, copyrights, good will, trade-marks, trade brands, franchises or other intangible property, paid into the trade or business, at the time of such payment, if payment was made therefor specifically as such in cash or tangible property, not to exceed the actual cash or actual cash value of the tangible property bona fide paid therefor at the time of such payment.

In the case of a foreign corporation or partnership or of a nonresident alien individual the term "invested capital" means that proportion of the entire invested capital, as defined and limited in this title, which the net income from sources within the United States bears to the entire net income.

Sec. 208. That in case of the reorganization, consolidation or change of ownership of a trade or business after March 3, 1917, if an interest or control in such trade or business of 50 per centum or more remains in control of the same persons, corporations, associations, partnerships or any of them, then in ascertaining the invested capital of the trade or business no asset transferred or received from the prior trade or business shall be allowed a greater value than would have been allowed under this title in computing the invested capital of such prior trade or business if such asset had not been so transferred or received, unless such asset was paid for specifically as such, in cash or tangible property, and then not to exceed the actual cash or actual cash value of the tangible property paid therefor at the time of such payment.

Sec. 209. That in the case of a trade or business having no invested capital or not more than a nominal capital there shall be levied, assessed, collected and paid, in addition to the taxes under existing law and under this act, in lieu of the tax imposed by section 201, a tax equivalent to 8 per centum of the net income of such trade or business in excess of the following deductions: In the case of a domestic corporation $3,000, and in the case of a domestic partnership or a citizen or resident of the United States $6,000; in the case of all other trades or business, no deduction.

Sec. 210. That if the secretary of the treasury is unable in any case satisfactorily to determine the invested capital, the amount of the deduction shall be the sum of (1) an amount equal to the same proportion of the net income of the trade or business received during the taxable year as the proportion which the average deduction (determined in the same manner as provided in section 203, without including the $3,000 or $6,000 therein referred to) for the same calendar year of representative corporations, partnerships and individuals, engaged in a like or similar trade or business, bears to the total net income of the trade or business received by such corporations, partnerships and individuals, plus (2) in the case of a domestic corporation $3,000, and in the case of a domestic partnership or a citizen or resident of the United States $6,000.

For the purpose of this section the proportion between the deduction and the net income in each trade or business shall be determined by the commissioner of internal revenue in accordance with regulations prescribed by him, with the approval of the secretary of the treasury. In the case of a corporation or partnership which has fixed its own fiscal year, the proportion determined for the calendar year ending during such fiscal year shall be used.

Sec. 211. That every foreign partnership having a net income of $3,000 or more for the taxable year, and every domestic partnership having a net income of $6,000 or more for the taxable year, shall render a correct return of the income of the trade or business for the taxable year, setting forth specifically the gross income for such year, and the deductions allowed in this title. Such returns shall be rendered at the same time and in the same manner as is prescribed for income tax returns under title I. of such act of Sept. 8, 1916, as amended by this act.

Sec. 212. That all administrative, special and general provisions of law, including the laws in relation to the assessment, remission, collection and refund of internal revenue taxes not heretofore specifically repealed, and not inconsistent with the provisions of this title, are hereby extended and made applicable to all the provisions of this title and to the tax herein imposed, and all provisions of title I. of such act of Sept. 8, 1916, as amended by this act, relating to returns and payment of the tax therein imposed, including penalties, are hereby made applicable to the tax imposed by this title.

Sec. 213. That the commissioner of internal revenue, with the approval of the secretary of the treasury, shall make all necessary regulations for carrying out the provisions of this title, and may require any corporation, partnership or individual, subject to the provisions of this title, to furnish him with such facts, data and information as in his judgment are necessary to collect the tax imposed by this title.

Sec. 214. That title II. (sections 200 to 207 inclusive) of the act entitled "An act to provide increased revenue to defray the expenses of the increased appropriations for the army and navy, and the extensions of fortifications, and for other purposes," approved March 3, 1917, is hereby repealed.

Any amount heretofore or hereafter paid on account of the tax imposed by such title II. shall be credited toward the payment of the tax imposed by this title, and if the amount so paid exceeds the amount of such tax the excess shall be refunded as a tax erroneously or illegally collected.

Subdivision (1) of section 301 of such act of Sept. 8, 1916, is hereby amended so that the rate of tax for the taxable year 1917 shall be 10 per centum instead of 12½ per centum, as therein provided.

Subdivision (2) of such section is hereby amended to read as follows:

"(2) This section shall cease to be of effect on and after Jan. 1, 1918."

TITLE III.—WAR TAX ON BEVERAGES.

Sec. 300. That on and after the passage of this act there shall be levied and collected on all distilled spirits in and out of the United States, whether produced or then or thereafter produced or imported into the United States, except such distilled spirits as are subject to the tax provided in section 303, in addition to the tax now imposed by law, a tax of $1.10 (or, if withdrawn for beverage purposes or for use in the manufacture or production of any article used or intended for use as a beverage, a tax of $2.10) on each proof gallon, or wine gallon when below proof, and a proportionate tax at a like rate on all fractional parts of such proof or wine gallon to be paid by the distiller or importer when drawn, and collected under the provisions of existing law.

That in addition to the tax under existing law there shall be levied and collected upon all perfumes hereafter imported into the United States containing distilled spirits, a tax of $1.10 per wine gallon, and a proportionate tax at a like rate on all fractional parts of such wine gallon. Such tax shall be collected by the collector of customs and deposited as internal revenue collections, under such rules and regulations as the commissioner of internal revenue, with the approval of the secretary of the treasury, may prescribe.

Sec. 301. That no distilled spirits produced after the passage of this act shall be imported into the United States from any foreign country, or from the West Indian islands recently acquired from Denmark (unless produced from products the growth of such islands, and not then into any state or territory or district of the United States in which the manufacture or sale of intoxicating liquor is prohibited), or from Porto Rico, or the Philippine islands. Under such rules, regulations and bonds as the secretary of the treasury may prescribe, the provisions of this section shall not apply to distilled spirits imported for other than (1) beverage purposes or (2) use in the manufacture or production of any article used or intended for use as a beverage.

Sec. 302. That at registered distilleries producing alcohol or other high proof spirits packages may be filled with such spirits reduced to not less than one hundred or proof from the receiving cisterns and tax paid without being entered into bonded warehouse. Such spirits may be also transferred from the receiving cisterns at such distilleries, by means of pipe lines, direct to storage tanks in the bonded warehouse and may be warehoused in such storage tanks. Such spirits may be also transferred in tanks or tank cars to general bonded warehouses for storage therein, either in storage tanks in such warehouses or in the tanks in which they were transferred. Such spirits may also be transferred after tax payment from receiving cisterns or warehouse storage tanks to tanks or tank cars and may be transported in such tanks or tank cars to the premises of rectifiers of spirits. The commissioner of internal revenue, with the approval of the secretary of the treasury, is hereby empowered to prescribe all necessary regulations relating to the drawing off, transferring, gauging, storing and transporting such spirits; the records to be kept and returns to be made; the size and kind of packages and tanks to be used; the marking, branding, numbering and stamping of such packages and tanks; the kinds of stamps, if any, to be used; and the time and manner of paying the tax; the kind of bond and the penal sum of same. The tax prescribed by law must be paid before such spirits are removed from the distillery premises or from general bonded warehouse in the case of spirits transferred thereto, except as otherwise provided by law.

Under such regulations as the commissioner of internal revenue, with the approval of the secretary of the treasury, may prescribe, distilled spirits may hereafter be drawn from receiving cisterns and deposited in distillery warehouses without having affixed to the packages containing the same distillery warehouse stamps, and such packages, when so deposited in warehouse, may be withdrawn therefrom on the original gauge where the same have remained in such warehouse for a period not exceeding thirty days from the date of deposit.

Under such regulations as the commissioner of internal revenue, with the approval of the secretary of the treasury, may prescribe, the manufacture, warehousing, withdrawal and shipment, under the provisions of existing law, of ethyl alcohol for other than (1) beverage purposes or (2) use in the manufacture or production of any article used or intended for use as a beverage, and denatured alcohol, may be exempted from the provisions of section 3253, revised statutes of the United States.

Under such regulations as the commissioner of internal revenue, with the approval of the secretary of the treasury, may prescribe, manufacturers of ethyl alcohol for other than beverage purposes may be granted permission under the provisions of section 3255, revised statutes of the United States, to fill fermenting tub in a sweet-mash distillery not oftener than once in forty-eight hours.

Sec. 303. That upon all distilled spirits produced in or imported into the United States upon which the tax now imposed by law has been paid and which, on the day this act is passed, are held by a retailer in a quantity in excess of fifty gallons in the aggregate, or by any other person, corporation, partnership or association in any quantity, and which are intended for sale, there shall be levied, assessed, collected and paid a tax of $1.10 (or, if intended for sale for beverage purposes or for use in the manufacture or production of any article used or intended for use as a beverage, a tax of $2.10) on each proof gallon, and a proportionate tax at a like rate on all fractional parts of such proof gallon: Provided, That the tax on such distilled spirits in the custody of a court of bankruptcy in insolvency proceedings on June 1, 1917, shall be paid by the person to whom the court delivers such distilled spirits at the time of such delivery, to the extent that the amount thus delivered exceeds the fifty gallons hereinbefore provided.

Sec. 304. That in addition to the tax now imposed or imposed by this act on distilled spirits there shall be levied, assessed, collected and paid a tax of 15 cents on each proof gallon and a proportionate tax at a like rate on all fractional parts of such proof gallon on all distilled spirits or wines hereafter rectified, purified or refined in such manner, and on all mixtures hereafter produced in such manner by the person so rectifying, purifying, refining or mixing the same is a rectifier within the meaning of section 3244, revised statutes, as amended, and on all such articles in the possession of the rectifier on the day this act is passed: Provided, That this tax shall not apply to gin produced by the redistillation of a pure spirit over juniper berries and other aromatics.

When the process of rectification is completed and the tax prescribed by this section has been paid, it shall be unlawful for the rectifier or other dealer to reduce in proof or increase in volume such spirits or wine by the addition of water or other substance; nothing herein contained shall, however, prevent a rectifier from using again in the process of rectification spirits already rectified and upon which the tax has theretofore been paid.

The tax imposed by this section shall not attach to cordials or liquors on which a tax is imposed and paid under the act entitled "An act to increase the revenue and for other purposes," approved Sept. 8, 1916, nor to the mixing and blending of wines, where such blending is for the sole purpose of perfecting such wines according to commercial standards, nor to blends made exclusively of two or more pure straight whiskies aged in wood for a period not less than four years and without the addition of coloring or flavoring matter or any other substance than pure water and if not reduced below ninety proof: Provided, That such blended whiskies shall be exempt from tax under this section only when compounded under the immediate supervision of a revenue officer, in such tanks and under such conditions and supervision as the commissioner of internal revenue, with the approval of the secretary of the treasury, may prescribe.

All distilled spirits taxable under this section shall be subject to uniform regulations concerning the use thereof in the manufacture, blending, compounding, mixing, marking, branding and sale of whisky and rectified spirits, and no discrimination whatsoever shall be made by reason of a difference in the character of the material from which same may have been produced.

The business of a rectifier of spirits shall be carried on, and the tax on rectified spirits shall be paid, under such rules, regulations and bonds as may be prescribed by the commissioner of internal revenue, with the approval of the secretary of the treasury.

Any person violating any of the provisions of this section shall be deemed to be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined not more than $1,000 or imprisoned not more than two years. He shall, in addition, be liable to double the tax evaded together with the tax, to be collected by assessment or on any bond given.

Sec. 305. That hereafter collectors of internal revenue shall not furnish wholesale liquor dealer's stamps in lieu of and in exchange for stamps for rectified spirits unless the package covered by stamp for rectified spirits is to be broken into smaller packages.

The commissioner of internal revenue, with the approval of the secretary of the treasury, is authorized to discontinue the use of the following stamps whenever in his judgment the interests of the government will be subserved thereby:

Distillery warehouse, special bonded warehouse, special bonded rewarehouse, general bonded warehouse, general bonded retransfer, transfer brandy, export tobacco, export cigars, export cream-margarine and export fermented liquor stamps.

Sec. 305. That the commissioner of internal revenue, with the approval of the secretary of the treasury, is hereby authorized to require at distilleries, breweries, rectifying houses and wherever else in his judgment such action may be deemed advisable, the installation of meters, tanks, pipes or any other apparatus for the purpose of protecting the revenue, and such meters, tanks and pipes and all necessary labor incident thereto shall be at the expense of the person, corporation, partnership or association on whose premises the installation is required. Any such person, corporation, partnership or association refusing or neglecting to install such apparatus when so required by the commissioner shall not be permitted to conduct business on such premises.

Sec. 307. That on and after the passage of this act there shall be levied and collected on all beer, lager beer, ale, porter and other similar fermented liquor, containing $\frac{1}{4}$ per centum or more of alcohol, brewed or manufactured and sold or stored in warehouse, or removed for consumption or sale, within the United States, by whatever name such liquors may be called, in addition to the tax now imposed by law, a tax of \$1.50 for every barrel containing not more than thirty-one gallons, and at a like rate for any other quantity or for the fractional parts of a barrel authorized and defined by law.

Sec. 308. That from and after the passage of this act taxable fermented liquors may be conveyed without payment of tax from the brewery premises where produced to a contiguous industrial distillery of either class established under the act of Oct. 3, 1913, to be used as distilling material, and the residue from such distillation, containing less than $\frac{1}{2}$ of 1 per centum of alcohol by volume, which is to be used in making beverages, may be manipulated by cooling, flavoring, carbonating, settling and filtering on the distillery premises or elsewhere.

The removal of the taxable fermented liquor from the brewery to the distillery and the operation of the distillery and removal of the residue therefrom shall be under the supervision of such officer or officers as the commissioner of internal revenue shall deem proper, and the commissioner of internal revenue, with the approval of the secretary of the treasury, is hereby authorized to make such regulations from time to time as may be necessary to give force and effect to this section and to safeguard the revenue.

Sec. 309. That upon all still wines, including vermouth, and upon all champagne and other sparkling wines, liqueurs, cordials, artificial or imitation wines or compounds sold as wine, produced in or imported into the United States, and hereafter removed from the custom house, place of manufacture or from bonded premises for sale or consumption, there shall be levied and collected, in addition to the tax now imposed by law upon such articles, a tax equal to such tax, to be levied, collected and paid under the provisions of existing law.

Sec. 310. That upon all articles specified in section 309 upon which the tax now imposed by law has been paid and which are on the day this act is passed held in excess of twenty-five gallons in the aggregate of such articles and intended for sale, there shall be levied, collected and paid a tax equal to the tax imposed by such section.

Sec. 311. That upon all grape brandy or wine spirits withdrawn by a producer of wines from any fruit distillery or special bonded warehouse under subdivision (c) of section 402 of the act entitled "An act to increase the revenue and for other purposes," approved Sept. 8, 1916, there shall be levied, assessed, collected and paid in addition to the tax therein imposed, a tax equal to double such tax, to be assessed, collected and paid under the provisions of existing law.

Sec. 312. That upon all sweet wines held, for sale by the producer thereof upon the day this act is passed there shall be levied, assessed, collected and paid an additional tax equivalent to 10 cents per proof gallon upon the grape brandy or wine spirits used in the fortification of such wine, and an additional tax of 20 cents per proof gallon shall be levied, assessed, collected and paid upon all grape brandy or wine spirits withdrawn by a producer of sweet wines for the purpose of fortifying such wines and not so used prior to the passage of this act.

Sec. 313. That there shall be levied, assessed, collected and paid—

(a) Upon all prepared sirups or extracts (intended for use in the manufacture or production of beverages, commonly known as soft drinks, by soda fountains, bottling establishments and other similar places) sold by the manufacturer, producer or importer thereof, if so sold for not more than $1.30 per gallon, a tax of 5 cents per gallon; if so sold for more than $1.30 and not more than $2 per gallon, a tax of 8 cents per gallon; if so sold for more than $2 and not more than $3 per gallon, a tax of 10 cents per gallon; if so sold for more than $3 and not more than $4 per gallon, a tax of 15 cents per gallon; and if so sold for more than $4 per gallon, a tax of 20 cents per gallon; and

(b) Upon all unfermented grape juice, soft drinks or artificial mineral waters (not carbonated), and fermented liquors containing less than one-half per centum of alcohol, sold by the manufacturer, producer or importer thereof, in bottles or other closed containers, and upon all ginger ale, root beer, sarsaparilla, pop and other carbonated waters or beverages, manufactured and sold by the manufacturer, producer or importer of the carbonic acid gas used in carbonating the same, a tax of 1 cent per gallon; and

(c) Upon all natural mineral waters or table waters, sold by the producer, bottler or importer thereof, in bottles or other closed containers, at over 10 cents per gallon, a tax of 1 cent per gallon.

Sec. 314. That each such manufacturer, producer, bottler or importer shall make monthly returns under oath to the collector of internal revenue for the district in which is located the principal place of business, containing such information necessary for the assessment of the tax, and at such times and in such manner, as the commissioner of internal revenue, with the approval of the secretary of the treasury, may by regulation prescribe.

Sec. 315. That upon all carbonic acid gas in drums or other containers (intended for use in the manufacture or production of carbonated water or other drinks) sold by the manufacturer, producer or importer thereof, there shall be levied, assessed, collected and paid a tax of 5 cents per pound. Such tax shall be paid by the purchaser to the vender thereof, and shall be collected, returned and paid to the United States by such vender in the same manner as provided in section 503.

TITLE IV.—WAR TAX ON CIGARS, TOBACCO AND MANUFACTURES THEREOF.

Sec. 400. That upon cigars and cigarettes, which shall be manufactured and sold, or removed for consumption or sale, there shall be levied and collected, in addition to the taxes now imposed by existing law, the following taxes, to be paid by the manufacturer or importer thereof: (a) on cigars of all descriptions made of tobacco, or any substitute therefor, and weighing not more than three pounds per thousand, 25 cents per thousand; (b) on cigars made of tobacco, or any substitute therefor, and weighing more than three pounds per thousand, if manufactured or imported to retail at 4 cents or more each, and not more than 7 cents each, $1 per thousand; (c) if manufactured or imported to retail at more than 7 cents each and not more than 15 cents each, $3 per thousand;

(d) if manufactured or imported to retail at more than 15 cents each and not more than 20 cents each, 5 cents per thousand; (e) if manufactured or imported to retail at more than 20 cents each, 7 cents per thousand; Provided, that the word "retail" as used in this section shall mean the ordinary retail price of a single cigar, and that the commissioner of internal revenue may, by regulation, require the manufacturer or importer to affix to each box or container a conspicuous label indicating by letter the clause of this section under which the cigars therein contained have been tax-paid, which must correspond with the tax-paid stamp on said box or container; (f) on cigarettes made of tobacco, or any substitute therefor, made in or imported into the United States, and weighing not more than three pounds per thousand, 80 cents per thousand; weighing more than three pounds per thousand, $1.20 per thousand.

Every manufacturer of cigarettes (including small cigars weighing not more than three pounds per thousand) shall put up all the cigarettes and such small cigars that he manufactures or has manufactured for him, and sells or removes for consumption or use in packages or parcels containing five, eight, ten, twelve, fifteen, sixteen, twenty, twenty-four, forty, fifty, eighty or one hundred cigarettes each, and shall securely affix to each of said packages or parcels a suitable stamp denoting the tax thereon and shall properly cancel the same prior to such sale or removal for consumption or use under such regulations as the commissioner of internal revenue, with the approval of the secretary of the treasury, shall prescribe; and all cigarettes imported from a foreign country shall be packed, stamped and the stamps canceled in a like manner, in addition to the import stamp indicating inspection of the custom-house, before they are withdrawn therefrom.

Sec. 401. That upon all tobacco and snuff hereafter manufactured and sold, or removed for consumption or use, there shall be levied and collected, in addition to the tax now imposed by law upon such articles, a tax of 5 cents per pound, to be levied, collected and paid under the provisions of existing law.

In addition to the packages provided for under existing law, manufactured tobacco and snuff may be put up and prepared by the manufacturer for sale or consumption, in packages of the following description: Packages containing one-eighth, three-eighths, five-eighths, seven-eighths, one and one-eighth, one and three-eighths, one and five-eighths, one and seven-eighths and five ounces.

Sec. 402. That sections 400, 401 and 404, shall take effect thirty days after the passage of this act: Provided, That after the passage of this act and before the expiration of the said thirty days cigarettes and manufactured tobacco and snuff may be put up in the packages now provided for by law or in the packages provided for in sections 400 and 401.

Sec. 403. That there shall also be levied and collected, upon all manufactured tobacco and snuff in excess of one hundred pounds or upon cigars or cigarettes in excess of one thousand, which were manufactured or imported, and removed from factory or custom house prior to the passage of this act, bearing tax-paid stamps affixed to such articles for the payment of the taxes thereon, and which are, on the day after this act is passed, held and intended for sale by any person, corporation, partnership or association, and upon all manufactured tobacco, snuff, cigars or cigarettes, removed from factory or custom house after the passage of this act but prior to the time when the tax imposed by section 400 or section 401 upon such articles takes effect, an additional tax equal to one-half the tax imposed by such sections upon such articles.

Sec. 404. That there shall be levied, assessed and collected upon cigarette paper made up into packages, books, sets or tubes, made up in or imported into the United States and intended for use by the smoker in making cigarettes, the following taxes: On each package, book or set containing more than twenty-five but not more than fifty papers, one-half of 1 cent; containing more than fifty but not more than one hundred papers, 1 cent; containing more than one hundred papers, 1 cent for each one hundred papers or fractional part thereof; and upon tubes, 2 cents for each one hundred tubes or fractional part thereof.

TITLE V.—WAR TAX ON FACILITIES FURNISHED BY PUBLIC UTILITIES AND INSURANCE.

Sec. 500. That from and after the first day of November, 1917, there shall be levied, assessed, collected and paid (a) a tax equivalent to 3 per centum of the amount paid for the transportation by rail or water or by any form of mechanical motor power when in competition with carriers by rail or water of property by freight consigned from one point in the United States to another; (b) a tax of 1 cent for each 20 cents, or fraction thereof, paid to any person, corporation, partnership or association, engaged in the business of transporting parcels or packages by express over regular routes and over fixed terminals, for the transportation of any package, parcel or shipment by express from one point in the United States to another: Provided, That nothing herein contained shall be construed to require the carrier collecting such tax to list separately in any bill of lading, freight receipt or other similar document the amount of the tax herein levied if the total amount of the freight and tax be therein stated; (c) a tax equivalent to 8 per centum of the amount paid for the transportation of persons by rail or water, or by any form of mechanical motor power on a regular established line when in competition with carriers by rail or water, from one point in the United States to another or to any point in Canada or Mexico, where the ticket therefor is sold or issued in the United States, not including the amount paid for commutation or season tickets for trips less than thirty miles, or for transportation the fare for which does not exceed 35 cents, and a tax equivalent to 10 per centum of the amount paid for seats, berths and staterooms in parlor cars, sleeping cars or on vessels, if a mileage book used for such transportation or accommodation has been purchased before this section takes effect, or if cash fare be paid, the tax imposed by this section shall be collected from the person presenting the mileage book or paying the cash fare, by the conductor or other agent, when presented for such transportation or accommodation, and the amount so collected shall be paid to the United States in such manner and at such times as the commissioner of internal revenue, with the approval of the secretary of the treasury, may prescribe; if a ticket (other than a mileage book) is bought and partially used before this section goes into effect it shall not be taxed, but if bought but not so used before this section takes effect, it shall not be valid for passage until the tax has been paid and such payment evidenced on the ticket in such manner as the commissioner of internal revenue, with the approval of the secretary of the treasury, may by regulation prescribe; (d) a tax equivalent to 5 per centum of the amount paid for the transportation of property by pipe line; (e) a tax of 5 cents upon each telegraph, telephone or radio dispatch, message or conversation, which originates within the United States, and for the transmission of which a charge of 15 cents or more is imposed: Provided, That only one payment of such tax shall be required, notwithstanding the lines or stations of one or more persons, corporations, partnerships or associations shall be used for the transmission of such dispatch, message or conversation.

Sec. 501. That the taxes imposed by section 500 shall be paid by the person, corporation, partnership or association paying for the service or facilities rendered.

In case such carrier does not, because of its ownership of the commodity transported, or for any other reason, receive the amount which as a carrier it would otherwise charge, such carrier shall pay a tax equivalent to the tax which would be imposed upon the transportation of such commodity if the carrier received payment for such transportation: Provided, That in case of a carrier which on May 1, 1917, had no rates or tariffs on file with the proper federal or state authority, the tax shall be computed on the basis of the rates or tariffs of other carriers for like services as ascertained and determined by the commissioner of internal revenue: Provided further, That nothing in this or the preceding section shall be construed as imposing a tax (a) upon the transportation of any commodity which is necessary for the use of the carrier in the conduct of its business as such and is intended to be so used or has been so used; or (b) upon the transportation of company material transported by one carrier, which constitutes a part of a railroad system, for another carrier which is also a part of the same system.

Sec. 502. That no tax shall be imposed under section 500 upon any payment received for services rendered to the United States, or any state, territory or the District of Columbia. The right to exemption under this section shall be evidenced in such manner as the commissioner of internal revenue, with the approval of the secretary of the treasury, may by regulation prescribe.

Sec. 503. That each person, corporation, partnership or association receiving any payments referred to in section 500 shall collect the amount of the tax, if any, imposed by such section from the person, corporation, partnership or association making such payments, and shall make monthly returns under oath, in duplicate, and pay the taxes so collected and the taxes imposed upon it under paragraph two of section 501 to the collector of internal revenue of the district in which the principal office or place of business is located. Such returns shall contain such information, and be made in such manner, as the commissioner of internal revenue, with the approval of the secretary of the treasury, may by regulation prescribe.

(a) Life insurance: A tax equivalent to 8 cents on each $100 or fractional part thereof of the amount for which any life is insured under any policy of insurance, or other instrument, by whatever name the same is called: Provided, That on all policies for life insurance only by which a life is insured not in excess of $500, issued on the industrial or weekly payment plan of insurance, the tax shall be 40 per centum of the amount of the first weekly premium: Provided further, That policies of reinsurance shall be exempt from the tax imposed by this subdivision:

(b) Marine, inland and fire insurance: A tax equivalent to 1 cent on each dollar or fractional part thereof of the premium charged under each policy of insurance or other instrument by whatever name the same is called whereby insurance is made or renewed upon property of any description (including rents or profits), whether against peril by sea or inland waters, or by fire or lightning, or other peril: Provided, That policies of reinsurance shall be exempt from the tax imposed by this subdivision:

(c) Casualty insurance: A tax equivalent to 1 cent on each dollar or fractional part thereof of the premium charged under each policy of insurance or obligation of the nature of indemnity for loss, damage or liability (except bonds taxable under subdivision two of schedule A of title VIII.) issued or executed or renewed by any person, corporation, partnership or association, transacting the business of employer's liability, workmen's compensation, accident, health, tornado, plate glass, steam boiler, elevator, burglary, automatic sprinkler, automobile or other branch of insurance (except life insurance and insurance described and taxed in the preceding subdivision): Provided, That policies of reinsurance shall be exempt from the tax imposed by this subdivision:

insurance shall be exempt from the tax imposed by this subdivision:

(d) Policies issued by any person, corporation, partnership or association whose income is exempt from taxation under title 1. of the act entitled "An act to increase the revenue and for other purposes," approved Sept. 8, 1916, shall be exempt from the taxes imposed by this section.

Sec. 505. That every person, corporation, partnership or association issuing policies of insurance upon the issuance of which a tax is imposed by section 504, shall, within the first fifteen days of each month, make a return under oath, in duplicate, and pay such tax to the collector of internal revenue of the district in which the principal office or place of business of such person, corporation, partnership or association is located. Such returns shall contain such information and be made in such manner as the commissioner of internal revenue, with the approval of the secretary of the treasury, may by regulation prescribe.

TITLE VI.—WAR EXCISE TAXES.

Sec. 600. That there shall be levied, assessed, collected and paid—

(a) Upon all automobiles, automobile trucks, automobile wagons and motorcycles, sold by the manufacturer, producer or importer, a tax equivalent to 3 per centum of the price for which so sold; and

(b) Upon all piano players, graphophones, phonographs, talking machines and records used in connection with any musical instrument, piano player, graphophone, phonograph or talking machine, sold by the manufacturer, producer or importer, a tax equivalent to 3 per centum of the price for which so sold; and

(c) Upon all moving picture films (which have not been exposed) sold by the manufacturer or importer, a tax equivalent to $\frac{1}{4}$ of 1 cent per linear foot; and

(d) Upon all positive moving picture films (containing a picture ready for projection) sold or leased by the manufacturer, producer or importer, a tax equivalent to $\frac{1}{2}$ of 1 cent per linear foot; and

(e) Upon any article commonly or commercially known as jewelry, whether real or imitation, sold by the manufacturer, producer or importer thereof, a tax equivalent to 3 per centum of the price for which so sold; and

(f) Upon all tennis rackets, golf clubs, baseball bats, lacrosse sticks, balls of all kinds, including baseballs, footballs, tennis, golf, lacrosse, billiard and pool balls, fishing rods and reels, billiard and pool tables, chess and checker boards and pieces, dice, games and parts of games, except playing cards and children's toys and games, sold by the manufacturer, producer or importer, a tax equivalent to 3 per centum of the price for which so sold; and

(g) Upon all perfumes, essences, extracts, toilet waters, cosmetics, petroleum jellies, hair oils, pomades, hair dressings, hair restoratives, hair dyes, tooth and mouth washes, dentifrices, tooth pastes, aromatics, cachous, toilet soaps and powders or any similar substance, article or preparation by whatsoever name known or distinguished, upon all of the above which are used or applied or intended to be used or applied for toilet purposes, and which are sold by the manufacturer, importer or producer, a tax equivalent to 2 per centum of the price for which so sold; and

or unpublished, are held out or recommended to the public by the makers, vendors or proprietors thereof as proprietary medicines or medicinal proprietary articles or preparations, or as remedies or specifics for any disease, diseases or affection whatever affecting the human or animal body, and which are sold by the manufacturer, producer or importer, a tax equivalent to 2 per centum of the price for which so sold; and

(i) Upon all chewing gum or substitute therefor sold by the manufacturer, producer or importer, a tax equivalent to 2 per centum of the price for which so sold; and

(j) Upon all cameras sold by the manufacturer, producer or importer, a tax equivalent to 3 per centum of the price for which so sold.

Sec. 601. That each manufacturer, producer or importer of any of the articles enumerated in section 600 shall make monthly returns under oath in duplicate and pay the taxes imposed on such articles by this title to the collector of internal revenue for the district in which is located the principal place of business. Such returns shall contain such information and be made at such times and in such manner as the commissioner of internal revenue with the approval of the secretary of the treasury, may by regulations prescribe.

Sec. 602. That upon all articles enumerated in subdivisions (a), (b), (c), (f), (g), (h), (i) or (j) of section 600, which on the day this act is passed are held and intended for sale by any person, corporation, partnership or association, other than (1) a retailer who is not also a wholesaler, or (2) the manufacturer, producer or importer thereof, there shall be levied, assessed, collected and paid a tax equivalent one-half the tax imposed by each such subdivision upon the sale of the articles therein enumerated. This tax shall be paid by the person, corporation, partnership or association so holding such articles.

The taxes imposed by this section shall be assessed, collected and paid in the same manner as provided in section 1002 in the case of additional taxes upon articles upon which the tax imposed by existing law has been paid.

Nothing in this section shall be construed to impose a tax upon articles sold and delivered prior to May 2, 1917, where the title is reserved in the vendor as security for the payment of the purchase money.

Sec. 603. That on the day this act takes effect, and thereafter on July 1 in each year, and also at the time of the original purchase of a new boat by a user, if on any other date than July 1, there shall be levied, assessed, collected and paid upon the use of yachts, pleasure boats, power boats and sailing boats, of over five net tons, and motor boats with fixed engines, not used exclusively for trade or national defense, or not built according to plans and specifications approved by the navy department, an excise tax to be based on each yacht or boat, at rates as follows: Yachts, pleasure boats, power boats, motor boats with fixed engines, and sailing boats, of over five net tons, length not over fifty feet, 50 cents for each foot; length over fifty feet, and not over one hundred feet, $1 for each foot; length over one hundred feet, $2 for each foot; motor boats of not over five net tons with fixed engines, $5.

In determining the length of such yachts, pleasure boats, power boats, motor boats with fixed engines, and sailing boats, the measurement of overall length shall govern.

In the case of a tax imposed at the time of the original purchase of a new boat on any other date than July 1, the amount to be paid shall be the same number of twelfths of the amount of the tax as the number of calendar months, including the month of sale, remaining prior to the following July 1.

TITLE VII.—WAR TAX ON ADMISSIONS AND DUES.
Sec. 700. That from and after the first day of November, 1917, there shall be levied, assessed, collected and paid (a) a tax of 1 cent for each 10 cents or fraction thereof of the amount paid for admission to any place, including admission by season ticket or subscription, to be paid by the person paying for such admission. Provided, That the tax on admission of children under 12 years of age where an admission charge for such children is made shall in every case be 1 cent; and (b) in the case of persons (except bona fide employees, municipal officers on official business and children under 12 years of age) admitted free to any place at a time when and under circumstances under which an admission charge is made to other persons of the same class, a tax of 1 cent for each 10 cents or fraction thereof of the price so charged to such other persons for the same or similar accommodations, to be paid by the person so admitted; and (c) a tax of 1 cent for each 10 cents or fraction thereof paid for admission to any public performance for profit at any cabaret or other similar entertainment to which the charge for admission is wholly or in part included in the price paid for refreshment, service or merchandise; the amount paid for such admission to be computed under rules prescribed by the commissioner of internal revenue, with the approval of the secretary of the treasury, such tax to be paid by the person paying for such refreshment, service or merchandise. In the case of persons having the permanent use of boxes or seats in an opera house or any place of amusement or a lease for the use of such box or seat in such opera house or place of amusement, there shall be levied, assessed, collected and paid a tax equivalent to 10 per centum of the amount for which a similar box or seat is sold for performance or exhibition at which the box or seat is used or reserved by or for the lessee or holder. These taxes shall not be imposed in the case of a place the maximum charge for admission to which is 5 cents, or in the case of shows, rides and other amusements (the maximum charge for admission to which is 10 cents) within outdoor general amusement parks or in the case of admissions to such parks.

No tax shall be levied under this title in respect to any admissions all the proceeds of which inure exclusively to the benefit of religious, educational or charitable institutions, societies or organizations, or admissions to agricultural fairs none of the profits of which are distributed to stockholders or members of the association conducting the same.

The term "admission" as used in this title includes seats and tables, reserved or otherwise, and other similar accommodations, and the charges made therefor.

Sec. 701. That from and after the first day of November, 1917, there shall be levied, assessed, collected and paid a tax equivalent to ten per centum of any amount paid as dues or membership fees (including initiation fees) to any social, athletic or sporting club or organization, where such dues or fees are in excess of $12 per year; such taxes to be paid by the person paying such dues or fees: Provided, That there shall be exempted from the provisions of this section all amounts paid as dues or fees to a fraternal beneficiary society, order or association, operating under the lodge system or for the exclusive benefit of the members of a fraternity itself operating under the lodge system, and providing for the payment of life, sick, accident or other benefits to the members of such society, order or association or their dependents.

Sec. 702. That every person, corporation, partnership or association (a) receiving any payments for such admission, dues or fees shall collect the amount of the tax imposed by section 700 or 701 from the person making such payments, or (b) admitting any person free to any place for admission to which a charge is made shall collect the amount of the tax imposed by section 700 from the person so admitted, and (c) in either case shall make returns and payments of the amount so collected, at the same time and in the same manner as provided in section 523 of this act.

TITLE VIII.—WAR STAMP TAXES.

Sec. 800. That on and after the first day of December, 1917, there shall be levied, collected and paid, for and in respect of the several bonds, debentures or certificates of stock and of indebtedness, and other documents, instruments, matters and things mentioned and described in schedule A of this title, or for or in respect of the vellum, parchment or paper upon which such instruments, matters or things, or any of them, are written or printed, by any person, corporation, partnership or association who makes, signs, issues, sells, removes, consigns or ships the same, or for whose use or benefit the same are made, signed, issued, sold, removed, consigned or shipped, the several taxes specified in such schedule.

Sec. 801. That there shall not be taxed under this title any bond, note or other instrument, issued by the United States, or by any foreign government, or by any state, territory or the District of Columbia, or local subdivision thereof, or municipal or other corporation exercising the taxing power, when issued in the exercise of a strictly governmental, taxing or municipal function: or stocks and bonds issued by co-operative building and loan associations which are organized and operated exclusively for the benefit of their members and make loans only to their shareholders, or by mutual ditch or irrigating companies.

Sec. 802. That whoever—

(a) Makes, signs, issues or accepts, or causes to be made, signed, issued or accepted, any instrument, document or paper of any kind or description whatsoever without the full amount of tax thereon being duly paid;

(b) Consigns or ships, or causes to be consigned or shipped, by parcel post any parcel, package or article without the full amount of tax being duly paid;

(c) Manufactures or imports and sells, or offers for sale, or causes to be manufactured or imported and sold, or offered for sale, any playing cards, package or other article without the full amount of tax being duly paid;

(d) Makes use of any adhesive stamp to denote any tax imposed by this title without canceling or obliterating such stamp as prescribed in section 804;

Is guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall pay a fine of not more than $100 for each offense.

Sec. 803. That whoever—

(a) Fraudulently cuts, tears or removes from any vellum, parchment, paper, instrument, writing, package or article, upon which any tax is imposed by this title, any adhesive stamp or the impression of any stamp, die, plate or other article provided, made or used in pursuance of this title;

(b) Fraudulently uses, joins, fixes or places to, with or upon any vellum, parchment, paper, instrument, writing, package or article, upon which any tax is imposed by this title, (1) any adhesive stamp, or the impression of any stamp, die, plate or other article, which has been cut, torn or removed from any other vellum, parchment, paper, instrument, writing, package or article, upon which any tax is imposed by this title; or (2) any adhesive stamp or the impression of any stamp, die, plate or other article of insufficient value; or (3) any forged or counterfeit stamp, or the impression of any forged or counterfeit stamp, die, plate or other article;

(c) Willfully removes, or alters the cancellation, or defacing marks of, or otherwise prepares, any adhesive stamp, with intent to use or cause the same to be used, after it has been already used, or knowingly or willfully buys, sells, offers for sale, or gives away, any such washed or restored stamp to any person for use, or knowingly uses the same;

(d) Knowingly and without lawful excuse (the burden of proof of such excuse being on the accused) has in possession any washed, restored or altered stamp, which has been removed from any vellum, parchment, paper, instrument, writing, package or article, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be punished by a fine of not more than $1,000 or by imprisonment for not more than five years, or both, in the discretion of the court, and any such reused, canceled or counterfeit stamp and the vellum, parchment, document, paper, package or article upon which it is placed or impressed shall be forfeited to the United States.

Sec. 804. That whenever an adhesive stamp is used for denoting any tax imposed by this title, except as hereinafter provided, the person, corporation, partnership or association using or affixing the same shall write or stamp or cause to be written or stamped thereupon the initials of his or its name and the date upon which the same is attached or used, so that the same may not again be used: Provided, That the commissioner of internal revenue may prescribe any other method for the cancellation of such stamps as he may deem expedient.

Sec. 805. (a) That the commissioner of internal revenue shall cause to be prepared and distributed for the payment of the taxes prescribed in this title suitable stamps denoting the tax on the document, article or thing to which the same may be affixed, and shall prescribe such method for the affixing of said stamps in substitution for or in addition to the method provided in this title, as he may deem expedient.

(b) The commissioner of internal revenue, with the approval of the secretary of the treasury, is authorized to procure any of the stamps provided for in this title by contract whenever such stamps cannot be speedily prepared by the bureau of engraving and printing; but this authority shall expire on the first day of January, 1918, except as to imprinted stamps furnished under contract, authorized by the commissioner of internal revenue.

(c) All internal revenue laws relating to the assessment and collection of taxes are hereby extended to and made a part of this title, so far as applicable, for the purpose of collecting stamp taxes omitted through mistake or fraud from any instrument, document, paper, writing, parcel, package or article named herein.

Sec. 806. That the commissioner of internal revenue shall furnish to the postmaster-general without prepayment a suitable quantity of adhesive stamps to be distributed to and kept on sale by the various postmasters in the United States. The postmaster-general may require each such postmaster to give additional or increased bond as postmaster for the value of the stamps so furnished, and each such postmaster shall deposit the receipts from the sale of such stamps to the credit of and render accounts to the postmaster-general at such times and in such form as he may by regulations prescribe. The postmaster-general shall at least once monthly transfer all collections from this source to the treasury as internal revenue collections.

Sec. 807. That the collectors of the several districts shall furnish without prepayment to any assistant treasurer or designated depository of the United States located in their respective collection districts a suitable quantity of adhesive stamps for sale. In such cases the collector may require a bond, with sufficient sureties, to an amount equal to the value of the adhesive stamps so furnished, conditioned for the faithful return, whenever so required, of all quantities or amounts undisposed of, and for the payment monthly of all quantities or amounts sold or not remaining on hand. The secretary of the treasury may from time to time make such regulations as he may find necessary to insure the safekeeping or prevent the illegal use of all such adhesive stamps.

SCHEDULE A.—STAMP TAXES.

1. Bonds of indebtedness: Bonds, debentures or certificates of indebtedness issued on and after the first day of December, 1917, by any person, corporation, partnership or association, on each $100 of face value or fraction thereof, 5 cents: Provided, That every renewal of the foregoing shall be taxed as a new issue: Provided further, That when a bond conditioned for the repayment or payment of money is given in a penal sum greater than the debt secured, the tax shall be based upon the amount secured.

2. Bonds, indemnity and surety: Bonds for indemnifying any person, corporation, partnership or corporation who shall have become bound or engaged as surety, and all bonds for the due execution or performance of any contract, obligation or requirement, or the duties of any office or position, and to account for money received by virtue thereof, and all other bonds of any description, except such as may be required in legal proceedings, not otherwise provided for in this schedule, 50 cents: Provided, That where a premium is charged for the execution of such bond the tax shall be paid at the rate of one per centum on each dollar or fractional part thereof of the premium charged: Provided further, That policies of reinsurance shall be exempt from the tax imposed by this subdivision.

3. Capital stock, issues: On each original issue, whether on organization or reorganization, of certificates of stock by any association, company or corporation, on each $100 of face value or fraction thereof, 5 cents: Provided, That where capital stock is issued without face value, the tax shall be 5 cents per share, unless the actual value is in excess of $100 per share, in which case the tax shall be 5 cents on each $100 of actual value or fraction thereof.

The stamps representing the tax imposed by this subdivision shall be attached to the stock books and not to the certificates issued.

4. Capital stock, sales or transfers: On all sales, or agreements to sell, or memoranda of sales or deliveries of, or transfers of legal title to shares or certificates of stock in any association, company or corporation, whether made upon or shown by the books of the association, company or corporation, or by any assignment in blank, or by any delivery, or by any paper or agreement or memorandum or other evidence of transfer or sale, whether entitling the holder in any manner to the benefit of such stock, or not, on each $100 of face value or fraction thereof, 2 cents, and where such shares of stock are without par value, the tax shall be 2 cents on the transfer or sale or agreement to sell on each share, unless the actual value thereof is in excess of $100 per share, in which case the tax shall be 2 cents on each $100 of actual value or fraction thereof: Provided, That it is not intended by this title to impose a tax upon an agreement evidencing a deposit of stock certificates as collateral security for money loaned thereon, which stock certificates are not actually sold, nor upon such stock certificates so deposited: Provided further, That the tax shall not be imposed upon deliveries or transfers to a broker for sale, nor upon deliveries or transfers by a broker to a customer for whom and upon whose order he has purchased same, but such deliveries or transfers shall be accompanied by a certificate setting forth the facts: Provided further, That in case of sale where the evidence of transfer is shown only by the books of the company a stamp shall be placed upon such books; and where the change of ownership is by transfer of the certificate the stamp shall be placed upon the certificate; and in cases of an agreement to sell or where the transfer is by delivery of the certificate assigned in blank there shall be made and delivered by the seller to the buyer a bill or memorandum of such sale, to which the stamp shall be affixed; and every bill or memorandum of sale or agreement to sell before mentioned shall show the date thereof, the name of the seller, the amount of the sale and the matter or thing to which it refers, or any person or persons liable to pay the tax as herein provided, or anyone who acts in the matter as agent or broker for such person or persons who shall make any such sale, or who shall in pursuance of any such sale deliver any stock or evidence of the sale of any stock or bill or memorandum thereof, as herein required, without having the proper stamps affixed thereto with intent to evade the foregoing provisions shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall pay a fine of not exceeding $1,000, or be imprisoned not more than six months, or both, at the discretion of the court.

5. Produce, sales of, on exchange: Upon each sale, agreement of sale, or agreement to sell, including so-called transferred or scratch sales, any products or merchandise at any exchange, or board of trade, or other similar place, for future delivery, for each $100 in value of the merchandise covered by said sale or agreement of sale or agreement to sell, 2 cents, and for each additional $100 or fractional part thereof in excess of $100, 2 cents: Provided, That on every sale or agreement of sale or agreement to sell as aforesaid there shall be made and delivered by the seller to the buyer a bill, memorandum, agreement or other evidence of such sale, agreement of sale or agreement to sell, to which there shall be affixed a lawful stamp or stamps in value equal to the amount of the tax on such sale: Provided further, That sellers of commodities described herein, having paid the tax provided by this subdivision, may transfer such contracts to a clearing house corporation or association, and such transfer shall not be deemed to be a sale, or agreement of sale, or an agreement to sell within the provisions of this act, provided that such transfer shall not vest any beneficial interest in such clearing house association but shall be made for the sole purpose of enabling such clearing house association to adjust and balance the accounts of the members of said clearing house association on their several contracts. And every such bill, memorandum, or other evidence of sale or agreement to sell shall show the date thereof, the name of the seller, the amount of the sale, and the matter or thing to which it refers; and any person or persons liable to pay the tax as herein provided, or anyone who acts in the matter as agent or broker for such person or persons, who shall make any such sale or agreement of sale or agreement to sell, or who shall, in pursuance of any such sale, agreement of sale, or agreement to sell, deliver any such products or merchandise without a bill, memorandum, or other evidence thereof as herein required, or who shall deliver such bill, memorandum, or other evidence of sale, or agreement to sell, without having the proper stamps affixed thereto, with intent to evade the foregoing provisions, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall pay a fine of not exceeding $1,000, or be imprisoned not more than six months, or both, at the discretion of the court.

That no bill, memorandum, agreement, or other evidence of such sale, or agreement of sale, or agreement to sell, in case of cash sales of products or merchandise for immediate or prompt delivery which in good faith are actually intended to be delivered shall be subject to this tax.

6. Drafts or checks payable otherwise than at sight or on demand, promissory notes, except bank notes issued for circulation, and for each renewal of the same, for a sum not exceeding $100, 2 cents; and for each additional $100 or fractional part thereof, 2 cents.

7. Conveyance: Deed, instrument, or writing, whereby any lands, tenements, or other realty sold shall be granted, assigned, transferred, or otherwise conveyed to, or vested in, the purchaser or purchasers, or any other person or persons, by his, her, or their direction, when the consideration or value of the interest or property conveyed, exclusive of the value of any lien or incumbrance remaining thereon at the time of sale, exceeds $100 and does not exceed $500, 50 cents, and for each additional $500 or fractional part thereof 50 cents: Provided, That nothing contained in this paragraph shall be so construed as to impose a tax upon any instrument or writing given to secure a debt.

8. Entry of any goods, wares, or merchandise at any custom house, either for consumption or warehousing, not exceeding $100 in value, 25 cents; exceeding $100 and not exceeding $500 in value, 50 cents; exceeding $500 in value, $1.

9. Entry for the withdrawal of any goods or merchandise from customs bonded warehouse, 50 cents.

10. Passage ticket, one way or round trip, for each passenger, sold or issued in the United States for passage by any vessel to a port or place not in the United States, Canada, or Mexico, if costing not exceeding $30, $1; costing more than $30 and not exceeding $60, $3; costing more than $60, $5: Provided, That such passage tickets costing $10 or less, shall be exempt from taxation.

11. Proxy for voting at any election for officers, or meeting for the transaction of business, of any incorporated company or association, except religious, educational, charitable, fraternal, or literary societies, or public cemeteries, 10 cents.

12. Power of attorney granting authority to do or perform some act for or in behalf of the grantor, which authority is not otherwise vested in the grantee, 25 cents: Provided, That no stamps shall be required upon any papers necessary to be used for the collection of claims from the United States or from any state for pensions, back pay, bounty, or for property lost in the military or naval service or upon powers of attorney required in bankruptcy cases.

13. Playing cards: Upon every pack of playing cards containing not more than fifty-four cards, manufactured or imported, and sold or removed for consumption or sale, after the passage of this act, a tax of 5 cents per pack in addition to the tax imposed under existing law.

14. Parcel post packages: Upon every parcel or package transported from one point in the United States to another by parcel post on which the postage amounts to 25 cents or more, a tax of 1 cent for each 25 cents or fractional part thereof charged for such transportation, to be paid by the consignee.

On each parcel or package shall be transported until a stamp or stamps representing the tax due shall have been affixed thereto.

TITLE IX.—WAR ESTATE TAX.

Sec. 900. That in addition to the tax imposed by section 201 of the act entitled "An act to increase the revenue, and for other purposes," approved Sept. 8, 1916, as amended—

(a) A tax equal to the following percentages of its value is hereby imposed upon the transfer of each net estate of every decedent dying after the passage of this act, the transfer of which is taxable under such section (the value of such net estate to be determined as provided in title II. of such act of Sept. 8, 1916):

One-half of one per centum of the amount of such net estate not in excess of $50,000;

One per centum of the amount by which such net estate exceeds $50,000 and does not exceed $150,000;

One and one-half per centum of the amount by which such net estate exceeds $150,000 and does not exceed $250,000;

Two per centum of the amount by which such net estate exceeds $250,000 and does not exceed $450,000.

Two and one-half per centum of the amount by which such net estate exceeds $450,000 and does not exceed $1,000,000;

Three per centum of the amount by which such net estate exceeds $1,000,000 and does not exceed $2,000,000;

Three and one-half per centum of the amount by which such net estate exceeds $2,000,000 and does not exceed $3,000,000;

Four per centum of the amount by which such net estate exceeds $3,000,000 and does not exceed $4,000,000;

Four and one-half per centum of the amount by which such net estate exceeds $4,000,000 and does not exceed $5,000,000;

Five per centum of the amount by which such net estate exceeds $5,000,000 and does not exceed $8,000,000;

Seven per centum of the amount by which such net estate exceeds $8,000,000 and does not exceed $10,000,000; and Ten per centum of the amount by which such net estate exceeds $10,000,000.

Sec. 901. That the tax imposed by this title shall not apply to the transfer of the net estate of any decedent dying while serving in the military or naval forces of the United States, during the continuance of the war in which the United States is now engaged, or if death results from injuries received or disease contracted in such service, within one year after the termination of such war. For the purposes of this section the termination of the war shall be evidenced by the proclamation of the president.

TITLE X.—ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS.

Sec. 1000. That there shall be levied, collected and paid in the United States, upon articles coming into the United States from the West Indian Islands acquired from Denmark, a tax equal to the internal-revenue tax imposed in the United States upon like articles of domestic manufacture; such articles shipped from said islands to the United States shall be exempt from the payment of any tax imposed by the internal-revenue laws of said islands: Provided, That there shall be levied, collected and paid in said islands, upon articles imported from the United States, a tax equal to the internal-revenue tax imposed in said islands upon like articles there manufactured; and such articles going into said islands from the United States shall be exempt from payment of any tax imposed by the internal-revenue laws of the United States.

Sec. 1001. That all administrative, special or stamp provisions of law, including the law relating to the assessment of taxes, so far as applicable, are hereby extended to and made a part of this act, and every person, corporation, partnership or association liable to any tax imposed by this act, or for the collection thereof, shall keep such records and render, under oath, such statements and returns, and shall comply with such regulations as the commissioner of internal revenue, with the approval of the secretary of the treasury, may from time to time prescribe.

Sec. 1002. That where additional taxes are imposed by this act upon articles or commodities, upon which the tax imposed by existing law has been paid, the person, corporation, partnership or association required by this act to pay the tax shall, within thirty days after its passage, make return under oath in such form and under such regulations as the commissioner of internal revenue, with the approval of the secretary of the treasury, shall prescribe. Payment of the tax shown to be due may be extended to a date not exceeding seven months from the passage of this act, upon the filing of a bond for payment in such form and amount and with such sureties as the commissioner of internal revenue, with the approval of the secretary of the treasury, may prescribe.

Sec. 1003. That in all cases where the method of collecting the tax imposed by this act is not specially provided, the tax shall be collected in such manner as the commissioner of internal revenue, with the approval of the secretary of the treasury, may prescribe. All administrative and penalty provisions of title VIII. of this act, in so far as applicable, shall apply to the collection of any tax which the commissioner of internal revenue determines or prescribes shall be paid by stamp.

Sec. 1004. That whoever fails to make any return required by this act or the regulations made under authority thereof within the time prescribed or who makes any false or fraudulent return, and whoever evades or attempts to evade any tax imposed by this act or fails to collect or truly to account for and pay over any such tax, shall be subject to a penalty of not more than $1,000, or to imprisonment for not more than one year, or both, at the discretion of the court, and in addition thereto a penalty of double the tax evaded, or not collected, or accounted for and paid over, to be assessed and collected in the same manner as taxes are assessed and collected, in any case in which the punishment is not otherwise specifically provided.

Sec. 1005. That the commissioner of internal revenue, with the approval of the secretary of the treasury, is hereby authorized to make all needful rules and regulations for the enforcement of the provisions of this act.

Sec. 1006. That where the rate of tax imposed by this act, payable by stamps, is an increase over previously existing rates, stamps on hand in the collectors' offices and in the bureau of internal revenue may continue to be used until the supply on hand is exhausted, but shall be sold and accounted for at the rates provided by this act, and assessment shall be made against manufacturers and other taxpayers having such stamps on hand on the day this act takes effect for the difference between the amount paid for such stamps and the tax due at the rates provided by this act.

Sec. 1007. That (a) if any person, corporation, partnership or association has prior to May 9, 1917, made a bona fide contract with a dealer for the sale, after the tax takes effect, of any article (or, in the case of moving picture films, such a contract with a dealer, exchange or exhibitor, for the sale or lease thereof) upon which a tax is imposed under title III., IV., or VI., or under subdivision 13 of schedule A of title VIII., or under this section; and (b) if such contract does not permit the adding of the whole of such tax to the amount to be paid under such contract, then the vendee or lessee shall, in lieu of the vendor or lessor, pay so much of such tax as is not so permitted to be added to the contract price.

The taxes payable by the vendee or lessee under this section shall be paid to the vendor or lessor at the time the sale or lease is consummated, and collected, returned and paid to the United States by such vendor or lessor in the same manner as provided in section 503.

The term "dealer" as used in this section includes a vendee who purchases any article with intent to use it in the manufacture or production of another article intended for sale.

Sec. 1008. That in the payment of any tax under this act not payable by stamp a fractional part of a cent shall be disregarded unless it amounts to one-half cent or more, in which case it shall be increased to 1 cent.

Sec. 1009. That the secretary of the treasury, under rules and regulations prescribed by him, shall permit taxpayers liable to income and excess profits taxes to make payments in advance in installments or in whole of an amount not in excess of the estimated taxes which will be due from them, and upon determination of the taxes actually due, an amount paid in excess shall be refunded as taxes erroneously collected: Provided, That when payment is made in installments at least one-fourth of such estimated tax shall be paid before the expiration of thirty days after the close of the taxable year, at least an additional one-fourth within two months after the close of the taxable year, at least an additional one-fourth within four months after the close of the taxable year, and the remainder of the tax due on or before the time now fixed by law for such payment: Provided further, That the secretary of the treasury, under rules and regulations prescribed by him, may allow credit against such taxes so paid in advance of an amount not exceeding 3 per centum per annum calculated upon the amount so paid from the date of such payment to the date now fixed by law for such payment; but no such credit shall be allowed on payments in excess of taxes determined to be due, nor on payments made after the expiration of four and one-half months after the close of the taxable year. All penalties provided by existing law for failure to pay tax when due are hereby made applicable to any failure to pay the tax at the time or times required in this section.

Sec. 1010. That under rules and regulations prescribed by the secretary of the treasury, collectors of internal revenue may receive, at par and accrued interest, certificates of indebtedness issued under section 6 of the act entitled "An act to authorize an issue of bonds to meet expenditures for the national security and defense, and for the purpose of assisting in the prosecution of the war, to extend credit to foreign governments, and for other purposes," approved April 24, 1917, and any subsequent act or acts, and uncertified checks in payment of income and excess profits taxes, during such time and under such regulations as the commissioner of internal revenue, with the approval of the secretary of the treasury, shall prescribe; but if a check so received is not paid by the bank on which it is drawn the person by whom such check has been tendered shall remain liable for the payment of the tax and for all legal penalties and additions the same as if such check had not been tendered.

TITLE XI.—POSTAL RATES.

Sec. 1100. That the rate of postage on all mail matter of the first class, except postal cards, shall thirty days after the passage of this act be, in addition to the existing rate, 1 cent for each ounce or fraction thereof: Provided, That the rate of postage on drop letters of the first class shall be 2 cents an ounce or fraction thereof. Postal cards and private mailing or post cards, when complying with the requirements of existing law, shall be transmitted through the mails at 1 cent each in addition to the existing rate.

That letters written and mailed by soldiers, sailors, and marines assigned to duty in a foreign country engaged in the present war may be mailed free of postage, subject to such rules and regulations as may be prescribed by the postmaster-general.

Sec. 1101. That on and after July 1, 1918, the rates of postage on publications entered as second-class matter (including sample copies to the extent of ten per centum of the weight of copies mailed to subscribers during the calendar year) when sent by the publisher thereof from the postoffice of publication or other postoffice, or when sent by a news agent to actual subscribers thereto, or to other news agents for the purpose of sale:

(a) In the case of the portion of such publication devoted to matter other than advertisements, shall be as follows: (1) On and after July 1, 1918, and until July 1, 1919, 1½ cents per pound or fraction thereof; (2) on and after July 1, 1919, 1½ cents per pound or fraction thereof.

(b) In the case of the portion of such publication devoted to advertisements the rates per pound or fraction thereof for delivery within the several zones provided to fourth-class matter shall be as follows (but where the space devoted to advertisements does not exceed five per centum of the total space, the rate of postage shall be the same as if the whole of such publication was devoted to matter other than advertisements): (1) On and after July 1, 1918, and until July 1, 1919, for the first and second zones, 1½ cents; for the third zone, 1½ cents; for the fourth zone, 2 cents; for the fifth zone, 2½ cents; for the sixth zone, 2½ cents; for the seventh zone, 3 cents; for the eighth zone, 3½ cents; (2) on and after July 1, 1919, and until July 1, 1920, for the first and second zones, 1½ cents; for the third zone, 2 cents; for the fourth zone, 3 cents; for the fifth zone, 3½ cents; for the sixth zone, 4 cents; for the seventh zone, 5 cents; for the eighth zone, 5½ cents; (3) on and after July 1, 1920, and until July 1, 1921, for the first and second zones, 1½ cents; for the third zone, 2½ cents; for the fourth zone, 4 cents; for the fifth zone, 4½ cents; for the sixth zone, 5½ cents; for the seventh zone, 7 cents; for the eighth zone, 7½ cents; (4) on and after July 1, 1921, for the first and second zones, 2 cents; for the third zone, 3 cents; for the fourth zone, 5 cents; for the fifth zone, 6 cents; for the sixth zone, 7 cents; for the seventh zone, 9 cents; for the eighth zone, 10 cents;

(c) With the first mailing of each issue of each such publication, the publisher shall file with the postmaster a copy of such issue, together with a statement containing such information as the postmaster-general may prescribe for determining the postage chargeable thereon.

Sec. 1102. That the rate of postage on daily newspapers, when the same are deposited in a letter carrier office for delivery by its carriers, shall be the same as now provided by law; and nothing in this title shall affect existing law as to free circulation and existing rates on second class mail matter within the county of publication. Provided, That the postmaster-general may hereafter require publishers to separate or make up to zones in such a manner as he may direct all mail matter of the second class when offered for mailing.

Sec. 1103. That in the case of newspapers and periodicals entitled to be entered as second class matter and maintained by and in the interest of religious, educational, scientific, philanthropic, agricultural, labor or fraternal organizations or associations, not organized for profit and none of the net income of which accrues to the benefit of any private stockholder or individual, the second class postage rates shall be, irrespective of the zone in which delivered (except when the same are deposited in a letter carrier office for delivery by its carriers, in which case the rates shall be the same as now provided by law), $1\frac{1}{2}$ cents a pound or fraction thereof on and after July 1, 1918, and until July 1, 1919, and on and after July 1, 1919, $1\frac{1}{4}$ cents a pound or fraction thereof. The publishers of such newspapers or periodicals before being entitled to the foregoing rates shall furnish to the postmaster-general, at such times and under such conditions as he may prescribe, satisfactory evidence that none of the net income of such organization inures to the benefit of any private stockholder or individual.

Sec. 1104. That where the total weight of any one edition or issue of any publication mailed to any one zone does not exceed one pound, the rate of postage shall be 1 cent.

Sec. 1105. The zone rates provided by this title shall relate to the entire bulk mailed to any one zone and not to individually addressed packages.

Sec. 1106. That where a newspaper or periodical is mailed by other than the publisher or his agent or a news agent or dealer, the rate shall be the same as now provided by law.

Sec. 1107. That the postmaster-general, on or before the tenth day of each month, shall pay into the general fund of the treasury an amount equal to the difference between the estimated amount received during the preceding month for the transportation of first class matter through the mails and the estimated amount which would have been received under the provisions of the law in force at the time of the passage of this act.

Sec. 1108. That the salaries of postmasters at offices of the first, second, and third classes shall not be increased after July 1, 1917, during the existence of the present war. The compensation of postmasters at offices of the fourth class shall continue to be computed on the basis of the present rates of postage.

Sec. 1109. That where postmasters at offices of the third class have been since May 1, 1917, or hereafter are granted leave without pay for military purposes, the postmaster-general may allow, in addition to the maximum amounts which may now be allowed such offices for clerk hire, in accordance with law, an amount not to exceed fifty per centum of the salary of the postmaster.

Sec. 1110. That section 5 of the act approved March 3, 1917, entitled "An act making appropriations for the postoffice department for the year ending June 30, 1918," shall not be construed to apply to ethyl alcohol for governmental, scientific, medicinal, mechanical, manufacturing, and industrial purposes, and the postmaster-general shall prescribe suitable rules and regulations to carry into effect this section in connection with the act of which it is amendatory, nor shall said section be held to prohibit the use of the mails by regularly ordained ministers of religion, or by officers of regularly established churches, for ordering wines for sacramental uses, or by manufacturers and dealers for quoting and billing such wines for such purposes only.

TITLE XII.—INCOME TAX AMENDMENTS.

Sec. 1200. That subdivision (a) of section 2 of such act of Sept. 8, 1916, is hereby amended to read as follows:

"(a) That, subject only to such exemptions and deductions as are hereinafter allowed, the net income of a taxable person shall include gains, profits, and income, derived from salaries, wages, or compensation for personal service of whatever kind and in whatever form paid, or from professions, vocations, businesses, trade, commerce, or sales, or dealings in property, whether real or personal, growing out of the ownership or use of or interest in real or personal property, also from interest, rent, dividends, securities, or the transaction of any business carried on for gain or profit, or gains or profits and income derived from any source whatever."

Section 4 of such act of Sept. 8, 1916, is hereby amended to read as follows:

Sec. 4. The following income shall be exempt from the provisions of this title:

"The proceeds of life insurance policies paid to individual beneficiaries upon the death of the insured; the amount received by the insured, as a return of premium or premiums paid by him under life insurance, endowment, or annuity contracts, either during the term or at the maturity of the term mentioned in the contract or upon surrender of the contract; the value of property acquired by gift, bequest, devise, or descent (but the income from such property shall be included as income); interest upon the obligations of a state or any political subdivision thereof or upon the obligations of the United States (but, in the case of obligations of the United States issued after Sept. 1, 1917, only if and to the extent provided in the act authorizing the issue thereof) or its possessions, or securities issued under the provisions of the federal farm loan act of July 17, 1916; the compensation of the present president of the United States during the term for which he has been elected and the judges of the Supreme and inferior courts of the United States now in office, and the compensation of all officers and employees of a state, or any political subdivision thereof, except when such compensation is paid by the United States government."

Sec. 1201. (1) That paragraphs second and third of subdivision (a) of section 5 of such act of Sept. 8, 1916, are hereby amended to read as follows:

"Second. All interest paid within the year on his indebtedness except on indebtedness incurred for the purchase of obligations or securities the interest upon which is exempt from taxation as income under this title;

"Third. Taxes paid within the year imposed by the authority of the United States (except income and excess profits taxes) or of its territories, or possessions, or any foreign country, or by the authority of any state, county, school district, or municipality, or other taxing subdivision of any state, not including those assessed against local benefits."

(2) That section 5 of such act of Sept. 8, 1916, is hereby amended by adding at the end of subdivision (a) a further paragraph, numbered 9, to read as follows:

"Ninth. Contributions or gifts actually made within the year to corporations or associations organized and operated exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific, or educational purposes, or to societies for the prevention of cruelty to children or animals, no part of the net income of which inures to the benefit of any private stockholder or individual, to an amount not in excess of fifteen per centum of the taxpayer's taxable net income as computed without the benefit of this paragraph. Such contributions or gifts shall be allowable as deductions only if verified under rules and regulations prescribed by the commissioner of internal revenue, with the approval of the secretary of the treasury."

Sec. 1202. That (1) paragraphs second and third of subdivision (a) of section 6 of such act of Sept. 8, 1916, are hereby amended to read as follows:

"Second. The proportion of all interest paid within the year by such person on his indebtedness (except on indebtedness incurred for the purchase of obligations or securities the interest upon which is exempt from taxation as income under this title) which the gross amount of his income for the year derived from sources within the United States bears to the gross amount of his income for the year derived from all sources within and without the United States, but this deduction shall be allowed only if such person includes in the return required by section 8 all the information necessary for its calculation;

"Third. Taxes paid within the year imposed by the authority of the United States (except income and excess profits taxes), or of its territories, or possessions, or by the authority of any state, county, school district, or municipality, or other taxing subdivision of any state, paid within the United States, not including those assessed against local benefits."

(2) Section 6 of such act of Sept. 8, 1916, is also further amended by adding a new subdivision to read as follows:

"(c) A nonresident alien individual shall receive the benefit of the deductions and credits provided for in this section only by filing or causing to be filed with the collector of internal revenue a true and accurate return of his total income, received from all sources, corporate or otherwise, in the United States, in the manner prescribed by this title; and in case of his failure to file such return the collector shall collect the tax on such income, and all property belonging to such nonresident alien individual shall be liable to distraint for the tax."

Sec. 1203. (1) That section 7 of such act of Sept. 8, 1916, is hereby amended to read as follows:

"Sec. 7. That for the purpose of the normal tax only, there shall be allowed as an exemption in the nature of a deduction from the amount of the net income of each citizen or resident of the United States, ascertained as provided herein, the sum of $3,000, plus $1,000 additional if the person making the return be a head of a family or a married man with a wife living with him, or plus the sum of $1,000 additional if the person making the return be a married woman with a husband living with her; but in no event shall this additional exemption of $1,000 be deducted by both a husband and a wife: Provided, That only one deduction of $3,000 shall be made from the aggregate income of both husband and wife when living together: Provided further, That if the person making the return is the head of a family there shall be an additional exemption of $200 for each child dependent upon such person, if under 18 years of age, or if incapable of self-support because mentally or physically defective, but this provision shall operate only in the case of one parent in the same family: Provided further, That guardians or trustees shall be allowed to make this personal exemption as to income derived from the property of which such guardian or trustee has charge in favor of each ward or cestui que trust: Provided further, That in no event shall a ward or cestui que trust be allowed a greater personal exemption than as provided in this section, from the amount of net income received from all sources. There shall also be allowed an exemption from the amount of the net income of estates of deceased citizens or residents of the United States during the period of administration or settlement, and of trust or other estates of citizens or residents of the United States the income of which is not distributed annually or regularly under the provisions of subdivision (b) of section 2, the sum of $3,000, such such deductions as are allowed under section 5."

(2) Subdivision (b) of section 7 of such act of Sept. 8, 1916, is hereby repealed.

Sec. 1204. (1) That subdivisions (c) and (e) of section 8 of such act of Sept. 8, 1916, are hereby amended to read as follows:

"(c) Guardians, trustees, executors, administrators, receivers, conservators and all persons, corporations or associations, acting in any fiduciary capacity, shall make and render a return of the income of the person, trust or estate for whom or which they act, and be subject to all the provisions of this title which apply to individuals. Such fiduciary shall make oath that he has sufficient knowledge of the affairs of such person, trust or estate to enable him to make such return and that the same is, to the best of his knowledge and belief, true and correct, and be subject to all the provisions of this title which apply to individuals: Provided, That a return made by one of two or more joint fiduciaries filed in the district where such fiduciary resides, under such regulations as the secretary of the treasury may prescribe, shall be a sufficient compliance with the requirements of this paragraph: Provided further, That no return of income not exceeding $3,000 shall be required except as in this title otherwise provided.

"(e) Persons carrying on business in partnership shall be liable for income tax only in their individual capacity, and the share of the profits of the partnership to which any taxable partner would be entitled if the same were divided, whether divided or otherwise, shall be returned for taxation and the tax paid under the provisions of this title: Provided, That from the net distributive interests on which the individual members shall be liable for tax, normal and additional, there shall be excluded their proportionate shares received from interests on the obligations of a state or any political or taxing subdivision thereof, and upon the obligations of the United States (if and to the extent that it is provided in the act authorizing the issue of such obligations of the United States that they are exempt from taxation), and its possessions, and that for the purpose of computing the normal tax there shall be allowed a credit, as provided by section 6, subdivision (b), for their proportionate share of the profits derived from dividends. Such partnership, when requested by the commissioner of internal revenue or any district collector, shall render a correct return of the earnings, profits and income of the partnership, except income exempt under section 4 of this act, setting forth the item of the gross income and the deductions and credits allowed by this title, and the names and addresses of the individuals who would be entitled to the net earnings, profits and income, if distributed. A partnership shall have the same privilege of fixing and making returns upon the basis of its own fiscal year as is accorded to corporations under this title. If a fiscal year ends during 1916 or a subsequent calendar year for which there is a rate of tax different from the rate for the preceding calendar year, then (1) the rate for such preceding calendar year shall apply to an amount of each partner's share of such partnership profits equal to the proportion which the part of such fiscal year falling within such calendar year bears to the full fiscal year, and (2) the rate for the calendar year during which such fiscal year ends shall apply to the remainder."

(2) Subdivision (d) of section 8 of such act of Sept. 8, 1916, is hereby repealed.

Sec. 1205. (1) That subdivisions (b), (c), (f) and (g) of section 9 of such act of Sept. 8, 1916, are hereby amended to read as follows:

"(b) All persons, corporations, partnerships, associations and insurance companies, in whatever capacity acting, including lessees or mortgagors of real or personal property, trustees acting in any trust capacity, executors, administrators, receivers, conservators, employers and all officers and employees of the United States, having the control, receipt, custody, disposal or payment of interest, rent, salaries, wages, premiums, annuities, compensation, remuneration, emoluments or other fixed or determinable annual or periodical gains, profits and income of any nonresident alien individual, other than income derived from dividends on capital stock, or from the net earnings of a corporation, joint stock company or association, or insurance company, which is taxable upon its net income as provided in this title, are hereby authorized and required to deduct and withhold from such annual or periodical gains, profits and income such sum as will be sufficient to pay the normal tax imposed thereon by this title, and shall make return thereon on or before March 1 of each year and, on or before the time fixed by law for the payment of the tax, shall pay the amount withheld to the officer of the United States government authorized to receive the same; and they are each hereby made personally liable for such tax, and they are each hereby indemnified against every person, corporation, partnership, association or insurance company, or demand whatsoever for all payments which they shall make in pursuance and by virtue of this title.

"(c) The amount of the normal tax hereinbefore imposed shall also be deducted and withheld from fixed or determinable annual or periodical gains, profits and income derived from interest upon bonds and mortgages, or deeds of trust or other similar obligations of corporations, joint stock companies, associations, and insurance companies (if such bonds, mortgages, or other obligations contain a contract or provision by which the obligor agrees to pay any portion of the tax imposed by this title upon the obligee or to reimburse the obligee for any portion of the tax or to pay the interest without deduction for any tax which the obligor may be required or permitted to pay thereon or to retain therefrom under any law of the United States), whether payable annually or at shorter or longer periods and whether such interest is payable to a nonresident alien individual or to an individual citizen or resident of the United States, subject to the provisions of the foregoing subdivision (b) of this section requiring the tax to be withheld at the source and deducted from annual income and returned and paid to the government, unless the person entitled to receive such interest shall file with the withholding agent, on or before Feb. 1, a signed notice in writing claiming the benefit of an exemption under section 7 of this title.

"(f) All persons, corporations, partnerships, or associations, undertaking as a matter of business or for profit the collection of foreign payments of interest or dividends by means of coupons, checks, or bills of exchange shall obtain a license from the commissioner of internal revenue, and shall be subject to such regulations enabling the government to obtain the information required under this title as the commissioner of internal revenue, with the approval of the secretary of the treasury, shall prescribe; and whoever knowingly undertakes to collect such payments as aforesaid without having obtained a license therefor, or without complying with such regulations, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and for each offense be fined in a sum not exceeding $5,000, or imprisoned for a term not exceeding one year, or both, in the discretion of the court.

"(g) The tax herein imposed upon gains, profits, and incomes not falling under the foregoing and not returned and paid by virtue of the foregoing or as otherwise provided by law shall be assessed by personal return under rules and regulations to be prescribed by the commissioner of internal revenue and approved by the secretary of the treasury. The intent and purpose of this title is that all gains, profits, and income of a taxable class, as defined by this title, shall be charged and assessed with the corresponding tax, normal and additional, prescribed by this title, and said tax shall be paid by the owner of such income, or the proper representative having the receipt, custody, control, or disposal of the same. For the purpose of this title ownership or liability shall be determined as of the year for which a return is required to be rendered.

"The provisions of this section, except subdivision (b), relating to the deduction and payment of the tax at the source of income shall only apply to the normal tax hereinbefore imposed upon nonresident alien individuals."

(2) Subdivisions (d) and (e) of section 9 of such act of Sept. 8, 1916, are hereby repealed.

Sec. 1206. (1) That the first paragraph of section 10 of such act of Sept. 8, 1916, is hereby amended to read as follows:

"Sec. 10. (a) That there shall be levied, assessed, collected, and paid annually upon the total net income received in the preceding calendar year from all sources by every corporation, joint stock company or association, or insurance company, organized in the United States, no matter how created or organized, but not including partnerships, a tax of two per centum upon such income, and a like tax shall be levied, assessed, collected, and paid annually upon the total net income received in the preceding calendar year from all sources within the United States by every corporation, joint stock company or association, or insurance company, organized, authorized, or existing under the laws of any foreign country, including interest on bonds, notes, or other interest bearing obligations of residents, corporate or otherwise, and including the income derived from dividends on capital stock or from net earnings of resident corporations, joint stock companies or associations, or insurance companies, whose net income is taxable under this title."

(2) Section 10 of such act of Sept. 8, 1916, is hereby further amended by adding a new subdivision as follows:

"(b) In addition to the income tax imposed by subdivision (a) of this section there shall be levied, assessed, collected, and paid annually an additional tax of 10 per centum upon the amount remaining undistributed six months after the end of each calendar or fiscal year, of the total net income of every corporation, joint stock company or association, or insurance company, received during the year, as determined for the purposes of the tax imposed by such subdivision (a), but not including the amount of any income taxes paid by it within the year imposed by the authority of the United States.

"The tax imposed by this subdivision shall not apply to that portion of such undistributed net income which is actually invested and employed in the business or is retained for employment in the reasonable requirements of the business or is invested in obligations of the United States issued after Sept. 1, 1917: Provided, That if the secretary of the treasury ascertains and finds that any portion of such amount so retained at any time for employment in the business is not so employed or is not reasonably required in the business a tax of 15 per centum shall be levied, assessed, collected, and paid thereon.

"The foregoing tax rates shall apply to the undistributed net income received by every taxable corporation, joint stock company or association, or insurance company in the calendar year 1917 and in each year thereafter, except that if it has fixed its own fiscal year under the provisions of existing law, the foregoing rates shall apply to the proportion of the taxable undistributed net income returned for the fiscal year ending prior to Dec. 31, 1917, which the period between Jan. 1, 1917, and the end of such fiscal year bears to the whole of such fiscal year."

Sec. 1207. (1) That paragraphs third and fourth of subdivision (a) of section 12 of such act of

Sept. 8, 1916, are hereby amended to read as follows:

"Third. The amount of interest paid within the year on its indebtedness (except on indebtedness incurred for the purchase of obligations or securities the interest upon which is exempt from taxation as income under this title) to an amount of such indebtedness not in excess of the sum of (a) the entire amount of the paid-up capital stock outstanding at the close of the year, or, if no capital stock, the entire amount of capital employed in the business at the close of the year; and (b) one-half of its interest bearing indebtedness then outstanding: Provided, That for the purpose of this title preferred capital stock shall not be considered interest bearing indebtedness, and interest or dividends paid upon this stock shall not be deductible from gross income: Provided further, That in cases wherein shares of capital stock are issued without par or nominal value, the amount of paid-up capital stock, within the meaning of this section, as represented by such shares, will be the amount of cash, or its equivalent, not transferred to the corporation as a consideration for such shares: Provided further, That in the case of indebtedness wholly secured by property collateral, tangible or intangible, the subject of sale or hypothecation in the ordinary business of such corporation, joint stock company or association as a dealer only in the property constituting such collateral, or in loaning the funds thereby procured, the total interest paid by such corporation, company or association within the year on any such indebtedness may be deducted as a part of its expenses of doing business, but interest on such indebtedness shall only be deductible on an amount of such indebtedness not in excess of the actual value of such property collateral: Provided further, That in the case of bonds or other indebtedness, which have been issued with a guaranty that the interest payable thereon shall be free from taxation, no deduction for the payment of the tax herein imposed, or any other tax paid pursuant to such guaranty, shall be allowed; and in the case of a bank, banking association, loan or trust company, interest paid within the year on deposits or on moneys received for investment and secured by interest bearing certificates of indebtedness issued by such bank, banking association, loan or trust company shall be deducted;

"Fourth. Taxes paid within the year imposed by the authority of the United States (except income and excess profits taxes), or of its territories, or possessions, or any foreign country, or by the authority of any state, county, school district or municipality, or other taxing subdivision of any state, not including those assessed against local benefits."

(2) Paragraphs third and fourth of subdivision (b) of section 13 of such act of Sept. 8, 1916, are hereby amended to read as follows:

"Third. The amount of interest paid within the year on its indebtedness (except on indebtedness incurred for the purchase of obligations or securities the interest upon which is exempt from taxation as income under this title) to an amount of such indebtedness not in excess of the proportion of the sum of (a) the entire amount of the paid-up capital stock outstanding at the close of the year, or, if no capital stock, the entire amount of the capital employed in the business at the close of the year; and (b) one-half of its interest bearing indebtedness then outstanding, which the gross amount of its income for the year from business transacted and capital invested within the United States bears to the gross amount of its income derived from all sources within and without the United States: Provided, That in the case of bonds or other indebtedness which have been issued with a guaranty that the interest payable thereon shall be free from taxation, no deduction for the payment of the tax herein imposed or any other tax paid pursuant to such guaranty shall be allowed; and in case of a bank, banking association, loan or trust company, or branch thereof, interest paid within the year on deposits by or on moneys received for investment from either citizens or residents of the United States and secured by interest bearing certificates of indebtedness issued by such bank, banking association, loan or trust company, or branch thereof;

"Fourth. Taxes paid within the year imposed by the authority of the United States (except income and excess profits taxes), or of its territories, or possessions, or by the authority of any state, county, school district or municipality, or other taxing subdivision of any state, paid within the United States, not including those assessed against local benefits."

Sec. 1208. That subdivision (c) of section 13 of such act of Sept. 8, 1916, is hereby amended to read as follows:

"(c) All the provisions of this title relating to the tax authorized and required to be deducted and withheld and paid to the officer of the United States government authorized to receive the same from the income of nonresident alien individuals from sources within the United States shall be made applicable to the tax imposed by subdivision (a) of section 10 upon incomes derived from interest upon bonds and mortgages or deeds of trust or similar obligations of domestic or other resident corporations, joint stock companies or associations, and insurance companies by nonresident alien firms, partnerships, companies, corporations, joint stock companies or associations and insurance companies, not engaged in business or trade within the United States and not having any office or place of business therein."

Sec. 1209. That section 13 of such act of Sept. 8, 1916, is hereby amended to read as follows:

"Sec. 13. That any person, corporation, partnership, association or insurance company, liable to pay the tax, to make a return or to supply information required under this title, who refuses or neglects to pay such tax, to make such return or to supply such information at the time or times herein specified in each year, shall be liable, except as otherwise specially provided in this title, to a penalty of not less than $30 nor more than $1,000. Any individual or any officer of any corporation, partnership, association or insurance company, required by law to make, render, sign or verify any return or to supply any information, who makes any false or fraudulent return or statement with intent to defeat or evade the assessment required by this title to be made, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be fined not exceeding $2,000 or be imprisoned not exceeding one year, or both, in the discretion of the court, with the costs of prosecution: Provided, That where any tax heretofore due and payable has been duly paid by the taxpayer, it shall not be re-collected from any withholding agent required to retain it at its source, nor shall any penalty be imposed or collected in such cases from the taxpayer, or such withholding agent, whose duty it was to retain it, for failure to return or pay the same, unless such failure was fraudulent and for the purpose of evading payment."

Sec. 1210. That section 26 of such act of Sept. 8, 1916, as amended by the act entitled "An act to provide increased revenue to defray the expenses of the increased appropriations for the army and navy and the extensions of fortifications and for other purposes," approved March 3, 1917, is hereby amended to read as follows:

"Sec. 26. Every corporation, joint stock company or association or insurance company subject to the tax herein imposed, when required by the commissioner of internal revenue, shall render a correct return, duly verified under oath, of its payments of dividends, whether made in cash or its equivalent or in stock, including the names and addresses of stockholders and the number of shares owned by each, and the tax years and the applicable amounts in which such dividends were earned, in such form and manner as may be prescribed by the commissioner of internal revenue, with the approval of the secretary of the treasury."

Sec. 1211. That title I. of such act of Sept. 8, 1916, is hereby amended by adding to part III. six new sections, as follows:

"Sec. 27. That every person, corporation, partnership or association doing business as a broker on any exchange or board of trade or other similar place of business shall, when required by the commissioner of internal revenue, render a correct return duly verified under oath, under such rules and regulations as the commissioner of internal revenue, with the approval of the secretary of the treasury, may prescribe, showing the names of customers for whom such person, corporation, partnership or association has transacted any business, with such details as to the profit, losses or other information which the commissioner may require, as to each of such customers, as will enable the commissioner of internal revenue to determine whether all income tax due on profits or gains of such customers has been paid.

"Sec. 28. That all persons, corporations, partnerships, associations and insurance companies, in whatever capacity acting, including lessees or mortgagors of real or personal property, trustees acting in any trust capacity, executors, administrators, receivers, conservators and employers, making payment to another person, corporation, partnership, association or insurance company, of interest, rent, salaries, wages, premiums, annuities, compensation, remuneration, emoluments or other fixed or determinable gains, profits and income (other than payments described in sections 26 and 27), of $300 or more in any taxable year, or, in the case of such payments made by the United States, the officers or employees of the United States having information as to such payments and required to make returns in regard thereto by the regulations hereinafter provided for, are hereby authorized and required to render a true and accurate return to the commissioner of internal revenue, under such rules and regulations and in such form and manner as may be prescribed by him, with the approval of the secretary of the treasury, setting forth the amount of such gains, profits and income, and the name and address of the recipient of such payment: Provided, That such returns shall be required, regardless of amounts, in the case of payments of interest upon bonds and mortgages or deeds of trust or other similar obligations of corporations, joint stock companies, associations and insurance companies, and in the case of collections of items (not payable in the United States) of interest upon the bonds of foreign countries and interest from the bonds and dividends from the stock of foreign corporations by persons, corporations, partnerships or associations undertaking as a matter of business or for profit the collection of foreign payments of such interest or dividends by means of coupons, checks or bills of exchange.

"When necessary to make effective the provisions of this section the name and address of the recipient of income shall be furnished upon demand of the person, corporation, partnership, association or insurance company paying the income.

"The provisions of this section shall apply to the calendar year 1917 and each year thereafter, but shall not apply to the payment of interest on obligations of the United States.

"Sec. 29. That in assessing income tax the net income embraced in the return shall also be credited with the amount of any excess profits tax imposed by act of congress and assessed for the same calendar or fiscal year upon the taxpayer, and, in the case of a member of a partnership, with his proportionate share of such excess profits tax imposed upon the partnership.

"Sec. 30. That nothing in section II. of the act approved Oct. 3, 1913, entitled 'An act to reduce tariff duties and to provide revenue for the government, and for other purposes,' or in this title, shall be construed as taxing the income of foreign governments received from investments in the United States in stocks, bonds or other domestic securities owned by such foreign governments, or from interest on deposits in banks in the United States of moneys belonging to foreign governments.

"Sec. 31. (a) That the term 'dividends' as used in this title shall be held to mean any distribution made or ordered to be made by a corporation, joint stock company, association or insurance company out of its earnings or profits accrued since March 1, 1913, and payable to its shareholders, whether in cash or in stock of the corporation, joint stock company, association or insurance company, which stock dividend shall be considered income, to the amount of the earnings or profits so distributed.

"(b) Any distribution made to the shareholders or members of a corporation, joint stock company or association, or insurance company, in the year 1917, or subsequent tax years, shall be deemed to have been made from the most recently accumulated undivided profits or surplus, and shall constitute a part of the annual income of the distributee for the year in which received, and shall be taxed to the distributee at the rates prescribed by law for the years in which such profits or surplus were accumulated by the corporation, joint stock company, association or insurance company, but nothing herein shall be construed as taxing any earnings or profits accrued prior to March 1, 1913, but such earnings or profits may be distributed in stock dividends or otherwise, exempt from the tax, after the distribution of earnings and profits accrued since March 1, 1913, has been made. This subdivision shall not apply to any distribution made prior to Aug. 6, 1917, out of earnings or profits accrued prior to March 1, 1913.

"Sec. 32. That premiums paid on life insurance policies covering the lives of officers, employees, or those financially interested in any trade or business conducted by an individual, partnership, corporation, joint stock company or association, or insurance company, shall not be deducted in computing the net income of such individual, corporation, joint stock company or association, or insurance company, or in computing the profits of such partnership for the purposes of subdivision (c) of section 9."

Sec. 1212. That any amount heretofore withheld by any withholding agent as required by title I. of such act of Sept. 8, 1916, on account of the tax imposed upon the income of any individual a citizen or resident of the United States, for the calendar year 1917, except in the cases covered by subdivision (c) of section 9 of such act, as amended by this act, shall be released and paid over to such individual, and the entire tax upon the income of such individual for such year shall be assessed and collected in the manner prescribed by such act as amended by this act.

TITLE XIII.—GENERAL PROVISIONS.

Sec. 1300. That if any clause, sentence, paragraph or part of this act shall for any reason be adjudged by any court of competent jurisdiction to be invalid, such judgment shall not affect, impair or invalidate the remainder of said act, but shall be confined in its operation to the clause, sentence, paragraph or part thereof directly involved in the controversy in which such judgment shall have been rendered.

Sec. 1301. That title I. of the act entitled "An act to provide increased revenue to defray the expenses of the increased appropriations for the army and navy and the extension of fortifications, and for other purposes," approved March 3, 1917, be, and the same is hereby, repealed.

Sec. 1302. That unless otherwise herein specially provided, this act shall take effect on the day following its passage.

(Approved Oct. 3, 1917.)

TRADING WITH THE ENEMY.

An act to define, regulate and punish trading with the enemy, and for other purposes.

Be it enacted, etc., that this act shall be known as the "Trading with the enemy act."

Sec. 2. That the word "enemy," as used herein, shall be deemed to mean, for the purposes of such trading and of this act—

(a) Any individual, partnership or other body of individuals, of any nationality, resident within the territory (including that occupied by the military and naval forces) of any nation with which the United States is at war, or resident outside the United States and doing business within such territory, and any corporation incorporated within such territory of any nation with which the United States is at war or incorporated within any country other than the United States and doing business within such territory.

(b) The government of any nation with which the United States is at war, or any political or municipal subdivision thereof, or any officer, official, agent or agency thereof.

(c) Such other individuals, or body or class of individuals, as may be natives, citizens or subjects of any nation with which the United States is at war, other than citizens of the United States, wherever resident or wherever doing business, as the president, if he shall find the safety of the United States or the successful prosecution of the war shall so require, may, by proclamation, include within the term "enemy."

The words "ally of enemy," as used herein, shall be deemed to mean—

(a) Any individual, partnership or other body of individuals, of any nationality, resident within the territory (including that occupied by the military and naval forces) of any nation which is an ally of a nation with which the United States is at war, or resident outside the United States and doing business within such territory, and any corporation incorporated within such territory of such ally nation, or incorporated within any country other than the United States and doing business within such territory.

(b) The government of any nation which is an ally of a nation with which the United States is at war, or any political or municipal subdivision of such ally nation, or any officer, official, agent or agency thereof.

(c) Such other individuals, or body or class of individuals, as may be natives, citizens or subjects of any nation which is an ally of a nation with which the United States is at war, other than citizens of the United States, wherever resident or wherever doing business, as the president, if he shall find the safety of the United States or the successful prosecution of the war shall so require, may, by proclamation, include within the term "ally of enemy."

The word "person," as used herein, shall be deemed to mean an individual, partnership, association, company or other unincorporated body of individuals, or corporation or body politic.

The words "United States," as used herein, shall be deemed to mean all land and water, continental or insular, in any way within the jurisdiction of the United States or occupied by the military or naval forces thereof.

The words "the beginning of the war," as used herein, shall be deemed to mean midnight ending the day on which congress has declared or shall declare war or the existence of a state of war.

The words "end of the war," as used herein, shall be deemed to mean the date of proclamation of exchange of ratifications of the treaty of peace, unless the president shall, by proclamation, declare a prior date, in which case the date so proclaimed shall be deemed to be the "end of the war" within the meaning of this act.

The words "bank or banks," as used herein, shall be deemed to mean and include national banks, state banks, trust companies or other banks or banking associations doing business under the laws of the United States, or of any state of the United States.

The words "to trade," as used herein, shall be deemed to mean—

(a) Pay, satisfy, compromise or give security for the payment or satisfaction of any debt or obligation.

(b) Draw, accept, pay, present for acceptance or payment or indorse any negotiable instrument or chose in action.

(c) Enter into, carry on, complete or perform any contract, agreement or obligation.

(d) Buy or sell, loan or extend credit, trade in, deal with, exchange, transmit, transfer, assign or otherwise dispose of or receive any form of property.

(e) To have any form of business or commercial communication or intercourse with.

Sec. 3. That it shall be unlawful—

(a) For any person in the United States, except with the license of the president, granted to such person, or to the enemy, or ally of enemy, as provided in this act, to trade or attempt to trade, either directly or indirectly, with, to, or from, or for, or on account of, or on behalf of, or for the benefit of, any other person, with knowledge or reasonable cause to believe that such other person is an enemy or ally of enemy, or is conducting or taking part in such trade, directly or indirectly, for, or on account of, or on behalf of, or for the benefit of, an enemy or ally of enemy.

(b) For any person, except with the license of the president, to transport or attempt to transport into or from the United States, or for any owner, master or other person in charge of a vessel of American registry to transport or attempt to transport from any place to any other place, any subject or citizen of any enemy or ally of enemy nation, with knowledge or reasonable cause to believe that the person transported or attempted to be transported is such subject or citizen.

(c) For any person (other than a person in the service of the United States government or of the government of any nation, except that of an enemy or ally of enemy nation, and other than such persons or classes of persons as may be exempted hereunder by the president or by such person as he may direct), to send, or take out of, or bring into, or attempt to send, or take out of, or bring into the United States, any letter or other writing or tangible form of communication, except in the regular course of the mail; and it shall be unlawful for any person to send, take or transmit, or attempt to send, take or transmit out of the United States, any letter or other writing, book, map, plan or other paper, picture or any telegram, cablegram or wireless message, or other form of communication intended for or to be delivered, directly or indirectly, to an enemy or ally of enemy: Provided, however, That any person may send, take or transmit out of the United States any writing herein forbidden if he shall first submit the same to the president, or to such officer as the president may direct, and shall obtain the license or consent of the president, under such rules and regulations, and with such exemptions, as shall be prescribed by the president.

(d) Whenever, during the present war, the president shall deem that the public safety demands it, he may cause to be censored under such rules and regulations as he may from time to time establish, communications by mail, cable, radio or other means of transmission passing between the United States and any foreign country he may from time to time specify, which may be carried by any vessel or other means of transportation touching at any port, place or territory of the United States and bound to or from any foreign country. Any person who willfully evades or attempts to evade the submission of any such communication to such censorship or willfully uses or attempts to use any code or other device for the purpose of concealing from such censorship the intended meaning of such communication shall be punished as provided in section 16 of this act.

Sec. 4. (a) Every enemy or ally of enemy insurance and reinsurance company, and every enemy or ally of enemy, doing business within the United States through an agency or branch office or otherwise, may, within thirty days after the passage of this act, apply to the president for a license to continue to do business; and, within thirty days after such application, the president may enter an order either granting or refusing to grant such license. The license, if granted, may be temporary or otherwise, and for such period of time, and may contain such provisions and conditions regulating the business, agencies, managers and trustees and the control and disposition of the funds of the company, or of such enemy or ally of enemy as the president shall deem necessary for the safety of the United States; and any license granted hereunder may be revoked or regran- t- ed at any time in such manner and at such times as the president shall determine: Provided, however, That reasonable notice of his intent to refuse to grant a license or to revoke a license granted to any reinsurance company shall be given by him to all insurance companies incorporated within the United States and known to the president to be doing business with such reinsurance company: Provided further, That no insurance company, organized within the United States, shall be obligated to continue any existing contract, entered into prior to the beginning of the war, with any enemy or ally of enemy insurance or reinsurance company, but any such company may abrogate and cancel any such contract by serving thirty days' notice in writing upon the president of its election to abrogate such contract.

For a period of thirty days after the passage of this act, and further pending the entry of such order by the president, after application made by any enemy or ally of enemy insurance or reinsurance company, within such thirty days as above provided, the provisions of the president's proclamation of April 6, 1917, relative to agencies in the United States of certain insurance companies, as modified by the provisions of the president's proclamation of July 13, 1917, relative to marine and war risk insurance, shall remain in full force and effect so far as it applies to such German insurance companies, and the conditions of said proclamation of April 6, 1917, as modified by said proclamation of July 13, 1917, shall also during said period of thirty days after the passage of this act, and pending the order of the president as herein provided, apply to any enemy or ally of enemy insurance or reinsurance company, anything in this act to the contrary notwithstanding. It shall be unlawful for any enemy or ally of enemy insurance or reinsurance company, to whom license is granted, to transmit out of the United States any funds belonging to or held for the benefit of such company or to use any such funds as the basis for the establishment directly or indirectly of any credit within or outside of the United States to or for the benefit of, or on behalf of, or on account of, an enemy or ally of enemy.

For a period of thirty days after the passage of this act, and further pending the entry of such order by the president, after application made within such thirty days by any enemy or ally of enemy, other than an insurance or reinsurance company as above provided, it shall be lawful for such enemy or ally of enemy to continue to do business in this country and for any person to trade with, to, from, for, on account of, on behalf of or for the benefit of such enemy or ally of enemy, anything in this act to the contrary notwithstanding: Provided, however, That the provisions of sections 3 and 16 hereof shall apply to any act or attempted act of transmission or transfer of money or other property out of the United States and to the use or attempted use of such money or property as the basis for the establishment of any credit within or outside of the United States to, or for the benefit of, or on behalf of, or on account of, an enemy or ally of enemy.

If no license is applied for within thirty days after the passage of this act, or if a license shall be refused to any enemy or ally of enemy, whether insurance or reinsurance company or other person, making application, or if any license granted shall be revoked by the president, the provisions of sections 3 and 16 hereof shall forthwith apply to all trade or to any attempt to trade with, to, from, for, by on account of, or on behalf of, or for the benefit of such company or other person: Provided, however, That after such refusal or revocation, anything in this act to the contrary notwithstanding, it shall be lawful for a policyholder or for an insurance company, not an enemy or ally of enemy, holding insurance or having effected reinsurance in or with such enemy or ally of enemy insurance or reinsurance company, to receive payment of, and for such enemy or ally of enemy insurance or reinsurance company to pay any premium, return premium, claim, money, security or other property due or which may become due on or in respect to such insurance or reinsurance in force at the date of such refusal or revocation of license; and nothing in this act shall vitiate or nullify then existing policies or contracts of insurance or reinsurance or the conditions thereof; and any such policyholder or insurance company, not an enemy or ally of enemy, having any claim to or upon money or other property of the enemy or ally of enemy insurance or reinsurance company in the custody or control of the alien property custodian, hereinafter provided for, or of the treasurer of the United States, may make application for the payment thereof and may institute suit as provided in section 9 hereof.

(b) That, during the present war, no enemy or ally of enemy, and no partnership of which he is a member or was a member at the beginning of the war, shall for any purpose assume or use any name other than that by which such enemy or partnership was ordinarily known at the beginning of the war, except under license from the president.

Whenever, during the present war, in the opinion of the president the public safety or public interest requires, the president may prohibit any or all foreign insurance companies from doing business in the United States, or the president may license such company or companies to do business upon such terms as he may deem proper.

Sec. 5. (a) That the president, if he shall find it compatible with the safety of the United States and with the successful prosecution of the war, may, by proclamation, suspend the provisions of this act so far as they apply to an ally of enemy, and he may revoke or renew such suspension from time to time; and the president may grant licenses, special or general, temporary or otherwise, and for such period of time and containing such provisions and conditions as he shall prescribe, to any person or class of persons to do business as provided in subsection (a) of section 4 hereof, and to perform any act made unlawful without such license in section 3 hereof, and to file and prosecute applications under subsection (b) of section 10 hereof, and he may revoke or renew such licenses from time to time, if he shall be of opinion that such grant or revocation or renewal shall be compatible with the safety of the United States and with the successful prosecution of the war; and he may make such rules and regulations, not inconsistent with law, as may be necessary and proper to carry out the provisions of this act; and the president may exercise any power or authority conferred by this act through such officer or officers as he shall direct.

If the president shall have reasonable cause to believe that any act is about to be performed in violation of section 3 hereof he shall have authority to order the postponement of the performance of such act for a period not exceeding ninety days, pending investigation of the facts by him.

(b) That the president may investigate, regulate or prohibit, under such rules and regulations as he may prescribe, by means of licenses or otherwise, any transactions in foreign exchange, export or import of gold or silver coin or bullion or currency, transfers of credit in any form (other than credits relating solely to transactions to be executed wholly within the United States), and transfers of evidences of indebtedness or of the ownership of property between the United States and any foreign country, whether enemy, ally of enemy or otherwise, or between residents of one or more foreign countries, by any person within the United States; and he may require any such person engaged in any such transaction to furnish, under oath, complete information relative thereto, including the production of any books of account, contracts, letters or other papers in connection therewith in the custody or control of such person, either before or after such transaction is completed.

Sec. 6. That the president is authorized to appoint, prescribe the duties of and fix the salary (not to exceed $5,000 per annum) of an official to be known as the alien property custodian, who shall be empowered to receive all money and property in the United States due or belonging to an enemy or ally of enemy, which may be paid, conveyed, transferred, assigned or delivered to said custodian under the provisions of this act; and to hold, administer and account for the same under the general direction of the president and as provided in this act. The alien property custodian shall give such bond or bonds, and in such form and amount, and with such security as the president shall prescribe. The president may further employ in the District of Columbia and elsewhere and fix the compensation of such clerks, attorneys, investigators, accountants and other employees as he may find necessary for the due administration of the provisions of this act. Provided, That such clerks, investigators, accountants and other employees shall be appointed from lists of eligibles to be supplied by the civil service commission and in accordance with the civil service law. Provided further, That the president shall cause a detailed report to be made to congress on the first day of January of each year of all proceedings had under this act during the year preceding. Such report shall contain a list of all persons appointed or employed, with the salary or compensation paid to each, and a statement of the different kinds of property taken into custody and the disposition made thereof.

Sec. 7. (a) That every corporation incorporated within the United States, and every unincorporated association, or company, or trustee, or trustees within the United States, issuing shares or certificates representing beneficial interests, shall, under such rules and regulations as the president may prescribe and within sixty days after the passage of this act, and at such other times thereafter as the president may require, transmit to the alien property custodian a full list, duly sworn to, of every officer, director or stockholder known to be, or whom the representative of such corporation, association, company or trustee has reasonable cause to believe to be, an enemy or ally of enemy resident within the territory, or a subject or citizen, residing outside of the United States, of any nation with which the United States is at war, or resident within the territory, or a subject or citizen, residing outside of the United States, of any ally of any nation with which the United States is at war, together with the amount of stock or shares owned by each such officer, director or stockholder, or in which he has any interest.

The president may also require a similar list to be transmitted of all stock or shares owned on Feb. 3, 1917, by any person now defined as an enemy or ally of enemy, or in which any such person had any interest, and he may also require a list to be transmitted of all cases in which said corporation, association, company or trustee has reasonable cause to believe that the stock or shares on Feb. 3, 1917, were owned or are owned by such enemy or ally of enemy, though standing on the books in the name of another: Provided, however, That the name of any such officer, director or stockholder shall be stricken permanently or temporarily from such list by the alien property custodian when he shall be satisfied that he is not such enemy or ally of enemy.

Any person in the United States who holds or has or shall hold or have custody or control of any property beneficial or otherwise, alone or jointly with others, of, for or on behalf of an enemy or ally of enemy, or of any person whom he may have reasonable cause to believe to be an enemy or ally of enemy, and any person in the United States who is or shall be indebted in any way to an enemy or ally of enemy, or to any person whom he may have reasonable cause to believe to be an enemy or ally of enemy, shall, with such exceptions and under such rules and regulations as the president shall prescribe, and within thirty days after the passage of this act, or within thirty days after such property shall come within his custody or control, or after such debt shall become due, report the fact to the alien property custodian by written statement under oath containing such particulars as said custodian shall require. The president may also require a similar report of all property so held, of, for or on behalf of, and of all debts so owed to, any person now defined as an enemy or ally of enemy, on Feb. 3, 1917: Provided, That the name of any person shall be stricken from the said report by the alien property custodian, either temporarily or permanently, when he shall be satisfied that such person is not an enemy or ally of enemy. The president may extend the time for filing the lists or reports required by this section for an additional period not exceeding ninety days.

(b) Nothing in this act contained shall render valid or legal, or be construed to recognize as valid or legal, any act or transaction constituting trade with, to, from, for or on account of, or on behalf or for the benefit of an enemy performed or engaged in since the beginning of the war and prior to the passage of this act, or any such act or transaction hereafter performed or engaged in except as authorized hereunder, which would otherwise have been or be void, illegal or invalid at law. No conveyance, transfer, assignment, payment or loan of money or other property, in violation of section 8 hereof, made after the passage of this act, and not under license as herein provided, shall confer or create any right or remedy in respect thereof; and no person shall by virtue of any assignment, indorsement or delivery to him of any debt, bill, note or other obligation or chose in action by, from or on behalf of, or on account of, or for the benefit of an enemy or ally of enemy have any right or remedy against the debtor, obligor or other person liable to pay, fulfill or perform the same unless said assignment, indorsement or delivery was made prior to the beginning of the war or shall be made under license as herein provided, or unless, if made after the beginning of the war and prior to the date of passage of this act, the person to whom the same was made shall prove lack of knowledge and of reasonable cause to believe on his part that the same was made by, from or on behalf of, or on account of, or for the benefit of an enemy or ally of enemy; and any person who knowingly pays, discharges or satisfies any such debt, note, bill or other obligation or chose in action shall, on conviction thereof, be deemed to violate section 3 hereof: Provided, That nothing in this act contained shall prevent the carrying out, completion or performance of any contract, agreement or obligation originally made with or entered into by an enemy or ally of enemy where, prior to the beginning of the war and not in contemplation thereof, the interest of such enemy or ally of enemy devolved by assignment or otherwise upon a person not an enemy or ally of enemy, and such enemy or ally of enemy will be benefited by such carrying out, completion or performance otherwise than by release from obligation thereunder.

Nothing in this act shall be deemed to prevent payment of money belonging or owing to an enemy or ally of enemy to a person within the United States not an enemy or ally of enemy, for the benefit of such person or of any other person within the United States, not an enemy or ally of enemy, if the funds so paid shall have been received prior to the beginning of the war and such payments arise out of transactions entered into prior to the beginning of the war, and not in contemplation thereof. Provided, That such payment shall not be made without the license of the president, general or special, as provided in this act.

Nothing in this act shall be deemed to authorize the prosecution of any suit or action at law or in equity in any court within the United States by an enemy or ally of enemy prior to the end of the war, except as provided in section 10 hereof: Provided, however, That an enemy or ally of enemy licensed to do business under this act may prosecute and maintain any such suit or action so far as the same arises solely out of the business transacted within the United States under such license and so long as such license remains in full force and effect: And provided further, That an enemy or ally of enemy may defend by counsel any suit in equity or action at law which may be brought against him.

Receipt of notice from the president to the effect that he has reasonable ground to believe that any person is an enemy or ally of enemy shall be prima facie defense to any one receiving the same, in any suit or action at law or in equity brought or maintained, or to any right or set-off or recoupment asserted by such person and based on failure to complete or perform since the beginning of the war any contract or other obligation. In any prosecution under section 16 hereof, proof of receipt of notice from the president to the effect that he has reasonable cause to believe that any person is an enemy or ally of enemy shall be prima facie evidence that the person receiving such notice has reasonable cause to believe such other person to be an enemy or ally of enemy within the meaning of section 3 hereof.

(c) If the president shall so require, any money or other property owing or belonging to or held for, by, on account of, or on behalf of, or for the benefit of an enemy or ally of enemy not holding a license granted by the president hereunder, which the president after investigation shall determine is so owing or so belongs or is so held, shall be conveyed, transferred, assigned, delivered or paid over to the alien property custodian.

(d) If not required to pay, convey, transfer, assign or deliver under the provisions of subsection (c) hereof, any person not an enemy or ally of enemy who owes to, or holds for, or on account of, or on behalf of, or for the benefit of an enemy or of an ally of enemy not holding a license granted by the president hereunder, any money or other property, or to whom any obligation or form of liability to such enemy or ally of enemy is presented for payment, may, at his option, with the consent of the president, pay, convey, transfer, assign or deliver to the alien property custodian said money or other property under such rules and regulations as the president shall prescribe.

(e) No person shall be held liable in any court for or in respect to anything done or omitted in pursuance of any order, rule or regulation made by the president under the authority of this act.

Any payment, conveyance, transfer, assignment or delivery of money or property made to the alien property custodian hereunder shall be a full acquittance and discharge for all purposes of the obligation of the person making the same to the extent of same. The alien property custodian and such other persons as the president may appoint shall have power to execute, acknowledge and deliver any such instrument or instruments as may be necessary or proper to evidence and support the record or otherwise such acquittance and discharge, and shall, in case of payment to the alien property custodian of any debt or obligation owed to an enemy or ally of enemy, deliver up any notes, bonds or other evidences of indebtedness or obligation, or any security therefor in which such enemy or ally of enemy had any right or interest that may have come into the possession of the alien property custodian, with like effect as if he or they, respectively, were duly appointed by the enemy or ally of enemy, creditor or obligee. The president shall issue to every person so appointed a certificate of the appointment and authority of such person, and such certificate shall be received in evidence in all courts within the United States. Whenever any such certificate of authority shall be offered to any registrar, clerk or other recording officer, federal or otherwise, within the United States, such officer shall record the same in like manner as a power of attorney, and such record or a duly certified copy thereof shall be received in evidence in all courts of the United States or other courts within the United States.

Sec. 8. (a) That any person not an enemy or ally of enemy holding a lawful mortgage, pledge or lien, or other right in the nature of security in property of an enemy or ally of enemy which, by law or by the terms of the instrument creating such mortgage, pledge, or lien, or right, may be disposed of on notice or presentation or demand, and any person not an enemy or ally of enemy who is a party to any lawful contract with an enemy or ally of enemy, the terms of which provide for a termination thereof upon notice or for acceleration of maturity on presentation or demand, may continue to hold said property, and, after default, may dispose of the property in accordance with law or may terminate or mature such contract by notice or presentation or demand served or made on the alien property custodian in accordance with the law and the terms of such instrument or contract and under such rules and regulations as the president shall prescribe, and such notice and such presentation and demand shall have, in all respects, the same force and effect as if duly served or made upon the enemy or ally of enemy personally: Provided, That no such rule or regulation shall require that notice or presentation or demand shall be served or made in any case in which, by law or by the terms of said instrument or contract, no notice, presentation or demand was, prior to the passage of this act, required; and that in case where, by law or by the terms of such instrument or contract, notice is required, no longer period of notice shall be required: Provided further, That if, on any such disposition of property, a surplus shall remain after the satisfaction of the mortgage, pledge, lien or other right in the nature of security, notice of that fact shall be given to the president pursuant to such rules and regulations as he may prescribe, and such surplus shall be held subject to his further order.

(b) That any contract entered into prior to the beginning of the war between any citizen of the United States or any corporation organized within the United States, and an enemy or ally of an enemy, the terms of which provide for the delivery, during or after any war in which a present enemy or ally of enemy nation has been or is now engaged, of anything produced, mined or manufactured in the United States, may be abrogated by such citizen or corporation, by serving thirty days' notice in writing upon the alien property custodian of his or its election to abrogate such contract.

(c) The running of any statute of limitations shall be suspended with reference to the rights or remedies on any contract or obligation entered into prior to the beginning of the war between parties neither of whom is an enemy or ally of enemy, and containing any promise to pay or liability for payment which is evidenced by drafts or other commercial paper drawn against or secured by funds or other property situated in an enemy or ally of enemy country, and no suit shall be maintained on any such contract or obligation in any court within the United States until after the end of the war, or until the said funds or property shall be released for the payment or satisfaction of such contract or obligation: Provided, however, That nothing herein contained shall be construed to prevent the suspension of the running of the statute of limitations in all other cases where such suspension would occur under existing law.

Sec. 9. That any person, not an enemy or ally of enemy, claiming any interest, right or title in any money or other property which may have been conveyed, transferred, assigned, delivered or paid to the alien property custodian hereunder, and held by him or by the treasurer of the United States, or to whom any debt may be owing from an enemy or ally of enemy, whose property or any part thereof shall have been conveyed, transferred, assigned, delivered or paid to the alien property custodian hereunder, and held by him or by the treasurer of the United States, may file with the said custodian a notice of his claim under oath and in such form and containing such particulars as the said custodian shall require; and the president, if application is made therefor by the claimant, may, with the assent of the owner of said property and of all persons claiming any right, title or interest therein, order the payment, conveyance, transfer, assignment or delivery to said claimant of the money or other property so held by the alien property custodian or by the treasurer of the United States or of the interest therein to which the president shall determine said claimant is entitled: Provided, That no such order by the president shall bar any person from the prosecution of any suit at law or in equity against the claimant to establish any right, title or interest which he may have in such money or other property. If the president shall not so order within sixty days after the filing of such application, or if the claimant shall have filed the notice as above required and shall have made no application to the president, said claimant may, at any time before the expiration of six months after the end of the war, institute a suit in equity in the District court of the United States for the district in which such claimant resides, or, if a corporation, where it has its principal place of business (to which suit the alien property custodian or the treasurer of the United States, as the case may be, shall be made a party defendant), to establish the interest, right, title or debt so claimed; and if suit shall be so instituted then the money or other property of the enemy or ally of enemy, against whom such interest, right or title is asserted, or debt claimed, shall be retained in the custody of the alien property custodian, or in the treasury of the United States, as provided in this act, and until any final judgment or decree which shall be entered in favor of the claimant shall be fully satisfied by payment or conveyance, transfer, assignment or delivery by the defendant or by the alien property custodian or treasurer of the United States on order of the court, or until final judgment or decree shall be entered against the claimant, or suit otherwise terminated.

Except as herein provided, the money or other property conveyed, transferred, assigned, delivered or paid to the alien property custodian shall not be liable to lien, attachment, garnishment, trustee process or execution, or subject to any order or decree of any court.

This section shall not apply, however, to money paid to the alien property custodian under section 10 hereof.

Sec. 10. That nothing contained in this act shall be held to make unlawful any of the following acts:

(a) An enemy or ally of enemy may file and prosecute in the United States an application for letters patent, or for registration of trade-mark, print, label or copyright, and may pay any fees therefor in accordance with and as required by the provisions of existing law and fees for attorneys or agents for filing and prosecuting such applications. Any such enemy or ally of enemy who is unable during war, or within six months thereafter, on account of conditions arising out of war, to file any such application, or to pay any official fee, or to take any action required by law within the period prescribed by law, may be granted an extension of nine months beyond the expiration of said period, provided the nation of which the said applicant is a citizen, subject or corporation shall extend substantially similar privileges to citizens and corporations of the United States.

(b) Any citizen of the United States, or any corporation organized within the United States, may, when duly authorized by the president, pay to an enemy or ally of enemy any tax, annuity or fee which may be required by the laws of such enemy or ally of enemy nation in relation to patents and trade-marks, prints, labels and copyrights; and any such citizen or corporation may file and prosecute an application for letters patent or for registration of trade-mark, print, label or copyright in the country of an enemy or of an ally of enemy after first submitting such application to the president and receiving license so to file and prosecute, and to pay the fees required by law and customary agents' fees, the maximum amount of which in each case shall be subject to the control of the president.

(c) Any citizen of the United States or any corporation organized within the United States desiring to manufacture, or cause to be manufactured, a machine, manufacture, composition of matter, or design, or to carry on, or to use any trade-mark, print, label, or cause to be carried on a process under any patent or copyrighted matter owned or controlled by an enemy or ally of enemy at any time during the existence of a state of war may apply to the president for a license; and the president is hereby authorized to grant such a license, nonexclusive or exclusive as he shall deem best, provided he shall be of the opinion that such grant is for the public welfare, and that the applicant is able and intends in good faith to manufacture, or cause to be manufactured, the machine, manufacture, composition of matter, or design, or to carry on, or cause to be carried on, the process or to use the trade-mark, print, label or copyrighted matter. The president may prescribe the conditions of this license, including the fixing of prices of articles and products necessary to the health of the military and naval forces of the United States or the successful prosecution of the war, and the rules and regulations under which such license may be granted and the fee which shall be charged therefor, not exceeding $100, and not exceeding 1 per centum of the fund deposited as hereinafter provided. Such license shall be a complete defense to any suit at law or in equity instituted by the enemy or ally of enemy owners of the letters patent, trade-mark, print, label or copyright, or otherwise, against the licensee for infringement or for damages, royalty or other money award on account of anything done by the licensee under such license, except as provided in subsection (f) hereof.

(d) The licensee shall file with the president a full statement of the extent of the use and enjoyment of the license and of the prices received in such form and at such stated periods (at least annually) as the president may prescribe; and the licensee shall pay at such times as may be required to the alien property custodian not to exceed 5 per centum of the gross sums received by the licensee from the sale of said inventions or use of the trade-mark, print, label or copyrighted matter. If the president shall so order 5 per centum of the value of the use of such inventions, trade-marks, prints, labels or copyrighted matter to the licensee as established by the president; and sums so paid shall be deposited by said alien property custodian forthwith in the treasury of the United States as a trust fund for the said licensee and for the owner of the said patent, trade-mark, print, label or copyright registration as hereinafter provided, to be paid from the treasury upon order of the court, as provided in subdivision (f) of this section, or upon the direction of the alien property custodian.

(e) Unless surrendered or terminated as provided in this act, any license granted hereunder shall continue during the term fixed in the license or in the absence of any such limitation during the term of the patent, trade-mark, print, label or copyright registration under which it is granted. Upon violation by the licensee of any of the provisions of this act, or of the conditions of the license, the president may, after due notice and hearing, cancel any license granted by him.

(f) The owner of any patent, trade-mark, print, label or copyright under which a license is granted hereunder may, after the end of the war and until the expiration of one year thereafter, file a bill in equity against the licensee in the District court of the United States for the district in which the said licensee resides, or, if a corporation, in which it has its principal place of business (to which suit the treasurer of the United States shall be made a party), for recovery from the said licensee for all use and enjoyment of the said patented invention, trade-mark, print, label or copyrighted matter: Provided, however, That whenever suit is brought, as above, notice shall be filed with the alien property custodian within thirty days after date of entry of suit: Provided further, That the licensee may make any and all defenses which would be available were no license granted. The court on due proceedings had may adjudge and decree to the said owner payment of a reasonable royalty. The amount of said judgment and decree, when final, shall be paid on order of the court to the owner of the patent from the fund deposited by the licensee, so far as such deposit will satisfy said judgment and decree; and the said payment shall be in full or partial satisfaction of said judgment and decree, as the facts may appear: and if, after payment of all such judgments and decrees, there shall remain any balance of said deposit, such balance shall be repaid to the licensee on order of the alien property custodian. If no suit is brought within one year after the end of the war, or no notice is filed as above required, then the licensee shall not be liable to make any further deposits, and all funds deposited by him shall be repaid to him on order of the alien property custodian. Upon entry of suit and notice filed as above provided, or upon repayment of funds as above provided, the liability of the licensee to make further reports to the president shall cease.

If suit is brought as above provided, the court may, at any time, terminate the license, and may, in such event, issue an injunction to restrain the licensee from infringement thereafter, or the court, in case the licensee, prior to suit, shall have made investment of capital based on possession of the license, may continue the license for such period and upon such terms and with such royalties as it shall find to be just and reasonable.

(g) Any enemy or ally of enemy may institute and prosecute suits in equity against any person other than a licensee under this act to enjoin infringement of letters patent, trade-mark, print, label and copyrights in the United States owned or controlled by said enemy or ally of enemy, in the same manner and to the extent that he would be entitled so to do if the United States was not at war: Provided, That no final judgment or decree shall be entered in favor of such enemy or ally of enemy by any court except after thirty days' notice to the alien property custodian. Such notice shall be in writing and shall be served in the same manner as civil process of federal courts.

(h) All powers of attorney heretofore or hereafter granted by an enemy or ally of enemy to any person within the United States, in so far as they may be requisite to the performance of acts authorized in subsections (a) and (g) of this section, shall be valid.

(i) Whenever the publication of an invention by the granting of a patent may, in the opinion of the president, be detrimental to the public safety or defense, or may assist the enemy or endanger the successful prosecution of the war, he may order that the invention be kept secret and withhold the grant of a patent until the end of the war: Provided, That the invention disclosed in the application for said patent may be held abandoned upon its being established before or by the commissioner of patents that, in violation of said order, said invention has been published or that an application for a patent therefor has been filed in any other country, by the inventor or his assigns or legal representatives, without the consent or approval of the commissioner or under a license of the president.

When an applicant whose patent is withheld as herein provided and who faithfully obeys the order of the president above referred to shall tender his invention to the government of the United States, for its use, he shall, if he ultimately relieves a patent, have the right to sue for compensation in the Court of Claims, such right to compensation to begin from the date of the use of the invention by the government.

Sec. 11. Whenever during the present war the president shall find that the public safety so requires and shall make proclamation thereof it shall be unlawful to import into the United States from any country named in such proclamation any article or articles mentioned in such proclamation except at such time or times, and under such regulations or orders, and subject to such limitations and exceptions as the president shall prescribe, until otherwise ordered by the president or by congress: Provided, however, That no preference shall be given to the ports of one state over those of another.

Sec. 12. That all moneys (including checks and drafts payable on demand) paid to or received by the alien property custodian pursuant to this act shall be deposited forthwith in the treasury of the United States, and may be invested and reinvested by the secretary of the treasury in United States bonds or United States certificates of indebtedness, under such rules and regulations as the president shall prescribe for such deposit, investment and sale of securities; and as soon after the end of the war as the president shall deem practicable, such securities shall be sold and the proceeds deposited in the treasury.

All other property of an enemy or ally of enemy conveyed or transferred, assigned, delivered or paid to the alien property custodian hereunder shall be safely held and administered by him except as hereinafter provided; and the president is authorized to designate as a depository, or depositaries, of property of an enemy or ally of enemy, any bank, or banks, or trust company, or trust companies, or other suitable depository or depositaries, located and doing business in the United States. The alien property custodian may deposit with such designated depository or depositaries, or with the secretary of the treasury, any stocks, bonds, notes, time drafts, time bills of exchange, or other securities, or property (except money or checks or drafts payable on demand which are required to be deposited with the secretary of the treasury) and such depository or depositaries shall be authorized and empowered to collect any dividends or interest or income that may become due and any maturing obligations held for the account of such custodian. Any moneys collected on said account shall be paid and deposited forthwith by said depository or by the alien property custodian into the treasury of the United States as hereinbefore provided.

The president shall require all such designated depositaries to execute and file bonds sufficient in his judgment to protect property on deposit, such bonds to be conditioned as he may direct.

The alien property custodian shall be vested with all of the powers of a common law trustee in respect of all property, other than money, which shall come into his possession in pursuance of the provisions of this act, and, acting under the supervision and direction of the president, and under such rules and regulations as the president shall prescribe, may manage such property and do any act or things in respect thereof or make any disposition thereof or of any part thereof, by sale or otherwise, and exercise any rights which may be or become appurtenant thereto or to the ownership thereof, if and when necessary to prevent waste and protect such property and to the end that interests of the United States in such property and rights or of such person as may ultimately become entitled thereto, or to the proceeds thereof, may be preserved and safeguarded. It shall be the duty of every corporation incorporated within the United States and every unincorporated association, or company, or trustee, or trustees within the United States issuing shares or certificates representing beneficial interests to transfer such shares or certificates upon its, his or their books into the name of the alien property custodian upon demand, accompanied by the presentation of the certificates which represent such shares or beneficial interests. The alien property custodian shall forthwith deposit in the treasury of the United States, as hereinbefore provided, the proceeds of any such property or rights so sold by him.

Any money or property required or authorized by the provisions of this act to be paid, conveyed, transferred, assigned or delivered to the alien property custodian shall, if said custodian shall so direct by written order, be paid, conveyed, transferred, assigned or delivered to the treasurer of the United States with the same effect as if to the alien property custodian.

After the end of the war any claim of any enemy or of an ally of enemy to any money or other property received and held by the alien property custodian or deposited in the United States treasury, shall be settled as congress shall direct: Provided, however, That on order of the president as set forth in section 9 hereof, or of the court, as set forth in sections 9 and 10 hereof, the alien property custodian or the treasurer of the United States, as the case may be, shall forthwith convey, transfer, assign and pay to the person to whom the president shall so order, or in whose behalf the court shall enter final judgment or decree, any property of an enemy or ally of enemy held by said custodian or by said treasurer, so far as may be necessary to comply with said order of the president or said final judgment or decree of the court: And provided further, That the treasurer of the United States, on order of the alien property custodian, shall, as provided in section 10 hereof, repay the licensee any funds deposited by said licensee.

Sec. 12. That, during the present war, in addition to the facts required by sections 4197, 4198 and 4200 of the Revised Statutes, as amended by the act of June 15, 1917, to be set out in the master's and shipper's manifests before clearance will be issued to vessels bound to foreign ports, the master or person in charge of any vessel, before departure of such vessel from port, shall deliver to the collector of customs of the district wherein such vessel is located a statement duly verified by oath that the cargo is not shipped or to be delivered in violation of this act, and the owners, shippers or consignors of the cargo of such vessels shall in like manner deliver to the collector like statement under oath as to the cargo or the parts thereof laden or shipped by them, respectively, which statement shall contain also the names and addresses of the actual consignees of the cargo, or if the shipment is made to a bank or other broker, factor or agent, the names and addresses of the persons who are the actual consignees on whose account the shipment is made. The master or person in control of the vessel shall, on reaching port of destination of any of the cargo, deliver a copy of the manifest and of the said master's, owner's, shipper's or consignor's statement to the American consular officer of the district in which the cargo is unladen.

Sec. 14. That, during the present war, whenever there is reasonable cause to believe that the manifest or the additional statements under oath required by the preceding section are false or that any vessel, domestic or foreign, is about to carry out of the United States any property or for the account or benefit of an enemy, or ally of enemy or any property of a person whose export, taking out, or transport will be in violation of law, the collector of customs for the district in which such vessel is located is hereby authorized and empowered subject to review by the president to refuse clearance to any such vessel, domestic or foreign, for which clearance is required by law, and by formal notice served upon the owners, master or person or persons in command or charge of any domestic vessel for which clearance is not required by law, to forbid the departure of such vessel from the port, and it shall thereupon be unlawful for such vessel to depart.

The collector of customs shall, during the present war, in each case report to the president the amount of gold or silver coin or bullion or other moneys of the United States contained in any cargo intended for export. Such report shall include the names and addresses of the consignors and consignees, together with any facts known to the collector with reference to such shipment and particularly those which may indicate that such gold or silver coin or bullion or moneys of the United States may be intended for delivery or may be delivered, directly or indirectly, to an enemy or an ally of enemy.

Sec. 15. That the sum of $450,000 is hereby appropriated, out of any money in the treasury of the United States not otherwise appropriated, to be used in the discretion of the president for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of this act during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1918, and for the payment of salaries of all persons employed under this act, together with the necessary expenses for transportation, subsistence, rental of quarters in the District of Columbia, books of reference, periodicals, stationery, typewriters and exchanges thereof, miscellaneous supplies, printing to be done at the government printing office and all other necessary expenses not included in the foregoing.

Sec. 16. That whoever shall willfully violate any of the provisions of this act or of any license, rule or regulation issued thereunder, and whoever shall willfully violate, neglect or refuse to comply with any order of the president issued in compliance with the provisions of this act shall, upon conviction, be fined not more than $10,000, or if a natural person, imprisoned for not more than ten years, or both; and the officer, director or agent of any corporation who knowingly participates in such violation shall be punished by a like term of imprisonment, or both, and any property, funds, securities, papers or other articles or documents, or any vessel, together with her tackle, apparel, furniture and equipment, concerned in such violation shall be forfeited to the United States.

Sec. 17. That the District courts of the United States are hereby given jurisdiction to make and enter all such rules as to notice and otherwise, and all such orders and decrees, and to issue such process as may be necessary and proper in the premises to enforce the provisions of this act, with a right of appeal from the final order or decree of such court as provided in sections 123 and 238 of the act of March 3, 1911, entitled "An act to codify, revise and amend the laws relating to the judiciary."

Sec. 18. That the several courts of first instance in the Philippine islands and the District court of the Canal Zone shall have jurisdiction of offenses under this act committed within their respective districts, and concurrent jurisdiction with the District courts of the United States of offenses under this act committed upon the high seas and of conspiracies to commit such offenses as defined by section 37 of the act entitled "An act to codify, revise and amend the penal laws of the United States," approved March 4, 1909, and the provisions of such section for the purpose of this act are hereby extended to the Philippine islands and to the Canal Zone.

Sec. 19. That ten days after the approval of this act and until the end of the war, it shall be unlawful for any person, firm, corporation or association, to print, publish or circulate, or cause to be printed, published or circulated in any foreign language any news item, editorial or other printed matter, respecting the government of the United States, or of any nation engaged in the present war, its policies, international relations, the state or conduct of the war, or any matter relating thereto: Provided,

* That this section shall not apply to any print, newspaper or publication where the publisher or distributor thereof, on or before offering the same for mailing, or in any manner distributing it to the public, has filed with the postmaster at the place of publication, in the form of an affidavit, a true and complete translation of the entire article containing such matter proposed to be published in such print, newspaper or publication, and has caused to be printed, in plain type in the English language, at the head of each such item, editorial or other matter, on each copy of such print, newspaper or publication, the words "True translation filed with the postmaster at on (naming the post-office where the translation was filed, and the date of filing thereof), as required by the act of (here giving the date of the act)."

Any print, newspaper or publication in any foreign language which does not conform to the provisions of this section is hereby declared to be nonmailable, and it shall be unlawful for any person, firm, corporation or association to transport, carry or otherwise publish or distribute the same, or to transport, carry or otherwise publish or distribute any matter which is made nonmailable by the provisions of the act relating to espionage, approved June 15, 1917. Provided further, That upon evidence satisfactory to him that any print, newspaper or publication, printed in a foreign language may be printed, published and distributed free from the foregoing restrictions and conditions without detriment to the United States in the conduct of the present war, the president may cause to be issued to the printers or publishers of such print, newspaper or publication a permit to print, publish and circulate the issue or issues of their print, newspaper or publication, free from such restrictions and requirements, such permits to be subject to revocation at his discretion. And the postmaster-general shall cause copies of all such permits and revocations of permits to be furnished to the postmaster of the postoffice serving the place from which the print, newspaper or publication granted the permit is to emanate. All matter printed, published and distributed under permits shall bear at the head thereof in plain type in the English language, the words, "Published and distributed under permit authorized by the act of (here giving date of this act), on file at the postoffice of (giving name of office)."

Any person who shall make an affidavit containing any false statement in connection with the translation provided for in this section shall be guilty of the crime of perjury and subject to the punishment provided thereby by section 125 of the act of March 4, 1909, entitled, "An act to codify, revise and amend the penal laws of the United States," and any person, firm, corporation or association violating any other requirement of this section shall, on conviction thereof, be punished by a fine of not more than $500, or by imprisonment of not more than one year, or, in the discretion of the court, may be both fined and imprisoned. (Approved Oct. 6, 1917.)

WAR RISK INSURANCE FOR SOLDIERS AND SAILORS.

An act to amend an act entitled "An act to authorize the establishment of a bureau of war risk insurance in the treasury department," approved Sept. 2, 1914, and for other purposes.

Be it enacted, etc., That the first section of the act entitled, "An act to authorize the establishment of a bureau of war risk insurance in the treasury department," approved Sept. 2, 1914, as amended, is hereby amended to read as follows:

ARTICLE I.

Section 1. That there is established in the treasury department a bureau to be known as the bureau of war risk insurance, the director of which shall receive a salary at the rate of $5,000 per annum.

That there be in such bureau a division of marine and seamen's insurance and a division of military and naval insurance in charge of a commissioner of marine and seamen's insurance and a commissioner of military and naval insurance, respectively, each of whom shall receive a salary of $4,000 per annum.

Sec. 2. That such act of Sept. 2, 1914, as amended, is hereby amended by adding new sections, as follows:

"Sec. 12. That sections 2 to 7, inclusive, and section 9, shall be construed to refer only to the division of marine and seamen's insurance.

"Sec. 13. That the director, subject to the general direction of the secretary of the treasury, shall administer, execute and enforce the provisions of this act, and for that purpose have full power and authority to make rules and regulations, not inconsistent with the provisions of this act, necessary or appropriate to carry out its purposes, and shall decide all questions arising under the act, except as otherwise provided in sections 5 and 405. Wherever under any provision or provisions of the act regulations are directed or authorized to be made, such regulations, unless the context otherwise requires, shall or may be made by the director, subject to the general direction of the secretary of the treasury. The director shall adopt reasonable and proper rules to govern the procedure of the divisions, to regulate the matter of the compensation, if any, but in no case to exceed 10 per cent, to be paid to claim agents and attorneys for services in connection with any of the matters provided for in articles 2, 3, and 4, and to regulate and provide for the nature and extent of the proofs and evidence and the method of taking and furnishing the same in order to establish the right to benefits of allowance, allotment, compensation, or insurance provided for in this act, the forms of application of those claiming to be entitled to such benefits, the method of making investigations and medical examinations, and the manner and form of adjudications and awards.

"Sec. 14. That the bureau and its divisions shall have such deputies, assistants, actuaries, clerks, and other employes as may be from time to time provided by congress. The bureau shall, by arrangement with the secretary of war and secretary of the navy, respectively, make use of the services of surgeons in the army and navy. The secretary of the treasury is authorized to establish an advisory board consisting of three members skilled in the practice of insurance against death or disability for the purpose of assisting the division of military and naval insurance in fixing premium rates and in the adjustment of claims for losses under the contracts of insurance provided for in article IV, and in adjusting claims for compensation under article III; compensation for the persons so appointed to be determined by the secretary of the treasury, but not to exceed $20 a day each while actually employed.

"Sec. 15. That for the purposes of this act, the director, commissioners, and deputy commissioners shall have power to issue subpoenas for and compel the attendance of witnesses within a radius of 100 miles, to require the production of books, papers, documents, and other evidence, to administer oaths and to examine witnesses upon any matter within the jurisdiction of the bureau. The director may obtain such information and such reports from officials and employes of the departments of the government of the United States and of the states as may be agreed upon by the heads of the respective departments. In case of disobedience to a subpoena, the bureau may invoke the aid of any District court of the United States in requiring the attendance and testimony of witnesses and the production of documentary evidence, and such court, within the jurisdiction of which the inquiry is carried on, may, in case of contumacy or refusal to obey a subpoena issued to any officer, agent or employe of any corporation or other person, issue an order requiring such corporation or other person to appear before the bureau, or to give evidence touching the matter in question; and any failure to obey such order of the court may be punished by such court as a contempt thereof. Any person so required to attend as a witness shall be allowed and paid the same fees and mileage as are paid witnesses in the district courts of the United States.

"Sec. 16. That the director shall submit annually to the secretary of the treasury estimates of the appropriations necessary for the work of the bureau.

"Sec. 17. That for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of this act there is hereby appropriated, out of any moneys in the treasury not otherwise appropriated the sum of $100,000, for the payment of all expenses incident to the work authorized under this act, including salaries of the director and commissioners and of such deputies, assistants, accountants, experts, clerks, and other employees in the District of Columbia or elsewhere, as the secretary of the treasury may deem necessary, traveling expenses, rent and equipment of offices, typewriters and exchange of same, purchase of law books and books of reference, printing and binding to be done at the government printing office, and all other necessary expenses. With the exception of the director, the commissioners, and such special experts as the secretary of the treasury may from time to time find necessary for the conduct of the work of the bureau, all employees of the bureau shall be appointed from lists of eligibles to be supplied by the civil service commission and in accordance with the civil-service law. Such fees, allowances, and salaries shall be the same as are paid for similar services in other departments of the government.

"Sec. 18. That there is hereby appropriated from any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated, the sum of $141,000,000, to be known as the military and naval family allowance appropriation, for the payment of the family allowances provided by article II. Payments out of this appropriation shall be made upon and in accordance with awards by the commissioner of the division of military and naval insurance.

"Sec. 19. That there is hereby appropriated, from any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated, the sum of $12,150,000, to be known as the military and naval compensation appropriation, for the payment of the compensation, funeral expenses, services, and supplies provided by article III. Payments out of this appropriation shall be made upon and in accordance with awards by the director.

"Sec. 20. That there is hereby appropriated, from any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated, the sum of $25,000,000, to be known as the military and naval insurance appropriation. All premiums that may be collected for the insurance provided by the provisions of article IV. shall be deposited and covered into the treasury to the credit of this appropriation.

"Such sum, including all premium payments, is hereby made available for the payment of the liabilities of the United States incurred under contracts of insurance made under the provisions of article IV. Payments from this appropriation shall be made upon and in accordance with awards by the director.

"Sec. 21. That there shall be set aside as a separate fund in the treasury, to be known as the military and naval pay deposit fund, all sums held out of pay as provided by section 203 of this act. Such fund, including all additions, is hereby made available for the payment of the sums so held and deposited, with interest, as provided in section 203, and the amount necessary to pay interest is hereby appropriated.

"Sec. 22. That for the purpose of this amendatory act the marriage of the claimant to the person on account of whom the claim is made shall be shown—

"(1) By a duly verified copy of a public or church record; or

"(2) By the affidavit of the clergyman or magistrate who officiated; or

"(3) By the testimony of two or more eyewitnesses to the ceremony; or

"(4) By a duly verified copy of the church record of baptism of the children; or

"(5) By the testimony of two or more witnesses who know that the parties lived together as husband and wife and were recognized as such, and who shall state how long, within their knowledge, such relation continued: Provided, That marriages, except such as are mentioned in section 4705 of the revised statutes, shall be proven in compensation or insurance cases to be legal marriages according to the law of the place where the parties resided at the time of marriage or at the time when the right to compensation or insurance accrued; and the open and notorious illicit cohabitation of a widow who is a claimant shall operate to terminate her right to compensation or insurance from the commencement of such cohabitation: Provided further, That for the purpose of the administration of article II. of this act marriage shall be conclusively presumed, in the absence of proof that there is a legal spouse living, if the man and woman have lived together in the openly acknowledged relation of husband and wife during the two years immediately preceding the date of the declaration of war, or the date of enlistment or of entrance into or employment in active service in the military or naval forces of the United States if subsequent to such declaration."

In articles II., III. and IV. of this act, unless the context otherwise requires—

"(a) The term 'child' includes—

"(1) A legitimate child.

"(b) A child legally adopted more than six months before the enactment of this amendatory act or before enlistment or entrance into or employment in active service in the military or naval forces of the United States, whichever of these dates is the later.

"(c) A stepchild, if a member of the man's household.

"(d) An illegitimate child, but, as to the father, only if acknowledged by instrument in writing, signed by him, or if he has been judicially ordered or decreed to contribute to such child's support, and if such child, if born after Dec. 31, 1917, shall have been born in the United States, or in its insular possessions.

"(2) The term 'grandchild' means a child as above defined of a child as above defined.

"(3) Except as used in section 401 and in section 402 the terms 'child' and 'grandchild' are limited to unmarried persons either (a) under 18 years of age, or (b) of any age, if insane, idiotic, or otherwise permanently helpless.

"(4) The term 'parent' includes a father, mother, grandfather, grandmother, stepfather, and stepmother, either of the person in the service or of the spouse.

"(5) The terms 'brother' and 'sister' include brothers and sister of the half blood as well as those of the whole blood, stepbrothers and stepsisters, and brothers and sisters through adoption.

"(6) The term 'commissioned officer' includes a warrant officer, but includes only an officer in active service in the military or naval forces of the United States.

"(7) The terms 'man' and 'enlisted man' mean a person, whether male or female, and whether enlisted, enrolled, or drafted into active service in the military or naval forces of the United States, and include noncommissioned and petty officers, and members of training camps authorized by law.

"(8) The term 'enlistment' includes voluntary enlistment, draft, and enrollment in active service in the military or naval forces of the United States.

"(9) The term 'commissioner' means the commissioner of military and naval insurance.

"(10) The term 'injury' includes disease.

"(11) The term 'pay' means the pay for service in the United States according to grade and length of service, excluding all allowances.

"(12) The term 'military or naval forces' means the army, the navy, the marine corps, the coast guard, the naval reserves, the national naval volunteers and any other branch of the United States service while serving pursuant to law with the army or the navy.

"Sec. 23. That when, by the terms of this amendatory act, any payment is to be made to a minor, other than a person in the military or naval forces of the United States, or to a person mentally incompetent, such payment shall be made to the person who is constituted guardian or curator by the laws of the state of residence of claimant, or is otherwise legally vested with responsibility or care of the claimant.

"Sec. 24. That the bureau of war risk insurance, so far as practicable, shall upon request furnish information to and act for persons in the military or naval service with respect to any contracts of insurance, whether with the government or otherwise, as may be prescribed by regulations. Said bureau may upon request procure from and keep a record of the amount and kind of insurance held by every commissioned and appointing officer and every enlisted man in the military or naval service of the United States, including the name and principal place of business of the company, society or organization in which such insurance is held, the date of the policy, amount of premium, name and relationship of the beneficiary, and such other data as may be deemed of service in protecting the interests of the insured and beneficiaries.

"Sec. 25. That whoever, in any claim for family allowance, compensation or insurance, or in any document required by this act or by regulation made under this act, make any statement of a material fact knowing it to be false, shall be guilty of perjury and shall be punished by a fine of not more than $5,000 or by imprisonment for not more than two years, or both.

"Sec. 26. That if any person entitled to payment of family allowance or compensation under this act whose right to such payment under this act ceases upon the happening of any contingency thereafter fraudulently accepts any such payment, he shall be punished by a fine of not more than $2,000 or by imprisonment for not more than one year, or both."

ARTICLE II.

Allotments and Family Allowances.

Sec. 200. That the provisions of this article shall apply to all enlisted men in the military or naval forces of the United States.

Sec. 201. That allotment of pay shall, subject to the conditions, limitations and exceptions hereinafter specified, be compulsory as to wife, a former wife divorced who has not remarried and to whom alimony has been decreed, and a child, and voluntary as to any other person; but on the written consent of the wife or former wife divorced, supported by evidence satisfactory to the bureau of her ability to support herself and the children in her custody, the allotment for her and for such children may be waived; and on the enlisted man's application or otherwise for good cause shown, exemption from the allotment may be granted upon such conditions as may be prescribed by regulations.

The monthly compulsory allotment shall be in an amount equal to the family allowance hereinafter specified except that it shall not be more than one-half the pay, or less than $15; but for a wife living separate and apart under court order or written agreement or for a former wife divorced, it shall not exceed the amount specified in the court order, decree or written agreement to be paid to her. For an illegitimate child, to whose support the father has been judicially ordered or decreed to contribute, it shall not exceed the amount fixed in the order or decree.

If there be an allotment for a wife or child, a former wife divorced and who has not remarried shall be entitled to a compulsory allotment only out of the difference, if any, between the allotment for the wife or child or both and one-half of the pay.

Sec. 202. That the enlisted man may allot any proportion or proportions or any fixed amount or amounts of his monthly pay or of the proportion thereof remaining after the compulsory allotment, for such purposes and for the benefit of such person or persons as he may direct, subject, however, to such conditions and limitations as may be prescribed under regulations to be made by the secretary of war and the secretary of the navy, respectively.

Sec. 203. That in case one-half of an enlisted man's monthly pay is not allotted, regulations to be made by the secretary of war and the secretary of the navy, respectively, may require, under such circumstances and conditions as may be prescribed in such regulations, that any proportion of such one-half pay as is not allotted shall be deposited to his credit, to be held during such period of his service as may be prescribed. Such deposits shall bear interest at the rate of 4 per centum per annum, with semiannual rests, and, when payable, shall be paid principal and interest to the enlisted man, if living, otherwise to any beneficiary or beneficiaries he may have designated, or if there be no such beneficiary, then to the person or persons who would under the laws of the state of his residence be entitled to his personal property in case of intestacy.

Sec. 204. That a family allowance of not exceeding $50 per month shall be granted and paid by the United States upon written application to the bureau by such enlisted man or by or on behalf of any prospective beneficiary, in accordance with and subject to the conditions, limitations and exceptions hereinafter specified.

The family allowance shall be paid from the time of enlistment to death in or one month after discharge from the service, but not for more than one month after the termination of the present war emergency. No family allowance shall be made for any period preceding Nov. 1, 1917. The payment shall be subject to such regulations as may be prescribed relative to cases of desertion and imprisonment and of missing men.

Subject to the conditions, limitations and exceptions hereinafter and hereinafter specified, the family allowance payable per month shall be as follows:

Class A. In the case of a man, to his wife (including a former wife divorced) and to his child or children:

- (a) If there be a wife but no child, $15.
- (b) If there be a wife and one child, $25.
- (c) If there be a wife and two children, $32.50, with $5 per month additional for each additional child.
- (d) If there be no wife, but one child, $5.
- (e) If there be no wife, but two children, $12.50.
- (f) If there be no wife, but three children, $20.
- (g) If there be no wife, but four children, $30, with $5 per month additional for each additional child.

Class B. In the case of a man or woman, to a grandchild, a parent, brother or sister:

- (a) If there be one parent, $10.
- (b) If there be two parents, $20.
- (c) For each grandchild, brother, sister and additional parent, $5.
- (d) In the case of a woman, to a child or children:
- (a) If there be one child, $5.
- (c) If there be two children, $12.50.
- (f) If there be three children, $20.
- (g) If there be four children, $30, with $5 per month additional for each additional child.

Sec. 205. That family allowances for members of class A shall be paid only if and while a compulsory allotment is made to a member or members of such class. The monthly family allowance to a former wife divorced shall be payable only out of the difference, if any, between the monthly family allowance to the other members of class A and the sum of $50, and only then if alimony shall have been decreed to her. For a wife living separate and apart under court order or written agreement or to a former wife divorced the monthly allowance, together with the allotment, if any, shall not exceed the amount specified in the court order, decree or written agreement to be paid to her. For an illegitimate child, to whose support the father has been judicially ordered or decreed to contribute, it shall not exceed the amount fixed in the order or decree.

Sec. 206. That family allowances to members of class B shall be granted only if and while the member is dependent in whole or in part on the enlisted man, and then only if and while the enlisted man makes a monthly allotment of his pay for such member or members equal to the amount of the monthly family allowance as hereinabove specified, except that—

(a) The maximum monthly allotment so required to be made to members of class B shall be one-half of his pay.

(b) If he is making no allotment to a member of class A, the minimum monthly allotment so designated to be made to members of class B shall be $15 per month.

(c) If he is making the compulsory allotment to a member of class A, the minimum monthly allotment so designated to be made to members of class B shall be one-seventh of his pay, but not less than $5 per month.

On the enlisted man's application, or otherwise for good cause shown, exemption from this additional allotment under class B as a condition to the allowance may be granted upon such conditions as may be prescribed by regulations.

Sec. 207. That the amount of the family allowance to members of class B shall be subject to each of the following limitations:

(a) If an allowance is paid to one or more beneficiaries of class A, the total allowance to be paid to the beneficiaries of class B shall not exceed the difference between the allowance paid to the beneficiaries of class A and the sum of $50.

(b) The total monthly allowance to beneficiaries of class B added to the enlisted man's monthly allotment to them shall not exceed the average sum habitually contributed by him to their support monthly during the period of dependency but not exceeding a year immediately preceding his enlistment or the enactment of this amendatory act.

Sec. 208. That as between the members of class A and as between the members of class B, the amount of the allotment and family allowance shall be apportioned as may be prescribed by regulations.

Sec. 209. The war and navy departments, respectively, shall pay over to the treasury department monthly the entire amount of such allotments for distribution to the beneficiaries, and the allotments and family allowances shall be paid by the bureau to or for the beneficiaries.

Sec. 210. That upon receipt of any application for family allowance the commissioner shall make all proper investigations and shall make an award, on the basis of which award the amount of the allotments to be made by the man shall be certified to the war department or navy department, as may be proper. Whenever the commissioner shall have reason to believe that an allowance has been improperly made or that the conditions have changed, he shall investigate or reinvestigate and may modify the award. The amount of each monthly allotment and allowance shall be determined according to the conditions then existing.

ARTICLE III.

Compensation for Death or Disability.

Sec. 300. That for death or disability resulting from personal injury suffered or disease contracted in the line of duty, by any commissioned officer or enlisted man or by any member of the army nurse corps (female) or of the navy nurse corps (female) when employed in the active service under the war department or navy department, the United States shall pay compensation as hereinafter provided; but no compensation shall be paid if the injury or disease has been caused by his own willful misconduct.

Sec. 301. That if death results from injury—
If the deceased leaves a widow or child, or if he leaves a widowed mother dependent upon him for support, the monthly compensation shall be the following amounts:

(a) For a widow alone, $25.

(b) For a widow and one child, $35.

(c) For a widow and two children, $47.50, with $5 for each additional child up to two.

(d) If there be no widow, then for one child, $20.

(e) For two children, $30.

(f) For three children, $40, with $5 for each additional child up to two.

(g) For a widowed mother, $20. The amount payable under this subdivision shall not be greater than a sum which, when added to the total amount payable to the widow and children, does not exceed $75. This compensation shall be payable for the death of but one child, and no compensation for the death of a child shall be payable if such widowed mother is in receipt of compensation under the provisions of this article for the death of her husband. Such compensation shall be payable whether her widowhood arises before or after the death of the person and whenever her condition is such that if the person were living the widowed mother would have been dependent upon him for support.

If the death occur before discharge or resignation from service, the United States shall pay for burial expenses and the return of body to his home a sum not to exceed $100, as may be fixed by regulations.

The payment of compensation to a widow or widowed mother shall continue until her death or remarriage.

The payment of compensation to or for a child shall continue until such child reaches the age of 18 years or marries, or if such child be incapable, because of insanity, idiocy or being otherwise permanently helpless, then during such incapacity.

Whenever the compensation payable to or for the benefit of any person under the provisions of this section is terminated by the happening of the contingency upon which it is limited, the compensation thereafter for the remaining beneficiary or beneficiaries, if any, shall be the amount which would have been payable to them if they had been the sole original beneficiaries.

As between the widow and the children not in her custody, and as between children the amount of the compensation shall be apportioned as may be prescribed by regulations. The word "widow" as used in this section shall not include one who shall have married the deceased later than ten years after the time of injury.

Sec. 302. That if disability results from injury—

(1) If and while the disability is total, the monthly compensation shall be the following amounts:

(a) If he has neither wife nor child living, $30.

(b) If he has a wife but no child living, $45.

(c) If he has a wife and one child living, $55.

(d) If he has a wife and two children living, $65.

(e) If he has a wife and three or more children living, $75.

(f) If he has no wife but one child living, $40, with $10 for each additional child up to two.

(g) If he has a widowed mother dependent on him for support, then, in addition to the above amounts, $10.

To an injured person who is totally disabled and in addition so helpless as to be in constant need of a nurse or attendant, such additional sum shall be paid, but not exceeding $20 per month, as the director may deem reasonable: Provided, however, That for the loss of both feet or both hands or both eyes, or for becoming totally blind or helpless and permanently bedridden from causes occurring in the line of duty in the service of the United States, the rate of compensation shall be $100 per month: Provided further, That no allowance shall be made for nurse or attendant.

(2) If and while the disability is partial, the monthly compensation shall be a percentage of the compensation that would be payable for his total disability, equal to the degree of the reduction in earning capacity resulting from the disability, but no compensation shall be payable for a reduction in earning capacity rated at less than 10 per centum.

A schedule of ratings of reductions in earning capacity from specific injuries or combinations of injuries of a permanent nature shall be adopted and applied by the bureau. Ratings may be as high as 100 per centum. The ratings shall be based, as far as practicable, upon the average impairments of earning capacity resulting from such injuries in civil occupations and not upon the impairment in earning capacity in each individual case, so that there shall be no reduction in the rate of compensation for individual success in overcoming the handicap of a permanent injury. The bureau shall from time to time readjust this schedule of ratings in accordance with actual experience.

(3) In addition to the compensation above provided, the injured person shall be furnished by the United States such reasonable governmental medical, surgical and hospital services and with such supplies, including artificial limbs, trusses and similar appliances as the director may determine to be useful and reasonably necessary: Provided, That nothing in this act shall be construed to affect the necessary military control over any member of the military or naval establishment before he shall have been discharged from the military or naval service.

(4) The amount of each monthly payment shall be determined according to the family conditions then existing.

Sec. 303. That every person applying for or in receipt of compensation for disability under the provisions of this article shall, as frequently and at such times and places as may be reasonably required, submit himself to examination by a medical officer of the United States or by a duly qualified physician designated or approved by the director. He may have a duly qualified physician designated and paid by him present to participate in such examination. For all examinations he shall, in the discretion of the director, be paid his reasonable traveling and other expenses and also loss of wages incurred in order to submit to such examination. If he refuses to submit himself for or in any way obstructs any examination, his right to claim compensation under this article shall be suspended until such refusal or obstruction ceases. No compensation shall be payable while such refusal or obstruction continues, and no compensation shall be payable for the intervening period.

Every person in receipt of compensation for disability shall submit to any reasonable medical or surgical treatment furnished by the bureau whenever requested by the bureau, and the consequences of unreasonable refusal to submit to any such treatment shall not be deemed to result from the injury compensated for.

Sec. 304. That in cases of dismemberment, of injuries to sight or hearing, and of other injuries commonly causing permanent disability, the injured person shall follow such course or courses of rehabilitation, re-education and vocational training as the United States may provide or procure to be provided. Should such course prevent the injured person from following a substantially gainful occupation while taking same, a form of enlistment may be required which shall bring the injured person into the military or naval service. Such enlistment shall entitle the person to full pay as during the last month of his active service, and his family to family allowances and allotment as hereinbefore provided, in lieu of all other compensation for the time being.

In case of his willful failure properly to follow such course or so to enlist, payment of compensation shall be suspended until such willful failure ceases and no compensation shall be payable for the intervening period.

Sec. 305. That upon its own motion or upon application the bureau may at any time review an award, and, in accordance with the facts found upon such review, may end, diminish or increase the compensation previously awarded, or, if compensation has been refused or discontinued, may award compensation.

Sec. 306. That no compensation shall be payable for death or disability which does not occur prior to or within one year after discharge or resignation from the service, except that where, after a medical examination made pursuant to regulations, at the time of discharge or resignation from the service, or within such reasonable time thereafter, not exceeding one year, as may be allowed by regulations, a certificate has been obtained from the director to the effect that the injured person at the time of his discharge or resignation was suffering from injury likely to result in death or disability, compensation shall be payable for death or disability, whenever occurring, proximately resulting from such injury.

Sec. 307. That compensation shall not be payable for death in the course of the service until the death be officially recorded in the department under which he may be serving. No compensation shall be payable for a period during which the man has been reported "missing" and a family allowance has been paid for him under the provisions of article II.

Sec. 308. That no compensation shall be payable for death inflicted as a lawful punishment for a crime or military offense except when inflicted by the enemy. A dismissal or dishonorable or bad conduct discharge from the service shall bar and terminate all right to any compensation under the provisions of this article.

Sec. 309. That no compensation shall be payable unless a claim therefor be filed, in case of disability, within five years after discharge or resignation from the service, or, in case of death during the service, within five years after such death is officially recorded in the department under which he may be serving: Provided, however, That where compensation is payable for death or disability occurring after discharge or resignation from the service, claim must be made within five years after such death or the beginning of such disability.

The time herein provided may be extended by the director not to exceed one year for good cause shown. If at the time that any right accrues to any person under the provisions of this article, such person is a minor, or is of unsound mind or physically unable to make a claim, the time herein provided shall not begin to run until such disability ceases.

Sec. 310. That no compensation shall be payable for any period more than two years prior to the date of claim therefor, nor shall increased compensation be awarded to revert back more than one year prior to the date of claim therefor.

Sec. 311. That compensation under this article shall not be assignable, and shall be exempt from attachment and execution and from all taxation.

Sec. 312. That compensation under this article shall not be paid while the person is in receipt of service or retirement pay. The laws providing for gratuities or payments in the event of death in the service and existing pension laws shall not be applicable after the enactment of this amendment to persons now in or hereafter entering the military or naval service, or to their widows, children, or their dependents, except in so far as rights under any such law shall have heretofore accrued.

Compensation because of disability or death of members of the army nurse corps (female) or of the navy nurse corps (female) shall be in lieu of any compensation for such disability or death under the act entitled "An act to provide compensation for employees of the United States suffering injuries while in the performance of their duties, and for other purposes," approved Sept. 7, 1916.

Sec. 313. That if an injury or death for which compensation is payable under this amendatory act is caused under circumstances creating a legal liability upon some persons other than the United States or the enemy to pay damages therefor, the director, as a condition to payment of compensation by the United States, shall require the beneficiary to assign to the United States any right of action he may have to enforce such liability of such other person or any right which he may have to share in any money or other property received in satisfaction of such liability of such other person. The cause of action so assigned to the United States may be prosecuted or compromised by the director and any money realized thereon shall be placed to the credit of the compensation fund.

Sec. 314. That from and after the passage of this act the rate of pension for a widow of an officer or enlisted man of the army, navy or marine corps of the United States who served in the civil war, the war with Spain, or the Philippine insurrection, now on the pension roll or hereafter to be placed on the pension roll, and entitled to receive a less rate than herein-after provided, shall be $25 per month; and nothing herein shall be construed to affect the additional allowance provided by existing pension laws on account of a helpless child or child under 16 years of age: Provided, however, That this act shall not be so construed as to reduce any pension under any act, public or private: And provided further, That the provisions of this section shall be administered, executed and enforced by the commissioner of pensions.

ARTICLE IV.

Insurance.

Sec. 400. That in order to give to every commissioned officer and enlisted man and to every member of the army nurse corps (female) and of the navy nurse corps (female) when employed in active service under the war department or navy department greater protection for themselves and their dependents than is provided in article III., the United States, upon application to the bureau and without medical examination, shall grant insurance against the death or total permanent disability of any such person in any multiple of $500, and not less than $1,000 or more than $10,000, upon the payment of the premiums as hereinafter provided.

Sec. 401. That such insurance must be applied for within 120 days after enlistment or after entrance into or employment in the active service and before discharge or resignation, except that those persons who are in the active war service at the time of the publication of the terms and conditions of such contract of insurance may apply at any time within 120 days thereafter and while in such service. Any person in the active service on or after the 6th day of April, 1917, who, while in such service and before the expiration of 120 days from and after such publication, becomes or has become totally and permanently disabled or dies, or has died, without having applied for insurance, shall be deemed to have applied for and to have been granted insurance, payable to such person during his life in monthly installments of $25 each. If he shall die either before he shall have received any of such monthly installments or before he shall have received 240 of such monthly installments, then $25 per month shall be paid to his wife from the time of his death and during her widowhood or to his child or widowed mother if and while they survive him: Provided, however, That not more than 240 of such monthly installments, including those received by such person during his total and permanent disability, shall be so paid; and in that event the amount of the monthly installments shall be apportioned between them as may be provided by regulations.

Sec. 402. That the director, subject to the general direction of the secretary of the treasury, shall promptly determine upon and publish the full and exact terms and conditions of such contract of insurance. The insurance shall not be assignable and shall not be subject to the claims of creditors of the insured or of the beneficiary. It shall be payable only to a spouse, child, grandchild, parent, brother or sister, and also during total and permanent disability to the injured person, or to any or all of them. The insurance shall be payable in 240 equal monthly installments. Provisions for maturity at certain ages, for continuous installments during the life of the insured or beneficiaries, or both, for cash, loan, paid-up and extended values, dividends from gains and savings, and such other provisions for the protection and advantage of and for alternative benefits to the insured and the beneficiaries as may be found to be reasonable and practicable, may be provided for in the contract of insurance, or from time to time by regulations. All calculations shall be based upon the American experience table of mortality and interest at $3\frac{1}{2}$ per cent per annum, except that no deduction shall be made for continuous installments during the life of the insured in case his total and permanent disability continues more than 240 months. Subject to regulations, the insured shall at all times have the right to change the beneficiary or beneficiaries of such insurance without the consent of such beneficiary or beneficiaries, but only within the classes herein provided. If no beneficiary within the permitted class be designated by the insured, either in his lifetime or by his last will and testament, or if the designated beneficiary does not survive the insured, the insurance shall be payable to such person or persons, within the permitted class of beneficiaries, as would under the laws of the state of the residence of the insured be entitled to his personal property in case of intestacy. If no such person survive the insured, then there shall be paid to the estate of the insured an amount equal to the reserve value, if any, of the insurance at the time of his death, calculated on the basis of the American experience table of mortality and $3\frac{1}{2}$ per cent interest in full of all obligations under the contract of insurance.

Sec. 403. That the United States shall bear the expenses of administration and the excess mortality and disability cost resulting from the hazards of war. The premium rates shall be the net rates based upon the American experience table of mortality and interest at $3\frac{1}{2}$ per cent per annum.

Sec. 404. That during the period of war and thereafter until converted the insurance shall be term insurance for successive terms of one year each. Not later than five years after the date of the termination of the war as declared by proclamation of the president of the United States, the term insurance shall be converted, without medical examination, into such form or forms of insurance as may be prescribed by regulations and as the insured may request. Regulations shall provide for the right to convert into ordinary life, twenty-payment life, endowment maturing at age 62, and into other usual forms of insurance, and shall prescribe the time and method of payment of the premiums thereon, but payments of premiums in advance shall not be required for periods of more than one month each and may be deducted from the pay or deposit of the insured or be otherwise made at his election.

Sec. 405. That in the event of disagreement as to a claim under the contract of insurance between the bureau and any beneficiary or beneficiaries thereunder, an appeal or the claim may be brought against the United States in the District court of the United States in and for the district in which such beneficiaries or any one of them resides. The court, as part of its judgment, shall determine and allow such reasonable attorney's fees, not to exceed 10 per cent of the amount recovered, to be paid by the claimant on behalf of whom such proceedings are instituted to his attorney; and it shall be unlawful for the attorney or for any other person acting as claim agent or otherwise to ask for, contract for or receive any other compensation because of such action. No other compensation or fee shall be charged or received by any person except such as may be authorized by the commissioner in regulations to be promulgated by him. Any person violating the provisions of this section shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall, for each and every such offense, be fined not exceeding $500, or be imprisoned at hard labor not exceeding two years, or both, in the discretion of the court.

GENERALS AND LIEUTENANT-GENERALS.

Sec. 3. That section 8 of the act entitled "An act to authorize the president to increase temporarily the military establishment of the United States," approved May 18, 1917, shall be held and construed to authorize the president, in accordance with the provisions of said act and for the period of the existing emergency only, to appoint as generals the chief of staff and the commander of the United States forces in France; and as lieutenant-general each commander of an army or army corps organized as authorized by existing law: Provided, That the pay of the grades of general and lieutenant-general shall be $10,000 and $9,000 a year, respectively, with allowances appropriate to said grades as determined by the secretary of war: And provided, That brigadier-generals of the army shall hereafter rank relatively with rear-admirals of the lower half of the grade. And hereafter the chief of any existing staff corps, department or bureau, except as is otherwise provided for the chief of staff, shall have the rank, pay and allowances of major-general. (Approved Oct. 6, 1917.)

VESSELS IN COASTWISE TRADE.

The United States shipping board is given the power to suspend the present provisions of law and permit vessels of foreign registry and foreign built vessels admitted to American registry under the act of Aug. 18, 1914, to engage in the coastwise trade during the present war and for a period of 120 days thereafter, except the coastwise trade with Alaska. (Approved Oct. 6, 1917.)

REPATRIATION OF CITIZENS.

Any person, formerly an American citizen, who may be deemed to have expatriated himself by taking since Aug. 1, 1914, an oath of allegiance to any foreign state engaged in war with a country with which the United States is at war, who took such oath to enable him to enlist in the armed forces of such state, who actually enlisted and who has been or may be honorably discharged from such service, may reassume and acquire the character and privileges of a citizen of the United States by applying to any court authorized to confer American citizenship upon aliens, offering satisfactory evidence that he comes within the terms of the act, taking the oath of allegiance to the United States and abjuring allegiance to any foreign state. (Approved Oct. 5, 1917.)

EXPLOSIVES ACT.

When the United States is at war it shall be unlawful to manufacture, distribute, store, use or possess powder, blasting supplies, or ingredients thereof without license. Licenses will be issued only to citizens of the United States or citizens of countries at peace with the United States when applications have been made and granted by the director of the bureau of mines. Licenses may be issued to manufacturers, vendors, purchasers, foremen, exporters, importers and analysts, educators and investigators. Dealers in explosives are required to keep an itemized record showing to whom explosives have been sold and the quantities sold. Any person convicted of violating any of the provisions of the act shall be punished by a fine of not more than $5,000 or by imprisonment for one year or less, or by both fine and imprisonment. (Approved Oct. 6, 1917.)

CHAPLAINS AT LARGE.

The president is authorized to appoint for service during the present war not exceeding twenty chaplains at large for the United States army, representing religious sects not recognized in the appointment of chaplains now recognized by law. (Approved Oct. 6, 1917.)

TREASURY DEPARTMENT BUILDING.

The secretary of the treasury is authorized to cause to be constructed at the northeast corner of Pennsylvania avenue and Madison place, Washington, D. C., a suitable building for the use of the treasury department, with an underground connection with the main treasury building, at a total cost not to exceed $1,250,000. (Approved Sept. 27, 1917.)

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE TO CONGRESS.

President Wilson personally delivered to congress Dec. 4, 1917, his annual address. This was of such an important nature that it was transmitted to virtually every other capital in the world, where it was published at the same time as in the United States. The full text follows:

Gentlemen of the Congress: Eight months have elapsed since I last had the honor of addressing you. They have been months crowded with events of immense and grave significance for us. I shall not undertake to detail or even summarize those events.

The practical particulars of the part we have played in them will be laid before you in the reports of the executive departments. I shall discuss only our present outlook upon these vast affairs, our present duties and the immediate means of accomplishing the objects we shall hold always in view.

I shall not go back to debate the causes of the war. The intolerable wrongs done and planned against us by the sinister masters of Germany have long since become too grossly obvious and odious to every true American to need to be rehearsed. But I shall ask you to consider again and with a very grave scrutiny our objectives and the measures by which we mean to attain them; for the purpose of discussion here in this place is action and our action must move straight toward definite ends.

Our object is, of course, to win the war and we shall not slacken or suffer ourselves to be diverted until it is won. But it is worth while asking and answering the question, When shall we consider the war won?

From one point of view it is not necessary to broach this fundamental matter. I do not doubt that the American people know what the war is about and what sort of outcome they will regard as a realization of their purpose in it. As a nation we are united in spirit and intention. I pay little heed to those who tell me otherwise.

MESSAGE TO PACIFISTS.

I hear the voice of dissent; who does not? I hear the criticism and the clamor of the noisily thoughtless and troublesome. I also see men here and there fling themselves in impotent disloyalty against the calm, indomitable power of the nation. I hear men debate peace, who understand neither its nature nor the way in which we may attain it with uplifted eyes and unbroken spirits. But I know that none of these speak for the nation. They do not touch the heart of anything. They may safely be left to strut their uneasy hour and be forgotten.

But, for another part of you, I believe that it is necessary to say plainly what we here at the seat of action consider the war to be for and what part we mean to play in the settlement of its leading issues. We are the spokesmen of the American people and they have the right to know whether their purpose is ours. They desire peace by the overcoming of evil, by the defeat once for all of the sinister forces that interrupt peace and render it impossible, and they wish to know how closely our thought runs with theirs and what action we propose. They are impatient with those who desire peace by any sort of compromise, deeply and indignantly impatient, but they will be equally impatient with us if we do not make it plain to them what our objects are and what we are planning for in seeking to make conquest of peace by arms.

I believe that I speak for them when I say two things: First, that this intolerable thing of which the masters of Germany have shown us the ugly face, this menace of combined intrigue and force which we now see so clearly as the German power, a thing without conscience or honor or capacity for covenanted peace, must be crushed, and if it be not utterly brought to an end, at least shut out from the friendly intercourse of the nations; and, second, that when this thing and its power are indeed defeated and the time comes that we can discuss peace—when the German people have spokesmen whose word we can believe and when these spokesmen are ready in the name of their people to accept the common judgment of the nations as to what shall henceforth be the basis of law and of covenant for the life of the world—we shall be willing and glad to pay the full price for peace and pay it ungrudgingly. We know what that price will be. It will be full, impartial justice—justice done at every point and to every nation the final settlement must affect, our enemies as well as our friends.

NO NATION MUST BE ROBBED.

You catch, with me, the voices of humanity that are in the air. They grow daily more audible, more articulate, more persuasive and they come from the hearts of men everywhere. They insist that the war shall not end in vindictive action of any kind; that no nation or people shall be robbed or punished because the irresponsible rulers of a single country have themselves done deep and abominable wrong. It is this thought that has been expressed in the formula "no annexations, no contributions, no punitive indemnities." Just because this crude formula expresses the instinctive judgment as to right of plain men everywhere it has been made diligent use of by the masters of German intrigue to lead the people of Russia astray—and the people of every other country their agents could reach—in order that a premature peace might be brought about before autocracy has been taught its final and convincing lesson and the people of the world put in control of their own destinies.

From every point of view, therefore, it has seemed to me my duty to read these declarations of purpose, to add these specific interpretations to what I took the liberty of saying to the senate in January. Our entrance into the war has not altered our attitude toward the settlement that must come when it is over.

When I said in January that the nations of the world were entitled not only to free pathways upon the sea but also to assured and unmolested access to those pathways, I was thinking, and I am thinking now, not of the smaller and weaker nations alone, which need our countenance and support, but also of the great and powerful nations and of our present enemies as well as our present associates in the war. I was thinking, and am thinking now, of Austria herself, among the rest, as well as of Serbia and of Poland.

Justice and equality of rights can be had only at a great price. We are seeking permanent, not temporary, foundations for the peace of the world and must seek them candidly and fearlessly.

But the fact that a wrong use has been made of a just idea is no reason why a right use should not be made of it. It ought to be brought under the patronage of its real friends. Let it be said again that autocracy must first be shown the utter futility of its claims to power or leadership in the modern world. It is impossible to apply any standard of justice so long as such forces are unchecked and undefeated as the present masters of Germany command. Not until that has been done can right be set as its admitter and peacemaker among the nations. But when that has been done—God willing, it assuredly will be—we shall at last be free to do an unprecedented thing, and this is the time to avow our purpose to do it. We shall be free to base peace on generosity and justice, to the exclusion of all selfish claims to advantage even on the part of the victors.

Let there be no misunderstanding. Our present and immediate task is to win the war and nothing shall turn us aside from it until it is accomplished. Every power and resource we possess, whether of men, of money, or of material is being devoted and will continue to be devoted to that purpose until it is achieved. Those who desire to bring peace about before that purpose is achieved I counsel to carry their advice elsewhere. We will not entertain it. We shall regard the war as won only when the German people say to us, through properly accredited representatives, that they are ready to agree to a settlement based upon justice and the reparation of the wrongs their rulers have done. They have done a wrong to Belgium which must be repaired. They have established a power over other lands and peoples than their own—over the great empire of Austria-Hungary, over hitherto free Balkan states, over Turkey and within Asia—which much be relinquished.

Germany's success by skill, by industry, by knowledge, by enterprise we did not grudge or oppose but admire rather. She had built up for herself a real empire of trade and influence, secured by the peace of the world. We were content to abide the rivalries of manufacture, of science and commerce that were involved for us in her success and stand or fall as we had or did not have the brains and the initiative to surpass her.

But at the moment when she had conspicuously won her triumphs of peace she threw them away to establish in their stead what the world will no longer permit to be established, military and political domination by arms, by which to oust where she could not excel the rivals she most feared and hated.

The peace we make must remedy that wrong. It must deliver the once fair lands and happy peoples of Belgium and northern France from the Prussian conquest and the Prussian men and it must also deliver the peoples of Austria-Hungary, the peoples of the Balkans and the peoples of Turkey, alike in Europe and in Asia, from the inmund and alien domination of the Prussian military and commercial autocracy.

AUSTRIA-HUNGARY.

We owe it, however, to ourselves to say that we do not wish in any way to impair or to rearrange the Austro-Hungarian empire. It is no affair of ours what they do with their own life, either industrially or politically. We do not purpose or desire to dictate to them in any way. We only desire to see that their affairs are left in their own hands in all matters great or small. We shall hope to secure for the peoples of the Balkan peninsula and for the people of the Turkish empire the right and opportunity to make their own lives safe, their own fortunes secure against oppression or injustice and from the dictation of foreign courts or parties, and our attitude and purpose with regard to Germany herself are of a like kind.

NO WRONG TO GERMANY.

We intend no wrong against the German empire, no interference with her internal affairs. We should deem either the one or the other absolutely unjustifiable, absolutely contrary to the principles we have professed to live by and to hold most sacred throughout our life as a nation.

The people of Germany are being told by the men whom they now permit to deceive them and to act as their masters that they are fighting for the very life and existence of their empire, a war of desperate self-defense against deliberate aggression. Nothing could be more grossly or wantonly false, and we must seek by the utmost openness and candor as to our real aims to convince them of its falseness. We are, in fact, fighting for their emancipation from fear, along with our own, from the fear as well as from the fact of unjust attack by neighbors or rivals or schemers after world empire. No one is threatening the existence or the independence or the peaceful enterprise of the German empire.

The worst that can happen to the detriment of the German people is this, that if they should still, after the war is over, continue to be obliged to live under ambitious and intriguing masters interested to disturb the peace of the world, men or classes of men whom the other peoples of the world could not trust, it might be impossible to admit them to the partnership of nations which must henceforth guarantee the world's peace.

That partnership must be a partnership of peoples, not a mere partnership of governments. It might be impossible also in such untoward circumstances to admit Germany to the free economic intercourse which must inevitably spring out of the other partnerships of a real peace. But there would be no aggression in that, and such a situation, inevitable because of distrust, would in the very nature of things sooner or later cure itself by processes which would assuredly set in.

The wrongs—the very deep wrongs—committed in this war will have to be righted. That, of course. But they cannot and must not be righted by the commission of similar wrongs against Germany and her allies.

The world will not permit the commission of similar wrongs as a means of reparation and settlement. Statesmen must by this time have learned that the opinion of the world is everywhere wide awake and fully comprehends the issues involved. No representative of any self-governed nation will dare disregard it by attempting any such covenants of selfishness and compromise as were entered into at the congress of Vienna.

The thought of the plain people here and everywhere throughout the world, the people who enjoy no privilege and have very simple and unsophisticated standards of right and wrong is the air all governments must henceforth breathe if they would live. It is in the full disclosing light of that thought that all policies must be conceived and executed in this midday hour of the world's life.

German rulers have been able to upset the peace of the world only because the German people were not suffered under their tutelage to share the comradeship of the other peoples of the world either in thought or in purpose. They were allowed to have no opinion of their own which might be set up as a rule of conduct for those who exercised authority over them. But the congress that concludes this war will feel the full strength of the tides that run now in the hearts and consciences of free men everywhere. Its conclusions will run with those tides.

FALSEHOODS POISON RUSSIANS.

All these things have been true from the very beginning of this stupendous war, and I cannot help thinking that if they had been made plain at the very outset the sympathy and enthusiasm of the Russian people might have been once for all enlisted on the side of the allies, suspicion and distrust swept away and a real and lasting union of purpose effected. Had they believed these things at the very moment of their revolution and had they been confirmed in that belief since, the sad reverses which have recently marked the progress of their affairs toward an ordered and stable government of free men might have been avoided.

The Russian people have been poisoned by the very same falsehoods that have kept the German people in the dark and the poison has been administered by the very same hands. The only possible antidote is the truth. It cannot be uttered too plainly or too often.

As always, the right will prove to be the expedient.

What shall we do, then, to push this great war of freedom and justice to its righteous conclusion? We must clear away with a thorough hand all impediments to success and we must make every adjustment of law that will facilitate the full and free use of our whole capacity and force as a fighting unit.

WAR ON AUSTRIA-HUNGARY.

One very embarrassing obstacle that stands in our way is that we are at war with Germany, but not with her allies. I therefore very earnestly recommend that the congress immediately declare the United States in a state of war with Austria-Hungary. Does it seem strange to you that this should be the conclusion of the argument I have just addressed to you? It is not. It is in fact, the inevitable logic of what I have said.

Austria-Hungary is, for the time being, not her own mistress, but simply the vassal of the German government. We must face the facts as they are and act upon them without sentiment in this stern business. The government of Austria-Hungary is not acting upon its own initiative or in response to the wishes and feelings of its own peoples, but as the instrument of another nation.

We must meet its force with our own and regard the central powers as but one. The war can be successfully conducted in no other way.

The same logic would lead also to a declaration of war against Turkey and Bulgaria. They also are the tools of Germany. But they are mere tools and do not yet stand in the direct path of our necessary action. We shall go wherever the necessities of this war carry us, but it seems to me that we should go only where immediate and practical considerations lead us and not heed any others.

NEW LEGISLATION NEEDED.

The financial and military measures which must be adopted will suggest themselves as the war and its undertakings develop, but I will take the liberty of proposing to you certain other acts of legislation which seem to me to be needed for the support of the war and for the release of our whole force and energy.

It will be necessary to extend in certain particulars the legislation of the last session with regard to alien enemies; and also necessary, I believe, to create a very definite and particular control over the entrance and departure of all persons into and from the United States.

Legislation should be enacted defining as a criminal offense every willful violation of the presidential proclamations relating to alien enemies promulgated under section 4067 of the revised statutes and providing appropriate punishments; and women as well as men should be included under the terms of the acts placing restraints upon alien enemies.

It is likely that as time goes on many alien enemies will be willing to be fed and housed at the expense of the government in the detention camps and it would be the purpose of the legislation I have suggested to confine offenders among them in penitentiaries and other similar institutions where they could be made to work as other criminals do.

Recent experience has convinced me that the congress must go further in authorizing the government to set limits to prices. The law of supply and demand, I am sorry to say, has been replaced by the law of unrestrained selfishness. While we have eliminated profiteering in several branches of industry, it still runs impudently rampant in others.

The farmers, for example, complain with a great deal of justice that, while the regulation of food prices restricts their incomes, no restraints are placed upon the prices of most of the things they must themselves purchase; and similar inequities obtain on all sides.

It is imperatively necessary that the consideration of the full use of the water power of the country and also the consideration of the systematic and yet economical development of such of the natural resources of the country as are still under the control of the federal government should be immediately resumed and affirmatively and constructively dealt with at the earliest possible moment. The pressing need of such legislation is daily becoming more obvious.

The legislation proposed at the last session with regard to regulated combinations among our exporters, in order to provide for our foreign trade a more effective organization and method of co-operation, ought by all means to be completed at this session.

And I beg that the members of the house of representatives will permit me to express the opinion that it will be impossible to deal in any way but a very wasteful and extravagant fashion with the enormous appropriations of the public moneys, which must continue to be made if the war is to be properly sustained, unless the house will consent to return to its former practice of initiating and preparing all appropriation bills through a single committee, in order that responsibility may be centered, expenditures standardized and made uniform and waste and duplication as much as possible avoided.

Additional legislation may also become necessary before the present congress adjourns in order to effect the most efficient co-ordination and operation of the railway and other transportation systems of the country; but to that I shall, if circumstances should demand, call the attention of congress upon another occasion.

If I have overlooked anything that ought to be done for the more effective conduct of the war, your own counsels will supply the omission. What I am perfectly clear about is that in the present session of the congress our whole attention and energy should be concentrated on the vigorous and rapid and successful prosecution of the great task of winning the war.

We can do this with all the greater zeal and enthusiasm because we know that for us this is a war of high principle, debased by no selfish ambition of conquest or spoliation; because we know, and all the world knows, that we have been forced into it to save the very institutions we live under from corruption and destruction. The purposes of the central powers strike straight at the very heart of everything we believe in; their methods of warfare outraged every principle of humanity and of knightly honor; their intrigue has corrupted the very thought and spirit of many of our people; their sinister and secret diplomacy has sought to take our very territory away from us and disrupt the union of the states.

Our safety would be at an end, our honor forever sullied and brought into contempt were we to permit their triumph. They are striking at the very existence of democracy and liberty.

FIGHT FOR VINDICATION OF RIGHT.

It is because it is for us a war of high, disinterested purpose, in which all the free peoples of the world are banded together for the vindication of right, a war for the preservation of our nation and of all that it has held dear, of our principle and of purposes that we feel ourselves doubly constrained to propose for its outcome only that which is righteous and of irreproachable intention for our foes as well as for our friends. The cause being just and holy, the settlement must be of like motive and quality. For this we can fight, but for nothing less noble or less worthy of our traditions. For this cause we entered the war and for this cause will we battle until the last gun is fired.

I have spoken plainly because this seems to me the time when it is most necessary to speak plainly, in order that all the world may know that even in the heat and ardor of the struggle and when our whole thought is of carrying the war through to its end we have not forgotten any ideal or principle for which the name of America has been held in honor among the nations and for which it has been our glory to contend in the great generations that went before us. A supreme moment of history has come. The eyes of the people have been opened and they see. The hand of God is laid upon the nations. He will show them favor. I devoutly believe, only if they rise to the clear heights of His own justice and mercy.

WAR DECLARED AGAINST AUSTRIA-HUNGARY.

In accordance with the recommendation of President Wilson congress declared war against Austria-Hungary Dec. 7, 1917. In the senate the vote was unanimous and in the house Meyer London, socialist, of New York, was the only one to vote against the resolution. Following is the text of the declaration as adopted by congress and signed by the president:

Joint resolution.

Declaring that a state of war exists between the imperial and royal Austro-Hungarian government and the government and the people of the United States and making provision to prosecute the same.

Whereas, the imperial and royal Austro-Hungarian government has committed repeated acts of war against the government and the people of the United States of America; therefore, be it

Resolved, by the senate and house of representatives of the United States of America, in congress assembled, That a state of war is hereby declared to exist between the United States of America and the imperial and royal Austro-Hungarian government; and that the president be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to employ the entire naval and military forces of the United States and the resources of the government to carry on war against the imperial and royal Austro-Hungarian government; and to bring the conflict to a successful termination all the resources of the country are hereby pledged by the congress of the United States.

CHAMP CLARK,

Speaker of the house of representatives.

THOMAS R. MARSHALL,

Vice-president of the United States and president of the senate.

Approved Dec. 7, 1917. WOODROW WILSON.

REASONS FOR DECLARING WAR.

The house foreign relations committee, in submitting the resolution declaring a state of war exists with Austria, gave the following history of Austrian activity directed against the United States and carried out in this country:

The president has asked for the declaration that a state of war exists against Austria-Hungary. In his address delivered at the joint session of the two houses of congress on Dec. 4 he uses this language:

"One very embarrassing obstacle that stands in our way is that we are at war with Germany, but not with her allies. I therefore very earnestly recommend that the congress immediately declare the United States in a state of war with Austria-Hungary."

The enactment of this declaration involves very little readjustment of the affairs between the United States and Austria-Hungary because a state of war which this declaration declares to exist actually has been a fact for many months. The depredations on American lives and rights by Austrian naval forces have been small compared with that of Germany, but they have been indulged in to an extent to constitute war upon this country, and this fact, taken in connection with other acts of Austria-Hungary, has more and more brought that government into a position where the American people have realized that she must be included with Germany as an enemy.

In September, 1915, it was discovered that Ambassador Dumba and Austrian consuls in St. Louis and elsewhere were implicated in instigating strikes in American manufacturing plants engaged in the production of munitions of war. An American citizen named Archbald, traveling under an American passport, had been entrusted with dispatches in regard to this matter from Dumba and Bernstorff to their governments. These acts were admitted by Dumba.

By reason of the admitted purpose and intent of Dumba to conspire to cripple business industries in the United States and by reason of the flagrant violation of diplomatic propriety in employing an American citizen protected by an American passport as a secret bearer of official dispatches through the lines of an enemy of Austria-Hungary, the Austro-Hungarian government was requested to recall Dumba.

The Austrian consuls at St. Louis and New York were implicated with Dumba in these transactions, particularly in the circulation of strike propaganda. They were implicated in procuring forged passports from the United States for the use of their countrymen in going home.

Long before the above activities were made public our government had evidence that the Austrian diplomatic and consular service was being used in this country for Germany's warlike purposes.

While Austria's submarine warfare has been of a limited character, it has adopted and adhered to the policy of the ruthless submarine warfare of the imperial German government.

After diplomatic relations with Germany had been broken the department on Feb. 14, 1917, dispatched the following telegram to the American embassy at Vienna surveying briefly the position of the Austrian government on submarine warfare:

"In the American note of Dec. 6, 1915, to the Austro-Hungarian government in the Ancona case, this government called attention to the views of the government of the United States on the operations of submarines in naval warfare which had been expressed in no uncertain terms to the ally of Austria-Hungary and of which full knowledge on the part of the Austro-Hungarian government was presumed.

"In its reply of Dec. 15, 1915, the imperial and royal government stated that it was not possessed of authentic knowledge of all of the pertinent correspondence of the United States, nor was it of the opinion that such knowledge would be sufficient to cover the Ancona case, which was of essentially a different character from those under discussion with the Berlin government.

"Nevertheless, in reply to the American note of Dec. 19, 1915, the Austro-Hungarian government, in its note of Dec. 29, stated:

"As concerns the principle expressed in the very esteemed note that hostile private ships, in so far as they do not flee or offer resistance, may not be destroyed without the persons on board having been placed in safety, the imperial and royal government is able substantially to assent to this view of the Washington cabinet."

"Moreover, in the case of the Persia the Austro-Hungarian government in January, 1916, stated in effect that while it has received no information with regard to the sinking of the Persia, yet in case its responsibility were involved the government would be guided by the principles agreed to in the Ancona case.

"Within one month thereafter the imperial and royal government, coincidentally with the German declaration of Feb. 10, 1916, on the treatment of armed merchantmen, announced that 'All merchant vessels armed with cannon for whatever purpose by this very fact lose the character of peaceable vessels,' and that 'under these conditions orders have been given to Austro-Hungarian naval forces to treat such ships as belligerent vessels.'

"In accordance with this declaration several vessels with Americans on board have been sunk in the Mediterranean, presumably by Austrian submarines, some of which were torpedoed without warning by submarines flying the Austrian flag, as in the case of the British steamers Secondo and Welsh Prince. Inquiries made through the American ambassador at Vienna as to these cases have so far elicited no information and no reply.

"Again on Jan. 31, 1917, coincidentally with the German declaration of submarine danger zones in waters washing the coasts of the entente countries, the imperial and royal government announced to the United States government that Austria-Hungary and its allies would from Feb. 1 'prevent by every means any navigation whatsoever within a definite closed area.'

"Please bring this matter orally to the attention of the Austrian government and request to be advised as to whether the pledge given in the Ancona and Persia cases is to be interpreted as modified or withdrawn by the declaration of Feb. 10, 1916, and Jan. 31, 1917. If after your conversation it seems advisable you may hand to the minister of foreign affairs a paraphrase of this instruction, leaving the quoted texts verbatim."

In reply the Austrian government in an aide memoir of March 2, 1917, after reviewing the illegal blockade measure of the allies, stated that "it now as heretofore fully adheres to the assurances given by it" in the Ancona case.

The Austro-Hungarian government also stated that Austro-Hungarian submarines had taken no part in the sinking of the British steamers Secondo and Welsh Prince, and that "the assurance which it gave the Washington cabinet in the Ancona case and renewed in the Persia case has neither been withdrawn nor restricted by its declaration of Feb. 10, 1916, and Jan. 31, 1917."

It states that "the entire declaration is essentially nothing less than a warning to the effect that no merchant ship may navigate the sea zones accurately defined in the declaration" and that "the imperial and royal government is, however, unable to accept a responsibility for the loss of human lives which, nevertheless, may result from the destruction of armed ships or ships encountered in the closed zones."

In view of this acceptance and avowal by the Austrian government of the policy which had led to a breach of relations between the United States and Germany, the government of the United States found it impossible to receive Dumba's successor, Count Tarnowski. The government felt that it could not receive a new ambassador from a country which joined Germany in her submarine policy, even though its participation might be by verbal and not physical co-operation. This was communicated to the Austrian government in a telegram from the department dated March 28, 1917.

The Austrian note of Jan. 31, 1917, proclaimed the same submarine policy as that of Germany and officially announced her intention, if she saw fit, to pursue the same ruthless submarine policy that Germany had inaugurated.

Many vessels have been sunk in the Mediterranean—the area in which Austrian submarines operate—by submarines which carried no flag or mark and the nationality of which was unknown. A great many of these undersea craft are believed to have been Austrian submarines or submarines commanded by Austrian officers or supplied from Austrian bases or by Austrian means.

On April 4, 1917, the American four masted schooner Marguerite was sunk by a submarine thirty-five miles from the coast of Sardinia, while en route to Spain. The submarine carried no flag or marks to indicate its nationality. It is known, however, that Austrian was the language spoken by the officer of the submarine who came aboard the vessel with the boarding party, and it is believed that the submarine was Austrian.

Before war was declared to exist between the United States and the imperial German government it was intimated to the United States government that if war should be declared by the United States on Germany, Austria-Hungary would be under obligation to break off diplomatic relations with the United States.

Consequently, after the declaration of war April 6, 1917, the Austro-Hungarian government informed the American charge at Vienna, on April 30, that diplomatic relations between the United States and Austria-Hungary were broken off and handed him passports for himself and members of the embassy.

Until the present Austro-German drive in northern Italy the Austrian forces were gradually being driven back by the forces of the Italian army. With the assistance of German troops drawn from the Russian front a very serious catastrophe was inflicted upon the Italian arms, which, if it had not been stemmed, might have resulted in the collapse of Italy. Such a result would have been a great blow to those with whom we are associated in this war, and as much to the United States as to any of her cobelligerents.

As a result of this situation the allies have rushed aid to Italy, and the United States is sending ships, money and supplies, and will probably soon send troops, who will be facing and making war on Austrian soldiers.

The Italian situation is one of the utmost importance in the present conduct of the war. A declaration of war by the United States against Austria-Hungary will hearten the people of Italy, who have been misled by the mischievous and diluting propaganda engineered by Germans.

AUSTRO-HUNGARIAN CORRESPONDENCE.

THE SUBMARINE QUESTION.

Frederic C. Penfield, American ambassador to Austria-Hungary, delivered to the Austro-Hungarian minister of foreign affairs in Vienna the following aide memoir, dated Feb. 20, 1917:

"In its note of Dec. 9, 1915, the American government laid down the points of view whereby it was guided regarding the activity of submarines in naval warfare. These points of view were on an earlier occasion clearly expressed to the German government and the United States government was of the opinion that the Austro-Hungarian government was acquainted therewith. The Austro-Hungarian government replied with a note Dec. 14, 1915, wherein it declared it had neither adequate knowledge of the exchange of ideas which had taken place between the United States and Germany, nor was of the opinion that even complete knowledge would suffice for judgment in regard to the Ancona incident, as the questions arising from this incident bore a different character.

"Nevertheless the Austro-Hungarian foreign ministry declared in a note of Dec. 21, 1915:

"As regards the principle set up in the very esteemed note that enemy private ships, provided they do not flee or offer resistance, should not be destroyed before the passengers are placed in safety, the Austro-Hungarian government is in a position to assent in the main to this view of the

"Further, the Austro-Hungarian government, on the occasion of the sinking of the steamer Persia in January, 1916, declared that, although not informed regarding this incident, it would be guided by the principles whereto it agreed in the Ancona affair, should events prove that responsibility falls on Austria-Hungary in this matter.

"Simultaneously with the communication from the German government on Jan. 10, 1916, the Austro-Hungarian government declared that every merchant ship which for whatever purpose was armed with a gun forfeits by this circumstance along the character of a peaceful vessel, and that in consideration of these circumstances the Austro-Hungarian naval forces had received orders to treat such vessels as warships. In conformity with this declaration ships whereon were American citizens were sunk in the Mediterranean, presumably by Austro-Hungarian submarines. Some of these ships—for example the English steamer Welsh Prince—were torpedoed without warning by a submarine under the Austro-Hungarian flag. The American ambassador at Vienna requested information regarding these cases, but thus far has received no reply.

"At the same time, as the German declaration of Jan. 31, 1917, which described certain portions of the sea off the coasts of entente countries as exposed to danger from submarines, the Austro-Hungarian government made known that Austria-Hungary and her allies as from Feb. 1 would prevent with all available means shipping within the defined barred area.

"From the foregoing it can be concluded that the assurance given on the occasion of the Ancona case and renewed on the occasion of the discussion of the Persia case is in all material respects the same assurance contained in the note of the German government of May 4, which reads:

"In conformity with the general principles of international law concerning the holding up, search and destruction of merchant ships, such ships will not be sunk either inside or outside that portion of the sea which has been declared a naval war zone without previous warning and without taking such means as are available for saving human lives as are available for endeavor to offer resistance,' and that this assurance is more or less altered by the declaration of the Austro-Hungarian government of Feb. 18 and Jan. 31.

"Since the United States government is in doubt regarding the meaning to be attached to these declarations, especially the last, it desires to be finally and clearly informed of the standpoint which the Austro-Hungarian government adopts in these circumstances and also whether the assurance given in the Ancona and Persia cases is to be regarded as changed or withdrawn."

AUSTRIAN REPLY.

March 6, 1917, the state department in Washington received the following reply from Austria-Hungary:

"From the memorandum of Feb. 13 of the American ambassador the Austro-Hungarian foreign minister has concluded that the Washington cabinet, in view of statements made on Feb. 10 of last year and on Jan. 31, 1917, by the Austro-Hungarian government, is now in doubt regarding the attitude which Austria-Hungary will henceforth observe regarding the submarine war and as to whether the assurances given by the Austro-Hungarian government to the Washington cabinet, in the course of negotiations about the Ancona and Persia papers, have not been nullified by the aforementioned statement. The Austro-Hungarian government is ready to make a clear and definite statement so that these doubts may be solved.

"The Austro-Hungarian government may be allowed first of all to discuss briefly the methods employed by the entente powers in waging submarine war, because they are the starting point for the intensified submarine war begun by Austria-Hungary and her allies and also throw a bright light upon the attitude which the Austro-Hungarian government has taken hitherto in regard to the questions which have arisen. When Great Britain joined the war against the central powers only a few years had elapsed since that memorable time when she, in union with other states, began to lay the foundation at The Hague for modern naval war law.

"Soon afterward the British government had assembled in Holland representatives of the great sea powers in order to consolidate the further work of The Hague conference, especially in the sense of a just arrangement between interested belligerents and neutrals. These efforts aimed at nothing less than the mutual establishment of principles of right, which even in war times should embody the principles of freedom of the seas and the safeguarding of the interests of neutrals.

"Neutrals were not to enjoy these benefits for long. Hardly had the united kingdom decided to participate in the war when, almost at once, it began to break down the barriers which the principles of international law had erected. While the central powers, in the very beginning of the war, had declared that they would observe the declaration of London, which also bore the signature of the British representative, Great Britain threw overboard some of its important provisions. In an endeavor to cut off the central powers from supplies from overseas she enlarged, step by step, the list of contraband until nothing was missing in the list of things which to-day men want for their subsistence.

"Then Great Britain proclaimed what she called a blockade of the coast of the North sea, which forms also an important commerce route for Austro-Hungarians, in order to prevent goods which were still missing in the list of contraband from entering Germany, and in order to prevent all sea traffic by neutrals to those coasts as well as all exports through neutrals. That this blockade was in flagrant contradiction of the customary principles of the right of blockade as established by international agreement was explicitly declared by the president of the United States of America in words which will continue to live in the history of international law.

"By the illegal prevention of exports from the central powers Great Britain aimed at paralyzing the warless factories and works which the industrial and highly developed peoples of central Europe had created, and by forcing workmen to be idle to incite them to rebellion.

"When Austria-Hungary's southern neighbor joined the enemies of the central powers his first act was to declare as blockaded all coasts of the enemy, following, of course, the example of his allies in ignoring all the legal rights in the creation of which Italy had taken an active part a short time before. Austria-Hungary did not neglect to inform neutral powers at once that the blockade was not legal.

"For more than two years the central powers hesitated. Only then, and after long and careful consideration of pros and cons, did they begin to return like for like and attacked the enemy on the sea. As the only ones of the belligerents who had done everything to secure the existing treaties which were to guarantee to neutrals the freedom of the seas, they felt with pained hearts the law of the hour which commanded them to violate this freedom. But they took this step to fulfill the paramount duty toward their peoples and from the conviction that it would help the principle of the freedom of the seas to be victorious.

"The proclamations which they issued last January are apparently directed only against the rights of neutrals. In reality they serve toward the restoration of these rights, which their enemies have incessantly violated and which, if they were victors, they would destroy forever. Thus the submarines which are cruising around the English coast announce to peoples who need the sea—and what people does not want coasts?—that the day is not far off when the flags of all states, in the glory of their newly won freedom, can freely fly over the seas.

"We are sure, we hope, that this announcement will find an echo everywhere where neutral peoples live and that it will especially be understood by the great people of the United States, whose most illustrious representative has during the war defended with flaming words the freedom of the seas as the highway of all nations.

"If the people and government of the United States keep in mind that the blockade proclaimed by Great Britain is not only meant to wear down the central powers by starvation but aims at subjecting the seas to her rule, in order to establish in this manner her tyranny over all nations, while on the other hand the blockade of England and her allies only serves to make these powers incline toward peace with honor and a guaranty to all nations of the freedom of sea traffic and sea commerce and thereby a secured existence, then the question which of the two parties has the right on its side is already decided. Though the central powers have no desire in this war to beg for allies, they yet believe that they will be entitled to look to neutrals to appreciate their efforts to revise in the interest of all the principles of international law and equal rights of nations.

"In replying now to the question put in the American note of Feb. 13 the Austro-Hungarian government remarks, first, that in the exchange of notes referring to the cases of the Ancona and the Persia it restricted itself to defining its attitude to concrete questions which individually arose, without laying down its fundamental legal conception. But in its note of Oct. 19, 1915, referring to the Ancona case, it reserved to itself the right to bring up for discussion at a later date difficult international questions which arise in connection with submarine warfare. If it now refers to this reservation and now briefly discusses the question of sinking enemy vessels, to which that note refers, it is guided by the desire to show the American government that now, as heretofore, it strictly adheres to the assurance already given and endeavors by clearing up that important question arising from submarine warfare, because it touches the laws of humanity, to avoid misunderstandings between the monarchy and the American union.

"Above all, the Austro-Hungarian government desires to emphasize that it is also its opinion that the thesis set up by the American government, which also is represented in various learned records, that enemy merchantmen, apart from cases of attempted flight and resistance, must not be destroyed without precautions being taken for the safety of the persons aboard, forms, so to say, the kernel of the whole subject. Regarded from a higher standpoint, this thesis can of course be ranked in a further suggestive connection, and from that view its domain of application can be marked out more exactly.

"From the laws of humanity, which the Austro-Hungarian government and the Washington cabinet take in the same manner as judging the lines, the more general principle can be derived that when executing the right of destroying enemy merchantmen the loss of human life should as far as possible be avoided. To this principle the belligerent can only do justice by issuing warning before exercising the right. Therein he can choose the way which the aforementioned thesis of the American government indicates, according to which the commander of the war vessel himself gives warning, so that the crew and passengers could bring themselves into safety in the last moment, or the government of belligerent states can, if this is recognized as an inevitable necessity of war, issue warning of full effect also before the departure of the vessel which is to be sunk, or, finally, it can, if it establishes extensive measures against enemy sea trade, employ a general warning for all enemy vessels in question.

"That the principle, according to which care must be taken for the safety of the persons aboard, undergoes exceptions the American government itself recognized. But the Austro-Hungarian government believes that destruction without warning is admissible not only when a vessel flees or offers resistance. It appears to mention only one example—that the character of the vessel itself also must be taken into consideration. Merchantmen or other private vessels which carry a military garrison or arms aboard in order to commit hostile acts of any kind may, according to valid right, be destroyed without hesitation.

"The principle that neutrals in war time also should enjoy the advantages of freedom of the seas refers only to neutral vessels, not to neutral persons on board enemy vessels, because belligerents, as is well known, are entitled to prevent the enemy's sea traffic as far as they are able. Being in possession of the necessary war means and considering it necessary for the attainment of their war aims, they can prohibit sea traffic of enemy merchantmen on pain of their destruction, provided they have previously announced this to be their intention, so that every one, whether enemy or neutral, may be enabled to avoid endangering life. Even if doubts should arise regarding the justifiableness of such procedure and if the enemy should threaten reprisals, then this would be an affair for settlement between the belligerents only, who, as generally recognized, are entitled to make the high seas the scene of military operations and to oppose any interference with their enterprises and to decide for themselves what measures should be taken against enemy sea traffic.

"In such cases neutrals have no other legitimate interest and therefore no other legal claim, than that the belligerent inform them in time of prohibitions directed to the enemy, that they can avoid intrusting their lives and their goods to enemy vessels.

"The Austro-Hungarian government can suppose that the Washington cabinet will agree with these explanations which, according to the Austro-Hungarian government's conviction, are unassailable; as otherwise, disputing their correctness would, doubtless, be tantamount to saying—which certainly does not correspond to the opinion of the United States—that neutrals must be free to interfere with military operations of belligerents or even directly assume the office of judging as to the war means which are to be employed against enemies.

"It appears that it also would be flagrant misunderstanding if a neutral government, only to enable its subjects to travel on enemy vessels while they as readily and even with far greater security could use neutral vessels, should fail to arms with a belligerent power, which, perhaps, was fighting for its existence, not to speak of the most serious abuses for which the road would be left to waylay the vessel by certain signals, to enter into communication with the captain, to examine the ship's papers, draw up a protocol and, if necessary, take an inventory, etc.

"Fulfillment of these duties presupposes naturally that the war vessel has full certainty that the merchantman, on its part, also will act peacefully. Without doubt such certainty does not exist if the merchantman possesses armament which is sufficient to fight the war vessel. It can hardly be expected to discharge its duties under the muzzle of guns, whatever their purpose may be; without mentioning the fact that merchantmen of the entente powers, despite all assurances to the contrary, are—as this has been proved—provided with arms for an aggressive purpose and also use them for this purpose.

"It would also be a misinterpretation of the duties of humanity to demand that crews of war vessels expose themselves without defense to arms of the enemy. No state could value its duties of humanity toward the legal defenders of the fatherland less than its duties toward subjects of foreign powers. The Austro-Hungarian government, therefore, could have stated from conviction that its promise made to the Washington cabinet did not extend, from the very beginning, to armed merchantmen, because they, according to the valid principle and right which restrict hostilities to organized forces, are to be regarded as pirate vessels, which may be destroyed.

"As history shows, it was never permitted under general international law that merchantmen oppose the exercise of the right of capture by war vessels. Even if a regulation of such kind could be found, this would not prove that vessels should be allowed to arm themselves. It must also be taken into consideration that the arming of merchantmen would completely transform warfare on the sea, and that such a transformation cannot correspond with the intentions of those who endeavor to bring to bear the principles of humanity in warfare on sea. In fact, since the abolition of privateering no government until a few years ago has thought in the least of arming merchantmen.

"At the second peace conference, which was occupied with all questions of naval war law, the arming of merchantmen was mentioned only once. This utterance, however, is significant, because it was made by high officers, who freely declared: 'When a warship proposes to stop and visit a merchant ship, the commander before launching a small boat will cause a cannon shot to be fired. A cannon shot is the best guaranty that can be given. Merchant ships have no cannon on board.'

"Notwithstanding that, Austria-Hungary adhered to her promise also as regards this question. In the mentioned circular note neutrals were warned in time against intrusting their persons and property to armed vessels. The issued measure was not put in force at once, but a period of grace was given in order to enable neutrals to leave armed vessels which they had already boarded. Finally, Austro-Hungarian war vessels themselves have been instructed, even in the case of encountering armed enemy merchantmen, if, in view of the circumstances, it is possible, to issue a warning and take care of the rescue of passengers.

The statement of the American embassy that the armed British steamers Secundo, Uno and Welsh Prince were torpedoed by Austro-Hungarian submarines without warning is erroneous. [The Secundo and Uno are listed in marine registers as Norwegian vessels.] The Austro-Hungarian government meanwhile received information that no Austro-Hungarian war vessels took part in the sinking of these steamers.

"In the same manner as in the repeatedly mentioned circular note, the Austro-Hungarian government—and therewith it comes back to the question of intensified submarine warfare—as mentioned at the beginning of this aide memoire and also in its declaration of Jan. 31 of the current year, issued a warning to all neutrals by fixing a certain period.

"Moreover, the whole declaration represents in essence nothing else but a warning—namely, that no merchantmen will be allowed to enter the sea areas exactly described in the declaration.

"Moreover, Austro-Hungarian war vessels are instructed if possible to warn merchantmen encountered in these areas and to bring into safety the crews and passengers. The Austro-Hungarian government also possesses numerous reports that crews and passengers of vessels which have been destroyed in these areas have been brought into safety. For the eventual losses of human life which nevertheless should occur in the destruction of armed vessels or such encountered in the barred zone the Austro-Hungarian government can take no responsibility.

"Moreover, it can be pointed out that Austro-Hungarian submarines solely are operating in the Adriatic and Mediterranean, and that, therefore, an encroachment of American interests is hardly to be feared from Austro-Hungarian war vessels. In view of everything mentioned in the beginning of this aide memoire, there need hardly be an assurance that the barricading of sea areas described in the declaration does not aim at destruction of human life or even its endangering. But apart from the higher aim of sparing further suffering to mankind by shortening the war, and solely to place Great Britain and her allies, who, without an effective blockade over the coasts of the central powers, prevent the sea traffic of neutrals with these powers in the same isolation, the step is taken to render them by this pressure more pliable toward a peace which bears in itself a guaranty and is durable.

"That Austria-Hungary uses different means is especially caused by circumstances over which mankind has no power. The Austro-Hungarian government is convinced that it has done everything in its power to avoid human losses. It would attain this aim, which is intended by the central powers, most quickly and most certainly if in those sea areas no single human life were lost and no single life were endangered.

"Summarizing, the Austro-Hungarian government can state that the assurance given to the Washington cabinet in the Ancona case and which has been renewed in the Persia case has neither been abolished nor restricted by its declaration of Feb. 10, 1916, and Jan. 31, 1917. Within this assurance it will also in the future, united with its allies, do everything so that the peoples on earth will soon participate in the blessings of peace.

"If in the prosecution of this aim, which, as is well known, finds full sympathy in the Washington cabinet, it sees itself obliged to prevent neutral sea traffic in certain sea areas, in justification of this measure it will point not so much to the attitude of the enemy, which it considers not at all worthy of imitation, but it will point out that Austria-Hungary, by reason of the obstinacy and malignity of her enemies, who intend her destruction, has been placed in a state of self-defense than which history knows no more typical example.

"As the Austro-Hungarian government finds inspiration in the consciousness that the fight which Austria-Hungary is waging serves not only for maintenance of its vital interests but also for realization of equal rights of all states, it lays the greatest stress in this last and most severe period of the war, which, as it deeply deplores, demands sacrifices also from friends, on the confirmation by word and deed that the principle of humanity guides it, in the same manner as the law of respect for the interests of neutral peoples."

FLAG DAY ADDRESS.

Before a large audience gathered near the Washington monument in Washington, D. C., June 14, 1917, to celebrate Flag day President Wilson made the following address:

"My Fellow Citizens: We meet to celebrate Flag day, because this flag which we honor and under which we serve is the emblem of our unity, our power, our thought and purpose as a nation. It has no other character than that which we give it from generation to generation. The choices are ours. It floats in majestic silence above the hosts that execute those choices, whether in peace or in war. And yet, though silent, it speaks to us—speaks to us of the past, of the men and women who went before us and of the records they wrote upon it. We celebrate the day of its birth; and from its birth until now it has witnessed a great history, has floated on high the symbol of great events, of a great plan of life worked out by a great people.

"We are about to carry it into battle, to lift it where it will draw the fire of our enemies. We are about to bid thousands, hundreds of thousands, it may be millions, of our men, the young, the strong, the capable men of the nation, to go forth and die beneath it on fields of blood far away—for what? For some unaccustomed thing? For something for which it has never sought the fire before? American armies were never before sent across the seas. Why are they sent now? For some new purpose for which this great flag has never been carried before, or for some old, familiar, heroic purpose for which it has seen men, its own men, die on every battle field upon which Americans have borne arms since the revolution?

"These are questions which must be answered. We are Americans. We in our turn serve America, and can serve her with no private purpose. We must use her flag as she has always used it. We are accountable at the bar of history and must plead in utter frankness what purpose it is we seek to serve.

"It is plain enough how we were forced into the war. The extraordinary insults and aggressions of the imperial German government left us no self-respecting choice but to take up arms in defense of our rights as a free people and of our honor as a sovereign government. The military masters of Germany denied us the right to be neutral. They filled our unsuspecting communities with vicious spies and conspirators and sought to corrupt the opinion of our people in their own behalf. When they found that they could not do that their agents diligently spread sedition among us and sought to draw our own citizens from their allegiance—and some of those agents were men connected with the official embassy of the German government itself here in our own capital. They sought by violence to destroy our industries and arrest our commerce.

"They tried to incite Mexico to take up arms against us and to draw Japan into a hostile alliance with her, and that not by indirection, but by direct suggestion from the foreign office in Berlin. They impudently denied us the use of the high seas and repeatedly executed their threat that they would send to their death any of our people who ventured to approach the coasts of Europe. And many of our own people were corrupted. Men began to look upon their own neighbors with suspicion and to wonder in their hot resentment and surprise whether there was any community in which hostile intrigue did not lurk. What great nation in such circumstances would not have taken up arms? Much as we had desired peace, it was denied us, and not of our own choice. This flag under which we serve would have been dishonored had we withheld our hand.

"But that is only part of the story. We know now as clearly as we knew before we were ourselves engaged that we are not the enemies of the German people and that they are not our enemies. They did not originate or desire this hideous war or wish that we should be drawn into it, and we are vaguely conscious that we are fighting their cause, as they will some day see it, as well as our own. They are themselves in the grip of the same sinister power that has now at last stretched its ugly talons out and drawn blood from us. The whole world is at war, because the whole world is in the grip of that power and is trying out the great battle which shall determine whether it is to be brought under its mastery or fling itself free.

"The war was begun by the military masters of Germany, who proved to be also the masters of Austria-Hungary. These men have never regarded nations as peoples, men, women and children of like blood and frame as themselves, for whom governments existed and in whom governments had their life. They have regarded them merely as serviceable organizations, which they could by force or intrigue bend or corrupt to their own purpose.

"They have regarded the smaller states in particular, and the peoples who could be overwhelmed by force, as their natural tools and instruments of domination. Their purpose has long been avowed. The statesmen of other nations, to whom that purpose was incredible, paid little attention; regarded what German professors expounded in their classrooms and German writers set forth to the world as the goal of German policy as rather the dream of minds detached from practical affairs, as preposterous private conceptions of German destiny, than as the actual plans of responsible rulers. But the rulers of Germany themselves knew all the while what concrete plans, what well advanced intrigues lay back of what the professors and the writers were saying and were glad to go forward unmolested filling the thrones of Balkan states with German princes, putting German officers at the service of Turkey to drill her armies and make interest with her government, developing plans of sedition and rebellion in India and Egypt, setting their fires in Persia.

"The demands made by Austria upon Serbia were a mere single step in a plan which compassed Europe and Asia, from Berlin to Bagdad. They hoped those demands might not arouse Europe but they meant to press them whether they did or not, for they thought themselves ready for the final issue of arms.

"Their plan was to throw a broad belt of German military power and political control across the very center of Europe and beyond the Mediterranean into the heart of Asia; and Austria-Hungary was to be as much their tool and pawn as Serbia or Bulgaria or Turkey or the ponderous states of the east. Austria-Hungary, indeed, was to become part of the central German empire, absorbed and dominated by the same forces and influences that had originally converted the German states themselves. The dream had its heart at Berlin. It could have had a heart nowhere else. It rejected the idea of solidarity of race entirely. The choice of peoples played no part in it at all. It contemplated binding together racial and political units which could be kept together only by force—Czechs, Magyars, Croats, Serbs, Roumanians, Turks, Armenians—the proud states of Bohemia and Hungary, the stout little commonwealths of the Balkans, the indomitable Turks, the subtle peoples of the east.

"These peoples did not wish to be united. They ardently desired to direct their own affairs, would be satisfied only by undisputed independence. They could be kept quiet only by the presence or the constant threat of armed men. They would live under a common power only by sheer compulsion and await the day of revolution. But the German military statesmen had reckoned with all that and were ready to deal with it in their own way.

"And they have actually carried the greater part of that amazing plan into execution! Look how things stand. Austria is at their mercy. It has acted, not upon its own initiative or upon the choice of its own people, but at Berlin's dictation ever since the war began. Its people now desire peace, but cannot have it until leave is granted from Berlin. The so called central powers are, in fact, but a single power. Serbia is at its mercy, should its hands be busy for a moment freed. Bulgaria has consented to its will and Roumania is overrun. The Turkish armies, which Germans trained, are serving Germany, certainly not themselves, and the guns of German warships lying in the harbor at Constantinople remind Turkish statesmen every day that they have no choice but to take their orders from Berlin. From Hamburg to the Persian gulf the net is spread.

"Is it not easy to understand the eagerness for peace that has been manifested from Berlin ever since the snare was set and sprung? Peace, peace, peace has been the talk of her foreign office for now a year and more—not peace upon her own initiative, but upon the initiative of the nations over which she now deems herself to hold the advantage. A little of the talk has been published, but most of it has been private. Through all sorts of channels it has come to me, and in all sorts of guises, but never with the terms disclosed which the German government would be willing to accept. That government has other valuable pawns in its hands besides those I have mentioned. It still holds a valuable part of France, though with slowly relaxing grasp, and practically the whole of Belgium. Its armies press close upon Russia and overrun Poland at their will. It cannot go farther; it dare not go back. It wishes to close its bargain before it is too late and it has little left to offer for the pound of flesh it will demand.

"The military masters under whom Germany is bleeding seem very clearly to what point fate has brought them. If they fall back or are forced back an inch their power both abroad and at home will fall to pieces like a house of cards. It is their power at home they are thinking about now more than their power abroad. It is that power which is trembling under their very feet; and deep fear has entered their hearts. They have but one chance to perpetuate their military power or even their controlling political influence. If they can secure peace now, with the immense advantages still in their hands which they have up to this point apparently gained, they will have justified themselves before the German people; they will have gained by force what they promised to gain by it; an immense expansion of German power, an immense enlargement of German industrial and commercial opportunities.

"Their prestige will be secure, and with their prestige their political power. If they fall their people will thrust them aside; a government accountable to the people themselves will be set up in Germany as it has been in England. In the United States, in France, and in all the great countries of the modern time except Germany. If they succeed they are safe and Germany and the world are undone; if they fail Germany is saved and the world will be at peace. If they succeed America will fall within the menage. We and all the rest of the world must remain armed, as they will remain, and must make ready for the next step in their aggression; if they fall the world may unite for peace and Germany may be of the union.

"Do you not now understand the new intrigue, the intrigue for peace, and why the masters of Germany do not hesitate to use any agency that promises to effect their purpose, the deceit of the nations? Their present particular aim is to deceive all those who throughout the world stand for the rights of peoples and the self-government of nations; for they see what immense strength the forces of justice and of liberalism are gathering out of this war. They are employing liberals in their enterprise. They are using men, in Germany and without, as their spokesmen, whom they have hitherto despised and oppressed, using them for their own destruction—socialists, the leaders of labor, the thinkers they have hitherto sought to silence. Let them once succeed and the men, now their tools, will be ground to powder beneath the weight of the great military empire they will have set up; the revolutionists in Russia will be cut off from all succor or co-operation in western Europe, and a counter-revolution fostered and supported; Germany herself will lose her chance of freedom, and all Europe will arm for the next, the final struggle.

"The sinister intrigue is being no less actively conducted in this country than in Russia, and in every country in Europe to which the agents and dupes of the imperial German government can get access. That government has many spokesmen here, in places high and low. They have learned discretion. They keep within the law. It is opinion they utter now, not sedition. They proclaim the liberal purposes of their masters; declare this a foreign war which can touch America with no danger to either her lands or her institutions; set England at the center of the stage and talk of her ambition to assert economic dominion throughout the world; appeal to our ancient tradition of isolation in the politics of the nations; and seek to undermine the government with false professions of loyalty to its principles.

"But they will make no headway. The false betray themselves also in every accent. It is only friends and partisans of the German government whom we have already identified who utter these thinly disguised disloyalties. The facts are patent to all the world and nowhere are they more plainly seen than in the United States, where we are accustomed to deal with facts and not with sophistries, and the great fact that stands out above all the rest is that this is a peoples' war, a war for freedom and justice and self-government among all the nations of the world, a war to make the world safe for the peoples who live upon it and have made it their own, the German people themselves included, and that with us rests the choice to break through all these hypocrisies and patent cheats and masks of brute force and help set the world free, or else stand aside and let it be dominated a long age through by sheer weight of arms and the arbitrary choices of self-constituted masters, by the nation which can maintain the biggest armies and the most irresistible armaments—a power to which the world has afforded no parallel and in the face of which political freedom must wither and perish.

"For us there is but one choice. We have made it. We are to the man or group of men that seeks to stand in our way in this day of high resolution when every principle we hold dearest is to be vindicated and made secure for the salvation of the nations. We are ready to plead at the bar of history and our flag shall wear a new luster. Once more we shall make good with our lives and fortunes the great faith to which we were born and a new glory shall shine in the face of our people."

WILSON TO AMERICAN LABOR.

In an address before the annual convention of the American Federation of Labor in Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 12, President Wilson said:

"Mr. President, delegates of the American Federation of Labor, ladies and gentlemen: I esteem it a great privilege and a real honor to be thus admitted to your public councils. When your executive committee paid me the compliment of inviting me here I gladly accepted the invitation because it seems to me that this above all other times in our history is the time for common counsel, for the drawing not only of the energies but of the minds of the nation together.

"I thought that it was a welcome opportunity for disclosing to you some of the thoughts that have been gathering in my mind during the last momentous months.

"I am introduced to you as the president of the United States, and yet I would be pleased if you would put the thought of the office into the background and regard me as one of your fellow citizens who has come here to speak not the words of authority but the words of counsel, the words which men should speak to one another who wish to be frank in a moment more critical perhaps than the history of the world has ever yet known, a moment when it is every man's duty to forget himself, to forget his own interests, to fill himself with the nobility of a great national and world conception and act upon a new platform, elevated above the ordinary affairs of life, elevated to where men have views of the long destiny of mankind.

"I think that in order to realize just what this moment of counsel is, it is very desirable that we should remind ourselves just how this war came about and just what it is for. You can explain most wars very simply, but the explanation of this is not so simple. Its roots run deep into all the obscure soils of history, and in my view this is the last decisive issue between the old principles of power and the new principles of freedom.

"The war was started by Germany. Her authorities deny that they started it. But I am willing to let the statement I have just made await the verdict of history. And the thing that needs to be explained is why Germany started the war.

"Remember what the position of Germany in the world was—as enviable a position as any nation has ever occupied. The whole world stood at admiration of her wonderful intellectual and material achievements, and all the intellectual men of the world went to school to her. As a university man I have been surrounded by men trained in Germany, men who had resorted to Germany because nowhere else could they get such thorough and searching training, particularly in the principles of science and the principles that underlie modern material achievements.

"Her men of science had made her industries perhaps the most competent industries in the world, and the label 'Made in Germany' was a guarantee of good workmanship and of sound material. She had access to all the markets of the world, and every other man who traded in those markets feared Germany because of her effective and almost irresistible competition.

"She had a place in the sun. Why was she not satisfied? What more did she want? There was nothing in the world of peace that she did not already have and have in abundance.

"We boast of the extraordinary pace of American advancement. We show with pride the statistics of the increase of our industries and of the population of our cities. Well, those statistics did not match the recent statistics of Germany. Her old cities took on youth, grew faster than any American city ever grew; her old industries opened their eyes and saw a new world and went out for its conquest, and yet the authorities of Germany were not satisfied.

"You have one part of the answer to the question why she was not satisfied in her methods of competition. There is no important industry in Germany upon which the government has not laid its hands to direct it, and when necessity arose, control it.

"You have only to ask any man whom you meet who is familiar with the conditions that prevailed before the war in the matter of international competition, to find out the methods of competition which the German manufacturers and exporters used under the patronage and support of the government of Germany. You will find that they were the same sorts of competition that we have tried to prevent by law within our own borders.

"If they could not sell their goods cheaper than we could sell ours at a profit to themselves they could get a subsidy from the government which made it possible to sell them cheaper anyhow, and the conditions of competition were thus controlled in large measure by the German government itself. But that did not satisfy the German government.

"All the while there was lying behind its thoughts, in its dreams of the future, a political control which would enable it in the long run to dominate the labor and the industry of the world. They were not content with success by superior achievement; they wanted success by authority.

"I suppose few of you have thought much about the Berlin to Bagdad railway. The Berlin to Bagdad railway was constructed in order to run the threat of force down the flank of the industrial undertakings of half a dozen other countries, so that when German competition came in it would not be resisted too far—because there was always the possibility of getting German armies into the heart of that country quicker than any other armies could be got there.

"Look at the map of Europe now. Germany, in thrusting upon us again and again the discussion of peace, talks about what? Talks about Belgium, talks about northern France, talks about Alsace-Lorraine. Those are deeply interesting subjects to us and to them, but they are not talking about the heart of the matter.

"Take the map and look at it. Germany has absolute control of Austria-Hungary, practical control of the Balkan states, control of Turkey, control of Asia Minor. I saw a map in which the whole thing was printed in appropriate black the other day and the black stretched all the way from Hamburg to Bagdad—the bulk of German power inserted into the heart of the world.

"If she can keep that, she has kept all that her dreams contemplated when the war began. If she can keep that, her power can disturb the world as long as she keeps it, always provided, for I feel bound to put this proviso in, always provided the present influences that control the German government continue to control it.

"I believe that the spirit of freedom can get into the hearts of Germans and find as fine a welcome there as it can find in any other hearts. But the spirit of freedom does not suit the plans of the pan-Germans. Power cannot be used with concentrated force against free peoples if it is used by free people.

"You know how many intimations come to us from one of the central powers that it is more anxious for peace than the chief central power; and you know that it means that the people in that central power know that if the war ends as it stands they will in effect themselves be vassals of Germany, notwithstanding that their populations are compounded with all the peoples of that part of the world, and notwithstanding the fact that they do not wish in their pride and proper spirit of nationality to be so absorbed and dominated.

"Germany is determined that the political power of the world shall belong to her. There have been such ambitions before. They have been in part realized. But never before have those ambitions been based upon so exact and precise and scientific a plan of domination.

"May I not say that it is amazing to me that any group of people should be so ill-informed to suppose, as some groups in Russia apparently suppose, that any reforms planned in the interest of the people can live in the presence of a Germany powerful enough to undermine or overthrow them by intrigue or force? Any body of free men that compounds with the present German government is compounding for its own destruction. But that is not the whole of the story. Any man in America, or anywhere else, who supposes that the free industry and enterprise of the world can continue if the pan-German plan is achieved and German power fastened upon the world is as fatuous as the dreamers of Russia.

"What I am opposed to is not the feeling of the pacifists, but their stupidity. My heart is with them, but my mind has a contempt for them. I want peace, but I know how to get it, and they do not.

"You will notice that I sent a friend of mine, Col. House, to Europe, who is as great a lover of peace as any man in the world; but I did not send him on a peace mission: I sent him to take part in a conference as to how the war was to be won, and he knows, as I know, that this is the way to get peace, if you want it for more than a few minutes.

"All of this is a preface to the conference that I referred to with regard to what we are going to do. If we are true friends of freedom—our own or anybody else's—we will see that the power of this country and the productivity of this country is raised to its absolute maximum and that absolutely nobody is allowed to stand in the way of it.

"When I say that nobody is allowed to stand in the way, I don't mean that they shall be prevented by the power of the government, but by the power of the American spirit. Our duty. If we are to do this great thing and show America to be what we believe her to be, the greatest hope and energy of the world, then we must stand together night and day until the job is finished.

"While we are fighting for freedom we must see, among other things, that labor is free, and that means a number of interesting things. It means not only that we must do what we have declared our purpose to do—see that the conditions of labor are not rendered more onerous by the war—but also that we shall see to it that the instrumentalities by which the conditions of labor are improved are not blocked or checked.

"That we must do. That has been the matter about which I have taken pleasure in conferring from time to time with your president, Mr. Gompers. And, if I may be permitted to do so, I want to express my admiration of his patriotic courage, his large vision, and his statesmanlike sense of what is to be done. I like to lay my mind alongside of a mind that knows how to pull in harness. The horses that kick over the traces will have to be put in a corral.

"Now to 'stand the ground' means that nobody must interrupt the processes of our energy. If the interruption can possibly be avoided without the absolute invasion of freedom. To put it concretely that means this: Nobody has a right to stop the processes of labor until all the methods of conciliation and settlement have been exhausted, and I might as well say right here that I am not talking to you alone.

"You sometimes stop the courses of labor, but there are others who do the same. And I believe that I am speaking of my own experience not only but of the experiences of others, when I say that you are reasonable in a larger number of cases than the capitalists.

"I am not saying these things to them personally yet, because I haven't had a chance. But in order to clear the atmosphere and come down to business everybody on both sides has got to transact business, and the settlement is never impossible when both sides want to do the square and right thing. Moreover, a settlement is always hard to avoid when the parties can be brought face to face.

"I can differ with a man much more radically when he isn't in the room than I can when he is in the room, because then the awkward thing is that he can come back at me and answer what I say. It is always dangerous for a man to have the floor entirely to himself. And, therefore, we must insist in every instance that the parties come into each other's presence and there discuss the issues between them, and not separately in places which have no communication with each other.

"I always like to remind myself of a delightful saying of an Englishman of a past generation, Charles Lamb. He was with a group of friends and he spoke very harshly of some man who was not present. I ought to say that Lamb suffered a little. And one of his friends said, Why, Charles, I didn't know that you knew so and so?"

"Oh," he said, "I don't. I can't hate a man I know."

"There is a great deal of human nature, of very pleasant human nature, in that saying. It is hard to hate a man you know, I must admit. And parenthetically, that there are some politicians whose methods I do not believe in, but they are jolly good fellows, and if they only would not talk the wrong kind of politics with me I would love to be with them. And so it is all along the line in serious matters and things less serious."

"We are all of the same clay and spirit and we can get together if we desire to get together."

"Therefore my counsel to you is this:

"Let us show ourselves Americans by showing that we do not want to go off in separate camps or groups by ourselves, but that we want to co-operate with all other classes and all other groups in a common enterprise which is to release the spirits of the world from bondage."

"I would be willing to set that up as the final test of an American. That is the meaning of democracy."

"I have been very much distressed, my fellow citizens, by some of the things that have happened recently. The mob spirit is displaying itself here and there in this country. I have sympathy with what some men are saying, but I have no sympathy with the men that take their punishment into their own hands, and I want to say to every man who does join such a mob that I do not recognize him as worthy of the free institutions of the United States."

"There are some organizations in this country whose object is anarchy and the destruction of law, but I would not meet their efforts by making myself a partner in destroying the law. I despise and hate their purposes as much as any man, but I respect the ancient processes of justice and I would be too proud not to see them done justice, however wrong they are. And so I want to utter my earnest protest against any manifestation of the spirit of lawlessness anywhere or in any cause."

"Why, gentlemen, look what it means. We claim to be the greatest democratic people in the world, and democracy means, first of all, that we can govern ourselves. If our men have not self-control, then they are not capable of that great thing which we call democratic government. A man who takes the law into his hands is not the right man to co-operate in any form of or development of law and institution. And some of the processes by which the struggle between capital and labor is carried on are processes that come very near to taking the law into your own hands."

"I do not mean for a moment to compare them with what I have just been speaking of, but I want you to see that they are mere gradations of the manifestations of the unwillingness to co-operate, and the fundamental lesson of the whole situation is that we must not only take common counsel but that we must yield to and obey common counsel. Not all of the instrumentalities for this are at hand. I am hopeful that in the very near future new instrumentalities may be organized by which we can see to it that various things that are now going on shall not go on."

"There are various processes of the dilution of labor and the unnecessary substitution of labor and bidding in distant markets and unfairly upsetting the whole competition of labor which ought not to go on—I mean now on the part of employers—and we must interject into this some instrumentality of co-operation by which the fair thing will be done all around. I am hopeful that some of these instrumentalities may be devised, but whether they are or not, we must use those we have, and upon every occasion where it is necessary have such an instrumentality originated."

"And so, my fellow citizens, the reason that I came away from Washington is that I sometimes get lonely down there. There are so many people in Washington who know things that are not so, and there are so few people in Washington who know anything about what the people of the United States are thinking about. I have to come away to get reminded of the rest of the country. I have to come away and talk to men who are up against the real thing and say to them, 'I am with you if you are with me.' And the only test of being with me is not to think about me personally at all, but merely to think of me as the expression for the time being of the power and dignity and hope of the United States."

TRADING WITH THE ENEMY.

ADMINISTRATIVE MACHINERY.

President Wilson on Oct. 6, 1917, approved the trading with the enemy act, which is given in full on another page of this issue, and by an executive order signed Oct. 12, 1917, established the administrative machinery to carry out the provisions of the law. The proclamation follows:

"By virtue of the authority vested in me by 'An act to define, regulate and punish trading with the enemy and for other purposes,' approved Oct. 6, 1917, and by title VII. of the act, approved June 15, 1917, entitled, 'An act to punish acts of interference with the foreign relations, the neutrality and the foreign commerce of the United States, to punish espionage and better to enforce the criminal laws of the United States and for other purposes' (hereinafter designated as the espionage act), I hereby make the following orders and rules and regulations:

WAR TRADE BOARD.

1. I hereby establish a war trade board, to be composed of representatives respectively of the secretary of state, of the secretary of the treasury, of the secretary of agriculture, of the secretary of commerce, of the food administrator and of the United States shipping board.

2. I hereby vest in said board the power and authority to issue licenses under such terms and conditions as are not inconsistent with law, or to withhold or refuse licenses, for the exportation of all articles, except coin, bullion or currency, the exportation or taking of which out of the United States may be restricted by proclamations heretofore or hereafter issued by me under said title VII. of the espionage act.

3. I further hereby vest in said war trade board the power and authority to issue, upon such terms and conditions as are not inconsistent with law, or to withhold or refuse, licenses for the importation of all articles the importation of which may be restricted by any proclamation hereafter issued by me under section 2 of the trading with the enemy act.

4. I further hereby vest in said war trade board the power and authority not vested in other officers by subsequent provisions of this order to issue, under such terms and conditions as are not inconsistent with law, or to withhold or refuse, licenses to trade, either directly or indirectly, with, to or from, or for, or on account of, on or behalf of, or for the benefit of, any other person, with knowledge or reasonable cause to believe that such person is an enemy or ally of enemy, or is conducting or taking part in such trade directly or indirectly for, or on account of, or on behalf of, or for the benefit of, an enemy or ally of enemy.

5. I further hereby vest in said war trade board the power and authority, under such terms and conditions as are not inconsistent with law, to issue to every enemy or ally of enemy, other than enemy or ally of enemy insurance or re-insurance companies, doing business within the United States through an agency, or branch office, or otherwise, applying therefor within thirty days of Oct. 6, 1917, licenses temporary or otherwise to continue to do business, or said board may withhold or refuse the same.

6. And I further hereby vest in said war trade board the executive administration of the provisions of section 4 (b) of the trading with the enemy act relative to granting licenses to enemies and enemy allies to assume or use other names than those by which they were known at the beginning of the war. And I hereby authorize said board to issue licenses not inconsistent with the provisions of law or to withhold or to refuse licenses to any enemy, or ally of enemy, or partnership of which an enemy or ally of enemy is a member or was a member at the beginning of the war, to assume or use any name other than that by which such enemy or ally of enemy or partnership was ordinarily known at the beginning of the war.

7. I hereby revoke the executive order of Aug. 21, 1917, creating the exports administrative board; all proclamations, rules, regulations and instructions made or given by me under title VII. of the espionage act and now being administered by the exports administrative board are hereby continued, confirmed and made applicable to the war trade board, and all employees of the exports administrative board are hereby transferred to and continued employees of the war trade board in the same capacities, and said war trade board is hereby authorized to exercise, without interruption, the powers heretofore exercised by said exports administrative board.

8. The said war trade board is hereby authorized and empowered to take all such measures as may be necessary or expedient to administer the powers hereby conferred. And I hereby vest in the war trade board the power conferred upon the president by section 5 (a) to make such rules and regulations not inconsistent with law, as may be necessary and proper for the exercise of the power conferred upon said board.

WAR TRADE COUNCIL.

9. I hereby establish a war trade council to be composed of the secretary of state, secretary of the treasury, secretary of agriculture, secretary of commerce, the food administrator and the chairman of the shipping board, and I hereby authorize and direct the said war trade council thus constituted to act in an advisory capacity in such matters under said acts as may be referred to them by the president of the war trade board.

SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY.

10. I hereby vest in the secretary of the treasury the executive administration of any investigation, regulation or prohibition of any transaction in foreign exchange, export or earmarking of gold or silver coin, or bullion, or currency, transfers of credit in any form (other than credits relating solely to transactions to be executed wholly within the United States) and transfers of evidences of indebtedness or of the ownership of property between the United States and any foreign country or between residents of one or more foreign countries by any person within the United States, and I hereby vest in the secretary of the treasury the authority and power to require any person engaged in any such transaction to furnish under oath complete information relative thereto, including the production of any books of account, contracts, letters or other papers in connection therewith in the custody or control of such person, either before or after such transaction is completed.

11. I further hereby vest in the secretary of the treasury the executive administration of the provisions of subsection (c) of section 3 of the trading with the enemy act relative to sending, or taking out of, or bringing into, or attempting to send, take out of, or bring into, the United States, any letter, writing or tangible form of communication, except in the regular course of the mail; and of the sending, taking or transmitting, or attempting to send, take or transmit, out of the United States, any letter, or other writing, book, map, plan or other paper, picture, or any telegram, cablegram or wireless message, or other form of communication intended for or to be delivered, directly or indirectly, to an enemy or ally of enemy. And said secretary of the treasury is hereby authorized and empowered to issue licenses, to send, take or transmit out of the United States anything otherwise forbidden by said subsection (c) and give such consent or grant such exemption in respect thereto as is not inconsistent with law, or to withhold or refuse the same.

12. I further authorize the secretary of the treasury to grant a license under such terms and conditions as are not inconsistent with law, or to withhold or refuse the same to any "enemy" or "ally of enemy" insurance or reinsurance company doing business within the United States through an agency or branch office or otherwise, which shall make application within thirty days of Oct. 6, 1917.

13. I hereby authorize and direct the secretary of the treasury, for the purpose of such executive administration, to take such measures, adopt such administrative procedure, and use such agency or agencies as he may from time to time deem necessary and proper for that purpose. The proclamation of the president, dated Sept. 7, 1917, made under authority vested in him by title VII. of said act of congress, approved June 15, 1917, shall remain in full force and effect. The executive order, dated Sept. 7, 1917, made under the authority of said title, shall remain in full force and effect until new regulations shall have been established by the president or by the secretary of the treasury, with the approval of the president, and thereupon shall be superseded.

CENSORSHIP BOARD.

14. I hereby establish a censorship board, to be composed of representatives, respectively, of the secretary of war, the secretary of the navy, the postmaster-general, the war trade board and the chairman of the committee on public information.

15. And I hereby vest in said censorship board the executive administration of the rules, regulations and proclamations from time to time established by the president under subsection (d) of section 3 of the trading with the enemy act, for the censorship of communications by mail, cable, radio or other means of transmission passing between the United States and any foreign country from time to time specified by the president, or carried by any vessel or other means of transportation touching at any port, place or territory of the United States and bound to or from any foreign country.

16. The said censorship board is hereby authorized to take all such measures as may be necessary or expedient to administer the powers hereby conferred.

FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION.

17. I further hereby vest in the federal trade commission the power and authority to issue licenses under such terms and conditions as are not inconsistent with law or to withhold or refuse the same to any citizen of the United States or any corporation organized within the United States to file and prosecute applications in the country of an enemy or ally of enemy for letters patent or for registration of trade-mark, print, label or copyright, and to pay the fees required by law and the customary agents' fees, the maximum amount of which in each case shall be subject to the control of such commission; or to pay to any enemy or ally of enemy any tax, annuity or fee which may be required by the laws of such enemy or ally of enemy nation in relation to patents, trade-marks, prints, labels and copyrights.

18. I hereby vest in the federal trade commission the power and authority to issue, pursuant to the provisions of section 10 (c) of the trading with the enemy act, upon such terms and conditions as are not inconsistent with law, or to withhold or refuse a license to any citizen of the United States or any corporation organized within the United States, to manufacture or cause to be manufactured a machine, manufacture composition of matter, or design, or to carry on or cause to be carried on a process under any patent, or to use any trade-mark, print, label or copyrighted matter owned or controlled by an enemy or ally of enemy, at any time during the present war; and also to fix the prices of articles and products manufactured under such licenses, necessary to the health of the military and the naval forces of the United States, or the successful prosecution of the war; and to prescribe the fee which may be charged for such license, not exceeding $100, and not exceeding 1 per centum of the fund deposited by the licensee with the alien property custodian as provided by law.

19. I hereby further vest in the said federal trade commission the executive administration of the provisions of section 10 (d) of the trading with the enemy act, the power and authority to prescribe the form of and time and manner of filing statements of the extent of the use and enjoyment of the license and of the prices received and the times at which the licensee shall make payments to the alien property custodian, and the amounts of said payments, in accordance with the trading with the enemy act.

20. I further hereby vest in the federal trade commission the power and authority, whenever in its opinion the publication of an invention or the granting of a patent may be detrimental to the public safety or defense, or may assist the enemy, or endanger the successful prosecution of the war, to order that the invention be kept secret and the grant of letters patent withheld until the end of the war.

21. The said federal trade commission is hereby authorized to take all such measures as may be necessary or expedient to administer the powers hereby conferred.

THE POSTMASTER-GENERAL.

22. I hereby vest in the postmaster-general the executive administration of all the provisions (except the penal provisions) of section 19 of the trading with the enemy act, relating to the printing, publishing or circulation in any foreign language of any news item, editorial or other printed matter respecting the government of the United States or of any nation engaged in the present war, its policies, international relations, the state or conduct of the war or any matter relating thereto, and the filing with the postmaster at the place of publication, in the form of an affidavit of a true and complete translation of the entire article containing such matter proposed to be published in such print, newspaper or publication, and the issuance of permits for the printing, publication and distribution thereof free from said restriction. And the postmaster-general is authorized and empowered to issue such permits upon such terms and conditions as are not inconsistent with law and to refuse, withhold or revoke the same.

23. The sum of $35,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby allotted out of the funds appropriated by the trading with the enemy act, to be expended by the postmaster-general in the administration of said section 19 thereof.

24. The postmaster-general is hereby authorized to take all such measures as may be necessary or expedient to administer the powers hereby conferred.

SECRETARY OF STATE.

25. I hereby vest in the secretary of state the executive administration of the provisions of subsection (b) of section 3 of the trading with the enemy act, relative to any person transporting or attempting to transport any subject or citizen of an enemy or ally of an enemy nation, and relative to transporting or attempting to transport by any owner, master or other person in charge of a vessel of American registry, from any place to any other place, such subject or citizen of an enemy or enemy ally.

26. And I hereby authorize and empower the secretary of state to issue licenses for such transportation of enemies and enemy allies, or to withhold or refuse the same.

27. And the said secretary of state is hereby authorized and empowered to take all such measures as may be necessary or expedient to administer the powers hereby conferred and to grant, refuse, withhold or revoke licenses thereunder.

SECRETARY OF COMMERCE.

28. I hereby vest in the secretary of commerce the power to review the refusal of any collector of customs, under the provisions of sections 13 and 14 of the trading with the enemy act, to clear any vessel, domestic or foreign, for which clearance is required by law.

ALIEN PROPERTY CUSTODIAN.

29. I hereby vest in an alien property custodian, to be hereafter appointed, the executive administration of all the provisions of section 7 (a), section 7 (c) and section 7 (d) of the trading with the enemy act, including all power and authority to require lists and reports, and to extend the time for filing the same, conferred upon the president by the provisions of said section 7 (a), and including the power and authority conferred upon the president by the provisions of said section 7 (c), to require the conveyance, transfer, assignment, delivery or payment to himself, at such time and in such manner as he shall prescribe, of any money or other properties owing to or belonging to or held for, by or on account of, or on behalf of, or for the benefit of any enemy or ally of an enemy, not holding a license granted under the provisions of the trading with the enemy act, which, after investigation, said alien property custodian shall determine is so owing, or so belongs, or is so held.

30. Any person who desires to make conveyance, transfer, payment, assignment or delivery, under the provisions of section 7 (d) of the trading with the enemy act, to the alien property custodian of any money or other property owing to or held for, by or on account of, or on behalf of, or for the benefit of an enemy or ally of an enemy, not holding a license granted as provided in the trading with the enemy act, or to whom any obligation or form of liability to such enemy or ally of an enemy is presented for payment, shall file application with the alien property custodian for consent and permit to so convey, transfer, assign, deliver or pay such money or other property to him, and said alien property custodian is hereby authorized to exercise the power and authority conferred upon the president by the provisions of said section 7 (d) and to consent and to issue permit upon such terms and conditions as are not inconsistent with law, or to withhold or refuse the same.

31. I further vest in the alien property custodian the executive administration of all the provisions of section 8 (a), section 8 (b) and section 9 of the trading with the enemy act, so far as said sections relate to the powers and duties of said alien property custodian.

32. I vest in the attorney-general all power and authority conferred upon the president by the provisions of section 9 of the trading with the enemy act.

33. The alien property custodian, to be hereafter appointed, is hereby authorized to take all such measures as may be necessary or expedient, and not inconsistent with law, to administer the powers hereby conferred, and he shall further have the power and authority to make such rules and regulations not inconsistent with law as may be necessary and proper to carry out the provisions of said section 7 (a), section 7 (c), section 7 (d), section 8 (a) and section 9 (b) conferred upon the president by the provisions thereof and by the provisions of section 5 (a), said rules and regulations to be duly approved by the attorney-general.

34. The alien property custodian, to be hereafter appointed, shall, "under the supervision and direction of the president, and under such rules and regulations as the president shall prescribe," have administration of all moneys (including checks and drafts payable on demand) and of all property, other than money, which shall come into his possession in pursuance of the provisions of the trading with the enemy act. In accordance with the provisions of section 6, section 10 and section 12 thereof.

WOODROW WILSON.

HOSPITALS.

Thirty-two hospitals, or one for each of the national army and national guard camps, were erected at a total cost of approximately $14,500,000. Those at the national army cantonments cost $500,000 each and those at the national guard camps $400,000 each, the lower cost of the latter being due to the fact that they are in the south where heating is not required. Provision was made for 10 per cent of the troops at each camp. The hospitals were constructed according to a uniform plan with complete modern equipment and at least 1,000 beds in each. The hospital and auxiliary buildings at each camp averaged seventy, the ground space required being about sixty acres.

ARMY ORGANIZATION.

The following statement outlining the new army organization for overseas service was made public by the war department Sept. 22, 1917:

STRENGTH OF INFANTRY REGIMENT.

At maximum strength an infantry regiment will comprise 103 officers and 3,652 men. It will be made up as follows, the figures including officers and men:

1 headquarters and headquarters company...	303
3 battalions of 4 rifle companies each.....	3,078
1 supply company.....	140
1 machine gun company.....	178
1 medical detachment.....	56

3,755

Each rifle company has a strength of 250 men and 6 officers. It is composed of a company headquarters (2 officers and 28 men) and four platoons. Each platoon includes:

1 headquarter.....	2
1 section bombers and rifle grenadiers.....	22
2 sections riflemen, 12 each.....	24
1 section auto riflemen (4 guns).....	11

69

The machine gun company has 6 officers and 172 men. It consists of the headquarters (3 officers and 21 men), 3 platoons (each with 1 officer and 46 men), and a train (13 men). Its armament is 12 machine guns of heavy type and 4 spare guns.

TRANSPORTATION AND EQUIPMENT.

The transportation equipment of the regiment is: 22 combat wagons, 16 rolling kitchens, 22 baggage and ration wagons, 16 ration carts, 15 water carts, 3 medical carts, 24 machine gun carts, 59 riding horses, 8 riding mules, 32 draft mules, 2 motorcycles with side cars, 1 motor car, 42 bicycles.

New fighting equipment for each regiment, in addition to the usual rifles, bayonets, pistols, etc., includes 480 trench knives (40 to each company), 192 automatic rifles (16 to each company), and 3 one-pounder cannon manned by the one-pounder cannon platoon of the regimental headquarters company.

HEADQUARTERS COMPANY.

Each regimental headquarters company is made up of 7 officers and 294 men, as follows:

One headquarters platoon (93 officers and men) including 1 staff section (36 officers and men), 1 orderlies' section (29 men), 1 band section (28 men).

One signal platoon (77 officers and men) including 1 telephone section (51 men), 1 section with headquarters (10 men), 1 section with 3 battalions (16 officers and men).

One sappers' and bombers' platoon (43 officers and men) including 1 section sappers (9 men) for digging and special work, 1 section bombers (34 officers and men).

One pioneer platoon (55 officers and men) for engineer work.

One one-pounder cannon platoon (33 officers and men).

INFANTRY DIVISIONS.

The following summary of the organization of an infantry division completes the general outline of organization of the United States army for service in Europe. The figures are the total of officers and men for each entry. Each infantry division comprises:

1 division headquarters	164
1 machine gun battalion of 4 companies.....	768
2 infantry brigades, each composed of 2 infantry regiments and 1 machine gun battalion of 3 companies.....	16,420
1 field artillery brigade composed of 3 field artillery regiments and 1 trench mortar battery	5,068
1 field signal battalion.....	262
1 regiment of engineers.....	1,666
1 train headquarters and military police.....	337
1 ammunition train.....	962
1 supply train.....	472
1 engineer train.....	84
1 sanitary train composed of 4 field hospital companies and 4 ambulance companies.....	949

27,152

ARTILLERY AND MACHINE GUN STRENGTH.

The new organization increases the ratio of artillery and machine gun strength of infantry. In place of the old division of three brigades with three infantry regiments in each are two brigades with two infantry regiments in each. But in the new as in the old organization there are three regiments of field artillery in each division, making the ratio of artillery to infantry regiments three to four, in place of three to nine. A trench mortar battery, added to the artillery brigade, and a one-pounder platoon, attached to each infantry regiment headquarters company, adds to the gun strength of the division.

A division now includes a total of fourteen machine gun companies. Each of the four infantry regiments has one; each of the two brigades has a machine gun battalion of three companies, and the division has a machine gun battalion of four companies. This gives each division a mobile machine gun strength of ten companies, which can be used as special needs require, while each regiment still has its own machine gun equipment in one of its component companies. And, in addition, there are forty-eight sections of auto-rifemen, each section carrying four light machine guns (automatic rifles), one section in each of the four platoons making up each rifle company.

SPECIAL AND TECHNICAL TROOPS.

(General order 108.)

1. Under authority conferred by section 2, act of May 18, 1917, the president directs that there be organized for the period of the existing emergency, the enlisted strength being raised and maintained by voluntary enlistment or draft, the following special and technical engineer troops:

3. The designation of regiments of the national guard may show in parenthesis their former state designations, as, for example:

- th infantry (1st La.).
- th field artillery (1st Miss.).

The designations of regiments of the national army may show in parenthesis the state from which each regiment, or the bulk of it, was drawn, as, for example:

- th infantry (N. Y.).
- th field artillery (N. J.).

4. Provisional organizations of one arm or branch made up of personnel drawn from another arm or branch may show the source of their personnel in parenthesis after their provisional designations. In the cases of various types of mobile artillery organizations thus formed they will be designated simply as "artillery," and the special type of equipment used may be added in parenthesis when desirable to do so, thus:

REGULAR ARMY.

- st artillery (C. A. C.—railroad).
- th artillery (C. A. C.—antiaircraft).
- th artillery (C. A. C.—8-inch howitzer).
- th artillery (19th cav.—light).

NATIONAL GUARD.

- st artillery (Cal. C. A.—8-inch howitzer).
- th artillery (1st S. D. cav.—light).

5. This system contemplates that the designation in parenthesis will ordinarily be omitted in orders, dispatches and correspondence, but their use is authorized when desired for the purpose of local identification and to preserve traditions and local pride.

EXEMPTION BOARDS.

Elaborate rules and regulations were issued by President Wilson July 2, 1917. Briefly they provided that there should be a local exemption board for each county of 45,000 population and each city of 30,000, with an additional board for each 30,000 population. The boards consisted of three persons appointed by the president, and one member was a physician. On being organized the boards took over all registration cards, numbered them serially without regard to alphabetical order, transmitted copies to the state adjutant-general and prepared lists for posting, for the newspapers and the provost marshal general in Washington.

THE DRAFT.

The official drawing of numbers to determine the men of the country who were to constitute the first draft for the national army took place July 20, 1917, in the office building of the United States senate. A number of distinguished persons were present, including the secretary of war, officers of high rank of the army, senators and representatives, and many citizens.

Before the drawing began, at 9:30 a. m., Secretary of War Baker made a brief address saying:

THE NATIONAL ARMY.

The national army, which when organized will furnish the largest fighting force of the United States, is composed of men between the ages of 21 and 30 inclusive. They were selected under the act for the temporary increase of the military establishment approved May 18, 1917. Under that law the men within the ages named registered throughout the nation except in the outlying territories, where the registration took place July 5.

REGISTRATION.

The following table shows the total registration and the aliens registered in the United States exclusive of the outlying possessions:

"We are met to conduct a lottery or draft by which the national army and such additions as may be necessary to bring the regular army and national guard to war strength are to be selected.

"This is an occasion of very great dignity and some solemnity. It represents the first application of the principles believed by many of us to be fairly democratic, equal and fair in selecting soldiers to defend the national honor abroad and at home."

The numbers, which were incased in capsules, were drawn by two blindfolded men and these were announced promptly and unofficially transmitted over the country by the newspapers. The first number drawn was 258. The last number was drawn at 2:16 a. m. on the following morning.

EXAMINATION BY BOARDS.

As soon as the allotted number had been selected and the local board had the list of those under its control arranged in the order of liability for service, the local boards summoned in order the men whose names were on their lists as liable to service to appear for physical examination.

From five to seven days' notice was given. There was comparatively little opposition to the draft or the method of selection, though here and there disturbances occurred, leading to arrests. In the meantime cantonments for the housing and training of the new national army were constructed. A list of these is given on a preceding page. The assembling of the first contingents began Sept. 4 and was made the occasion of many notable demonstrations and parades in various parts of the country. President Wilson himself took part in a parade in Washington, D. C. On the preceding day (Sept. 3) he issued the following address to the soldiers of the national army:

"You are undertaking a great duty. The heart of the whole country is with you. Everything that you do will be watched with the deepest interest and with the deepest solicitude not only by those who are near and dear to you, but by the whole nation besides. For this great war draws us all together, makes us all comrades and brothers, as all true Americans felt themselves to be when we first made good our national independence. The eyes of all the world will be upon you, because you are in some special sense the soldiers of freedom.

"Let it be your pride, therefore, to show all men everywhere not only what good soldiers you are, but also what good men you are, keeping yourselves fit and straight in everything, and pure and clean through and through. Let us set for ourselves a standard so high that it will be a glory to live up to it, and then let us live up to it and add a new laurel to the crown of America. My affectionate confidence goes with you in every battle and every test. God keep and guide you!"

The men were sent to the various contingent camps as fast as they could be transported and arrangements could be made for their accommodation in the barracks. They have since been training actively.

CLASSIFICATION OF REGISTRANTS.

In selecting the quota for the national army there was considerable trouble in regard to exemptions. On Nov. 14 the provost marshal general issued a new classification of the registrants as follows:

Class I.

- (a) Single man without dependent relatives.
- (b) Married man, with or without children, or father of motherless children, who has habitually failed to support his family.
- (c) Married man dependent on wife for support.
- (d) Married man, with or without children, or father of motherless children; man not usefully engaged, family supported by income independent of his labor.
- (e) Unskilled farm laborer.
- (f) Unskilled industrial laborer.

Registrant by or in respect of whom no deferred classification is claimed or made.
Registrant who fails to submit questionnaire, and in respect of whom no deferred classification is claimed or made.

All registrants not included in any other division in this schedule.

Class II.

(a) Married man with children or father of motherless children, where such wife or children or such motherless children are not mainly dependent upon his labor for support for the reason that there are other reasonably certain sources of adequate support (excluding earnings or possible earnings from the labor of the wife) available, and that the removal of the registrant will not deprive such dependents of support.

(b) Married man, without children, whose wife, although the registrant is engaged in a useful occupation, is not mainly dependent upon his labor for support, for the reason that the wife is skilled in some special class of work which she is physically able to perform and in which she is employed, or in which there is an immediate opening for her under conditions that will enable her to support herself decently and without suffering or hardship.

(c) Necessary skilled farm laborer in necessary agricultural enterprise.

(d) Necessary skilled industrial laborer in necessary industrial enterprise.

Class III.

(a) Man with dependent children not his own but toward whom he stands in relation of parent.

(b) Man with dependent aged or infirm parents.

(c) Man with dependent helpless brothers or sisters.

(d) County or municipal officer.

(e) Highly trained fireman or policeman, at least three years in service of municipality.

(f) Necessary custom house clerk.

(g) Necessary employe of United States in transmission of the mails.

(h) Necessary artificer or workman in United States army or arsenal.

(i) Necessary employe in service of United States.

(j) Necessary assistant, associate or hired manager of necessary agricultural enterprise.

(k) Necessary highly specialized technical or mechanical expert of necessary industrial enterprise.

(l) Necessary assistant or associate manager of necessary industrial enterprise.

Class IV.

(a) Man whose wife or children are mainly dependent on his labor for support.

(b) Mariner actually employed in sea service of citizen or merchant in the United States.

(c) Necessary sole managing, controlling or directing head of necessary agricultural enterprise.

(d) Necessary sole managing, controlling or directing head of necessary industrial enterprise.

Class V.

(a) Officers—legislative, executive or judicial—of the United States or of state, territory or District of Columbia.

(b) Regular or duly ordained minister of religion.

(c) Student who on May 18, 1917, was preparing for ministry in recognized school.

(d) Persons in military or naval service of United States.

(e) Alien enemy.

(f) Resident alien (not an enemy) who claims exemption.

(g) Person totally and permanently physically or mentally unfit for military service.

(h) Person morally unfit to be a soldier of the United States.

(i) Licensed pilot, actually employed in the pursuit of his vocation.

Members of well recognized religious sect or organization, organized and existing on May 18, 1917, whose then existing creed or principles forbid its members to participate in war in any form, and whose religious convictions are against war or participation therein.

To enable the boards to classify the registrants in accordance with this plan each registrant not already in the service was required to fill out an elaborate questionnaire.

REGIMENTAL INSIGNIA.

The number on a man's coat collar is that of the regiment to which he belongs. If it is below 101 it shows that he is in the regular army; if it is between 101 and 300 inclusive he is in the national guard; if it is 301 or over he is in the national army. In addition men in the national guard and the national army will have on their collars devices showing from what state they come, and in the case of national guards the regiment to which they belonged before being taken into the federal service, as for example, III.; 1st III.; Ind.; 3d Ind., etc.

ROOSEVELT VOLUNTEERS DECLINED.

When President Wilson severed diplomatic relations with Germany, Feb. 3, 1917, Col. Theodore Roosevelt, who in many of his public addresses and writings had freely criticized the chief executive for not taking more decisive action for the protection of American lives and rights, offered to the country his own services and those of his four sons in the event of hostilities. He also announced that he had written to the war department Feb. 2 asking for permission to raise a division if war was declared and there was a call for volunteers, as several thousand men had offered their services. As time went on and the relations with Germany became increasingly tense the number of those who wished to join the "Roosevelt volunteers," as they were called, grew steadily larger until it had reached 130,000 or more, according to the reports given out at the New York headquarters of the organization. It was said that those who signed for service in the division ranged in age from 25 to 50 years.

President Wilson's war message to congress April 2 was warmly commended by Mr. Roosevelt, who pronounced it a state paper that would rank among those of which Americans in years to come would be proud. "We must," he said in Washington April 3, "send troops to the firing line with the utmost speed. Defensive warfare is useless. We must, by a vigorous offensive, win our right to have our voice count for civilization and justice when the time for peace arrives. I, of course, very earnestly hope to be allowed to raise a division for immediate service at the front." On April 10 Mr. Roosevelt called on President Wilson at the white house and told him about his plan for raising a fighting division of mature men of military experience to go to Europe as speedily as possible. Mr. Wilson listened to the suggestion but announced no decision.

Though it met with considerable opposition, a section was inserted by congress in the act creating a new national army which would permit Col. Roosevelt to raise a volunteer expedition for service in France.

President Wilson, however, issued the following formal statement May 18, 1917:

"I understand that the section of this act which authorizes the creation of volunteer divisions in addition to the draft was added with a view to providing an independent command for Mr. Roosevelt and giving the military authorities an opportunity to use his fine vigor and enthusiasm in recruiting the forces now at the western front.

"It would be very agreeable to me to pay Mr. Roosevelt this compliment and the allies the compliment of sending to their aid one of our most distinguished public men, an ex-president who has rendered many conspicuous public services and proved his gallantry in many striking ways. Politically, too, it would no doubt have a very fine effect and make a profound impression. But this is not the time or the occasion for compliment or for any action not calculated to contribute to the immediate success of the war.

"The business now in hand is undramatic, practical and of scientific definiteness and precision. I shall act with regard to it at every step and in every particular under expert and professional advice, from both sides of the water.

"That advice is that the men most needed are men of the ages contemplated in the draft provisions of the present bill, not men of the age and sort contemplated in the section which authorizes the formation of volunteer units, and that for the preliminary training of the men who are to be drafted we shall need all of our experienced officers.

"Mr. Roosevelt told me, when I had the pleasure of seeing him a few weeks ago, that he would wish to have associated with him some of the most effective officers of the regular army. He named many of those whom he would desire to have designated for the service, and they were men who cannot possibly be spared from the too small force of officers at our command for the much more pressing and necessary duty of training regular troops to be put into the field in France and Belgium as fast as they can be got ready.

"The first troops sent to France will be taken from the present forces of the regular army and will be under the command of trained soldiers only.

"The responsibility for the successful conduct of our own part in this great war rests upon me. I could not escape it if I would. I am too much interested in the cause we are fighting for to be interested in anything but success. The issues involved are too immense for me to take into consideration anything whatever except the best, most effective, most immediate means of military action.

"What these means are I know from the mouths of men who have seen war as it is now conducted, who have no illusions, and to whom the whole grim matter is a matter of business. I shall center my attention upon those means and let everything else wait. I should be deeply to blame should I do otherwise, whatever the argument of policy or of personal gratification or advantage.

In a letter addressed to his followers May 20, Col. Roosevelt formally disbanded the division so far as it had been organized and advised the men to give their services to the nation in any other way they might find open to them, either in the military service or in civil life. He denied that he had asked for an independent command, saying that he had explicitly stated in a letter to the secretary of war that if given permission to raise an army corps of two divisions to be put under the command of some general like Wood, or Pershing, or Barry, or Kuhn, he desired for himself only the position of junior among the chief brigade commanders. Mr. Roosevelt also denied that there was anything "dramatic" in his proposal save as any proposal indicating eagerness or willingness to sacrifice life for an ideal was dramatic.

BUREAU OF WAR RISK INSURANCE.

Director—William C. De Lanoy.

Assistant Director—John J. Crowley.

Commissioner of Military and Naval Division—

Richard D. Jones.

Assistant Chief of Indemnity Division—E. C. Brown.

Advisory board of the military and naval division of the bureau of war risk insurance:

Arthur Hunter, president of the Actuarial Society of America.

Prof. James Glover of the mathematics and insurance department of the University of Michigan.

A. W. Fraser of Omaha, president of the Woodmen of the World.

ALIEN PROPERTY CUSTODIAN.

Under section 6 of the act to define, regulate and punish trading with the enemy, approved Oct. 6, 1917, the president was empowered to appoint an official to be known as the alien property custodian (see page 448). His general duties are to receive all money and property due or belonging to an enemy or ally of an enemy, which may be paid or assigned to him under the provisions of the act, and to hold, administer and account for the same.

On Oct. 20, 1917, President Wilson appointed A. Mitchell Palmer to serve as such custodian and later fixed his salary at $5,000 a year and the sum of $100,000 was assigned to him to be expended in the administration of the powers vested in him.

RECORD RUN BY U. S. DESTROYER.

The United States destroyer Shaw completed a record run from a Pacific to an Atlantic port in the spring of 1917, making a distance of approximately 5,858 miles in 14 days 10 hours and 20 minutes.

With less than five days' preliminary shaking down work at sea, the Shaw left the Pacific coast port May 25 at 4:10 p. m., and arrived at its Atlantic destination at 2:30 a. m. June 9, making the following records en route:

487 miles, 24 hours 6 minutes.

2,945 miles, 174 hours 30 minutes.

1,785 miles, 91 hours 18 minutes.

The average cruising speed was 13 knots an hour; including stops, the average was 15.4-10 knots an hour, an easy gait for the Shaw, which is capable of 30 knots an hour.

The Shaw made a record breaking passage through the Panama canal—5 hours and 45 minutes. The best previous time was 6 hours and 20 minutes.

EXCESS PROFITS ADVISERS.

Secretary McAdoo announced Nov. 14, 1917, the selection of nine "excess profits advisers" to assist the treasury department in administering the war revenue act. They are:

Representative Cordell Hull, a member of the house committee on ways and means.

T. S. Adams, economist, of Yale university.

Wallace D. Simmons, president Simmons Hardware company, St. Louis and Philadelphia.

J. E. Sterrett of Price, Waterhouse & Co., accountants, New York city.

S. R. Bertron of Bertron, Griscom & Co., bankers, New York city.

E. T. Meredith, editor Successful Farming, Des Moines, Iowa.

T. W. McCullough, editor Omaha Bee, Omaha, Neb.

Stewart W. Cramer of the National Council of Cotton Manufacturers, Charlotte, N. C.

Henry Walters, chairman of the board, Atlantic Coast Line and Louisville & Nashville railways.

FLEET CHANGES.

The publication of the Navy and Marine Corps List and Directory was discontinued for the duration of the war after the March (1917) number was issued. Specific news of the movements of the fleet units and of the commanders of the divisions and individual ships was withheld. Some general facts relating to changes in the organization of the fleet were officially announced from time to time after the declaration of war. On July 18 Secretary Daniels made public the fact that the Atlantic fleet had been reorganized under a plan worked out by Admiral W. S. Benson, chief of naval operations, and Admiral H. T. Mayo, commander-in-chief of the Atlantic fleet, which had been under consideration for several months. The president on July 18 appointed Rear-Admiral Albert W. Grant, U. S. N., commanding the submarine force, to be a vice-admiral. On the same day Vice-Admiral Grant was detailed to take command of battle ship force No. 1, which was formed by a general order issued May 4 by combining divisions 1 to 4, inclusive. Vice-Admiral DeWitt Coffman remained in command of battle ship force No. 2. Capt. S. S. Robison relieved Vice-Admiral Grant of the command of the submarine force. In announcing the appointment of Vice-Admiral Grant, Secretary Daniels said:

"There are now twice as many battle ships in commission as we ever had before; in fact, every battle ship we have is now in full commission. Hereafter there will be two divisions of the fleet, each under command of a vice-admiral—Battle ship force 1, under command of Vice-Admiral Grant, and battle ship force 2, which comprises our latest dreadnoughts, under command of Vice-Admiral DeWitt Coffman, both acting under Admiral Mayo, commander-in-chief of the fleet."

"The whole purpose of the new organization is to keep the battle ship fleet in as perfect condition as possible, to put it in the highest state of efficiency and readiness for action."

"The naval act of last year authorized the designation of three vice-admirals, one each for the Atlantic, the Pacific and the Asiatic fleet. Recent legislation permitted the designations without regard to geographical limitations. So there are now three vice-admirals—Vice-Admiral Sims, in command of the American vessels operating in European waters; Vice-Admiral Coffman and Vice-Admiral Grant."

Vice-Admiral Grant reached the grade of rear-admiral Sept. 8, 1915. He was the first officer of high rank to take charge of the submarine service. He was graduated from the U. S. naval academy in 1877 and has served afloat and ashore in various grades with high credit. He served as chief of staff to the commander-in-chief of the Atlantic fleet from March, 1908, to October, 1909. He was commandant of the navy yard at Philadelphia, was commander-in-chief of the Atlantic reserve fleet, and has been on special duty in connection with the construction of and in command of the battle ship Texas. Vice-Admiral Grant has had a total sea service of over twenty-two years and a shore duty of nineteen years.

VICE-ADMIRAL SIMS.

The secretary of the navy, in making the announcement of Admiral Sims' selection to take charge of naval operations in European waters, recounted his record and services to the navy, saying:

"In the period immediately preceding the Spanish-American war, Admiral Sims, then a lieutenant, was naval attaché at Paris, and was intrusted with the responsibility of buying ships and supplies for the navy. He expended hundreds of thousands of dollars, keeping in touch with the available sources of supply in Europe, and rendered valuable service in fitting out and supplying the navy during that war. He remained naval attaché at Paris until 1900, when he was recalled to the United States and was sent to the Asiatic station, being assigned to duty on the battle ship Kentucky. He was later fleet intelligence officer on the staff of the commander-in-chief of the Asiatic station, serving in that capacity under Rear-Admirals Remy and Rodgers."

"It was while on this tour of duty that he became intimately associated with Capt. (now Rear-Admiral) Sir Percy Scott of the British navy. Capt. Scott's ship had at that time made remarkable scores in target practice under new methods devised by its commander. Lieut. Sims became thoroughly familiar with Scott's methods of training in naval gunnery and acquainted the navy department with them."

"In the autumn of 1902, by direction of President Roosevelt, Lieut. Sims was ordered to the navy department and placed at the head of the office of target practice. He remained in that position for nearly seven years, and it was during this time that great improvement was made in our navy in gunnery and ordnance, largely owing to the new methods introduced by him."

"In order to keep in touch with the latest improvements in other navies, he made trips to England each year, conferring with the experts in gunnery and ordnance, especially with Scott, who was knighted and made rear-admiral for his services in improving the gunnery of the British warships. He came in contact with Sir John Jellicoe and other officers who are now directing the operations of the British navy."

"In February, 1909, while a commander, he was assigned to command the battle ship Minnesota of the Atlantic fleet, which ship he commanded for over two years. He then went to the naval war college at Newport for a two year course, and during the second year of his course was a member of the staff of the war college."

"After the completion of this course he was made commander of the torpedo flotilla of the Atlantic fleet, and commanded that flotilla for two and a half years. In 1915 he was assigned to command the dreadnought Nevada. A year later he was made president of the naval war college and commandant of the second naval district. He was promoted to rear-admiral last December (1916), being one of the first captains promoted to this rank by selection, on recommendation of the selection board."

"Shortly before the entry of the United States into the war, Rear-Admiral Sims was sent abroad as special representative and observer. After the outbreak of the war he held conferences with the British and French naval officials as to the best methods of co-operation of the navies of the nations at war with Germany. When it was determined to send American naval vessels abroad, he was placed in charge of the operations of the American naval vessels in European waters."

ADDITIONS TO THE NAVY.

The foregoing list of ships of the United States navy is the same as that printed in the 1917 issue of The Daily News Almanac and Year-Book. No specific information concerning the new ships built and building can be furnished for obvious military reasons. Something of the naval program may, however, be learned from the laws for the increase of the navy both in ships and personnel printed elsewhere in this volume. In addition, some information of a general character was given to the public by the secretary of the navy in the course of the year. Oct. 10 it was announced that the war construction program of the United States navy comprised 787 vessels, including all types, from superdreadnoughts to submarine chasers. Some of these had been completed and are now in service. The rest of the program is being pushed to completion. The total cost is estimated at $1,150,400,000.

Secretary Daniels has announced that arrangements have been completed for the building of the large number of additional destroyers planned, which will cost about $350,000,000. The secretary said:

"These destroyers will be built by five companies which have had experience in building this type—the Fore River Shipbuilding corporation, Boston; the New York Shipbuilding corporation, Camden, N. J.; Cramp's shipyard, Philadelphia; the Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock company, Newport News, Va.; and the Union Iron Works, San Francisco.

"This is the biggest project we have ever undertaken. Three months ago it looked as if it could not be done. Orders had already been given for all the destroyers the yards could build, and almost as many as the new program calls for are now under construction or contract. To build rapidly the additional destroyers requires a great extension of shipbuilding facilities and the erection of new plants for building engines. The companies were unwilling to invest millions in these additions, so the government must build and will own the new plants and extensions which will be used by the builders.

"We are putting every energy and facility behind this project. Some of the new destroyers are promised for delivery in nine months, all within eighteen months. These vessels will be of the latest and largest improved type, which has just been tried in our service and found to be unsurpassed by any destroyers in the world.

"The plans are all ready, and the adoption of a uniform type will enable us to reduce the number of types of engines and parts and to turn them out in much less time. The principal trouble is in getting forgings and auxiliaries, but the manufacture of these has been arranged for, and we will make every effort to prevent delay in delivery of materials or machinery."

RESUME OF WORK DONE.

The following general resume of the work of the navy department was also issued in October, 1917:

"The navy has in service more than three times as many men and nearly three times as many vessels as when war was declared.

"The navy and marine corps constitute a force of more than a quarter of a million men. On April 6 there were 64,680 enlisted men in the regular navy; now there are 143,726, an increase of 79,046.

"The naval reserve force has increased from about 10,000 to 49,000; 14,500 naval militia are in the federal service; the coast guard, with its force of 5,000, has been transferred to the navy for the duration of the war; the hospital corps has been increased from 2,000 to 6,500.

"The marine corps has increased from 12,266 enlisted men on April 6 to an enlisted strength, with reserves, of 32,348. There are about 12,000 officers in the navy and 1,122 in the marine corps.

"Hundreds of vessels of various types, yachts and fast motor boats have been taken over and transformed into patrol boats, submarine chasers, mine sweepers and the various types needed for antisubmarine warfare, coast defense and other purposes.

"The Atlantic fleet comprises twice as many vessels as in peace times. Every battle ship and cruiser that was in reserve has been fully manned and commissioned. Every warship is now a training school for the instruction of men in gunnery and engineering, and notable results have been achieved, especially in target practice with guns of the smaller calibers used in fighting submarines.

"Since early in May, a month after war was declared, United States destroyers have been operating with the naval forces of our allies in European waters in the campaign against the submarines. Practically all our merchant ships are now convoyed by naval vessels.

"The navy has organized, manned and is operating the transport service and convoys the vessels carrying American armies to Europe. Not a transport has been sunk or a soldier lost in transportation across the Atlantic.

"The largest ship construction program in history is being carried out by the navy, comprising hundreds of vessels of various types, from superdreadnoughts to submarine chasers. Months ago contracts were let for every destroyer the American yards could build, and a considerable extension of shipbuilding facilities has been arranged to build the large additional number provided for in the bill now pending in congress.

"New records in construction are being made, destroyers which formerly took twenty to twenty-two months to complete now being scheduled for completion in half that time.

"Twenty training camps have been erected, accommodating 85,000 men, to provide for housing and training of recruits.

"Navy yards have been enlarged, immense foundries, machine shops and warehouses erected; work is being pushed on dry docks, shipways and piers. A big projectile plant is being erected at Charlestown, W. Va., and a $1,000,000 aircraft factory at Philadelphia. Extensions of the naval gun factory will make that plant one of the largest of its kind. The entire shore building program embraces an expenditure of $100,000,000."

NAVAL TRAINING STATIONS.

Regular naval training stations: Newport, R. I.; Norfolk, Va.; Great Lakes, Ill.; San Francisco, Cal.

Depots at which "general detail" men, including graduates of training stations, are further trained while awaiting assignment to ships: Portsmouth, N. H.; Boston, Mass. (Commonwealth pier); New York navy yard; Philadelphia navy yard; Charleston, S. C.; Pensacola, Fla.; Key West, Fla.; New Orleans, La.; Gulfport, Miss. (projected); San Diego, Cal.; Mare Island navy yard; Puget Sound navy yard.

Training establishments for reserves and national naval volunteers: Portsmouth (N. H.) navy yard; Bainbridge Island, Boston harbor; Newport, R. I.; Bensonhurst, L. I.; Pelham Bay park, N. Y.; U. S. S. Iowa, Indiana, Massachusetts (Delaware river); Cape May, N. J.; steamship Bulgaria, Norfolk navy yard; Cherrystone Island, Va.; Charleston (S. C.) navy yard; Key West, near navy yard; New Orleans navy yard; Municipal dock, Los Angeles (San Pedro harbor); State university grounds, Seattle, Wash.; steamship Commodore and Grant Park camp, Chicago.

In addition, men on active service at or operating from the numerous section headquarters of the naval defense districts may be considered undergoing training. A list of these district headquarters follows:

First district—Machias, Bar Harbor, Rockland, Bath, Portland, Portsmouth, Boston, Provincetown.

Second—Newport, New Bedford, New London.

Third—New Haven, Bridgeport, Port Jefferson,

Montauk, Port Lafayette, Whitestone, Fire Island, Sandy Hook.

Fourth—Cape May City, Lewes.

Fifth—Baltimore, Washington, Cape Charles City, Norfolk, Beaufort.

Sixth—Wilmington, Georgetown, Charleston, Port Royal, Savannah, Brunswick, Fernandino, Jacksonville.

Seventh—St. Augustine, Miami, Knights Key, Key West, Dry Tortugas, Tampa.

Eighth—Pensacola, New Orleans, Galveston.

Twelfth—San Francisco, San Pedro, San Diego.

Thirteenth—Astoria, Aberdeen, Puget Sound navy yard, Sitka.

UNITED STATES MARINE CORPS.

The marine corps reached its full authorized strength of 30,000 enlisted men Aug. 10. Gen. George Barnett, major-general commandant, issued orders suspending recruiting for a period of ten days beginning Saturday noon, Aug. 11.

The marine corps then numbered 1,075 officers and 32,000 men, including reserves, its strength having almost trebled since Jan. 1. It had more than doubled in enlisted strength since April 6, the day war was declared.

Maj.-Gen. Barnett sent the following telegram to the officer in charge of each recruiting station:

"At noon on Aug. 11 close all marine corps recruiting stations and allow men to enjoy well earned rest. Marine corps enlisted to its full legal strength. All reports from recruit depots and my personal inspections at Paris Island and Philadelphia convince me that the marine corps ranks have been filled with a class of men that in physique, education and spirit compare favorably with any aggregation of young men in the nation.

"One year ago the marine corps consisted of 246 officers and 10,000 men. To-day it consists of 1,075 officers and 32,000 men. The corps has been more than trebled during the year, over 700 officers and 22,000 men having been added to it.

"I desire that you extend to every individual in your district my heartfelt thanks and appreciation for the splendid work done by the recruiting service and for the results obtained. Please extend my thanks and appreciation also to the gentlemen of the press and to those patriotic associations and individuals who have so notably contributed to the success of the marine corps recruiting campaign. Reopen all recruiting stations at noon, Aug. 22, and accept only a limited number of applicants, maintaining the highest standard."

How the marine corps has grown in the past year is shown by the following figures: Enlisted strength Aug. 10, 1916, 10,532; Jan. 1, 1917, 11,723; April 6, 1917, the day war was declared, 13,266; Aug. 10, 30,000, the full enlisted strength fixed by act of congress May 22 authorizing increase of the corps from 17,400.

MARINE CORPS TRAINING STATIONS.

Recruit training stations—Maine barracks, Paris Island, S. C. (permanent); marine barracks, Mare Island, Cal. (permanent); marine barracks, Philadelphia, Pa. (temporary); marine barracks, Norfolk, Va. (temporary).

Advanced training stations—Maine barracks, Quantico, Va.; marine barracks, Norfolk, Va.; marine barracks, Philadelphia, Pa.; marine barracks, San Diego, Cal.; marine corps rifle range, Wintthrop, Md.

Marine barracks, Quantico, Va.—A large tract of land was leased here soon after the beginning of the war and buildings have been constructed to accommodate about 6,500 men. The greater proportion of recruits from the training stations are transferred here, where they are organized into companies, regiments, etc., and more advanced training given under war conditions.

Marine barracks, Philadelphia, Pa.—At this post are stationed organizations of the advanced base force, where the men are trained in technical branches, such as aviation, submarine mines, signal corps work, engineering, heavy guns, etc.

Marine barracks, San Diego, Cal.—Company organized on the west coast are sent to San Diego for advanced training.

Marine barracks, Norfolk, Va.—Detachments for duty at sea are trained at this port.

INCREASE FOR WAR SERVICE.

It should be noted that the above rates are for ordinary service in time of peace. Under an act approved May 22, 1917, it is provided that beginning June 1, 1917, and continuing not later than six months after the termination of the present war, all enlisted men of the navy whose pay does not exceed $21 a month shall receive an increase of $15 a month; those whose base pay is over $21 a month and does not exceed $24 a month, an increase of $12 a month; those whose base pay is over $24 and less than $45 a month, an increase of $3 a month, and those whose base pay is $45 or more a month, an increase of $6 a month (see page 407).

Additional changes were made by an act approved Oct. 6, 1917, as follows: The ratings of engineman, first class; engineman, second class; blacksmith, first class; blacksmith, second class; coppersmith, first class; coppersmith, second class; pattern maker, first class; pattern maker, second class; molder, first class; molder, second class; chief special mechanic and special mechanic, first class, be and they are hereby established in the artificer branch of the navy with the following rates of base pay a month. Engineman, first class, $45; engineman, second class, $40; blacksmith, first class, $65; blacksmith, second class, $50; coppersmith, first class, $65; coppersmith, second class, $50; pattern maker, first class, $65; pattern maker, second class, $50; molder, first class, $65; molder, second class, $50; chief special mechanic, $127; special mechanic, first class, $80; Provided, That the base pay of machinists' mates, second class, and water tenders be, and it is hereby, increased from $40 to $45 per month. Provided further, That all the aforesaid rates of pay shall be subject to such increases of pay and allowances as are or may hereafter be authorized by law for enlisted men of the navy. And provided further, That appointments or enlistments in the said ratings may be made from enlisted men in the navy or from civil life, respectively, and the qualifications of candidates for any of said ratings shall be determined in accordance with such regulations as the secretary of the navy may prescribe.

MARINE CORPS PAY.

Officers of the United States marine corps receive infantry army pay and allowances. The major-general commandant gets $8,000 a year, colonels from $4,000 to $5,000, according to length of service, lieutenant-colonels from $3,500 to $4,500, majors from $3,000 to $4,000 and captains from $2,400 to $3,360. Privates are paid from $15 to $25 a month, according to enlistment periods served.

Enlisted men of the marine corps in active war service receive the increased pay at the same rate as enlisted men in the army.

GERMAN INTRIGUE IN AMERICA.

Many revelations of German plotting and intriguing in the United States and elsewhere were made by the state department after the declaration of war in April, 1917, some of them being of an extremely sensational character. The most comprehensive of these disclosures was that made Sept. 22, of which the following is the text:

Within a few days a German newspaper published in this country employed as the headline to an article dealing with a rumor of German-American disaffection in this country the derisive legend, "Lieb' Washington, magst ruhig sein."

This is, of course, a parody on the refrain of "Die Wacht am Rhein," the German national hymn:

"Lieb' Vaterland, magst ruhig sein."

"Loved fatherland, be restful (or undisturbed)."

In the parody it carries a sneer comprehensible only to one who understands the German mode of speech and thought.

Of itself the instance is slight. But it typifies a certain important phase of the German propaganda which subtly but persistently seeks to present Germany's course in America in the most favorable light, even to the extent of defending the improper activities of the Teutonic diplomatic representatives before their passports were given them. Because of this continuing propaganda certain documents in the possession of the department of justice now assume peculiar importance, in that they prove undeniably the intimate relations between the accredited representatives of the kaiser in the United States and plotters against the laws and the security of this country, whose enterprise did not fall short of projected wholesale destruction of life and property.

Such of these documents as were essential to legal proceedings brought against the Germans have been published. Others are here made public for the first time. They form a curious, if disjointed, chapter in the diplomatic history of the war.

In the fall of 1914, when the German plots against Canada were fomenting in this country, there was established, at 60 Wall street, an "advertising" office presided over by a big, suave man of Teutonic aspect named Wolf von Igel. There were two peculiar features about this office. One was that it was frequented during two years of singularly quiet and unbusinesslike existence chiefly by Germans who had nothing whatsoever to do with advertising. The other was a large safe, bearing the insignia of the German imperial government. To this office there came one morning in April, 1916, while Von Igel was preparing a mass of papers which he had taken from the safe for transfer to the German embassy in Washington, four United States secret service agents from the department of justice, who made their way past the guardians always on duty, put Von Igel under arrest, and undertook to seize the papers. The German was large, powerful, and brave. With the aid of one associate he stubbornly fought the officers, striving to rescue the papers, to close the safe, to get to the telephone, and communicate with his superiors. Revolvers were drawn by the secret service men. They produced no effect upon the intrepid Von Igel.

"This is German territory," he shouted. "Shoot me and you will bring on war."

There was no shooting. But after a protracted struggle the defenders were overpowered and the papers seized. The German embassy at once entered its protest. These were official papers.

They were sacrosanct. The diplomatic prerogative of a friendly nation had been overridden and the person of its representative insulted. To this the state department replied that the invaded premises at 60 Wall street were described in the contract as a private business office for the carrying on of advertising, and that Von Igel had not been formally accredited as a German representative. When the papers were examined by the department of justice the reason for Von Igel's determined fight became apparent. Here, in the form of letters, telegrams, notations, checks, receipts, ledgers, cashbooks, cipher codes, lists of spies and other memoranda and records were found indications—in some instances of the vaguest nature, in others of the most damning conclusiveness—that the German imperial government, through its representatives in a then friendly nation, was concerned with—

Violation of the laws of the United States.

Destruction of lives and property in merchant vessels on the high seas.

Irish revolutionary plots against Great Britain. Fomenting ill feeling against the United States in Mexico.

Subornation of American writers and lecturers.

Financing of propaganda.

Maintenance of a spy system under the guise of a commercial investigation bureau.

Subsidizing of a bureau for the purpose of stirring up labor troubles in munition plants.

The bomb industry and other related activities.

TO SINK SHIPS WITH BOMBS.

Perhaps the most illuminating single document in the collection is a letter of July 20, 1915. This innocent pretending agency was at the outset the secret service of the Hamburg-American Steamship company. Under Paul Koenig, its manager, it became an adjunct to the German diplomatic secret service. "XXX" is the secret designation of Koenig, who is now under indictments on criminal charges in connection with his "diplomatic" work, and is interned at Fort Oglethorpe. The person represented by the figure "7950" is Capt. von Papen, former military attaché of the German embassy and the practical executive of its underground system. The document describes the subterfuges of "XXX" (Koenig) so that he might not be identified by the mysterious — when they met. "XXX" states that money was to be drawn for the payment of $150 to the unnamed person, under peculiar precautions, through "check No. 146 on the Riggs National bank, Washington, dated July 16, payable to —, signed —, amount $150. No reason was given as to why the payment was made," says the report.

Several days after the payment, the recipient called at the "passenger office of the — line," and made a statement, which is thus embodied in the "XXX" report:

"My name is —. I have an office at the — building, but I do not care to state my local address. I intend to cause serious damage to vessels of the allies leaving ports of the United States by placing bombs, which I am making myself, on board. These bombs resemble ordinary lumps of coal, and I am planning to have them concealed in the coal to be laden on steamers of the allies."

Finally "XXX" states that "the caller" brought with him a sample bomb, "such as has been described to you by the subscriber," and asks for the instructions.

The document is lettered at the foot, "O. R. to 7090," indicating that the secret agent known as "O. R." had transmitted it to Von Papen.

VON PAPEN CONVICTED BY HIS CHECK.

Now for the proof, direct and unescapable. Check 146 on the Riggs National bank has been traced and added to the secret service collection. It is payable to Koenig and signed by Von Papen. Therefore Von Papen stands convicted, on the evidence of a report claimed as an official document by the Germans, of paying money to a plotter designing to blow up merchant ships sailing from the port of New York. The person who made this report is known to department of justice officials.

Compare these documents with the following authorized statement from Berlin, transmitted by wireless December, 1915:

"The German government has, naturally, never knowingly accepted the support of any person, group of persons, society or organization seeking to promote the cause of Germany in the United States by illegal acts, by counsel of violence, by contravention of law or by any means whatever that could offend the American people in the pride of their own authority."

Destruction was not by any means the sole interest of Koenig's energetic bureau. It concerned itself also with spy enterprises. To Koenig wrote Otto West, an American citizen and proprietor of the Hour Glass, at 303 (or 363) 5th avenue, recommending a relative of his, who, according to his description, must be an interesting and somewhat formidable figure. Mr. West's description, somewhat curtailed, follows:

"He is a grandson of the late Oberhofprediger Strauss of Berlin, brother of the present Militar Oberpfarrer Strauss of Potsdam, nephew of the late Admiral von Schleinitz, the late Gen. von Mantey, etc. This gentleman changed his name some twenty-odd years ago to an American name, and none of his associates suspect his German birth or antecedents. He is an international journalist of great repute, the head of a newspaper organization in England. He has a personal reason to be very bitter against England, because two years ago [this letter appears to have been written about June 1, 1915, which would make the date referred to the early summer of 1913] a certain attack was made against him over commercial matters in Great Britain, and it was only by appealing to the United States department of state and a writ of habeas corpus before the lord chief justice of England that he escaped successfully. * * * He was in England and France at the outbreak of the war; he has access to the great sources of British and French official information. He wants to go across to Europe and serve secretly for Germany."

DR. OTTO OF ALLENTOWN.

Of the completeness and skill of Germany's spy system in this country a glimpse is afforded through the voluminous correspondence of Dr. Theodore Otto of Allentown, Pa. Dr. Otto's special concern was to ascertain the nature of the contracts for munitions and arms upon which the various factories in the neighborhood were engaged and report them to the German embassy. His work was such as to earn him special commendation, for which he expresses himself in one of his letters as duly appreciative. He was able, he states, "in my capacity as a physician to establish relations with officials of almost all of the munitions factories situated in this vicinity." Either Dr. Otto substitutes fancy for fact or he was able to obtain curiously exact information in many instances, such as the number of foreign government inspectors; the character, caliber and quantity of guns ordered by foreign governments, and other valuable details. Of the Traynor Engineering company of Allentown he writes in April of last year:

"An English inspector is present in the department, and he most rigorously tests the work, but I was assured that he seemed to be incompetent, inasmuch as he had been repeatedly duped. Obviously the management of the concern attaches importance to creating a belief that all projectiles being produced were intended for the United States government." Thus, he comments, is belied by the presence of foreign government inspectors.

In these activities there was, of course, nothing illegal. Dr. Otto is still practicing his profession in Allentown. He claims to be an American citizen, though his claim is not clear, and declares himself thoroughly loyal to this country.

ANOTHER VON IGEL ENTERPRISE.

Closely related to and to some extent under the guidance of Von Igel was the German and Austro-Hungarian labor information and relief bureau, with central headquarters at 136 Liberty street, New York city, and branches in Cleveland, Detroit, Bridgeport, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia and Chicago. The head of this enterprise was Hans Liebau, from whom it took its familiarly accepted name of the "Liebau Employment Agency." During the trying days which followed the arrest of the Welland canal conspirators it was unwaveringly asserted that the Liebau concern was a bona fide employment agency and nothing else, with no object other than to secure positions for German, Austrian or Hungarian workmen seeking employment. That was for publication only. In Von Igel's papers the truth appears, brought out by the refusal of the Austro-Hungarian embassy to continue its subsidies to the bureau.

AUSTRIAN EMBASSY INVOLVED.

That the Austro-Hungarian embassy had taken official cognizance of the bureau previously, however, is disclosed in the letter written by the ambassador to the Austro-Hungarian minister for foreign affairs which was found in the possession of James F. J. Archibald by the British authorities Aug. 30, 1915. In this letter the ambassador stated:

"It is my impression that we can disorganize and hold up for months, if not entirely prevent, the manufacture of munitions in Bethlehem and the middle west, which, in the opinion of the German military attaché, is of importance and amply outweighs the comparatively small expenditure of money involved, but even if the strikes do not come off it is probable that we should exert, under pressure of circumstances, more favorable conditions of labor for our poor, down-trodden fellow countrymen. So far as German workmen are found in the skilled hands, means of leaving will be provided immediately for them. Besides this a private German employment office has been established which provides employment for persons who have voluntarily given up their places, and it is already working well. We shall also join in, and the widest support is assured us."

The following representations on behalf of the bureau's efficiency were made, under date of March 24, 1916, in a letter to the German ambassador, Von Bernstorff:

"Engineers and persons in the better class of positions, and who had means of their own, were persuaded by the propaganda of the bureau to leave war material factories."

The report comments with unconcealed amusement upon the fact that munitions concerns innocently wrote the bureau for workmen (who, of course, were not furnished) and continues, in reviewing later conditions in the munitions industry:

"The commercial employment bureaus of the country have no supply of unemployed technicians. * * * Many disturbances and suspensions which war material factories have had to suffer and which it was not always possible to remove quickly, but which, on the contrary, often led to long strikes, may be attributed to the energetic propaganda of the employment bureau."

Von Igel's close connection with the enterprise is indicated by a number of items. For example, there is a notation to the effect that H. Hanson had established a Liebau branch office in Detroit, an entry of $60 paid to a Dr. Max Niven of Chicago, in February, 1916, for the "labor fund," and an inquiry addressed by a bureau official to Von Igel, asking whether the Bosch Magneto works manufactured fuses for shells, the bureau having evidently been applied to for workmen for the Bosch plant. The reply, in the negative, stated that the company was "universally known for its friendly attitude to the Germans."

Several lines of communication between the German diplomatic service and the Irish revolutionary movement are indicated in the captured documents. John Devoy of New York city, now editor of the Gaelic-American, a violent anti-British paper, was one of the active agents of this connection. Significant entries appear here and there: references to messages from the German embassy at Washington and the German consulate at New York; mention of a secret code to be employed in communicating with him and of a "cipher Devoy"; also a notation, the details of which remain undiscovered, concerning "communication re manufacture hand grenades." Devoy it was who acted, for a time at least, as go-between for the German secret service dealings with Sir Roger Casement, executed by the British for treason. There are several references to money and messages for Sir Roger Casement, or, more briefly, "R. O.," and one record of a check for $1,000 for Casement, evidently handled by Devoy.

Devoy's intimate connection with the German cause is disclosed in two letters to Ambassador von Bernstorff, the texts of which follow:

"New York, April 8, 1916.

"The following communication from confidential man John Devoy was duly transmitted:

"Letter dated March 22, delayed by censor, seems conclusive that first messenger arrived safe with proposal to send supplies and that cable was suppressed. Second also safe. Third, with change of plans, due about April 15."

"John Devoy further requests that the following telegram be dispatched to Sir Roger Casement:

"No letter now possible. All funds sent home. Sister and Mr's family well."

"Should Sir Roger be absent or ill, then J. D. requests that the telegram be delivered to John Montefth. (Signed.) K. N. St."

"To his excellency the Imperial ambassador, Count von Bernstorff, Washington, D. C."

"New York, April 15, 1916.

"Herewith inclosed a ——— report received by us to-day from John Devoy. Kindly order further steps to be taken."

"The important parts of the report were sent there to-day per telegram. (S. copy.)"

"(Signed.) K. N. St."

STATE DEPARTMENT EXCULPATED.

In view of the involvement of these prominent Irish-American leaders in the Casement plot and its German ramifications, it is little to be wondered at that they should have endeavored to shoulder upon the American government the responsibility for the arrest of Casement. The Gaelic-American, Devoy's paper, and the sympathetic German-American press charged this government with having, on the strength of information obtained from the seized Von Igel papers, advised the British government of the revolutionary plot and Casement's part therein.

The department of state and the department of justice promptly refuted the charges. When the Von Igel papers were seized in New York the district attorney and his assistants busied themselves in a search for information to sustain the indictments which they had obtained against Von Igel, and overlooked for the time being the great mass of other evidence which pointed incriminately to others.

Department of justice officials admit that the papers relating to Casement were sent to Washington the night before Casement's arrest was reported, but they were not received by the attorney-general until the afternoon of the day upon which the British authorities picked up the Irish leader, and were not presented to the state department until 7 o'clock that evening. Meanwhile, Casement had spent several hours in an Irish prison.

It is not improbable that the signature at the bottom of the extraordinary message which follows is in the "cipher Devoy" referred to in the Von Igel papers. New York Supreme Court Justice Daniel F. Cohalan has long been prominent in Irish-American circles, though he has never been directly identified with violent action.

That Judge Cohalan, however, is held in high favor by the pro-German element of this country is evidenced by the fact that Vlereck's Weekly, in making selections recently for the most important political offices in this country, put him forth for the position of United States senator from New York.

The communication as translated into Von Igel's record is typewritten, line for line, below a cipher, except for the signature, which remains untranscribed from the original cipher figures. It is dated New York, April 17, 1916, numbered 335-15, and inscribed at the top "very secret."

"New York, April 17, 1916.

"Judge Cohalan requests the transmission of the following remarks:

"The revolution in Ireland can only be successful if supported from Germany, otherwise England will be able to suppress it, even though it be only after hard struggles. Therefore help is necessary. This should consist, primarily, of aerial attacks in England and a diversion of the fleet simultaneously with Irish revolution. Then, if possible, a landing of troops, arms and ammunition in Ireland, and possibly some officers from Zeppelins. This would enable the Irish ports to be closed against England and the establishment of stations for submarines on the Irish coast and the cutting off of the supply of food for England. The services of the revolution may therefore decide the war."

"He asks that a telegram to this effect be sent to Berlin."

"To his excellency Count von Bernstorff, Imperial ambassador, Washington, D. C."

Along the same line is a code message by wireless to Banker Max Moelius, Oberwallstrasse, Berlin, which is interesting chiefly as showing the code method of important communications practiced by the German official plotters in this country. The code translation was found with the copy of the message among Von Igel's papers. The original is a German dispatch which, being translated into English, sounds like an innocent business transaction, viz:

"National Germania Insurance contract certainly promised. Executor is evidently satisfied with proposition. Necessary steps have been taken. HENRY NEUMAN."

Not so innocent and harmless as it looks, for what the message really means is this:

"Irish agree to proposition. The necessary steps have been taken."

PLOTS AGAINST CANADA.

Canada was also the object of seditious interest on the part of Germany's representatives in America, as was startlingly proved in the plot to blow up the Welland canal. Another lesser but not unpromising enterprise against Canada was foregone by Von Igel because the volunteer plotter was too old, "though he has the best of good will," and also because of his known connection with the Gaelic-American and the Indian revolutionists. Such is the indorsement upon the letter, signed only "X," which thus sets forth his qualifications for fomenting disorders in Quebec:

"As honorary president of the first Independence club started at Montreal about the time of the Boer war, and of which the Hon. Honore Mercier, now minister of colonization in the government of the province of Quebec, was one of the vice-presidents and later president, I am well known among the members and journalists in that organization. * * * There is now in the place of the Independence club a secret society based upon its principles, aiming at the total separation of Canada from the British empire. * * * includes all the former members of the Independence club and men high in Canadian political life. The adherents are for the most part French and Irish Canadians. * * * I am in daily connection with one of the leading men in the separation movement, Hon. J. Hall Kelly, who is a member of the legislative council of the province of Quebec and also a member of the government."

Information carefully and extensively set forth in the secret documents of German officialdom was sometimes wide of the facts. For example, a lengthy memorandum of March 1, 1916, transmitted by the secret agent, Capt. Boehm, dealing with the Mexican crisis, appears to have been largely the work of some fervid and projective imagination. The memorandum purports to outline President Wilson's expected message to congress. It predicts that the president will attribute Mexico's anti-American activities direct to German money and incitement; that he will call upon congress to support him in radical measures (the prophet even attempts to paraphrase the language to be employed in the message); that congress will endorse the president's stand, following which upward of 150 German spies and agents provocateurs were to be arrested and the ambassadors of the central powers to receive their passports.

For all this, Capt. Boehm's authority is thus indicated over his own signature:

"The foregoing memorandum was just given to me by an acquaintance returning from Washington. The 'acquaintance' is a skillful journalist who has good connections. I cannot vouch for his reliability, but I know that he hates the present administration and fights it. His informant is a former secretary of the American embassy at Rome, now in Washington."

Capt. Boehm himself was too loose of tongue for the good of his service, it would appear from a report of the German military information bureau dated March 21, 1916:

"Capt. Boehm decided to leave after reports received here were submitted to him to the effect that members of the press were informed as to his personality and the purpose of his being here. Too great confidence in the silence of his fellow men, especially the members of the American Truth society, * * * was probably the cause of his becoming quickly known here."

So the notorious American Truth society, which so strenuously denied its pro-German associations, figures as indirectly linked up with Germany's secret representatives. This society is still extant, and Jeremiah A. O'Leary, its moving spirit, is now editor of Bull, recently shut out of the mail for publishing seditious matter.

VIERECK OFFERS EXPLOSIVES.

Many inventors, some of them obviously cranks, are represented either by correspondence or notation as having plans involving the use of sundry devices of destruction. One entry of the sort merits special attention because of the notoriety of the individual involved. Here it is, translated from the German record of correspondence:

"June 15, 1915. Sender, G. S. Viereck. Contents, inquiry as to bombs; supply offer. Told to send further details."

Possibly the further details are indicated in another entry of four months later.

"Sender, Viereck. Contents, offer of picric acid."

Picric acid is a constituent of many high explosives. Mr. Viereck is something of a high explosive himself, having been editor of the virulently pro-German weekly Fatherland, of New York, now changed in title (but not in purpose) to Viereck's Weekly.

Just what interest Dr. L. A. Dessar of 25 Broad street, New York city, had in German aerial warfare is a matter for speculation.

In the Von Igel archives appears a letter from

R. L. Scoville of Sewickley, Pa., and New York city, urging the merits of the Semple aerogrenade. Dr. Dessar evidently forwarded the letter where he thought it would do the most good—namely, to Von Igel.

Carefully preserved (for what purpose one can only conjecture) are two letters written early in 1916 by T. J. Dowling of 107 Franklin avenue, Hartford, Conn., to Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, explaining a little plan of the writer's to get rooms near various munitions factories and blow them up. Specifically, he expressed willingness to destroy the Scoville Manufacturing company and the Chase mills of Waterville, Conn., the Remington Arms company and the Union Metallic Cartridge company factories in Bridgeport, Conn.; and when that was completed he thought that he might go out to Port Huron, Mich., and blow up the Grand Trunk tunnel near that place. As all these constructions are still standing, it is obvious that Mr. Dowling's plans failed to commend themselves to his distinguished correspondent. His present whereabouts are not known.

Other would-be destroyers of Germany's foes were less definite. Family pride was the energizing motive of C. J. Waldron of Medusa, N. Y., who wrote that, being a direct descendant of Baron von Waldron, he was deeply interested in the German cause, wherefore he proffered (April 10, 1916) a shell of his own invention. It was not accepted.

A note of grim humor is supplied by William J. Ruff of Quincy, Ill., whose letter of July 26, 1915, to Capt. von Papen suggests new methods of blowing up trenches and planting mines for ships. "My sole idea," explains the innumerable Mr. Ruff, "is to help and save lives!" (1) Nothing in the Von Igel archives supplies evidence that Mr. Ruff's singular life saving practices were adopted.

Of more direct military interest to this country is the espionage enterprise hinted at in a secret code message of April 11, 1916, signed "13232 46729 46919," addressing Von Igel to this effect:

"Grewth respectfully send an extract regarding the troops stationed in California and the armament of the coast fortifications."

ARCHIBALD AND EMERSON.

Journalists, lecturers and publishers were liberally employed by Von Igel and his associates for the purposes of German propaganda. Among those thus tainted with the stigma of dishonorable professional conduct are two magazine writers and war correspondents, James F. J. Archibald, now in Washington, and Edwin Emerson, said to be in Africa. The following curious entry appears in Von Igel's official records:

PURE WAR EXPENSES.

Edwin Emerson	$1,000
Fair Play (Mr. Braun)	2,000
Fair Play (Mr. Braun)	1,500
Marcus Braun	1,000
J. Archibald	5,000

Concerning the identity of the last entry there might be room for doubt but for a signed receipt from J. F. J. Archibald acknowledging the sum of $5,000 from the German embassy for propaganda work. What return Archibald ever made in service is not clear, except that certain war correspondence for which he contracted with New York newspapers was so obviously prejudiced on the side of the central powers that they declined to accept it.

That Emerson also overdid the cause to which he sold his pen and his professional honor (the record indicates that he was paid $1,000 for "traveling expenses") is suggested by the fact that he was expelled, or alleged to have been expelled, from Berlin for a violent attack upon Ambassador Gerard. Emerson has had a picturesque career in many parts of the world, and once cabled to a New York newspaper a picturesque but imaginative account of his own death in the far east under painful and interesting conditions. He was born in Dresden, of American parents, and is now traveling under an American passport obtained by false representations.

MARCUS BRAUN.

Fair Play, that misnamed organ of Teutonic inspiration, appears to have been subsidized quite disproportionately to its value, since it received in all $4,500 in the course of a few months in 1915. Marcus Braun, who appears as its editor, is known as a political leader among the Hungarians of lower 2d avenue, in New York, and has been variously connected with the fringes of the publication world. He is supposed himself to be a Hungarian. His associate in Fair Play was one J. P. Bryan.

Even with such liberal support Fair Play did not fill the bill, for in January, 1916, a letter was written by F. Schroeder, a German newspaper correspondent in Tokyo, to the German diplomatic representatives lamenting the lack of a genuinely influential weekly in New York devoted to Teutonic interests, and suggesting that one Borsodi might be the right man to conduct such a publication.

Frequent hints of George Sylvester Viereck's journalistic activities appear, and there are a few notations of "Pearson's Subter Press," which may refer to Pearson's Magazine, of which the editor, Frank Harris, is strongly pro-German, or may indicate a secret agent named Pearson, who is the subject of other entries.

The lecture platform is represented by Ray Beveridge, the California artist, and sister of Kuehne Beveridge, the prominent sculptor. In one entry Privy Councillor Albert acknowledges receipt of $3,000 from the embassy to finance Miss Beveridge's lecture tour. German war pictures were also to be furnished, though the alleged scope of the lectures was to be comprised in topics allied to Red Cross work.

Other figures of more vague import drift into light here and there in the Von Igel papers or the bureau of investigation reports. Col. E. G. Woodford, an old British hater, appears to have received sundry sums of money for services unspecified. The following letters found in the Von Igel papers refer to Col. Woodford:

"New York, April 4, 1916.

"His Excellency Mr. von Igel,

"New York, N. Y.:

"According to a letter received here to-day the imperial embassy is of the same opinion as myself—that money should not be paid to Woodford.

"Please act accordingly and inform Woodford, if he should show up there again, that Berlin has received the letter regarding the sum to be paid, and, has, besides, again been asked by telegraph whether money should be paid.

"Until answer is received from Berlin nothing more can be paid.

(Signed) "PRETZEL."

Col. Woodford appears, however, from the following letter to have received the sums promised:

"New York, April 10, 1916.

"His Excellency Mr. von Igel:

"Please pay the remainder of $250 to Woodford. He is to receive $500 according to order (from Berlin).

"Please have the inclosed receipt attested. (Signed) "PR."

All these, it must be remembered, are but a small portion of one German agent's records. They represent but one chamber, as it were, in an enormous and complicated maze of underground plotting. Other entries appear too vague to indicate anything more definite than some connection with or interest in enterprises already notorious—payments to the Welland canal conspiracy; correspondence with Dr. Walter Scheele, accused of being a bomb manufacturer; references to the Maverick and the Annie Larsen, blockade runners; side lights on Japanese propaganda, Mexican plots and Canadian lines of secret information; even hints that officers high in the military service of the United States were being improperly used for German military enterprises.

How far the plot goes will probably never be known. The spider, Von Igel, has scuttled away to his own refuge in Germany. His nest is destroyed. But the strands of the web that he wove may still stretch over the city or town which you who read this inhabit.

It has long been an open secret that Holland is merely a way station for shipments of contraband into Germany. Here is official confirmation from the Von Igel records, which would seem to indicate a suspicious and confidential relation between the "Holland commission" and the German diplomatic officials accredited to this country, or possibly a belief by the Germans that they could not successfully get the munitions to their own country. The message in code, with interlinear translation, is entered as "A. 2493," and headed "German embassy, Washington, D. C., April 6, 1916." It runs as follows:

"Telegram from Berlin by secret, roundabout way for Carl Heyesen: Consent sale Holland 300,000 chests (cartridges) and 200 tons powder. Please get in touch with Holland commission. Sender, war minister, foreign office, in representation.

(Signed) "HATZFELDT."

While chiefly concerned with military affairs in Europe the representatives of a supposedly friendly nation were keeping an interested watch on our own activities in that line. A secret code message of April 11, 1916, signed "13232 46729 46919," addressed Von Igel to this effect:

"Herewith respectfully send an extract regarding the troops stationed in California and the armament of the coast fortifications."

"New York, July 20, 1915.

"Confidential Report.

"Operation Re:

Payment of $150 to..... XXX reports:

"On July 16, at about 11 a. m., a member of this bureau called at the office of — for the purpose of delivering a certain report. Upon handing the letter to the official the clerk was asked to wait. Mr. — then proceeded to write out a check for $150, which was turned over to the clerk, with instructions to advise me to have the equivalent of same paid to a certain party, whose name and address were written by the official on a small piece of paper, subsequently delivered to me. The money was to be paid in cash and delivered in person to the recipient. Particulars regarding the check are as follows: Check No. 146, drawn on the Riggs National Bank, Washington; dated July 16, payable to —, signed —; amount $150. No reason was given as to why payment was to be made.

"Acting in accordance with the above request, the writer, in company with S. S. Operative 2, proceeded in the evening of July 16 to the address furnished. The party was quickly located and, after having furnished me with sufficient proof as to his identity, he was paid the sum of $150 in bills, for which a receipt was obtained. Same was handed to Mr. — yesterday at noon.

"As already reported to you verbally, the recipient of the sum aforementioned called this morning at the passenger offices of the — line, where he talked with a German clerk, an ex-army officer. He stated that he was anxious to meet one of the managers, and upon being asked as to the nature of his business he declared it related to detective work. The German clerk then connected with me by telephone, and advised me a gentleman was at the passenger offices on a matter in which I might be interested. I requested that the man be sent up to my office.

"It soon developed that the caller was identical with the party to whom I had recently paid the sum of $150. I did not grant the interview asked for by this gentleman, nor did I give him any opportunity to see me. One of the clerks suggested to him that he might call again later in the day, in order to gain time to discuss the matter with you. During my conversation with you, which took place at noon yesterday, I was made familiar with this man's case and cautioned to be extremely careful in the bureau's dealings with him, and if possible to avoid revealing my identity to him.

"At 1:30 p. m. Mr. — called again at the bureau, and shortly afterward was ushered into my private office, where he was received by Special Investigator No. 4, who had been instructed previously to pose as myself. This scheme worked well and to my great surprise, the caller told the following story:

"My name is —. I have an office at the — building, but I do not care to state my home address. I intend to cause serious damage to vessels of the allies leaving ports of the United States, by placing bombs, which I am making myself, on board. These bombs resemble ordinary lumps of coal, and I am planning to have them concealed in the coal to be laden on the steamers of the allies. I have already discussed this plan with — at — and he thinks favorably of my idea. I have been engaged on similar work in —, after the outbreak of the war, together with Mr. von —. Unfortunately we were not very successful. I am calling upon you, as I have heard friends speaking of you, besides having read a lot about you in the newspapers. I wish to solicit your aid, and ask you to cause the following inquiry to be made:

"1. From where do vessels of the allies receive their coal?
 "2. Does it arrive by railroad or steamer?
 "3. How large are the lumps of coal used for bunkering vessels?
 "4. Are there any especially large pieces among them, or are they all of middle size?
 "5. Are vessels bunkering immediately after their arrival in New York or later?

"I possibly could secure this information myself, but I am afraid that suspicion might be aroused and my plan frustrated. I think that owing to your connection with the — business you can most likely procure the data desired. However, I would thank you if you desist from reporting to Mr. — that I have called here, as he would undoubtedly regard me as being untrustworthy and too talkative."

"The investigator who interviewed him stated that the caller brought with him to this office a sample bomb, such as has been described by you to the subscriber.

"No encouragement was given to Mr. — in regard to supplying him with the desired information, but he was promised that he would be advised in a few days whether or not anything could be done at this end.

"As far as my real identity is concerned I feel certain same has remained unrevealed to him up to this date.

"Please instruct me as to my further actions in the matter.

"O. R. to 7000.

BERNSTORFF AS A BRIBER.

Secretary of State Lansing made public on Sept. 21 a message sent by Count von Bernstorff, then German ambassador to the United States, to the German foreign office in January, 1917, requesting authority to pay out $50,000 to influence congress through an unnamed organization, apparently known to the Berlin authorities. The text of the message, which was dated Jan. 22, 1917, was as follows:

"I request authority to pay out up to $50,000 in order, as on former occasions, to influence congress through the organization you know of, which can perhaps prevent war. I am beginning in the meantime to act accordingly. In the above circumstances a public official declaration in favor of Ireland is highly desirable in order to gain the support of Irish influences here."

COUNT LUXBURG'S FAMOUS LETTERS.

The secretary of state made the following statement Sept. 8:

"The department of state has secured certain telegrams from Count Luxburg, German charge d'affaires at Buenos Aires, to the foreign office at Berlin, which, I regret to say, were dispatched from Buenos Aires by the Swedish legation as their own official messages, addressed to the Stockholm foreign office.

"The following are translations of the German text:

"May 19, 1917, number 32. This government has now released German and Austrian ships on which hitherto a guard had been placed. In consequence of the settlement of the Monte (Protegido) case there has been a great change in public feeling. Government will in future only clear Argentine ships as far as Las Palmas, I beg that the small steamers Oran and Guazo, 31st of January (meaning which sailed 31st), 300 tons, which are (now) nearing Bordeaux with a view to change the flag, may be spared if possible or else sunk without a trace being left ('Spurlos versenkt'). LUXBURG."

"July 3, 1917, No. 59.

"I learn from a reliable source the acting minister for foreign affairs, who is a notorious ass and Anglophile, declared in a secret session of the senate that Argentina would demand from Berlin a promise not to sink more Argentine ships. If not agreed to relations would be broken off, I recommend refusal and if necessary, calling in the mediation of Spain."

"LUXBURG."

"July 9, 1917, No. 64.

"Without showing any tendency to make concessions, postpone reply to Argentine note until receipt of further reports. A change of ministry is probable. As regards Argentine steamers I recommend either compelling them to turn back, sinking them without leaving any traces or letting them through. They are all quite small. LUXBURG."

THE FOLKE CRONHOLM AFFAIR.

Further proof of Germany's secret practice of using Sweden's diplomatic service to transmit forbidden communications between German agents and the Berlin foreign office was furnished by Secretary Lansing when on Sept. 13 he made public the following translation of a letter sent by Herr von Eckhardt, German minister to Mexico:

"Imperial Legation, Mexico, March 8, 1916.

"To His Excellency the Imperial Chancellor:

"Herr Folke Cronholm, the Swedish charge d'affaires here, since his arrival here has not disguised his sympathy for Germany, and has engaged into close relations with this legation. He is the only diplomat through whom information from a hostile camp can be obtained.

"Moreover, he acts as intermediary for official diplomatic intercourse between this legation and your excellency. In the course of this he is obliged to go personally each time to the telegraph office, not seldom quite late at night, in order to hand in the telegrams. Herr Cronholm was formerly at Peking and Tokyo and was responsible for the preliminary arrangements which had to be made for the representation of his country in each case. Before he came out here he had been in charge of the consulate-general at Hamburg.

"Herr Cronholm has not got a Swedish but only a Chinese order at present. I venture to submit to your excellency the advisability of laying before his majesty the emperor the name of Herr Cronholm, with a view to the crown order of the second class being bestowed upon him.

"It would perhaps be desirable in order not to excite the enemy's suspicion to treat with secrecy the matter of the issue of the patents until the end of the war, should the decision be favorable to my suggestion.

"This would mean that the matter would be communicated to no one by the recipient and his government, and even to them only under the seal of secrecy, while the publication of the bestowal of the decoration would be postponed until the end of the war. I should be particularly grateful to your excellency if I could be furnished with telegraphic news of the bestowal of the decoration, which I strongly recommend in view of the circumstances detailed above.

VON ECKHARDT."
Folke Cronholm was replaced as Swedish charge d'affaires in Mexico City Feb. 24, 1917, by Carl G. G. Anderberg, but remained in the Mexican capital apparently without having any official status.

PLOT TO DESTROY CANADIAN PACIFIC.

The following telegram from the German foreign office to Count von Bernstorff, German ambassador to the United States, was made public by Secretary Lansing Oct. 10, 1917:

"Jan. 3 (1916).—Secret.—General staff desires energetic action in regard to proposed destruction of Canadian Pacific railway at several points, with a view to complete and protracted interruption of traffic. Capt. Boehm, who is known on your side and is shortly returning, has been given instructions. Inform the military attaché and provide the necessary funds.

"ZIMMERMANN."

SABOTAGE CAMPAIGN.

Secretary Lansing also made public on Oct. 10 the following telegram to Count von Bernstorff:

"Jan. 26 (1916).—For military attaché: You can obtain particulars as to persons suitable for carrying on sabotage in the United States and Canada from the following persons: J. Joseph MacGarrity, Philadelphia, Pa.; John P. Keating, Michigan avenue, Chicago; J. Jeremiah O'Leary, 16 Park row, New York.

"One and two are absolutely reliable and discreet. No. 3 is reliable, but not always discreet. These persons were indicated by Sir Roger Casement. In the United States sabotage can be carried out on every kind of factory for supplying munitions of war. Railway embankments and bridges must not be touched. Embassy must in no circumstances be compromised. Similar precautions must be taken in regard to Irish pro-German propaganda.

"REPRESENTATIVE GENERAL STAFF."

EMBARGO CONFERENCE.

In addition to the two preceding dispatches the secretary of state caused to be published the following telegram from Count von Bernstorff to the foreign office in Berlin in September, 1916:

"Sept. 15.—With reference to report A. N. 266, of May 10, 1916, the embargo conference, in regard to whose earlier fruitful co-operation Dr. Hale can give information, is just about to enter upon a vigorous campaign to secure a majority in both houses of congress favorable to Germany and requests further support. There is no possibility of our being compromised. Request telegraphic reply."

POISON PLOT IN ROUMANIA.

It was made public by the state department Sept. 22 that after Roumania had severed relations with Germany high explosives and phials of microbes to poison horses and cattle were found buried in the garden of the German embassy in Bukharest, then under the care of William Whiting Andrews, American charge d'affaires in the Roumanian capital. That gentleman gave the facts to Secretary Lansing in February, 1917. The boxes were unearthed in his presence by police officials and government authorities and were carefully examined. In one of the boxes the following typewritten note was discovered:

"Inclosed four phials for horses and four for cattle. To be employed as formerly arranged. Each phial is sufficient for 200 head. To be introduced, if possible, directly into the animals' throats; if not, into their fodder. Please make a little report on the success obtained there; in case of good results the presence of Mr. Kostoff for one day here would be desirable."

Under the layer of cotton wool there were, in all, six small white wooden boxes, each of which contained a glass phial with a yellow liquid. Examined at the bacteriological institute at Bukharest it was recognized that the phials contained cultures of the microbes of anthrax and glanders.

The microbes and explosives were brought to Roumania while that country was at peace with Germany.

HORN DYNAMITING CASE.

Werner Horn, a German reservist lieutenant who tried to dynamite the international bridge near Vanceboro, Me., Feb. 2, 1915, brought a habeas corpus suit in the United States Supreme court in an effort to avoid being tried in Boston on the charge of transporting explosives on a passenger train. It was announced March 6, 1917, by the court that Horn's appeal was not authorized and was therefore dismissed.

SHELL LOADING PLANT DESTROYED.

The plant of the Canadian Car and Foundry company at Kingsland, N. J., a suburb of New York city, was destroyed by fire and a series of explosions Jan. 11, 1917. The establishment consisted of half a hundred buildings in which shells were being loaded for Russia preparatory to shipment. It was estimated that 500,000 three-inch shells were destroyed, causing a total loss of approximately $16,000,000. Officials of the company said the explosion was probably the work of an incendiary, but they were not sure of it.

DU PONT POWDER PLANT BLOWN UP.

Within twenty-four hours after the destruction of the Kingsland plant, fire and explosion destroyed 400,000 pounds of powder and half a dozen buildings in the plant of the Du Pont Powder company at Haskell, N. J. Two lives were lost. The force of the explosion wrecked nearly all the houses in Haskell and several in the town of Pompton Lake, two miles away, were wrecked. The shocks were felt for miles around, buildings being shaken and windows broken far out on Long Island and up the Hudson to Poughkeepsie. The loss was estimated at $2,000,000.

EDDYSTONE AMMUNITION PLANT DISASTER.

Through a series of explosions in the shrapnel building of the Eddystone Ammunition corporation at Eddystone, one mile from Chester, Pa., April 10, 1917, 122 persons, for the most part women and girls, were killed and 150 injured. Many of those hurt subsequently died from their injuries. As the concern was being operated by an Anglo-Russian government commission and was executing an order for 2,500,000 three-inch shrapnel shells for the allies it was at once surmised that the disaster was due to a plot. No conclusive evidence that such was the case could be found.

SAN FRANCISCO PLOTTERS CONVICTED.

Franz Bopp, German consul-general in San Francisco, Cal., and four of his assistants were found guilty by a jury Jan. 10, 1918, of planning to blow up munition plants in America and Canada, steamships carrying supplies to the allies, railroad bridges and military trains. The technical charge against them was conspiracy to restrain interstate and foreign commerce by destroying factories, railroads and steamships. Those convicted, in addition to Mr. Bopp, were: Vice-Consul Eckhardt von Schack, Lieut. Wilhelm von Brincken, Charles C. Crowley and Mrs. Margaret W. Cornell. Bopp, Von Schack, Crowley and Von Brincken were each sentenced Jan. 22 by Judge Hunt of the United States Circuit court to two years in prison and to pay a fine of $10,000. Mrs. Cornell was given a year in jail.

CHRONOLOGY OF PLOTS.

The following chronology of German plots in the United States was compiled by the New York Tribune:

1914.

- Aug. 29—Du Pont storehouse blown up at Pompton, N. J.; one dead.
 Dec. 23—Mixing house at government arsenal, Picatinny, N. J., set on fire.

1915.

- Jan. 18—Buckthorne plant of John A. Roebling Wire company, at Trenton, N. J., used in making chains for French army, destroyed by fire, thought to be caused by a bomb; damage, $1,500,000.

 Dec. 1—Thirty-one lives lost by explosion in Du Pont powder mills at Wilmington, Del.
 Dec. 10—Town of Hopewell, Pa., destroyed by suspicious fire. Du Pont powder plant at that place burned, with loss of $2,000,000.

1916.

- Feb. 15—Two British ships burned at Brooklyn docks, with total loss of $1,000,000.
 March 12—Four German sympathizers arrested trying to blow up, at New York, former German liner Friedrich der Grosse.
 July 30—Ammunition trains blown up at Black Tom, N. J., with loss of $45,000,000 and four lives.

Jan. 12—Canadian Car and Foundry company munitions plant at Kingsland, near Rutherford, N. J., destroyed by explosion; damage, $10,000,000.

Jan. 12—Explosion in Du Pont powder plant at Haskell, N. J., shakes four states and blows up 400,000 pounds of powder.

Feb. 20—Albert A. Sanders and Charles Wonnunberg arrested as head of German plotters in New York.

Feb. 21—New Britain, Conn., set on fire by incendiary bombs in twenty places; loss, $300,000.

March 3—German wireless in Mexico to transmit messages to Germany discovered by United States.

April 2—Attempt made to burn Great Lakes Naval station at Chicago.

April 7—Eight ringleaders of German plot in United States arrested in New York and twelve in Chicago.

April 8—Three Germans arrested in Boston on charge of plotting to cut Atlantic cables.

April 11—Explosion in Eddystone (Pa.) munitions plant causes 119 deaths; German plot charged.

April 21—Ten destructive explosions in munitions plant in Pittsburgh cause arrest of three men.

May 8—Maps of Honolulu fortifications found on German arrested in Hawaiian Islands.

May 17—Arrest of German spy at San Francisco; confessed to seeking airplane bases in United States.

May 21—Alleged incendiary fire at Atlanta causes damage of $5,000,000.

May 23—Two fires in Norfolk, Va., navy yard, caused by generators being tampered with; authorities refuse to give out any information.

June 14—Explosion in American Sugar refinery, Brooklyn, resulted in injury to 100 workmen; loss, $150,000.

June 17—Fire destroyed submarine construction material at New York navy yard.

July 7—Conspiracy unearthed to destroy shipping on great lakes.

July 9—Explosion and fire destroyed dye plant of Seyedel Manufacturing company, Jersey City; damage, $100,000.

July 19—Three arrested for selling courtplaster containing tetanus germs.

July 22—Whitney elevator and warehouse at Rochester, N. Y., burned, with loss of 100,000 bushels of wheat and damage of $100,000.

Aug. 21—Fire destroys Congress street pier, Brooklyn, N. Y., damages two steamships, three tugs, six barges and much war material; damage, $1,000,000.

Aug. 24—Explosion in Du Pont powder plant in New Brunswick, N. J., resulted in injuries to nearly 100 employees; damage not announced.

Sept. 9—Explosion in detonating drying room at Frankford (Pa.) arsenal; three killed and twenty-three injured; only the dead knew cause of explosion.

Sept. 28—Roundup of ninety enemy aliens prompted by discovery by federal authorities that blueprints and parts of an important naval secret had been stolen from a Brooklyn factory by Germans.

Oct. 11—Three Germans arrested in New York charged with conspiring to sink ships leaving the port of New York.

Oct. 20—Federal authorities round up thirty-eight aliens from Hoboken piers and docks; accused men said to have used wooden rivets in repairing ships.

Oct. 23—Two German liners taken over by the United States compelled to put back in New York harbor because of damages to machinery.

Oct. 31—Numerous fires started simultaneously on Baltimore and Ohio railroad piers at Baltimore, destroyed two piers, several boats and war material; damage, $1,500,000.

Nov. 5—Three explosions in plant of American Aluminum company at New Kensington, Pa., brought death to five employees.

BELGIAN DEPORTATIONS.

On Nov. 29, 1916, the United States through Mr. Grew, charge at Berlin, presented to the German chancellor a note protesting against the deportation of Belgian civilians for the purpose of forcing them to labor in Germany as an action "in contravention of all precedents and of those humane principles of international practice which have long been accepted and practiced by civilized nations in their treatment of noncombatants."

DEFENDED BY GERMANY.

The following memorial was presented to the state department in Washington Jan. 20, 1917, and to the foreign offices of other neutral governments:

"The compulsory employment of Belgian workmen in German establishments is being seized upon by our enemies as a welcome opportunity for inflaming public opinion in the neutral and hostile countries against this alleged latest violation of the Belgian people. It seems, therefore, necessary, to prevent a one-sided judgment on this question from being formed, to elucidate the causes and the effects of the measures.

"The principal cause for this unemployment is to be found in the ruthless application of the British blockade, even as against Belgium.

"It has come about that out of 1,200,000 men and women who before the war were working in Belgian industrial establishments, comprising approximately one-half of the total population of Belgium engaged in gainful pursuits, 505,000 people (including 158,000 women) are totally unemployed, while 150,000 (including 46,000 women) are only partially employed. Thus, in all, 655,000 persons who formerly were earning their living as industrial workers are now dependent on public charity. If, moreover, 235,000 wives and 612,000 children of the unemployed are added, the figure rises to 1,560,000 people in need of assistance—approximately one-fifth of the total Belgian population.

"The sums so far expended in procuring the minimum of subsistence for the unemployed and their dependents reach a total of 300,000,000 francs, and they promise in future to amount to no less than 20,000,000 francs monthly. And although foreign countries undertook to finance this relief work, in the last analysis the burden must be borne by the national economy of Belgium.

"From the social point of view the present state of affairs must be characterized as absolutely intolerable. It is self-evident that the skilled worker will in course of years lose his skill through lack of practice.

"Morally, the continuance of present conditions would have truly disastrous results. The laboring classes would end by losing entirely the sense of humiliation which all morally sound people feel when they are obliged to appeal to the charity of strangers for their sustenance.

"Now that the evils which gave rise to these ordinances have developed absolutely intolerable conditions the ordinances have to be carried into effect on a larger scale than heretofore. Before they are applied the unemployed are given opportunity to enter of their own will into remunerative labor contracts, and coercive measures are resorted to only in cases of obstinate refusal. The unemployed who are sent to Germany are placed there on the same footing with the German laborers and are receiving higher wages than were ever given in Belgium."

BELGIAN GOVERNMENT STATEMENT.

The state department issued the following June 9, 1917:

The Belgian minister, Mr. de Cartier, has transmitted to the secretary of state the following memorandum prepared by the Belgian government in regard to the deportation of civilians and the forced labor imposed on them by the German authorities. In his note of transmittal Mr. de Cartier says:

"This document is a complete refutation of the excuses offered by the German authorities for these acts of barbarity, and is a clear statement of the successive steps by which Germany has sought to break down the patriotic spirit of the Belgian workmen and to enslave them for work of military utility against their own fellow countrymen."

Memoire of the Belgian Government in Regard to the Deportation and Forced Labor of the Belgian Civil Population Ordered by the German Government.

The German government tries to justify the deportation of Belgian civilians by invoking reasons of different sorts.

It alleges first that the depressed condition of Belgian industry could not offer to unemployed Belgians any means of working, or, at least, any means of making a suitable livelihood in Belgium.

Then it alleges that the general interest of the occupied territory (for which the occupant is responsible) demanded that the unemployed should not remain a charge upon public charity, finding in such aid an encouragement to their natural laziness and exposing themselves to the loss of their technical skill by long idleness.

Finally, it alleges its anxiety for order and public safety to which the increasing army of unemployed Belgians might constitute a danger.

None of these reasons justifies the measures taken by the German general headquarters on October 3, 1916.

I.

INCONSISTENCY OF GERMAN ARGUMENT.

The fact will not escape an attentive mind that the motives set forth in the plea of the German government are contradictory to each other.

Indeed, if it be accepted as true that the deportations are caused by the stagnation of industry in occupied Belgium, then it would be unjust to accuse the Belgian laboring class of laziness in this case of involuntary unemployment.

If, on the contrary, there is really laziness on the part of the Belgian laboring class, then there must be work for them to do in Belgium; consequently, the deportation into Germany is an entirely arbitrary act, and it is incomprehensible that an attempt should be made to justify it on the ground of the stagnation of Belgian industry.

What is, however, the real situation in occupied Belgium?

The cessation of the larger part of Belgian industry is an admitted fact. But Germany founds an argument upon this fact as upon an event due to the circumstances of a state of war and in the presence of which the good intentions of the occupant were powerless.

However, this is not the case. The depressed condition of Belgian industry is not a case of accident caused by the force of extraneous circumstances, unconnected with the action of the German authorities; these authorities are, on the contrary, personally responsible.

Their responsibility is double. The German government is the direct author of the crisis in Belgian industry and labor.

The German government has deliberately prevented the Belgians from applying the remedy.

II.

THE RATHENAU PLAN.

Since the occupation of Belgium the German authorities, in spite of their deceitful proclamations, have put into effect the plan worked out in August, 1914, at Berlin, by Dr. W. Rathenau, for the systematic exploitation of all the economic resources of occupied countries to the profit of the war organization of the empire.

This plan allowed, notably, the seizure of all stocks of raw materials existing in the occupied territories and the transfer of them into Germany in order to avert the consequences of the closure of the seas. This was to be completed by the removal of the implements of labor and, in general, by the removal of all means of production which the empire might need for the continuation of the struggle. Economic commissions, attached to all the military authorities in the occupied territories, were to be constituted the agents for putting into execution the Rathenau plan. By this plan—as the German publicists have written on so many occasions, with the approval of the censor—the war carried on by the empire would take on the character of an “economic war.”

This program was methodically carried out. SYSTEMATIC EXHAUSTION OF RESOURCES.

It would seem reasonable to expect that the occupying authority—which had been already relieved of the feeding of the Belgian population by Belgian initiative and by the generosity of neutral countries, especially by the United States—should make it a point of honor to aid the country to recover as soon as possible from the injuries received during the first months of the invasion. But, on the contrary, the occupying authority used its temporary legislative power only for the purpose of covering its designs of monopoly with the cloak of legality.

The collection of the “Bulletin Officiel des Lois et Arrêtes pour le Territoire Belge Occupé,” published at Brussels from the end of August, 1914, contains, during the period of 26 months, more than 120 orders relating to economic conditions, decreeing the making of inventories, the prohibition of sale and purchase, the seizure of products, of raw materials, and of tools, or decreeing prohibitions, restrictions, or taxes upon products, materials, or tools, whether for importation or exportation. The list of objects mentioned in these orders contains more than 400 different specifications, among which are certain classes of objects comprising in themselves many subdivisions. All these things, one after another, have been immobilized, then seized and sent out of the country by legislative acts of the civil authorities, after innumerable requisitions had been made by the military authorities.

STIFLING OF BELGIAN COMPETITION.

Moreover, besides the motives of military interest denounced above, an underlying thought of stifling Belgian competition also inspired several of the measures. An avowal of this has been explicitly made, in Germany itself, by several publicists of authority, and notably in regard to the Belgian glass industry by Dr. Goetz, president of the syndicate of master glass makers of Germany, in an article published by the Wirtschaftszeitung der Zentralmaechte of November 10, 1916.

The Belgian government knows that the operation of removing machines and installation was, in several cases, confided to the representatives of German firms who were the direct competitors of the Belgian industries, and that in at least one instance, in an artificial silk factory, the Belgian firm's secret process of fabrication was ascertained from the factory inspected.

Numerous Belgian industries have been placed under sequestration without plausible reason.

Finally, the German authorities, in 1916, placed prohibitive tariffs on the remaining Belgian industries which had still maintained a relative degree of activity through their commercial relations with certain neutral countries, the glass industry and the metallurgical industry.

Moreover, it appears from recent information that the German administration requires from Belgian exporters the deposit of a guaranty of 20 per cent of the value of all merchandise exported, in order to insure the return to Belgium of the entire proceeds of the sale.

These prohibitive measures are of a nature to close to Belgian industry any markets which may have remained open, and even to render impossible all export trade.

The effect of these measures is increased in the interior of the country by restrictions of all kinds placed upon circulation (a complicated system of passports, the seizure of bicycle tires, etc.) and by the financial policy of the German authorities.

GERMAN FINANCIAL POLICY.

Attention can be called here only to the principal acts which have marked the German financial policy:

(a) A war tax of 40,000 francs per month for the benefit of the German war treasury—a tax fixed at first for one year, the Belgian provinces being jointly and severally responsible (December, 1914), with the official promise that there should not be afterward any other war tax. In November, 1915, however, this tax was made permanent. In November, 1916, after nearly 1,000,000,000 francs had been extracted from the country, the tax was increased by the sum of 10,000,000 francs per month (50,000,000 francs instead of 40,000,000).

(b) Imposition of the mark at the forced rate of 1 franc 25 centimes.

(c) Refusal of the German authorities to accept marks in payment of the war tax, of which a large proportion was required to be paid in francs.

(d) Absolute prohibition of the exportation of securities, even to pay for commodities necessary for the feeding of the civil population.

(e) Extortion of marks held as cash reserve by Belgian banks (the Banque Nationale and the Societe Generale); that is to say, 430,000,000 marks which were transported into Germany (Sept. 12, 1916), with the stipulation of repayment two years after the end of the war at the average rate of exchange of Berlin at that period.

III.

QUESTION OF UNEMPLOYMENT.

Any country whatever if subjected to such a system of exploitation would find itself overwhelmed by the calamity of unemployment. The number of Belgian workers (men) thus reduced to idleness in spite of their desire to work varies between 300,000 and 400,000. If this number (which the German statements tend to exaggerate in order to draw some quibbling argument) is not greater, it is due only to the prodigies of ingenuity and initiative of the Belgians, who have truly shown themselves in this as in other spheres “the nation that will not die.”

It is superfluous to insist in this place upon the magnificent efforts for mutual aid, both charitable and humanitarian, which have made it possible in occupied Belgium to meet the needs of the unemployed and of their families by means of direct assistance—gifts in kind, cash payments, distribution of food and clothing, loans of money, etc. Assistance to the unemployed cost, all together, 10,000,000 to 12,000,000 francs per month. To these expenses the German authorities do not contribute one cent. These charges are borne, to a small extent only, by the local budgets of Belgium; they are borne for the most part by private generosity, inside and outside of the country, Belgian and foreign, aided largely by subsidies from the Belgian government.

HINDER TECHNICAL INSTRUCTION.

In spite of the policy of economic exhaustion, placed by the occupying authorities at the service of the empire's war organization, and of competing German industries, it would have been possible to provide sufficiently against the injurious effects of unemployment by the classic means which are taught by modern social economy; that is to say, by the organization of works of public utility and by the institution of courses of technical instruction.

The Belgian authorities did not fall in the one nor in the other of these duties; but instead of meeting in this sphere the aid or encouragement of the occupying authority, they were met by its opposition, and finally, by its veto.

The intelligent initiative taken in the spring of 1915 by a group of Belgian business men and philanthropists, and supported by the communal authorities of Brussels, as well as by the Comite National de Secours et l'Alimentation, to provide for aid to the unemployed, to secure attendance at various technical schools, created to maintain the technical skill of the Belgian workman and to ward off the temptation to idleness, was put into operation brilliantly at Brussels during the summer of 1915.

It was greeted with unanimous approval by the Belgians and was encouraged by subsidies and promises of subsidies from generous individuals. Even the German publicists praised the work and its promoters. But when the latter wished to extend the work throughout the entire country the German authorities opposed the plan in such a way that this magnificent effort was entirely paralyzed (autumn of 1915).

The fact is that while artificially creating unemployment in Belgium by the removal of stocks of raw materials and tools and by the restriction placed upon the commercial activity of the country, the German administration had conceived the idea of enrolling the workers thus thrown into enforced idleness in the service of its war industries, either in the requisitioned Belgian factories or in Germany.

PUBLIC WORK FOR UNEMPLOYED FORBIDDEN.

At the beginning of the summer of 1915 a campaign was started to overcome in this matter the passive resistance of Belgian patriotism. The German authorities had had recourse successively or simultaneously, to the bait of high wages, to intimidation, then to violence, in order to procure the manual labor necessary for their military objects (see the eighteenth and nineteenth reports of the Belgian commission of inquiry in regard to the violation of the law of nations); but these attempts had failed; very few Belgian workmen had consented to engage themselves in the service of the enemy; of the others a certain number had been deported to Germany as prisoners as a punishment for their refusal. Then the German administration resolved to prevent by all means in its power the Belgian unemployed from finding elsewhere a livelihood or assistance; it counted upon holding them at its mercy by the pressure of the needs and the destitution of their families.

Hence the seemingly inexplicable opposition of the German authorities to the project of establishing obligatory technical instruction as a condition of granting allowances during unemployment.

Hence, also, the still more incredible opposition of the German authorities to works of public utility for the unemployed, which up to that time had been freely organized by the local administrations.

By decrees of Aug. 14 and 15, 1915, the governor-general in Belgium made it a misdemeanor to refuse to work or to cause aid to be given to a workman who refused to work.

COMPETENCE OF COURTS ADMITTED.

It is true that these orders still admitted the competence of the Belgian courts and recognized motives for refusal founded on the law of nations as grounds for justification. But at the same time the German military authorities caused orders to be posted stating precisely the contrary, as, for example, Gen. von Unger (order at Ghent Oct. 2, 1915):

"Appeal to any possible Belgian law or even to international conventions can never justify a refusal to work. The military commandant alone decides the acceptability of the work demanded."

Some months later the German authorities, taking another double step toward despotism, decreed the prohibition of all public work for the unemployed unless authorization were obtained in each particular case (order of May 2, 1916); then (order of May 15, 1916), as a means of repressing refusals to work, they set up the principle of compulsion to work; at the same time they took the jurisdiction of these cases away from the Belgian courts and reserved such jurisdiction to the German courts and military commandants. It was the institution of "forced labor in Belgium," and, necessarily, of "forced labor in the service of the enemy."

The Belgian government has not complete information in regard to the individual prosecutions which may have been instituted against Belgian citizens under the order of May 15, 1916. On the other hand, it is in possession of incontestable information in regard to the application of the order of May 2, 1916.

Hardly a single authorization was issued for works of public utility; works already commenced were interrupted; works contracted for had to be countermanded; thousands of workmen who had by these means found an honorable occupation and had gained a livelihood were forcibly thrown into idleness.

Thus hunted down in every place where employment could still be obtained in Belgium, the Belgian laboring class, at the end of September, 1916, found itself compelled to fold its arms by order of the German authorities.

This was the moment chosen by the German government to decree the deportation of the Belgian unemployed into Germany, under the official pretext "that sufficient occupation for the unemployed could no longer be found in Belgium."

The truth of the matter is this: The German authorities blame the Belgian laboring class for the enforced idleness to which the workmen have been deliberately condemned by the German authorities themselves through their policy of economic exhaustion and through their orders in regard to work.

IV.

BRITISH BLOCKADE.

The German government has attempted to throw upon the English blockade the responsibility for the stoppage of Belgian industry, for which they themselves are really responsible. To believe them, the stoppage was due simply to the impossibility of importing into Belgium the raw materials necessary for the activity of the factories and mills, and the impossibility of afterwards exporting the products.

This interpretation cannot stand confrontation with the following facts:

Without speaking of the undeniable responsibility which rests upon Germany before the tribunal of history because of her unjust aggression on Aug. 4, 1914, and on account of the innumerable evils engendered by that fundamental injustice, it is evident that the blockade decreed by one of the states which had guaranteed Belgian neutrality, a blockade decreed for the purpose of weakening and overcoming Belgium's aggressor, is not the cause of the industrial crisis from which the occupied territory suffers.

In Belgium, a country rich and productive in itself, there were important stocks of raw materials. Why did the Germans carry these stocks away if they sincerely desired to leave Belgian industry the means of continuing its activity?

WHY WERE TARIFFS IMPOSED?

In Belgium there were industries (such as certain metallurgic industries, glass works, potteries, etc.) which could, in any event, continue their activities, and which had even increased their business since the partial resumption of their work after the invasion. Why did the Germans place upon these products prohibitive tariffs which closed to them the neutral continental markets not subjected to the restrictions of the blockade—for example, the Holland market?

Why did the Germans stop the work of opening up new coal mines in the Campine district which were profitably employing numerous workmen?

Why did they put under sequestration so many Belgian industries which were still active?

Why did they carry away thousands of machines and machine tools; why did they take to pieces or dismember so many industrial plants; why did they monopolize all the products of the soil and the larger part of the merchandise of the wholesale trade for the benefit of the German "Centrales" of purchase and sale, upon whose operations the Belgians could exercise no effective supervision?

V.

DEPORTATION OF BELGIAN WORKMEN.

Is it still necessary to stop here to examine the affirmation of the German government that "deportation is a measure of social precaution, for the purpose of furnishing to the Belgian unemployed a livelihood that Belgian industry and agriculture can no longer procure for them"?

This argument cannot be applied to the thousands of Belgian civilians subjected to forced labor, immediately behind the German front, in Flanders and in France (even under the fire of the allied artillery); that is to say, those who have been deported into a region whence all industry has long since disappeared and whence the native population itself has been to a great extent removed. As far as this category of deported Belgians is concerned, it is evidently only a question of forced labor on work of military utility.

The case is not different as far as the Belgians deported into Germany are concerned.

The order of Oct. 3, 1916, is, indeed, essentially a war measure.

This character is shown, in the first place, by the authority from which it emanates and which is not the civil government of occupied Belgium (as in the case of the orders of Aug. 14 and 15, 1915, and of May 2 and 15, 1916) but the German general headquarters.

SIMILAR ORDERS ELSEWHERE.

This character is shown, moreover, by the fact that similar orders were given out, simultaneously and by the military authorities also, covering the occupied districts of Poland and Lithuania; in both cases it was only the putting into execution of a general plan tending to complete the entire incorporation of the resources (men as well as goods) of the occupied countries into the war organization of the empire.

Finally this character is shown in an absolutely decisive way by the correlation, to-day openly avowed, between the order of Oct. 3, 1916, and the law of December, 1916, ordering the mobilization, in Germany itself, of the entire able-bodied civil population for the auxiliary service of the army.

The deported Belgians have been incorporated into this vast economic military organism by approximately the same legislative claim and for exactly the same ends as the able-bodied male population of Germany; that is to say, to aid the German army to support the burden of the war and to make a supreme effort.

VI.

NO DANGER TO PUBLIC ORDER.

As to the reason founded on the maintenance of order and public safety, this need not detain a serious mind for an instant.

The Belgian people undoubtedly feel a profound aversion to the nation which has invaded their territory in contempt of treaties and of its obligations of guaranty, and which, for purely strategic reasons, has not hesitated to unchain the horrors of war upon a small, inoffensive state which was a stranger to the competition of the international rivalry of the great powers.

But, not less than in the heroic bravery of the army, the grandeur of the Belgian character was revealed in the admirable self-control which the population has been able to maintain in the presence of the greatest injustice and of the most odious cruelty. During two years of occupation under a very severe regime there has been no uprising, no disorder anywhere. All the social authorities, or those who have been placed in such authority, have constantly occupied themselves in recommending calm and patience to the sorely tried people.

Moreover, the population has no arms; surrounded by a barrier of death-dealing electric wires, the population is literally held as in a cage.

All constitutional liberties, liberty of opinion, of the press, of reunion and of association, are suspended. The danger of disorder is so remote that the German administration has maintained only relatively weak garrisons in Belgium.

VII.

GERMANY'S REAL OBJECT.

In reality, consideration for the proper social interests of Belgium and for the special conditions brought about by the events of the war did not play any part in the elaboration of the order of Oct. 3, 1916; that is only a hypocritical pretext invoked to hide, under the mask of a false humanitarian solicitude, the odious attempt which a momentary superiority of force has permitted to be perpetrated against the most sacred individual rights of the Belgian citizens.

The German government pursues a definite object in deporting en masse and in subjecting to forced labor the population of the occupied territories, viz., to facilitate the employment of a corresponding number of German workmen in the active military service or in munition factories.

This object is that which was officially declared in the preparation of the law for the mobilization of civilians in Germany, the general provisions of which were merely applied to the Belgian civil population some weeks in advance by the order of Oct. 3, 1916.

THE QUESTION OF RIGHT.

The conflict between such a measure and natural rights, as well as the positive law of nations, is undeniable. This measure has brought down upon it the unanimous reprobation of public opinion in all countries where public opinion can express itself freely. Several neutral states have felt that they could not avoid the moral obligation of registering this cry of the universal conscience in official remonstrances addressed to the German government. It can be said without exaggeration that such an attack upon the essential rights of humanity had never before been made in modern times by any state calling itself civilized.

The brutality and the duplicity with which the measure has been enforced have augmented (if such a thing be possible) this unprecedented scandal; they have wrung from Belgium, which seemed to have already reached the limit of the afflictions of a nation at war, a cry of anguish which has caused an echo of horror and indignation from the neutral states.

Although in 1863 the "Instructions for the Armies in the Field," published for the use of the American troops, noted even then that deportation and reduction to servitude of the civil population of conquered states by the conqueror were no longer practiced, except among barbaric hordes, the spectacle has been seen, in Belgium, of the regular army of a powerful empire employed in carrying out methodic slave raids upon the citizens of a small, captive nation which had entered the war solely for the defense of its independence and for the fulfillment of its international duties.

VIII.

EXECUTION OF THE ORDER.

The deportations have been carried out coolly by the occupant, according to a plan carefully thought out and in spite of the most formal promises and assurances of immunity lavished upon the population, a short time previously, by the highest representatives of the imperial government, notably, by the military governor of Antwerp and by the governor-general, Field Marshal von der Goltz. Belgian families have been torn apart without pity. Men of all ages (from 17 to 55 years and over), of every condition (assisted by charity or in easy circumstances, unemployed or employed, numbers of them even torn away from their work), have been carried off in herds, transported, under the most inhuman circumstances, to places which they are forbidden to make known to their families, and forcibly compelled to take part in work of direct or indirect military utility.

Before their departure they are formally called upon to choose between a so-called "voluntary" engagement for work in Germany, with a seemingly high wage, and, on the other hand, deportation, with a wage which is a mockery (30 pfennigs a day). Whether they sign the contract or not, it means forced separation from their families.

The immense majority refuse to sign, and even refuse to work. They are then subjected to horrible treatment, regulated cleverly and applied with the refinement of calculated cruelty which, it had been thought, was the attribute only of savage peoples or of those who had returned to savagery. Torture by hunger, by thirst, by cold, by standing rigidly, by whippings; threats of imprisonment and of death; blows with the rifle butt, etc.; every means was employed to overcome the resistance of these obscure heroes of patriotic duty.

GREAT SUFFERING INFLICTED.

Reports that would make any civilized man tremble with indignation have come into the possession of the Belgian government showing the unpeppable suffering inflicted on thousands of innocent people in the camps where the German government has caused them to be huddled together, in order that this herd of pitiable human cattle may be sorted out and enslaved for the ends of despotism.

The suffering is perhaps still worse among those unfortunates who are sent to points between the German lines in Flanders and in France.

Compelled, in spite of themselves, to undertake heavy toil and to work outdoors during the severest season of the year, without having been trained or hardened, exposed to artillery fire, deprived of proper clothing, and scarcely nourished, a multitude of these unfortunates soon fall from exhaustion and from illness. The mortality on the spot seems to be considerable. The sick and dying who can still be transported are sent home with less regard than slaves received in antiquity from their masters, who were interested in the care of human chattels who formed a part of their riches. Through the pitiable convoys of these repatriated Belgians there has been revealed the life which their compatriots lead who remain behind at work. There is only one word that can describe it: "It is a hell."

IX.

CONSEQUENCES OF THE OUTRAGE.

All the protests raised against this standing outrage against the dignity of civilized man, these attacks upon his corporeal integrity; upon his liberty to dispose of his person and of his work, upon his right to remain united to his family, upon his duty to abstain from serving the enemy of his country—all such protests have so far been in vain.

These outrages and attacks continue, without care for the seeds of hate that are sown in the hearts of the victims and of the near and dear to them and which threaten to render all social intercourse impossible, perhaps for centuries, between two important portions of the peoples of Europe.

The spectacle of such odious injustice creates, day by day, more clearly in the souls of all who witness it the impression of an exceptionally heinous crime which is inexplicable, although now carried on with momentary impunity.

As to those who are the victims, their resolution, rising above the cruelty and suffering which is their lot, remains steadfast and unshakable.

No peace is possible nor durable without the observance of the elementary rules of right, one of the first of which is respect for the human person.

No abuse of force can exhaust the resistance of the Belgian people to foreign oppression. All history witnesses that the aspiration of the Belgian people for independence is indomitable and that their endurance will win the mastery over tyranny.

REVOLUTION IN RUSSIA.

CZAR NICHOLAS II.

CZAR FORCED TO ABDICATE.

Thursday, March 15, 1917, the Russian telegraph and cable lines, which for some days had been silent, brought the news to the world that a revolution had taken place and that in place of the autocratic czar and his ministers a new democratic provisional government had been established under the leadership of such men as Michael V. Rodzianko, president of the duma; Prince Georges E. Lvoff, president of the All-Russian Union of Provisional Councils, and Prof. Paul N. Miloukov, a distinguished statesman and scholar. Though it had been known for several months that there was widespread dissatisfaction with the ruling powers in Russia, especially on account of their failure properly to distribute the food resources of the country, and that the duma had demanded the institution of a responsible government which would not betray Russia by making a premature peace with Germany. It was not generally understood that events had progressed so far that a complete overthrow of the old regime was at hand. The sudden announcement therefore came to the majority of people outside of Russia as a surprise.

One of the first indications of the coming storm was the killing under mysterious circumstances of the monk Gregory Rasputin, a man who was reputed to have a baneful reactionary influence over the czar. He was shot and killed on the night of Dec. 29-30, 1916, after having been summoned to Prince Yussupoff's palace in Petrograd. Provisionally to this affair there had been much talk in Petrograd and Moscow of plots to betray Russia into the hands of Germany. As early as November Prof. Paul N. Miloukov had publicly denounced the prime minister, Boris V. Sturmer, as a traitor to Russia. Sturmer was forced to resign and was succeeded by Alexander Feodorovich Treppoff. After holding office for about two months, during which time there was much dissension in the duma, Treppoff resigned Jan. 9, 1917, his place being taken by Prince Goltzine, a reactionary of the extreme conservative group. Alexander Protopopoff, minister of the interior, another reactionary, was retained in the new cabinet. Prince Goltzine announced that the first duty of the government was to win the war and that interior reforms must come later. Leaders of the duma decided that they could not co-operate with the ministry, which they believed to be pro-German at heart.

In the meantime popular discontent had been increasing because of the lack of food supplies in the large cities, though it was known that the stores of grain in the empire were ample for all. It was also generally felt that the war was purposely being mismanaged. Plans were made by workmen for a general strike and by others for a social revolution. These were discouraged by the liberal duma leaders, who feared that such steps would interfere disastrously with the conduct of the war, particularly through causing a diminution in the manufacture of munitions. The food situation grew worse, the explanations of the authorities were suddenly received and the people in Petrograd became so exasperated that riots were feared. The commander of the district, Gen. Chavaloff, forbade public assemblages and warned the citizens that armed force would be used to prevent disorder. There were, however, a few strikes and some minor riots, but the troops manifested no disposition to fire on the people.

The czar was advised of the seriousness of the situation, but by the advice of his reactionary ministers he made the mistake of attempting to dissolve the duma. On Sunday, March 11, he issued the following ukase:

"The sittings of the duma are adjourned owing to extraordinary circumstances until further notice. They will be resumed not later than April."

NEW GOVERNMENT FORMED.

Another ukase issued at the same time suspended the sittings of the council of the empire. On Monday the ukase was read to the duma in regular session. The duma leaders, presided over by Michael V. Rodzanko, thereupon declared that the government was overthrown and that a committee composed of various party heads would submit a list of names for a new cabinet. This body as subsequently announced was as follows:

Premier, President of the Council and Minister of the Interior—Prince Georges E. Lvoff.

Minister of Foreign Affairs—Prof. Paul N. Milyoukov.

Minister of Public Instruction—Prof. Manuloff.

Minister of War and Navy, ad interim—A. J. Guchoff.

Minister of Justice—Deputy Kerensky.

Minister of Agriculture—Deputy Ichingareff.

Minister of Communications—N. V. Nekrasoff.

Minister of Finance—M. Terestchenko.

Controller of State—M. Godneff.

Minister of Trade and Commerce—A. I. Kononoff.

Procureur-General of the Holy Synod—Prince Lvoff.

For a time on that Monday the fate of the revolution was in doubt. It all depended upon the decision of the troops, of whom there were several regiments in the Petrograd garrison. The revolutionary leaders persuaded them that their interests and those of the people were identical and the soldiers decided against the old regime. There was some fighting in various quarters of the city and the victory was not won without bloodshed. The estimates of the number of lives lost varied from 300 to 3,000, but probably the smaller figure was nearer the truth than the other. On April 5, 180 victims of the revolution were buried on the Field of Mars in Petrograd.

CZAR NICHOLAS II. ABDICATES.

Czar Nicholas was absent from the capital when the revolution was carried into effect and was on his way back when he was informed that his abdication was desired. At the town of Pskoff on March 15, in the presence of Gen. Nicholas V. Ruskoy, Gen. Baron W. Fredericks, a member of the duma committee and a member of the new cabinet, he signed a document abdicating the throne of Russia. It was as follows:

"We, Nicholas II., by the grace of God emperor of all the Russias, czar of Poland, grand duke of Finland, etc., make known to all our faithful subjects:

"In the day of the great struggle against a foreign foe, who has been striving for three years to enslave our country, God has wished to send to Russia a new and painful trial. Inferior troubles threaten to have a fatal repercussion on the final outcome of the war. The destinies of Russia and the honor of our heroic army, the happiness of the people, and all the future of our dear fatherland require that the war be prosecuted at all cost to a victorious end. The cruel enemy is making his last effort, and the moment is near when our valiant army, in concert with those of our glorious allies, will definitely chastise the foe.

"In these decisive days in the life of Russia we believe our people should have the closest union and organization of all their forces for the realization of speedy victory. For this reason, in accord with the duma of the empire, we have considered it desirable to abdicate the throne of Russia and lay aside our supreme power.

"Not wishing to be separated from our loved son, we leave our heritage to our brother, the Grand Duke Michael Alexandrovitch, blessing his advent to the throne of Russia. We hand over the government to our brother in full union with the representatives of the nation who are seated in the legislative chambers, taking this step with an inviolable oath in the name of our well beloved country.

"We call on all faithful sons of the fatherland to fulfill their sacred patriotic duty in this painful moment of national trial and to aid our brother and the representatives of the nation in bringing Russia into the path of prosperity and glory. May God aid Russia."

Though at first inclined to take the throne Grand Duke Michael Alexandrovitch changed his mind and abdicated. It was also proposed to restore Grand Duke Nicholas to the supreme command of the armies, but it was finally thought best not to have any of the Romanoffs in a position of great power.

DECLARATION OF PRINCIPLES.

One of the first acts of the new government was to announce that it would base its policy on the following principles:

"1. An immediate general amnesty for all political and religious offenses, including terrorist acts and military and agrarian offenses.

"2. Liberty of speech and of the press; freedom for alliances, unions and strikes, with the extension of these liberties to military officials within the limits admitted by military requirements.

"3. Abolition of all social, religious and national restrictions.

"4. To proceed forthwith to the preparation and convocation of a constitutional assembly, based on universal suffrage, which will establish a governmental regime.

"5. The substitution of the police by a national militia, with chiefs to be elected and responsible to the government.

"6. Communal elections to be based on universal suffrage.

"7. The troops which participated in the revolutionary movement will not be disarmed but will remain in Petrograd.

"8. While maintaining strict military discipline for troops on active service, it is desirable to abrogate for soldiers all restrictions in the enjoyment of social rights accorded to other citizens."

NATIONS ARE NOTIFIED.

On March 18 Prof. Milyoukov, the foreign minister, gave official notice of the revolution in an address which was transmitted to all Russian diplomats in other countries. After briefly referring to the rapidity with which the old order was overthrown, the address continued:

"By an act dated from Pskoff, March 15, Emperor Nicholas renounced the throne for himself and the hereditary Grand Duke Alexis Nikolaievitch in favor of Grand Duke Michael Alexandrovitch. In reply to a notification which was made to him of this act, Grand Duke Michael Alexandrovitch, by an act dated Petrograd, March 16, in his turn renounced assumption of supreme power until the time when a constituent assembly, created on the basis of universal suffrage, should have established a form of government and new fundamental laws of Russia. By this same act Alexandrovitch invited the citizens of Russia, pending a definite manifestation of the national will, to submit to the authority of the provisional government constituted on the initiative of the state, which holds full power.

"* * * This government, which assumes power at the moment of the greatest external and internal crisis which Russia has known in the course of her history, is fully conscious of the immense responsibility it incurs. It will apply itself first to repairing the overwhelming errors bequeathed to it by the past, to insuring order and tranquillity in the country, and, finally, to preparing the conditions necessary in order that the sovereign will of the nation may be freely pronounced as to its future lot.

"In the domain of the foreign policy the cabinet, in which I am charged with the portfolio of foreign affairs, will remain faithful to the international engagements entered into by the fallen regime and will honor Russia's word. We shall carefully cultivate relations which unite us to other friendly and allied nations, and we are confident that these relations will become even more intimate, more solid, under the new regime established in Russia, which is resolved to be guided by the democratic principles of respect to the small and great nations, to the liberty of their development and to good understanding among nations.

"But the government cannot forget for a single instant the grave external circumstances in which it assumes power. Russia did not will the war which has been drenching the world with blood for nearly three years. But, victim of premeditated aggression prepared long ago, she will continue, as in the past, to struggle against the spirit of conquest of a predatory race, which has aimed at establishing an intolerable hegemony over its neighbors and subjecting Europe of the twentieth century to the shame of domination by Prussian militarism. Faithful to the pact which unites her indissolubly to her glorious allies, Russia is resolved, like them, to assure the world at all costs an era of peace among the nations on the basis of stable national organization guaranteeing respect for right and justice. She will fight by their side against the common enemy until the end, without cessation and without faltering. * * *

On March 20 the provisional government issued a manifesto in which it reiterated its purpose to convoke as soon as possible a constituent assembly on the basis of universal suffrage for the creation of fundamental laws guaranteeing the immutable rights of equality and liberty. While the main action in the revolution was staged in Petrograd it proceeded simultaneously in all other parts of the empire, and for the most part without bloodshed. The soldiers and their generals in the field or on garrison duty cast their lot in with the new regime willingly and continued in the discharge of their duties.

HOME RULE FOR FINLAND.

There was a little trouble in Finland, where the governor, Gen. Zein, had to be arrested and the garrison of Sveaborg besieged before the grand duchy was brought under control of the provisional government. It was announced that all the old rights and privileges of the province would be restored and that Finland would have home rule. Deputy Roditcheff was named as minister of Finnish affairs. Baron Serge-Korff was subsequently appointed assistant governor-general of Finland.

FULL RIGHTS FOR JEWS.

On March 19 it was announced that the new government had granted the full right of citizenship to Jews and had abolished the pale throughout Russia. This progressive step was later confirmed by a notice given the American government that American and other Jews were free to visit Russia—a right denied them under the old regime.

CZAR IMPRISONED IN PALACE.

Simultaneously with the issuance of an order granting amnesty to all political prisoners, the new Russian government on March 21 began arresting adherents of the former bureaucratic regime. Among those who were placed in confinement were Gen. Baron Fredericks, the czar's minister of court; Gen. Gondatti, governor-general of Amur province; M. Rajeff, chief of the holy synod; Prince Fyulin and various other officials. The former emperor, now known as Nicholas Romanoff, and his wife Alexandra were placed under arrest March 22 and confined, with about 200 members of the court, in the Tsarskoe-Selo palace.

RECOGNIZED BY UNITED STATES.

The United States was the first nation to recognize formally the new government. On the afternoon of March 22 Ambassador David R. Francis, accompanied by his staff, went to the Marinsky palace in Petrograd, where the council of ministers was assembled, made the formal recognition and presented congratulations on the part of the United States. He said:

"I have the honor as the ambassador and representative of the government of the United States accredited to Russia to state, in accordance with instructions, that the government of the United States will be pleased to continue intercourse with Russia through the medium of the new government. May the cordial relations existing between the two countries continue to obtain. May they prove mutually satisfactory and beneficial."

Replying for the ministers, Dr. Paul Miluyoukov, the foreign minister, said:

"Permit me, in the name of the provisional government, to answer the act of recognition by the United States. I have been more than once in your country, and may bear witness that the ideals which are represented by the provisional government are the same as underlie the existence of your country. I must tell your excellency that during the last few days I have received many congratulations from prominent men in your country assuring me that the public opinion of the United States is in sympathy with us. Permit me to thank you. We are proud to be recognized first by a country whose ideals we cherish."

On the same day Premier David Lloyd George, on behalf of the British nation, sent greeting to the new Russian government.

FREEDOM FOR POLAND.

On March 30 it was announced that the Russian government had issued a proclamation to all Poles that it regarded the creation of an independent Polish state, composed of all territories the majority of whose population is Polish, as a pledge of durable peace in the remodeled Europe of the future. It would rest with the new constituent assembly definitely to consolidate the new fraternal union and to give its consent to the modifications of Russian territories indispensable to the formation of a free Poland, but the provisional government asked the Poles to accept the offer in the spirit of free brotherhood. The proclamation was well received by all Poles whose opinion could be ascertained.

EXILES RETURN.

In April and the succeeding months many exiles in America, England and other countries returned to European Russia to join the swarms of Siberian exiles already there. Among them were many criminals and anarchists, who were to cause serious trouble later on. There were also, of course, numerous revolutionists of the better type, such as Mme. Catharine Breshkovskaya, the "grandmother of the Russian revolution," who returned after forty-four years spent in Siberia.

GERMAN AGENTS AT WORK.

The revolution was not many weeks old before the hand of the German propagandist was revealed. It came in the form of a socialistic peace campaign directed from Germany. As early as April 10 the labor deputies made it known that they wished to overthrow the provisional government then existing and negotiate with the central powers for a peace. Prince Lvoff and the other influential men recognized the peril and offered concessions by declaring that the new Russia did not just after strengthening its power at the expense of other nations.

Recognizing the need of Russia for material assistance in reconstructing its transportation lines and in securing supplies and for encouragement in securing a trying situation, the administration in Washington determined to send a number of distinguished Americans to visit the new government and to offer their services.

On May 1 the provisional government, through Foreign Minister Miluyoukov, sent a note to the allied governments in which the following declarations were made:

"The provisional government of Russia published on April 27 a manifesto to Russian citizens whereat it explained the views of the government of Russia as regards the objects to be attained in the war. The minister of foreign affairs instructs me to communicate to you the contents of the document and to add the following considerations:

"Our enemies have striven lately to sow discord among our allies by propagating absurd reports regarding the alleged intention of Russia to conclude a separate peace with the central powers. The text of the document annexed will form the best refutation of such intentions. The general principles therein enunciated by the provisional government are in entire agreement with the ideas which have been expressed repeatedly up to quite recently by eminent statesmen of the allied countries.

"These principles were expressed lucidly also in the words of the president of our ally, the great overseas republic. The Russian government under the old regime certainly was not prepared to appreciate and share these ideas as to the liberating character of the war, the establishment of a stable basis for pacific co-operation of nations, the freedom of oppressed peoples, etc., but emancipated Russia can now use language which will be understood by modern democracies and hasten to add her voice to that of her allies.

"The declaration of the provisional government, being imbued with the new spirit of free democracy, naturally cannot afford the least pretext for assumption that the demolition of the old structure has entailed any slackening on the part of Russia in the common struggle of all the allies. On the contrary, the nation's determination to bring the world war to a decisive victory has been accentuated, owing to the sense of responsibility which is shared by all in general and each one of us in particular.

"This spirit has become still more active by the fact that it is concentrated on the immediate task, which touches everybody so closely, of driving back the enemy who invaded our territory. It is understood, and the annexed document so expressly states, that the provisional government in safeguarding the right acquired for our country will maintain a strict regard for its engagements with the allies of Russia.

"Firmly convinced of the victorious issue of the present war and in perfect agreement with our allies, the provisional government is likewise confident that the problems which were created by this war will be solved by the creation on a firm basis of a lasting peace, and that, inspired by identical sentiments, the allied democracies will find means of establishing the guarantees and penalties necessary to prevent any recourse to sanguinary war in the future."

NOTE CAUSES UPHEAVAL.

The publication of this note offended the soldiers and workmen, who felt that the war aims of the provisional government did not coincide with those of the soldiers and workmen. They were especially bitter against Minister Milyoukov, whose resignation they demanded because he had not consulted them before publishing the note. Riots took place in Petrograd in which clashes occurred between the supporters and the enemies of the government. The government, however, tided over the crisis temporarily. The council of soldiers' and workmen's delegates, which afterwards became well known under its Russian name of "soviet," accepted the government's explanation of its war aims, but insisted that efforts should be made to have the allies pledged to a war "without annexations or indemnities."

Conditions did not mend materially, and the conflict between those who insisted on keeping faith with the allies and those favoring immediate peace continued. Minister of War and Navy S. J. Guchoff resigned May 14 because he found that he was without real authority. On May 16 it was announced that M. Milyoukov had resigned and that M. Terestchenko had taken his place. A. F. Kerensky, previously minister of justice, was named minister of war and marine. A number of other changes were made. Prince Lvoff, however, remained as premier and minister of the interior. Six socialists were included in the new cabinet.

War Minister Kerensky displayed much energy in his new position and made strong efforts to restore discipline in the army and to stop desertions. In the first part of June an American commission, headed by Elihu Root, former United States senator, and an American engineering commission, headed by John F. Stevens, arrived at a Russian Pacific port and proceeded to Petrograd. With Mr. Root were John R. Mott, Cyrus H. McCormick, Charles Edward Russell, Maj.-Gen. Hugh L. Scott and a number of others. Charles R. Crane, a member of the mission, had preceded them.

MESSAGE FROM PRESIDENT WILSON.

Prior to the arrival of the Root mission in Petrograd the following message from President Wilson to the new government was made public (June 9):

"In view of the approaching visit of the American delegation to Russia, to express the deep friendship of the American people for the people of Russia and to discuss the best and most practical means of co-operation between the two peoples in carrying the present struggle for the freedom of all peoples to a successful consummation, it seems opportune and appropriate that I should state again in the light of this new partnership the objects the United States has had in mind in entering the war.

"Those objects have been very much belittled during the last few weeks, by mistaken and misleading statements, and the issues at stake are too momentous, too tremendous, too significant for the whole human race, to permit any misinterpretations or misunderstandings, however slight, to remain uncorrected for a moment.

"The war has begun to go against Germany, and in their desperate desire to escape the inevitable ultimate defeat, those who are in authority in Germany are using every possible instrumentality, are making use even of the influence of groups and parties among their own subjects, to whom they have never been just or fair or even tolerant, to promote a propaganda on both sides of the sea which will preserve for them their influence at home and their power abroad, to the undoing of the very men they are using.

"The position of America in this war is so clearly avowed that no man can be excused for mistaking it. America seeks no material profit or aggrandizement of any kind. She is fighting for no advantage or selfish object of her own, but for the liberation of peoples everywhere from the aggressions of autocratic force.

"The ruling classes in Germany have begun of late to profess a like liberality and justice of purpose, but only to preserve the power they have set up in Germany and the selfish advantages which they have wrongly gained for themselves and their private projects of power all the way from Berlin to Bagdad and beyond.

"Government after government has, by their influence, without open conquest of its territory, been linked together in a net of intrigue directed against nothing less than the peace and liberty of the world. The meshes of that intrigue must be broken, but cannot be broken unless wrongs already done are undone, and adequate measures must be taken to prevent it from ever again being reweaved or repaired.

"Of course, the imperial German government and those whom it is using for their own undoing are seeking to obtain pledges that the war will end in the restoration of the status quo ante. It was the status quo ante out of which this iniquitous war issued forth, the power of the imperial German government within the empire and its widespread domination and influence outside of that empire. That status must be altered in such fashion as to prevent any such hideous thing from ever happening again.

"We are fighting for the liberty, the self-government and the undictated development of all peoples, and every feature of the settlement that concludes this war must be conceived and executed for that purpose. Wrongs must first be righted and then adequate safeguards must be created to prevent their being committed again. We ought not to consider remedies merely because they have a pleasing and gorgeous sound. Practical questions can be settled only by practical means. Phrases will not achieve the result. Effective readjustments will; and whatever readjustments are necessary must be made.

"But they must follow a principle, and that principle is plain. No people must be forced under sovereignty under which it does not wish to live. No territory must change hands except for the purpose of securing those who inhabit it a fair chance of life and liberty. No indemnities must be insisted on except those that constitute payment for manifest wrongs done. No readjustments of power must be made except such as will tend to secure the future peace of the world and the future welfare and happiness of its peoples.

"And then the freed peoples of the world must draw together in some common covenant, some genuine and practical co-operation that will in effect combine their force to secure peace and justice in the dealings of nations with one another. The brotherhood of mankind must no longer be a fair but empty phrase; it must be given a structure of force and reality. The nations must realize their common life and effect a workable partnership to secure that life against the aggressions of autocratic and self-pleasing power.

"For these things we can afford to pour out blood and treasure. For these are the things we have always professed to desire, and unless we pour out blood and treasure now and succeed we may never be able to unite or show conquering force again in the great cause of human liberty.

"The day has come to conquer or submit. If the forces of autocracy can divide us they will overcome us; if we stand together victory is certain, and the liberty which victory will secure. We can afford then to be generous, but we cannot afford then or now to be weak or omit any single guarantee of justice and security."

ROOT SPEAKS FOR AMERICA.

The Root mission arrived in Petrograd June 13 and was received with every mark of honor. June 15 the members were formally received by the council of ministers, M. Terestchenko, the foreign minister rising from a sickbed to attend the presentation of the mission and welcome it. Mr. Root made an address, in which he said:

"Mr. President and members of the council of ministers—The mission for which I have the honor to speak is charged by the government and people of the United States of America with a message to the government and people of Russia. The mission comes from a democratic republic. Its members are commissioned and instructed by a president who holds his high office as chief executive of more than 100,000,000 free people by virtue of popular election, in which more than 18,000,000 votes were freely cast, and fairly counted pursuant to law, by universal, equal, direct and secret suffrage.

"For 140 years our people have been struggling with the hard problems of self-government. With many shortcomings, many mistakes, many imperfections, we still have maintained order and respect for law, individual freedom and national independence. Under the security of our own laws we have grown in strength and prosperity. But we value our freedom more than wealth. We love liberty and we cherish above all our possessions the ideals for which our fathers fought and suffered and sacrificed that America might be free.

"We believe in the competence of the power of democracy and in our heart of hearts abide faith in the coming of a better world in which the humble and oppressed of all lands may be lifted up by freedom to a heritage of justice and equal opportunity.

"The news of Russia's new found freedom brought to America universal satisfaction and joy. From all the land sympathy and hope went out to the new sister in the circle of democracy. And the mission is sent to express that feeling.

"The American democracy sends to the democracy of Russia a greeting of sympathy, friendship, brotherhood, godspeed. Distant America knows little of the special conditions of Russian life which must give form to the government and laws which you are about to create. As we have developed our institutions to serve the needs of our national character and life, so we assume that you will develop your institutions to serve the needs of Russian character and life.

"As we look across the sea we distinguish no party, no class. We see great Russia as a whole, as one mighty, striving, aspiring democracy. We know the self-control, essential kindness, strong common sense, courage and noble idealism of the Russian character. We have faith in you all. We pray for God's blessing upon you all. We believe you will solve your problems, that you will maintain your liberty, and that our two great nations will march side by side in the triumphant progress of democracy until the old order everywhere has passed away and the world is free.

"One fearful danger threatens the liberty of both nations. The armed force of a military autocracy are at the gates of Russia and its allies. The triumph of German arms will mean the death of liberty in Russia. No enemy is at the gates of America, but America has come to realize that the triumph of German arms means the death of liberty in the world; that we who love liberty and would keep it must fight for it, and fight for it now when the free democracies of the world may be strong in union, and not delay until they may be beaten down separately in succession.

"So America sends another message to Russia—that we are going to fight, and have already begun to fight, for your freedom equally with our own, and we ask you to fight for our freedom equally with yours. We would make your cause ours and our cause yours, and, with a common purpose and mutual helpfulness of a firm alliance, make sure of victory over our common foe."

M. Terestchenko, replying, said:

"The Russian people consider the war inevitable and will continue it. The Russians have no imperialistic wishes. We know that you have none. We shall fight together to secure liberty, freedom and happiness for all the world. I am happy to say that I do not see any moral issue or factor between America and Russia to divide us. The two peoples—Russia fighting tyranny, and America standing as the oldest democracy—hand in hand will show the way of happiness to nations great and small."

Mr. Root made his first public appearance in Petrograd June 21, when he addressed an audience gathered under the auspices of the Russian-American committee for industrial and economic rapprochement, which had just been organized. Afterward he visited Moscow and other places with the members of the commission. Maj.-Gen. Hugh L. Scott went to the front and conferred with the Russian army chief. The railroad commission was also busy, and after patient investigation made a report containing suggestions for the improvement of the transportation system.

RISE OF THE BOLSHEVIKI.

In the meantime the "peace" element, composed of socialists, the extremists known as the "maximalists" and a number of others who were real if not professed anarchists, were active in fomenting trouble for the provisional government. The seeds sown by Nikolai Lenin, a fugitive who had returned from exile and who had been compelled to depart again under the charge of being a German agent, began to bear fruit. There was serious trouble among the sailors in the Baltic and Black sea fleets, and there were hostile demonstrations in various parts of the country. The opposition about this time became known by the Russian name "bolshéviki," meaning "majority." It was composed entirely of extremists of the Lenin type and followed his leadership.

The American commission by July 10 had practically completed its work and Mr. Root issued a statement that he believed the nation would weather the storm. "The country's most serious lack," he said, "is money and adequate transportation. We shall do what we can to help Russia in both."

On July 17 rioting broke out in Petrograd. Regiments of disaffected soldiers paraded the streets with banners proclaiming "Down with the temporary government! All power to the council of workmen's and soldiers' delegates!" The maximalists, it was known, were behind the demonstration. Three members of the cabinet resigned. They were A. I. Shingaroff, minister of finance; Prof. Manuiloff, minister of education, and Prince Shakovsky, head of the department of public aid. They were members of the cadet or constitutional democratic party. They disagreed with the other ministers over questions relating to the Ukraine. In the rioting six persons were killed and 238 wounded.

KERENSKY IN THE SADDLE.

The next development was the resignation, announced July 20, of Prince Lvoff as premier and the appointment in his place of Alexander F. Kerensky, the minister of war and navy, who had shown marked ability as a leader because of his energy and eloquence. He retained his post as minister of war and navy. The situation was one demanding ability of the highest order if Russia were to be saved from complete anarchy. Finland was demanding independence, the sailors in the fleets were mutinous and the soldiers at the front refused to obey orders, shooting their officers in many instances and flying on the approach of the enemy with whom they had been fraternizing. Premier Kerensky went to the front and attempted to stem the tide of disorganization but accomplished little. Many of the noted generals, such as Brusiloff and Dimitrieff, resigned. Kerensky returned to Petrograd, and Aug. 6 announced the reorganization of the cabinet on coalition lines, the constitutional democrats being represented by three members, the remainder being socialists or having no particular party connection.

The Root commission before this had arrived home in America, and on Aug. 3 reported to the state department and President Wilson. The members generally expressed the conviction that the Russian situation would gradually clear up and that the nation would re-establish itself on a firm basis.

On Aug. 15 the former emperor, Nicholas, and his family were removed from the palace at Tsarskoe-Selo and sent to Tobolsk, Siberia, on an ordinary train.

COUNCIL HELD IN MOSCOW.

On Aug. 25 a national conference began in Moscow to consider the situation of the country and to plan for a new national government. To this assemblage President Wilson sent the following message:

"I take the liberty to send to the members of the great council now meeting in Moscow the cordial greetings of their friends, the people of the United States; to express their confidence in the ultimate triumph of ideals of democracy and self-government against all enemies within and without, and to give their renewed assurance of every material and moral assistance they can extend to the government of Russia in the promotion of the common cause in which the two nations are unselfishly united."

The message was received by the conference with shouts of approval. One of the features of the meeting was the appearance of Gen. Korniloff, the new commander in chief of the armies and a Cossack leader. He demanded the restoration of the death penalty in the army in order to restore discipline. He said that in August the soldiers had killed four regimental commanders and other officers and only ceased these outrages when they were threatened with being shot. At the conclusion of the conference the death penalty was partly restored by Kerensky.

Harmony in the councils of the government did not last long. Differences between Kerensky and Korniloff arose, resulting Sept. 10 in the dismissal of the Cossack chief and in the arrest of Vladimir N. Lvoff, a deputy, who had presented demands made by Korniloff. It was said that Korniloff, aiming to become dictator, had organized a revolt. He placed himself at the head of certain troops devoted to him and marched toward Petrograd. Most of his followers were Cossacks and Tsek-Turkians. The attempt at a counter-revolution was a failure, the soldiers in the Petrograd garrison and at the front refusing to aid him as he had evidently expected.

RUSSIA PROCLAIMED A REPUBLIC.

On the evening of Sept. 16 the provisional government announced the formation of a republic by issuing the following proclamation, dated Sept. 14:

"Gen. Korniloff's rebellion has been quelled. But great is the confusion caused thereby, and again great is the danger threatening the fate of the fatherland and its freedom.

"Holding it necessary to put an end to the external indefiniteness of the state's organization, remembering the unanimous and rapturous approval of the republican idea expressed at the Moscow state conference, the provisional government declares that the constitutional organization, according to which the Russian state is ruled, is a republican organization and it hereby proclaims the Russian republic.

"MINISTER AND PRESIDENT KERENSKY.

"MINISTER OF JUSTICE YAROUDNI."

It was also announced that pending the definite construction of a cabinet all the affairs of state had been intrusted to the following:

M. Kerensky, premier.

M. Terestchenko, minister of foreign affairs.

M. Verbovsky, minister of war.

Admiral Verdevski, minister of marine.

M. Nikitin, minister of posts and telegraphs.

Once more M. Kerensky, with Gen. Verbovsky, the new minister of war, attempted to reorganize the army and put fighting spirit into it, but again his efforts failed. The new republic was at once faced with two grave perils. On the one hand, the Cossacks refused to aid the government on account of the treatment received by their leaders; on the other hand, the soviet passed into the control of the soviet radical element, the conservative members resigning. Kerensky tried to stop the wave of extreme radicalism, but his efforts merely had the effect of accentuating the opposition to him. On Sept. 27 he resigned as a member of the central council of the soviet. The radicals summoned what was called a democratic congress of some 1,700 members, who came to Petrograd and began their sessions Sept. 27. Kerensky appeared before the congress and made a speech in which he defended his acts. His auditors were for the most part hostile and interrupted him frequently.

PEACE PROGRAM ADOPTED.

On Oct. 3 the democratic congress voted 813 to 180 against the formation of a coalition government. This was a blow at Kerensky and was engineered by the bolsheviki or extremist force. The congress adjourned without having mended the situation to any extent. Nothing of moment occurred until Oct. 21, when the Russian peace program, as drawn up by the central executive committee of the soviet, in the form of instructions to M. Skobelev, its delegate to a proposed conference in Paris, was published. It was as follows:

"First—Evacuation by the Germans of Russia, and autonomy of Poland, Lithuania and the Lettish provinces.

"Second—Autonomy of Turkish Armenia.

"Third—Solution of the Alsace-Lorraine question by a plebiscite, the voting being arranged by local civil authorities after the removal of all the troops of both belligerents.

"Fourth—Restoration to Belgium of her ancient frontiers and compensation for her losses from an international fund.

"Fifth—Restoration of Serbia and Montenegro with similar compensation, Serbia to have access to the Adriatic, Bosnia and Herzegovina to be autonomous.

"Sixth—Disputed Balkan districts to receive provisional autonomy, followed by a plebiscite.

"Seventh—Roumania to be restored her old frontiers on condition that she grant Dobrogea autonomy and grant equal rights to Jews.

"Eighth—Autonomy for the Italian provinces of Austria, to be followed by a plebiscite.

"Ninth—Restitution of all colonies to Germany.

"Tenth—Re-establishment of Greece and Persia.

"Eleventh—Neutralization of all straits leading to inner seas and also the Suez and Panama canals. Freedom of navigation for merchant ships. Abolition of the right to torpedo merchant ships in war time.

"Twelfth—All belligerents to renounce war contributions or indemnities in any form, but the money spent on the maintenance of prisoners and all contributions levied during the war to be returned.

"Thirteenth—Commercial treaties not to be based on the peace treaty; each country may act independently with respect to its commercial policy, but all countries to engage to renounce an economic blockade after the war.

"Fourteenth—The conditions of peace should be settled by a peace congress consisting of delegates elected by the people and confirmed by parliament. Diplomats must engage not to conclude separate treaties, which hereby are declared contrary to the rights of the people and consequently void.

"Fifteenth—Gradual disarmament by land and sea and the establishing of a nonmilitary system."

KERENSKY DEPOSED.

The differences between Kerensky and the radical elements in the council of soldiers' and workmen's delegates increased, and on Nov. 7 the storm broke. The maximalists, led by Leon Trotzky, president of the central executive committee of soldiers' and workmen's delegates, seized the reins of power and deposed Kerensky. Trotzky issued a proclamation that the provisional government was no longer in existence and that some of its members had been arrested. He further declared that the new government would propose an immediate and just peace, would hand the land to the peasants and would summon the constituent assembly.

Nikolai Lenine, who had returned to Petrograd and resumed his activity, at a meeting of the soviet made practically the same announcement. Kerensky had foreseen the counter-revolution and made his escape from the city. Other members of the government remained at the headquarters in the winter palace, where they were besieged. They were defended by some military cadets and a patriotic military organization of women known as the "battalion of death." The palace was bombarded by the cruiser Aurora lying in the Neva and was also subjected to a heavy machine gun fire until finally the occupants had to surrender.

LENINE CABINET FORMED.

On the evening of Nov. 7 a general congress of delegates from the local soviets throughout Russia began deliberations in the Smolny institute. Its officers and most of the members were maximalists. On Nov. 9 the congress confirmed the following cabinet:

Premier—Nikolai Lenine.
Minister of Foreign Affairs—Leon Trotzky.
Minister of Labor—M. Schliapnikoff.
Minister of the Interior—M. Rickoff.
Minister of Finance—M. Svortzoff.
Minister of Agriculture—M. Milutin.
Minister of Labor—M. Schliapnikoff.

Committee on War and Marine—M. Ovsliannikoff.

M. Krylenko and M. Bibenko.

Minister of Commerce—M. Nogin.

Minister of Education—M. Lunacharsky.

Minister of Justice—M. Oppokov.

Minister of Supplies—M. Theodorovitch.

Minister of Posts and Telegraphs—M. Aviloff.

Minister of Affairs of Nationalities (a new post in charge of the affairs of the different nationalities within Russia)—M. Dzhugashvili.

Minister of Communications—M. Riazanoff.

The cabinet members were all bolsheviks and were supported by the left and the social revolutionist party, the other parties having withdrawn from the workmen's and soldiers' congress.

M. Kerensky, the deposed leader, gathered some troops loyal to him and attempted to march on Petrograd from Tsarskoe-Selo, but he was speedily defeated and compelled to go into hiding. The friends of the provisional government resisted the bolsheviks in Moscow and severe fighting took place in that city. Several hundred persons were killed in the streets and a number of buildings in the central part of the city were destroyed by shell fire. The conflict ended in a victory for the bolshevik forces. Though the Cossacks in the southern part of Russia raised the standard of revolt and though certain parts of the country proclaimed their independence, the extremists remained in control of the general situation. The representatives of the allied nations refused to recognize the Lenine-Trotzky administration, but up to Dec. 10 they were still in Petrograd.

CONSTITUENT ASSEMBLY ELECTIONS.

Elections for delegates to the constituent assembly were held Nov. 24, 25 and 26 with results not giving absolute control to any faction. At last accounts the bolsheviks, fearful of losing their power, had taken steps to master the assembly by force.

In the early part of December they sent delegates to Brest-Litovsk, the German army headquarters on the eastern front, and signed an agreement for an armistice. Practically there had been no fighting for many weeks, enabling the Germans to send many of their troops to Italy and the western front.

THE HALIFAX DISASTER.

Through the explosion of munitions on board the French steamer Mont Blanc following a collision with the Belgian relief steamer Imo in the harbor of Halifax, N. S., on the morning of Dec. 6, 1917, nearly half of the city was wrecked, with the loss of 1,226 lives and the injury of at least 8,000 persons. Most of the killed were buried in the ruins of wrecked buildings and it was many days after the disaster before even an approximate estimate of the number of victims could be made. Twenty-five thousand persons were made homeless and suffered severely before help came from other cities in Canada and the United States.

The Mont Blanc was laden with 3,000 tons of munitions and was approaching Halifax on her way across the Atlantic when she was rammed by the Imo, which was outward bound. The impact set fire to a deck load of benzine on the French ship. The crew was unable to extinguish the flames and as the fire approached the hold where the explosives were carried the officers and men hurriedly abandoned the ship. This soon exploded with tremendous force. It was difficult to explain the widespread ruin which this caused in the town and there were some who thought that an ammunition magazine on shore must have exploded. Later a number of Germans in Halifax were arrested on the theory that they might have had a hand in the disaster.

PEACE PRIZE TO RED CROSS.

It was announced from Christiania, Norway, Dec. 11, 1917, that the Nobel peace prize for 1917 had been awarded to the International Red Cross. The amount for 1916, which was not awarded, was added to the 1917 sum.

KING CONSTANTINE I. DEPOSED.

ALEXANDER,
King of Greece.

Constantine I., king of Greece, was deposed by the protecting powers—France, Great Britain and Russia—June 12, 1917, and his place on the throne was taken by his second son, Prince Alexander. The king, married to Princess Sophia, sister of Emperor William II., was strongly in sympathy with Germany in the war and had not only prevented Greece from joining the allies, but through his actions had endangered the safety of the allied forces in Macedonia. Crown Prince George was also known to be pro-German and the allies excluded him from the succession when his father abdicated. The most seriously unneutral acts charged to the king and his followers were the surrender of certain Greek forces to the Germans and the attack upon allied troops sent to Athens by Admiral du Fournet of the French navy to enforce a demand for the turning over to him of certain artillery. This was in November, 1916. Soon after this clash the allies compelled the ministers of the enemy powers to leave Athens and established a virtual blockade of Greece.

While King Constantine was inimical to the allies, they were strongly supported by the statesman Eleutherios Venizelos, who established a provisional government in Crete and raised several regiments of soldiers, who joined the allied forces. This government declared war on Germany Nov. 25, 1916.

In the spring of 1917 the attitude of King Constantine toward the entente became even more hostile. In the latter part of April it was announced that he had served an ultimatum on the allies, demanding a guaranty against French invasion. This was looked upon as a threat of war against the entente and steps were taken to put an end to his power. M. Jonnart, a French senator and former cabinet minister, was sent to Greece as a special representative of France, Great Britain and Russia. He arrived in Athens early in June and at once laid before the premier, Alexander Zaimis, the aims of the powers he represented with respect to establishing unity of feeling among the Greeks and greater security for the entente forces operating in the east. He told the premier that troops had been placed at his disposal, but that he preferred to reach a peaceful settlement. He then formally demanded, in the name of the protecting powers, the abdication of King Constantine and the nomination of his successor to the exclusion of Crown Prince George. King Constantine, after a meeting of the crown council on June 11, decided to comply and at 9:30 a. m., June 12, Premier Zaimis handed to M. Jonnart the following reply:

"The Minister and High Commissioner of France, Great Britain and Russia: Having demanded by your note of yesterday the abdication of His Majesty King Constantine and the nomination of his successor, the undersigned, premier and foreign minister, has the honor to inform your excellency that his majesty the king, ever solicitous for the interests of Greece, has decided to leave the country with the prince royal, and nominates Prince Alexander as his successor. ZAIMIS."

Prince Alexander at once took the oath of office as king. Constantine and other members of his family left Greece and took refuge in Switzerland. French troops took possession of the city of Larissa, Thessaly, after a sharp encounter with the royalists. On the 14th entente forces landed at the Piræus and other points and on the 25th they occupied Athens. M. Venizelos, president of the provisional government, also arrived in the capital on that day and was asked to form a new cabinet, the Zaimis ministry having resigned because it was unwilling to assume responsibility for the convocation of the parliament of May 31, 1917, which King Constantine had dissolved. Venizelos complied and formed a cabinet, which was sworn in June 27, with himself as premier and minister of war.

June 29 it was officially announced that Greece had severed diplomatic relations with Germany, Austria-Hungary, Bulgaria and Turkey, declaring that a state of war with these nations existed.

On the last day of June the provisional government established by M. Venizelos in Saloniki was formally merged with the legal government in Athens. The new authorities began reorganizing the army, but progress was slow for financial and political reasons, and as late as Nov. 15 the mobilization had not been completed.

Documents were found showing that King Constantine and his queen had actively espoused the German cause before they were deposed. They had planned to use the Greek royalist troops against the allied troops in Macedonia. After their expulsion from Greece the former king and queen made their home in Switzerland.

CAMPAIGN IN MESOPOTAMIA.

Nov. 13, 1914, a British force under command of Lieut.-Gen. Sir Arthur Barrett arrived at the head of the Persian gulf and on the 15th landed at Sanjeh, some distance below Basra. A sharp action was fought at Sahil on the Tigris Nov. 17, the Turks being defeated. This resulted in the evacuation of Basra, which was occupied by the British Nov. 23. On Dec. 9 the town of Kurna at the junction of the Tigris and Euphrates rivers was captured with its garrison of more than 1,000 men. Many encounters between the Turks and the British occurred at points more than 1,000 men. Many encounters between the Turks and the British occurred at points along the Tigris in the winter and spring of 1915. On April 11 and 12 the Turks were badly defeated at Shaiba and on July 24 the British, commanded by Maj.-Gen. G. F. Goringe, captured Nasirveh after a sharp engagement. The main expedition at this time was in charge of Maj.-Gen. Sir John Nixon. The advance up the Tigris continued and on Sept. 2 a British force under Maj.-Gen. Charles Townshend occupied Kut-el-Amara. It continued on as far as Ctesiphon, eighteen miles from Bagdad. Ctesiphon was captured Nov. 22, but with a British loss of 4,000. Heavy counterattacks by the Turks and lack of water compelled the expedition to fall back on Nov. 24. The retreat was continued as far as Kut-el-Amara, nearly 100 miles from Ctesiphon, the Turks pursuing vigorously and finally surrounding Gen. Townshend's division, which had been reduced by losses to 10,000 or 12,000 men, most of them from India.

Then followed a siege of 143 days, during which the British troops suffered great hardships from lack of food and from the heat. It ended with the surrender on April 29, 1916, of the entire force, including Gen. Townshend. The remainder of the expedition continued at its base at Sannayat. Gen. Nixon was succeeded in January by Lieut.-Gen. Sir Percy H. N. Lake in general command. The latter made efforts to relieve the division at Kut-el-Amara, but without success. Though encountering numerous obstacles in the way of floods, extremely hot weather and difficult transportation, the British authorities gradually got together an effective army, which during the remainder of 1916 and the early part of 1917 faced the Turks at Kut-el-Amara. There were many encounters on both banks of the Tigris, some of them amounting to serious battles, in which both sides lost heavily. In December, 1916, an advance was made on Kut-el-Amara by a British force estimated to number 120,000 men. These were now under command of Lieut.-Gen. Frederick Stanley Maude. One position after another was taken, until finally on Feb. 23 and 24, 1917, the Turks were badly defeated at Sannayat and on the Shumran peninsula. Kut-el-Amara falling automatically into the hands of the Anglo-Indian troops after having been in possession of the enemy for ten months.

Gen. Maude took several thousand prisoners and much war material. Having driven the Turks out of their trenches, he pursued them vigorously with cavalry and infantry and early on the morning of March 11 entered the city of Bagdad, which had been the goal of Gen. Townshend's ill fated expedition. He did not rest here, but followed the retreating Ottomans to the Diala river above Bagdad and wherever the Turks made a stand routed them until they were compelled to take to the hills. On April 2 Russian and British advance detachments established touch on the left bank of the Diala river, the Russians having come from the direction of Kermanshah and Hamadan in Persia after a series of victories over the Turkish forces opposing them.

Having received re-enforcements, the Turks offered resistance at Iztabilat on the right bank of the Tigris, ten miles below Samarra. Here they were attacked by Gen. Maude's forces on Saturday, April 21, and defeated after a severe struggle on the following day. The British pursued and on Monday, the 24th, occupied Samarra station, capturing among other things sixteen locomotives, 224 railway tracks and two barges loaded with munitions.

Most of the summer was spent in consolidating the positions won, reorganizing various units and in waiting for favorable weather. Toward the end of September Gen. Maude advanced on Mushaid ridge and the town of Ramadie on the Euphrates river, about sixty miles northwest of Bagdad, and after a series of spirited battles, in which he utilized a large force of cavalry, captured them together with about 4,000 Turks, including the commander, Ahmed Bey.

CAMPAIGN IN PALESTINE.

British forces operating from Egypt carried on a successful campaign against the Turks and Germans in Palestine in 1917. Operations were begun quietly after the defeat of the Turkish attempt to approach the Suez canal in 1916. El Arish was taken in December and on Jan. 9, 1917, the British defeated the Turks at Rafa, thirty miles northeast of El Arish, and then advanced slowly toward the north, constructing a railway as they went forward. On March 26 and 27 they came in contact with a large Turkish force south of Gaza, and after a severe battle routed the enemy, taking 900 prisoners, including the general commanding the 53d Turkish division, four Austrian commissioned officers and thirty-two Austrians and Germans of other ranks. The total Turkish losses were put at 8,000, while the British lost less than 400.

So badly demoralized were the Turks after this battle that they gradually evacuated the southern part of the Holy Land. The progress of the British was slow on account of the necessity of road building and keeping open the line of communication with Egypt. June 29 Gen. Sir E. H. H. Allenby took command of the expeditionary force. He continued the campaign with care and foresight, taking all precautions to prevent any sort of disaster to his troops. On Oct. 31 he captured Beersheba with 1,800 prisoners. Gaza was taken Nov. 7 and on Nov. 17 Jaffa, the Mediterranean port of Jerusalem, was taken.

Up to that time some 10,000 Turkish prisoners had been taken. On Nov. 24 the ancient site of Mizpah had been captured and by Dec. 1 the British had advanced to within three and a half miles of Jerusalem. The enemy made a stand in the hills outside the city and prevented its immediate occupation by Gen. Allenby's army.

It was announced in the house of commons Dec. 12 that Jerusalem, after being surrounded by British troops, had surrendered.

Gen. Allenby himself entered Jerusalem on foot Dec. 11 and his first act was to issue this proclamation:

"To the inhabitants of Jerusalem the blessed and the people dwelling in its vicinity:

"The defeat inflicted upon the Turks by the troops under my command has resulted in the occupation of your city by my forces. I therefore have now proclaim it to be under martial law under which form of administration it will remain so long as military considerations make it necessary.

"However, lest any of you be alarmed by reason of your experience at the hands of the enemy who has retired. I hereby inform you that it is my desire that every person should pursue his lawful business without fear of interruption.

"Furthermore, since your city is regarded with affection by the adherents of three of the great religions of mankind and its soil has been consecrated by the prayers and pilgrimages of multitudes of devout people of these three religions for many centuries, therefore do I make it known to you that every sacred building, monument, holy spot, shrine, traditional site, endowment, pious bequest or customary place of prayer, of whatsoever form, of the three religions will be maintained and protected according to the existing customs and beliefs of those to whose faith they are sacred.

COST OF AN INFANTRYMAN'S EQUIPMENT.

It costs $156.30 to equip an infantryman for service in France.

Clothing, etc.....	$101.21
Eating utensils, etc.....	7.73
Fighting equipment.....	47.36

Total	156.30
Items included under "clothing" are as follows:
1 bedstack	$0.98
3 wool blankets.....	18.75
1 waist belt	.25
2 pairs wool breeches.....	8.90
2 wool service coats.....	15.20

Items included under "eating utensils" are: Food issued to each man to be carried in his haversack during field service, canteen and canteen cover, cup, knife, fork, spoon, meat can, haversack, pack carrier, first aid kit and pouch to carry it.

The items under "fighting equipment" follow:
1 rifle	$19.50
1 bayonet	2.15
1 bayonet scabbard	1.13
1 cartridge belt	4.08
100 cartridges	5.00
1 steel helmet	3.00
1 gas mask	12.00
1 trench tool	.50
Total	47.36

Prices are subject to frequent changes, so cannot be taken as absolutely accurate in every case. Steel helmets and gas masks are being bought in France and England as well as manufactured in this country, and the cost of those bought abroad and made here differs. The figure given for a rifle is the cost of making the United States rifle, model 1903, generally known as the Springfield. The first 600,000 to 800,000 troops to go to France will carry this weapon. The so called Enfield rifle, used by British troops, is

"Guardians have been established at Bethlehem and on Rachel's tomb. The tomb at Hebron has been placed under exclusive Moslem control. The hereditary custodians at the gates of the holy sepulcher have been requested to take up their accustomed duties in remembrance of the magnanimous act of the Caliph Omar, who protected that church."

The campaign which led to the capture of Jerusalem was carried out mainly by British territorial troops, supported by small bodies of Australian and New Zealand mounted men and British yeomanry. In the campaign as a whole the greater accomplishment was not the defeat of the Turks but the conquest of the Sinai desert. The troops which fought at Gaza drank water from Egypt pumped through an American pipe line and were supplied over a broad gauge railroad laid clear across the 150 miles of desert. Every ounce of material for the pipe line, the railroad and the other works came either from Great Britain or the United States.

being manufactured to equip other American troops and is officially known as the United States rifle, model 1917. This is being made on a "cost-plus-profit" basis, so that no accurate figure for it can now be given.

METAL EQUIPMENT CARRIED BY INFANTRYMEN.

A table showing that more than 18 pounds of metal enters into the composition of articles required for the equipment of each infantryman has been prepared by the ordnance bureau of the war department. The metal equipment carried by each infantry soldier weighs 294.65 ounces, and an additional weight of 114.7 ounces is added by equipment of cotton, wool, leather and wood. The ordnance bureau, therefore, supplies each soldier with approximately 25 pounds of equipment, this being exclusive of that supplied by the quartermaster corps.

A "memorandum of materials entering into the composition of the articles of equipment of an infantryman furnished by the ordnance department, weight in ounces," is as follows:

Bacon can—0.4 ounce iron and steel and 8 ounces tin.
Bayonet—15 ounces iron and steel and 1 ounce wood.
Bayonet scabbard—2 ounces iron and steel, 1/2 ounce brass, 1 ounce aluminum, 0.3 ounce other metal, 1 ounce cotton, 2 wood and 0.7 leather.

Canteen—5 ounces aluminum and 1.8 ounces other metal.
Canteen cover—0.2 ounce brass, 3 ounces cotton and 1.8 ounces wool.
Cartridges (100)—47.4 ounces brass, 36.4 ounces metal in bullet and 12 ounces explosive.
Cartridge belt—10 ounces brass and 14.1 ounces cotton.
Condiment can—4.35 ounces tin.
Cup—5.5 ounces aluminum and 0.6 ounce other metal.

Fork—1.5 ounces other metal.
Front sight cover—2 ounces iron and steel.
Gun sling—1 ounce brass, 7 ounces leather.
Haversack—1.8 ounces brass, 24 ounces cotton.
Knife—1 ounce iron and steel, 0.7 aluminum.
Meat can—0.3 ounce iron and steel, 12 ounces aluminum, 0.1 ounce other metal.
Oiler and thong case—1.5 ounces brass, 1.5 leather.

Pack carrier—0.3 ounce iron and steel, 6 ounces cotton and 1 leather.
Pouch for first aid packet—0.3 brass and 1.6 ounces cotton.
Rifle—107 ounces iron and steel and 29 ounces wood.
Shovel—25 ounces iron and steel and 4 ounces wood.
Shovel carriers—5 ounces cotton.
Spoon—1.7 ounces other metal.
An explanatory note says the metal used in the bullet is a lead and tin composition inclosed in a jacket of cupro-nickel.

Secretary of council and of advisory commission, Grosvenor B. Clarkson.

ADVISORY COMMISSION.

(Provided for in organic act, nominated by the council and appointed by the president.)

Daniel Willard, chairman, president of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, in particular charge of transportation and communication.

Howard E. Coffin, vice-president of the Hudson Motor company, in particular charge of munitions, manufacturing, including standardization and industrial relations.

Julius Rosenwald, president of Sears, Roebuck
 & Co., in particular charge of supplies, including clothing.

Bernard M. Baruch, financier, in particular charge of raw materials, minerals and metals.

Dr. Hollis Godfrey, president of the Drexel institute, in particular charge of engineering and education.

Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, in particular charge of labor, including conservation of health and welfare of workers.

Dr. Franklin Martin, secretary-general of the American College of Surgeons, in particular charge of medicine, surgery and sanitation.

In a report made to Secretary Baker May 28, 1917, Director Gifford gave a summary of the work accomplished by the council, advisory board and the various boards, sections and commissions of the two main bodies. He instanced:

The mobilization of the 262,000 miles of railroads of the country for the government's defense.

The close-knit organization of the telephone and telegraph companies of America to insure to the government the most rapid and efficient wire communications.

The settlement of threatened national railroad strikes.

The very general acceptance by labor and capital of the suggestion of the council that existing labor standards should not be changed until the need for such action had been determined by the council, with the steady influence on industry growing out of such action.

The procurement of 45,000,000 pounds of copper for the uses of the army and navy of the United States at less than one-half of the then current market price—a saving to the government of approximately $10,000,000.

Similar accomplishments as to steel, zinc and aluminum.

The completion of the inventory, for military purposes, of 27,000 American manufacturing plants.

The money saving to the government through appointments over the country of committees of business men to assist the quartermaster's department of the army in the economical and efficient purchase of supplies.

The saving to the government of millions of dollars by the proper co-ordination of purchases through the agency of the general munitions board of the council of national defense.

The creation, under the medical section of the council, of a general medical board, consisting of many of the most highly qualified surgeons and physicians of the country.

The selection by the same section of thousands of doctors specifically qualified for membership in the medical officers' reserve corps, and the standardization, far on its way to completion, of surgical instruments and supplies.

The creation by the council of the aircraft production board, which set out to make 3,500 airplanes and to train 6,000 aviators in 1917.

The very definite results obtained by the council's committee on coal production in the procurement and expeditious shipment of coal, both in the civilian and federal interests.

The successful initiation of a movement to coordinate activities on the part of the states of the union for the national defense, brought to a clear and workable focus by the conference of states held in Washington at the call and under the auspices of the council.

The organization of a railroad committee to send to Russia.

The enlistment of reserve engineer regiments to aid in rehabilitating the railroads of France.

DUTIES OF COUNCIL.

In the terms of the act the council is, among other things, charged with the "co-ordination of industries and resources for the national security and welfare," and with the "creation of relations which will render possible in the time of need the immediate concentration and utilization of the resources of the nation."

In performing its functions the council is further charged with the following duties:

1. To supervise and direct investigation and make recommendations to the president and the heads of executive departments as to—

(a) The location of railroads with reference to the frontier of the United States, so as to render possible expeditious concentration of troops and supplies to points of defense.

(b) The co-ordination of military, industrial and commercial purposes in the location of extensive highways and branch lines of railroads.

(c) The utilization of waterways.

(d) The mobilization of military and naval resources for defense.

(e) The increase of domestic production of articles and materials essential to the support of armies and of the people during the interruption of foreign commerce.

(f) The development of seagoing transportation.

(g) Data as to amounts, location, method and means of production and availability of military supplies.

(h) The giving of information to producers and manufacturers as to the class of supplies needed by the military and other services of the government, the requirements relating thereto, and the creation of relations which will render possible in time of need the immediate concentration and utilization of the resources of the nation.

2. To report to the president or to the heads of executive departments upon special inquiries or subjects appropriate thereto.

3. To submit an annual report to congress, through the president, giving as full a statement of the activities of the council and the agencies subordinate to it as is consistent with the public interest, including an itemized account of the expenditures made by the council, or authorized by it, in as full detail as the public interest will permit, providing, however, that when deemed proper the president may authorize, in amounts stipulated by him, unvouchered expenditures and report the gross so authorized not itemized.

Specific reference is had to section 2 of the army appropriation act, approved Aug. 29, 1915. In this section will be found the authority for the creation of an advisory commission of seven persons to act with, under, and by authority of the council.

General Medical Board.

Executive committee—Dr. Franklin Martin, chairman; Dr. J. P. Simpson, Pittsburgh, Pa., vice-chairman; Surgeon-General William C. Gorham, United States army; Surgeon-General William C. Braisted, United States navy; Surgeon-General Rupert Blue, United States public health service; Dr. William J. Mayo, Rochester, Minn.; Col. Jefferson R. Kean, director-general of military relief, American Red Cross; Dr. William H. Welch, Baltimore, Md.; Dr. Victor C. Vaughan, Ann Arbor, Mich.; Dr. Frederic A. Besley, Chicago, Ill.; Admiral Cary T. Grayson, United States navy, Washington, D. C.; Dr. William F. Snow, secretary.

The general medical board has subcommittees on state activities and examinations, legislation, hygiene and sanitation, statistics, public health, nursing, research, dentistry, medical schools, publicity, surgical methods and standardization of medical and surgical supplies.

WAR INDUSTRIES BOARD.

Created by the national council of defense July 30, 1917.

Frank A. Scott, chairman, resigned in November and was succeeded by Daniel Willard; Lieut.-Col. Palmer E. Pierce, representing the army; Rear-Admiral Frank F. Fletcher, representing the navy; Hugh Frayne, B. M. Baruch, Robert S. Brookings and Robert S. Lovett.

The board acts as a clearing house for the war industry needs of the government, determines the most effective ways of meeting them and the best means and methods of increasing production, including the creation or extension of industries demanded by the emergency, the sequence and relative urgency of the needs of the different government services and considers price factors and, in the first instance, the industrial and labor aspects of problems involved and the general questions affecting the purchase of commodities.

Of this board Mr. Baruch gives his attention particularly to raw materials, Mr. Brookings to finished products and Mr. Lovett to matters of priority. These three members, in association with Mr. Hoover, so far as foodstuffs are involved, constitute a commission to arrange purchases in accordance with the general policies formulated and approved.

WEEKLY WAR CONFERENCE.

The following board, called the "weekly conference," was instituted by the council of national defense Nov. 27, 1917:

Newton D. Baker, secretary of war.
Josephus Daniels, secretary of the navy.
Franklin K. Lane, secretary of the interior.
David F. Houston, secretary of agriculture.
William C. Redfield, secretary of commerce.
William E. Wilson, secretary of labor.
William G. McAdoo, secretary of the treasury.
Edward N. Hurley, chairman of the shipping board.

Herbert C. Hoover, food commissioner.
Harry R. Garfield, fuel administrator.
Daniel Willard, chairman of war industries board.
Chairman Gifford of the council of national defense.

GROWTH OF AMERICAN CHEMICAL INDUSTRIES.

[From the annual report of the secretary of the interior, Franklin K. Lane.]

The growth of the chemical industries in the United States since 1914 has been phenomenal. Not only have factories sprung up to manufacture products formerly imported, but great expansion has taken place to supply the increased demand for all chemical products. The country now manufactures practically everything required along chemical lines.

The increase in capital invested in chemical industries was, in 1915, $85,565,000; in 1916, $99,244,000, and up to September, 1917, $65,861,000 over the preceding year. New chemical industries are now being opened up at an unprecedented rate, owing to war needs and the energy of American chemists and physicists.

Before the war 90 per cent of the artificial colors and dyes were imported, five or six concerns with 400 operatives producing 3,300 short tons per year. Now there are over ninety enterprises, each making special colors, and 100 concerns making crudes and intermediates.

Sulphuric acid, the chemical barometer, has doubled in production. In 1916, 6,250,000 tons of 60 degrees Be. were produced. The estimate for 1917 is much greater, and the production for 1918 will again greatly increase.

By-product coking doubled its capacity in the last three years, yet in 1918 the United States will make half her coke in beehive ovens. Light oil, which contains the benzene and toluene needed for explosives, jumped from 7,500,000 gallons in 1914 to 60,000,000 gallons in 1917, and is again being largely increased. Ammonia production has increased 100 per cent in three years and the visible supply is insufficient to meet demands.

Gasoline production has increased from 35,000,000 to 70,000,000 barrels per annum since 1914.

Potash importation from Germany was stopped by the war, which has stimulated production in this country. The production from January to June, 1917, was 14,023 short tons of potash. This is a small production, but sodium salts have been substituted for almost all purposes except agriculture. Shortage of labor and coal is seriously interfering with the potash-brine evaporation in Nebraska, which was yielding about ninety tons per day.

The production of explosives and consequent consumption of nitric acid has increased enormously. The nitric acid is still almost entirely made from Chile salt-peter, but synthetic nitrogen plants are under process of construction, and we have large quantities of coal tar ammonia which can be used for munitions if necessary.

Before the war 40,000 tons of barite were imported from Germany for the manufacture of lithopone. Now five companies are producing this article from deposits in Tennessee, Kentucky, Virginia and Missouri.

The smelting of all metals, iron, zinc, copper, antimony, tin, mercury, etc., and their alloys has increased to meet the country's needs.

Domestic supplies of manganese and pyrite have been augmented.

These are but a few instances of our chemical progress. The matter can be summarized by saying that American chemists have met the country's needs as ably and completely as did the chemists of Germany. We can go forward with confidence of no serious shortage of the many chemical products required for domestic consumption.

RELIGIOUS WAR SERVICE COMMISSIONS.

Following is a revised and complete list of all the national religious commissions that have been organized for war work up to Dec. 1, 1917:

American Christian Convention War Work Committee—Rev. F. G. Coffin, D. D., 126 Chestnut street, Albany, N. Y.; Rev. J. F. Burnett, D. D., C. P. A. building, Dayton, O.; Mr. Hermon Eldridge, Erie, Pa.

Baptists North, War Commission of the Northern Baptist Convention, office, 903 Real Estate Trust building, Washington, D. C.—Mr. George W. Coleman, chairman, 220 Devonshire street, Boston, Mass.; Rev. Howard B. Grose, D. D., vice-chairman, care United States food administration commission, Washington, D. C.; Rev. Samuel Z. Batten, D. D., secretary, 903 Real Estate Trust building, Washington, D. C.; Mr. Ernest S. Butler, treasurer, Ford building, Boston, Mass. Executive staff—Rev. Samuel Z. Batten, D. D., Rev. Herbert F. Stilwell, D. D., Mr. Ernest S. Butler, Mr. Charles A. McAlpine, Rev. Howard B. Grose, D. D.

Baptists South, Home Mission Board of the Southern Baptist Convention—Rev. B. D. Gray, D. D., corresponding secretary, 1004 Healey building, Atlanta, Ga.; Rev. George Green, director of camp activities, 1004 Healey building, Atlanta, Ga.

Congregational National Service Commission of the Congregational Churches, office, 239 4th avenue, New York, N. Y.—Kenyon L. Butterfield, LL. D., chairman, Amherst, Mass.; Rev. Henry A. Atkinson, D. D., secretary, 239 Fourth avenue, New York, N. Y.; Mr. Charles H. Baker, treasurer, 1476 Broadway, New York, N. Y. Executive committee—President, Kenyon L. Butterfield, LL. D., Amherst, Mass.; Rev. LIBERTY LOANS OF 1917.

On April 24 congress passed an act authorizing an issue of \$5,000,000,000 in bonds and \$2,000,000 in certificates of indebtedness. The secretary of the treasury decided to place before the country a \$2,000,000,000 issue of bonds, in addition to a certain amount of short term certificates to meet the needs of the allies. The announcement of the initial offer of bonds was made May 2 and the details were made known May 14. The bonds were dated June 15, 1917, and bore interest at the rate of $\frac{3}{4}$ per cent per annum from that date, payable semiannually on Dec. 15 and June 15. They will mature June 15, 1947, but may be redeemed on and after June 15, 1932, in whole or in part, at the option of the government. The bonds are exempt, both as to principal and interest, from all taxation except estate or inheritance taxes. Provision was made for converting the $\frac{3}{4}$ per cent bonds into bonds paying a higher rate of interest if issued by the government during the war with Germany. The dates for paying for the bonds on the installment plan were: 2 per cent on application; 18 per cent June 23, 1917, 20 per cent July 30, 30 per cent Aug. 15 and 30 per cent Aug. 30.

In floating the loan Secretary McAdoo took every means to make it popular and to give every citizen of the United States an equal opportunity to subscribe for the bonds. He made two trips through the country in order to explain the necessities of the government, the great value of the bonds and the wisdom of the people investing in them.

The federal reserve system afforded a great instrument for the organization of the necessary machinery to distribute information, sell the bonds and collect the vast amount of money placed at the disposal of the government. The twelve federal reserve banks, which are the fiscal agents of the government, became the headquarters of their respective districts in handling the loan. The direction of the whole operation was centered in the treasury department and the plan of dealing with the several districts through the federal reserve banks resulted in the establishment of a workable organization that handled the situation expeditiously and effectively. The national banks, state banks, trust companies, private banks, bond houses, newspapers, express companies, department stores and many other private corporations, firms, organizations and individuals patriotically co-operated with the government to receive and transmit applications for the liberty loan without expense to the United States or to the applicants. Never before was the whole machinery of business and enterprise organized into a great voluntary machine for service to the country without expectation of compensation or hope of reward except the satisfaction that it contributed immeasurably to the success of the greatest loan in our history, and thus to the cause for which the loan was made. More than 4,000,000 men and women subscribed for the bonds and 99 per cent subscribed in amounts ranging from $50 to $10,000.

The second liberty loan was offered Oct. 1, 1917, the terms being as follows: "The secretary of the treasury invites subscriptions, at par and accrued interest, from the people of the United States for $3,000,000,000 of United States of America 10-25 year 4 per cent convertible gold bonds of an issue authorized by act of congress approved Sept. 24, 1917, the right being reserved to allot additional bonds up to one-half the amount of any oversubscription."

On Nov. 8 Secretary McAdoo made the following announcement:

"I congratulate the American people upon the phenomenal success of the second liberty loan. The final returns just received from the twelve federal reserve banks show that the total subscriptions were $4,617,532,300, an oversubscription of $1,617,532,300, or approximately 54 per cent of the amount offered. This is a more gratifying result even than was the first liberty loan, when $2,000,000,000 of bonds were offered and a subscription of more than $3,000,000,000 was received."

The treasury department estimated that the second liberty loan was subscribed to by 3,500,000 persons and corporations.

The following tables show the treasury allotment to each federal reserve district and the actual subscriptions:

FIRST LIBERTY LOAN.

District.	Allotment.	Subscriptions.
New York	$600,000,000	$1,186,788,400

LOANS TO ALLIED NATIONS.

Up to Dec. 10, 1917, the United States had made the following loans to the allied nations:
Great Britain	$1,780,000,000
France	1,070,000,000
Italy	485,000,000
Russia	154,700,000
Belgium	47,000,000
Serbia	1,500,000
Roumania	3,000,000
Total		3,541,200,000

PARCEL POST TAX.

The parcel post tax became effective on and after Dec. 1, 1917.

Parcel post packages must have internal revenue stamps affixed by the sender in addition to the lawful postage as follows:

One cent revenue stamp for each package subject to 25 cents in postage (no tax under 25 cents), 2 cent revenue stamp for each package subject to postage from 26 to 50 cents, and so on. Regular postage stamps will not be valid for this payment. Special internal revenue stamps will be furnished.

This is a tax independent of and distinct from the change in rates of postage which went into effect on and after Nov. 2, 1917.

SUPREME WAR COUNCIL.

Soon after the disaster to the Italian forces steps were taken to secure greater unity of action among the allies. Nov. 9 the premiers of Great Britain, France and Italy and their staffs of military advisers met at Rapallo, Italy, and agreed upon the formation of a supreme war council. An interallied war staff was created consisting of Gen. Cadorna, representing Italy; Gen. Foch, representing France, and Gen. Wilson, representing Britain. The premiers in attendance were David Lloyd George of Britain, Paul Painlevé of France and Vittorio Orlando of Italy.

On his way back to England David Lloyd George made a speech in Paris, Nov. 12, in which he spoke of the new plan and made certain plain statements as to the general military situation requiring closer co-operation. The speech attracted much attention and was criticized in some quarters until the action taken in Italy was better understood. The agreement as to a supreme war council was thereupon made public. It was as follows:

"1. With a view to better co-ordination of the military action on the western front, a supreme war council is composed of the prime minister and a member of the government of each of the great powers whose armies are fighting on that front, the extension of the scope of the council to other fronts to be reserved for discussion with the other great powers.

"2. The supreme war council has for its mission to watch over the general conduct of the war. It prepares recommendations for the consideration of the governments and keeps itself informed of their execution and reports thereon to the respective governments.

"3. The general staff and military commands of the armies of each power charged with the conduct of the military operations remain responsible to their respective governments.

"4. General war plans drawn by competent military authorities are submitted to the supreme war council, which under high authority of government insures its concordance and submits, if need be, any necessary changes.

"5. Each power delegates to the supreme war council one permanent military representative, whose exclusive function is to act as technical adviser to the council.

"6. Military representatives receive from the government and the competent military authorities of their country all proposals, information and documents relating to the conduct of the war.

"7. The military representatives watch day by day the situation of the forces and the means of all kinds of which the allies and enemy armies dispose.

"8. The supreme war council meets normally at Versailles, where the permanent military representatives and staffs are established. They may meet at other places according to circumstances. Meetings of the supreme war council take place at least once a month."

INTERALLIED CONFERENCE.

Prior to these events arrangements had been made for a great interallied conference in Paris at which each country fighting the Teutonic alliance was to be represented. The United States was asked to join with the rest of the allies and did so. President Wilson in October named a war mission headed by Col. E. M. House to go to Europe to represent the United States. The party arrived at a British port Nov. 12 and after a series of conferences with the British authorities proceeded to Paris. The conference began Nov. 29 and was concluded Dec. 2. The official representation of the various countries was as follows:

FRANCE.

Georges Clemenceau, premier and minister of war.

Stephen Pichon, minister of foreign affairs.

Louis Klotz, minister of finance.

Georges Leygues, minister of marine.

Etienne Clementel, minister of commerce.

Louis Loucheur, minister of munitions.

Victor Boret, minister of provisions.

M. Lebrun, minister of blockade and invaded regions.

RESULTS OF CONFERENCE.

On Dec. 4 the French foreign office made the following official statement regarding the results of the conference:

"The minister of foreign affairs reported to the cabinet council to-day the result of the conference of the allies. The reading of communications from the presidents of each section of the allied conference, at which were present for the first time representatives of all the countries taking part with us in this war, has given felicitous results from every point of view. They give assurance of practical unity of action, economically, financially and militarily.

"The agreements have been concluded upon the basis of a complete understanding and close solidarity among the allies for the solution of the questions in which they have a common interest in the war. The financial needs of each of them, the requirements of their armament, their transport, their food, have been the subjects of profound study which guarantees perfect satisfaction.

"The creation of a supreme interallied naval committee has been determined upon. Military unity of action has been placed upon the course of certain realization by the interallied general staff which is at work upon an established program of all military questions.

"From a diplomatic point of view entire accord resulted from the discussions among the representatives of the powers upon all the business, which has been arranged together, to assure the common victory of their countries."

CUT IN STEEL PRICES.

By voluntary agreement between producers and the war industries board steel prices in the United States were cut approximately in half Sept. 24. It was provided that wages should not be cut by the producers, that the general public as well as the American and allied governments should share in the price reduction, that the new schedule of prices should go into operation at once, that production should be kept up to the maximum as long as the war lasts and that the entire output of the steel plants should be distributed under the direction of the war industries board. The schedule as agreed upon and as approved by President Wilson follows:

Iron ore—Basis, lower lake ports, price agreed upon, $5.05 gross ton; no change.

Coke—Connellsville, price agreed upon, $6 net ton; recent price, $16 a ton; a reduction of 62.5 per cent.

Pig iron—Price agreed upon, $33 gross ton; recent price, $58 gross ton; a reduction of 43.1 per cent.

Steel bars—Pittsburgh and Chicago basis: Price agreed upon, $2.90 per hundredweight; recent price, $5.50 hundredweight; a reduction of 47.3 per cent.

Steel shapes—Basis Chicago and Pittsburgh: Price agreed upon, $3 a hundredweight; recent price, $6 hundredweight; a reduction of 50 per cent.

Steel plates—Basis Chicago and Pittsburgh: Price agreed upon, $3.25 hundredweight; recent price, $11 hundredweight; a reduction of 70.5 per cent.

PLOT TO KILL BRITISH PREMIER.

Four persons were arraigned in the Derby (England) guildhall Jan. 31, 1917, on the charge of plotting to poison Premier David Lloyd George and Arthur Henderson, one of the five members of the British war council. The accused persons were Mrs. Alice Wheelodon, her daughters, Miss Harriet Ann Wheelodon and Mrs. Alfred George Mason and the latter's husband. Mr. Mason was a druggist. The women were all known as suffragists and the man as a "conscientious objector" to military service. All except Miss Harriet Ann Wheelodon were convicted after a jury trial and the following sentences were imposed March 10: Mrs. Wheelodon, who was found guilty of conspiring and soliciting to murder by poison, ten years' penal servitude; Mr. and Mrs. Mason found guilty of conspiracy, but recommended to the mercy of the court by the jury, seven and five years in prison, respectively.

UNITED STATES AND SWISS NEUTRALITY.

Secretary Lansing of the American state department made public Dec. 11, 1917, the following pledge made by the United States to Switzerland:

"In view of the presence of American forces in Europe engaged in the prosecution of the war against the imperial German government, the government of the United States deems it appropriate to announce, for the assurance of the Swiss confederation and in harmony with the attitude of the cobelligerents of the United States in Europe, that the United States will not fail to observe the principle of neutrality applicable to Switzerland and the inviolability of its territory so long as the neutrality of Switzerland is maintained by the confederation and respected by the enemy."

FOREIGN MISSIONS TO THE UNITED STATES.

Following is a list of the missions sent by various foreign countries to the United States after the entry of America into the war. They are given in the order of their arrival.

BRITISH.

The Right Honorable Arthur James Balfour, M. P., O. M., minister of foreign affairs.
The Honorable Sir Eric Drummond, K. C. M. G., C. B.

Matsuzo Nagai, secretary of the foreign office.

Masataka Ando, lieutenant-commander, imperial Japanese navy.

Seiji Tanikawa, major, imperial Japanese army.

Tadanao Imai, vice-consul.

Arrived Aug. 13, 1917.

In addition to the foregoing missions there were a number of others, including one from Sweden and one from Switzerland. There were also various scientific, military and financial missions. All came in relation to the situation arising from America's entry into the war, some being concerned with military, some with financial and some with economic affairs. Most of the missions remained in Washington a month or more and several of them visited other cities in the country. The British, French and Italian missions attracted the most attention from the public, and the distinguished men composing them were received everywhere with marked cordiality. This was especially true of Marshal Joffre, Rene Viviani and Arthur Balfour. These men and others visited the tombs of Washington and Grant and laid wreaths upon them. They accepted invitations to address the house and senate—an unusual privilege.

VISIT TO MOUNT VERNON.

The French and British commissioners paid a joint visit to the tomb of Washington at Mount Vernon April 29 and both Viviani and Balfour made eloquent addresses. In the course of his remarks Mr. Viviani said:

"We could not remain longer in Washington without accomplishing this pious pilgrimage. In this spot lies all that is mortal of a great hero. Close by this spot is the modest abode where Washington rested after the tremendous labor of achieving for a nation its emancipation. In this spot meet the admiration of the whole world and the veneration of the American people. In this spot rise before us the glorious memories left by the soldiers of France led by Rochambeau and Lafayette. A descendant of the latter, my friend M. de Chambrun, accompanies us. And I esteem it a supreme honor as well as a satisfaction for my conscience to be entitled to render this homage to our ancestors in the presence of my colleague and friend, Mr. Balfour, who so nobly represents his great nation. By thus coming to lay here the respectful tribute of every English mind he shows, in this historic moment of communion which France has willed, what nations that live for liberty can do."

Marshal Joffre in the name of the French army laid a bronze palm on Washington's sarcophagus, while Mr. Balfour laid upon the tomb a wreath of lilies to which was attached a card bearing these words in his own handwriting:

"Dedicated by the British mission to the immortal memory of George Washington, soldier, statesman, patriot, who would have rejoiced to see the country of which he was by birth a citizen and the country his genius called into existence fighting side by side to save mankind from a military despotism."

AMERICAN MISSIONS TO EUROPE.

The United States sent a number of missions to Europe. From a diplomatic standpoint the most important was that to Russia, headed by Elihu Root. It included the following:

Elihu Root of New York.

Charles R. Crane of Illinois.

John R. Mott of New York.

Cyrus McCormick of Illinois.

Samuel E. Barton of New York.

James Duncan of Massachusetts.

Charles Edward Russell of New York.

Maj.-Gen. Hugh L. Scott, U. S. A.

Rear-Admiral James H. Glennon, U. S. N.

Another mission to Russia was headed by John P. Stevens, the distinguished civil engineer.

The American Red Cross sent an important mission to Russia, the leading members being:

Dr. Frank Billings, Chicago.

Raymond Robins, Chicago.

Harold H. Swift, Chicago.

Dr. Wilbur E. Post, Chicago.

Prof. Charles E. A. Winslow, New Haven.

Dr. W. S. Thayer, Baltimore.

Missions were also sent by the Red Cross to Roumania, Serbia, Italy and other countries, but these were in connection with the organization's regular war relief work.

FOOD ADMINISTRATION.

tion of waste and the introduction of new methods of economic housekeeping. The country was flooded with literature on the subject of food and its conservation. Some of the best artists in the country furnished illustrations for the posters that were displayed everywhere with the slogans of the food administration. The women of the country were mobilized for service and thousands registered for membership in the food administration.

On Aug. 12 the food administration announced its plans for the control of wheat, flour and bread, and two days later the president, by proclamation, required elevator operators and millers of wheat and rye to procure licenses.

The president named a committee on Aug. 15 to determine a fair basic price to be paid in governmental purchases of wheat, and appointed Dr. Harry A. Garfield as chairman. On Aug. 30 the president announced the fair wheat prices as recommended by the committee. The food administration grain corporation had been chartered on Aug. 16, with Julius H. Barnes as president.

Sept. 17 the president, by proclamation, required importers of sugar and manufacturers of sugar, sugar sirups and molasses to secure licenses, and Sept. 20, 1917, an international sugar committee was formed to arrange for the distribution of the available sugar supply.

Sept. 21, 1917, the food administration announced that sugar refiners had agreed to refund sugar on a net margin of approximately 1.30 cents per pound, and Sept. 23, 1917, the food administration appealed to the American people to make a special effort to save sugar in order that the shortage in France might be relieved.

The week of Oct. 21 to 28 was formally announced as "Food Pledge Week."

One of the features of the war agricultural program announced by David F. Houston, secretary of agriculture, Aug. 9, 1917, was to ask the farmers of the United States to produce in 1918 more than 1,000,000,000 bushels of wheat and more than 83,000,000 bushels of rye through the planting in the fall of 1917 of 47,337,000 acres to winter wheat and of 5,131,000 acres to rye. The increase of winter wheat acreage would yield 672,000,000 bushels if the average yield for the last ten years is equaled. With a spring wheat crop equal in 1918 to that of 1915 the country would have more than 1,000,000,000 bushels of wheat for domestic use and export.

Regional conferences were held in August, 1917, at the following places to promote this program: Washington, D. C., Aug. 15; Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 17; Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 20; Kansas City, Kas., Aug. 22, and Spokane, Wash., Aug. 27.

WAR TIME FOOD ECONOMY.

[By the United States Food Administration, Washington, D. C.]

YOU CAN KEEP YOUR FELLOW MEN FROM HUNGER.

AND IMPROVE YOUR CHILDREN'S HEALTH. Our army and our allies are in need of every ounce of food we can send them.

Upon the United States falls the burden of feeding suffering Europe as well as ourselves. Upon each family in the United States falls the vital responsibility of saving those foods which are most needed, which can be most easily shipped to our army and our allies.

This does not mean an increase in your household expenses. It may save you money, for it involves cutting waste.

It does not mean a sacrifice in the health of your children. It means an improvement in their health by increasing the use of the wholesome fruits, vegetables, eggs.

HOW YOU CAN SERVE YOUR COUNTRY

Use Other Cereals to Save the Wheat—Use corn, oatmeal, rye or barley bread and nonwheat breakfast foods. One wheatless meal a day. Order bread twenty-four hours in advance so your baker will not bake beyond his needs. Cut the loaf on the table and only as required. Use stale bread for cooking, toast, etc. Eat less cake and pastry. Our wheat harvest is far below normal. If each person weekly saves one pound of wheat flour, that means 133,000,000 more bushels of wheat for the allies to mix in their bread. This will help them to save democracy.

Use Other Meats to Save Beef, Mutton or Pork—Use beef, mutton and pork not more than once daily. Use freely vegetables and fish, shellfish and poultry. At the meat meal serve smaller portions. Make made dishes of all leftovers. Do this and there will be meat enough for every one at a reasonable price. Use soup more freely. We are to-day killing the dairy cows and female calves as the result of high price of fodder and meat. Therefore, eat less meat and no young meat.

If we save an ounce of meat each day per person, we will have additional supply equal to 4,400,000 cattle.

Use All the Milk—The children must have whole milk. Therefore, use less cream. Use every drop of skim milk. Use buttermilk and sour milk for cooking and making cottage cheese. Save the Fats—We are the world's greatest fat wasters. Fat is food. Use butter on the table as usual but not in cooking. Butter is essential for the growth and health of children.

Other fats are as good in cooking. Reduce fried food. Save daily one-third ounce animal fats. Soap contains fats. Do not waste it. Saved fats may be used for homemade soap. Use one-third ounce less per day of animal fat and 395,000 tons will be saved yearly. We need to save fat and pork products for our allies. Owing to the shipping shortage we are obtaining less vegetable fats from abroad and we must save in order to maintain our supply of soap.

Save the Sugar—Our allies need sugar and sugar is getting scarcer. We use to-day three times as much per person as our allies. So there may be enough for all at reasonable price use less candy and sweet drinks. Do not stint in putting up fruit and jams. They may be used in place of butter. If every one in America saves one ounce of sugar daily, it means 1,185,000 tons for the year.

Save the Fuel—Coal comes from a distance and our railways are overburdened hauling war material. Help relieve them by burning fewer fires. Use wood when you can get it.

Use More Fruits and Vegetables—We have them in abundance. As a nation we eat too little green stuffs. Double their use and improve your health. Store potatoes and other roots properly and they will keep. Begin now to can or dry all surplus garden products.

Use Local Supplies—Patronize your home producer. Distance means money. Buy perishable food from the region nearest you and thus save transportation.

GENERAL RULES.

Buy less, serve smaller portions! Don't eat between meals.

Don't limit the plain food of growing children. Preach the "Gospel of the Clean Plate."

Wash out for the wastes in the community. HELP OUR COUNTRY BY GIVING THIS DAILY SERVICE.

It may save you money. It will improve your children's health. It will keep your fellow men both here and abroad from hunger.

"Do your utmost."

FOOD PRODUCTION AND CONSERVATION.

Immediately after congress declared that a state of war between the United States and Germany existed David A. Houston, secretary of agriculture, asked state agricultural officials and representatives of the agricultural colleges in all the states from New York to the Rocky mountains to meet him in St. Louis, Mo., to discuss the agricultural situation. The meeting took place April 9 and 10 and was attended by sixty-five officials representing thirty-two states and by the secretary of agriculture and the chiefs of the bureau of plant industry and the office of markets and rural organization. The whole subject matter was dealt with in four major divisions:

1. Production and labor.
2. Distribution and prices.
3. Economy and utilization.
4. Effective organization.

It was decided in view of the world shortage of food to urge the farmers of the country to increase the acreage of spring wheat, corn, oats, barley, buckwheat, beans and potatoes, and to see that the largest yield would be secured by intensive cultivation. The school children of the nation were appealed to to put forth every effort to produce foodstuffs in gardens and fields. It was suggested that local and municipal drying and canning establishments be improvised to preserve perishable products. An early increase in the live stock holdings and of animal products was urged. Other defensive agricultural measures recommended at the conference were these:

Mobilization of farm labor.
Survey of food and labor resources of the government.

Publication of average prices of foods, feeds and live stock.

Preference movement of freight shipments of farm machinery, seeds and fertilizers.

Storing and distribution of food products and if necessary fixing of prices by the council of national defense.

Economical manufacture, purchase and use of food.

Organization of a small central agricultural body in Washington.

Organization of a large national advisory body of representatives of agricultural agencies and associations.

Organization of a small central agricultural body in each state.

Appropriation by congress of $25,000,000 for the use of the secretary of agriculture in carrying out plans for increasing and conserving the food supply.

FOOD PURCHASE BOARD.

Upon the suggestion of the United States food administrator, the secretary of war and the secretary of the navy have approved the appointment of a food purchase board to be composed of:

W. V. S. Thorn, chief of the division of co-ordination of purchases of the food administration, who represents allied and other controlled buying, or his authorized representative.

Maj.-Gen. Henry G. Sharpe, United States army, quartermaster-general of the army, or his authorized representative.

Rear-Admiral Samuel McGowan, United States navy, paymaster-general of the navy, or his authorized representative.

F. J. Scott, a representative of the federal trade commission.

The food purchase board held its first meeting Dec. 11 and elected Rear-Admiral Samuel McGowan, U. S. N., as chairman and G. C. Babcock of the food administration as secretary.

The following principles of organization were adopted:

1. The demand for certain food commodities by the army, navy, neutrals, allies and civil population is greater than the supply of such commodities.

2. One of the fundamental purposes of the food administration is to protect the above groups from exorbitant prices.

3. The shortage of supplies and the aggregation of buying in such large units has effectually suspended the law of supply and demand as an effectual regulator of fair prices, and stimulates speculation.

4. The normal purchase of these commodities in such large units under these circumstances by bid and contract is not only impossible in some cases, but in any event raises the general price level of the country and stimulates speculation.

5. It is considered that it is vital to the general welfare that these large purchases in certain commodities shall be made by plans of allocation among sellers at fair and just prices. The efforts of the federal trade commission are to be directed to see that cost statements are not inflated.

Regular meetings will be held every Tuesday at 10 a. m. and will co-ordinate the buying of certain food commodities for the army, navy and the allied governments and other controlled buying.

The functions of the food purchase board are far reaching, the plan being to so co-ordinate the purchasing as to place it strictly on an official basis and to disturb as little as possible market conditions, having due regard for the interests of the producer and the consumer as well as our fighting forces and those countries which are dependent upon us for their supply of food.

The food purchase board will decide which commodities are to be placed in the category of "allocated purchases," the method of negotiation and the principles of purchase to be followed in each instance.

Each such trade shall be brought into conference and negotiations and a plan for dealing with such trade agreed to by the parties concerned.

When the plan is agreed to, the federal trade commission shall determine the costs as per the direction of the president, and the food purchase board shall recommend prices to the army or navy, as the case may be.

FUEL ADMINISTRATION.

R. S. LOVETT.

The popularly known "food conservation law" (see page 417) also contained provisions for controlling the distribution of fuel, particularly coal. On Aug. 21, 1917, the prices of bituminous coal at the mine were provisionally fixed by the president; on Aug. 23 the prices of anthracite coal and the margins of jobbers were provisionally fixed, and Dr. Harry A. Garfield was appointed fuel administrator.

Shortly after his appointment Dr. Garfield announced he would appoint a representative in each state and territory, who, with the advice of a committee of citizens, subject to appeal to the United States fuel administrator, would administer the distribution of coal in that state, and that in each county and in each city of more than 10,000 population a local committee would be appointed by the state representative.

Nineteen state representatives or administrators have since been appointed.

On Oct. 1 the administrator issued an order fixing the retail prices of coal.

Other important acts of the fuel administration were the reduction of the price of Pennsylvania anthracite pea coal at the mines, the promulgation of a number of rulings in cases involving the interpretation or application of the president's price fixing orders, the temporary prohibition of coal shipments into Canada from lake ports, in order to relieve the shortage in the northwestern states, and the adjustment of wage disputes between operators and miners.

In securing the proper distribution of coal the fuel administration was ably assisted by Robert S. Lovett, chairman of the priority shipments board, appointed by the president in August. His first act was to issue on Aug. 20 an order to a score of railroad companies to give preference to coal shipments to the northwestern states, where at that time there was a coal shortage.

All general orders and regulations relating to coal made up to Oct. 9, 1917, may be found in the following documents:

1. Order of the president dated Aug. 21, 1917, fixing the price of bituminous coal at the mine, as modified by sundry orders of the fuel administrator relating to particular localities, all of which are dated Oct. 1, 1917.

This order of the president went into effect on the evening of Aug. 21, 1917. The orders further classifying bituminous coal went into effect at 7 a. m. Oct. 1, 1917. All these classifications appear in circular No. 24, issued Oct. 1, 1917.

2. Regulations of the president, dated Aug. 23, 1917, fixing jobbers' margins and anthracite coal prices, as modified by order of the fuel administrator, dated Oct. 1, 1917, reducing the price of pea coal.

The president's order referred to became effective as to anthracite prices on Aug. 31, 1917, at midnight and, as to jobbers' margins, on the evening of Aug. 23, 1917.

3. Order of the fuel administrator, dated Oct. 1, 1917, relative to the shipment, distribution and apportionment of coal reshipped by water at Lake Erie ports.

4. Regulations of the fuel administrator, dated Oct. 1, 1917, relating to the margins of retail dealers.

5. Orders relating to coal prices and regulations governing the sale, shipment and distribution of coal, referred to in the opening sentence hereof, dated Oct. 5, 1917. Some of the regulations included were promulgated at different prior dates.

EDWARD N. HURLEY, EDWARD F. CARRY.

The act of congress approved Sept. 7, 1916, entitled "An act to establish a United States shipping board for the purpose of encouraging, developing and creating a naval auxiliary and naval reserve and a merchant marine to meet the requirements of the commerce of the United States with its territories and possessions and with foreign countries; to regulate carriers by water engaged in the foreign and interstate commerce of the United States, and for other purposes," provides, as a means of enforcing its provisions, for a board of five members, which is empowered to select its own secretary. The board also appoints such attorneys, naval architects and special experts and examiners as it may find necessary to employ for the proper performance of its duties. All other employees are to be appointed in accordance with the civil service law. It is an establishment independent of other departments of the government, similar in this respect to the interstate commerce commission.

The board is authorized to construct and equip, or to purchase, lease or charter, vessels suitable for use as naval auxiliaries in time of war, so far as the commercial requirements of the marine trade will permit, domestic yards to be given the preference in such construction, other things being equal, and may charter, lease or sell such vessels to any citizen of the United States, under regulations to be approved by the president. The act also empowers the board during war or any national emergency the existence of which may be declared by proclamation of the president, to regulate the transfer to aliens of vessels registered or enrolled and licensed under the laws of the United States, and further provides that no vessel registered or enrolled and licensed under the laws of the United States or owned by any person a citizen of the United States, shall be sold to an alien or transferred to a foreign registry or flag without the vessel's being first tendered to the board.

The board is authorized to organize one or more corporations, under the laws of the District of Columbia, for the purchase, operation, lease, charter or sale of the vessels authorized to be constructed under the act, and places at the disposal of the board for this purpose a fund of $50,000,000, to be obtained by the sale of Panama canal bonds. The existence of such corporation is limited specifically to five years from the close of the present war, which date shall be proclaimed by proclamation of the president.

The board is authorized to make investigations as to the relative cost of constructing vessels at home and abroad, to examine the rules under which vessels are constructed at home and abroad, and to investigate matters relating to marine insurance and the classification and rating of vessels. It is also empowered to examine the navigation laws of the United States and make such recommendations to congress as it may deem best for the improvement and revision of such laws.

The act further provides for the regulation of the operations of common carriers in both interstate and foreign commerce, defines certain terms used in connection therewith and provides penalties for the violation of its provisions. Carriers are required to file with the board copies of such agreements or memoranda of oral understandings as each may have with other carriers or persons subject to the act relating to the regulation of rates, pooling of earnings, number and character of sailings between various ports, the volume or character of traffic, etc. Certain conduct by carriers or other persons subject to the act is declared to be unlawful and punishable by penalties set forth in the act.

The board is further empowered to investigate the action of foreign governments with respect to privileges afforded and burdens imposed on vessels of the United States, and to make a report of the result of such investigations to the president, who is authorized to secure by diplomatic action equal privileges for United States vessels.

DENMAN-GOETHALS DISPUTE.

When the board was first organized William Denman was made chairman and Maj.-Gen. George W. Goethals manager of the construction department of the emergency fleet corporation. In the spring of 1917 differences arose between Mr. Denman and Gen. Goethals as to best manner of meeting the demand for small ships to offset the losses caused by the German submarine campaign. The dispute culminated in the resignation of both men. In his letter of resignation, sent July 20, 1917, Gen. Goethals wrote:

"My Dear Mr. President, I beg to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of July 19, and wish to express my appreciation of the considerate manner in which you have stated the conclusions which you have reached.

"In the project for the 'rapid emergency construction of small ships,' dated March 20, 1917, and approved by you on April 4 last, it was stated that—

"To secure the speed of production, which is all important, we feel that the task of securing and equipping these ships should be put in the hands of one man. Centralized control is essential for rapid and efficient work."

"It was on this understanding on my part that I undertook the work at your request. This understanding was subsequently confirmed, not only when I took up the matter with the shipping board, but at the hearings before the subcommittee of the committee on appropriations of the United States senate, where it was stated that I was to have 'absolute and complete authority for the administration on the constructing side; that everything the board could do would be done, and that it would act on my suggestion and initiative. These assurances were placed much more clearly before the members of the subcommittee on appropriations of the house of representatives.

"The necessity for shipping makes it imperative that results be secured as rapidly as possible. It is results, by whomsoever obtained, which count, after all, and nothing should be allowed to interfere with the accomplishment of this end. I have endeavored to establish harmonious relations with the shipping board, but regret to state I have not succeeded, and it seems impossible to secure the unison of purpose essential to the success of the work. Believing that a centralization of authority in one man is necessary to carry out the shipbuilding program rapidly and successfully, after mature consideration of the whole subject, I am satisfied that I cannot secure efficient results under the conditions of your letter. I am convinced, therefore, that the best interests of the public welfare would be served if I were replaced by some one on whom full authority can be centered and whose personality will not be a stumbling block. It is my urgent hope that this solution will commend itself to you, and in order that the change may be delayed as little as possible by a week, if you deem it wise, I shall be glad to continue in charge until my successor can be selected, and remain with him until he has a thorough knowledge of the organization that has been built up and is able to familiarize himself with the work that has already been undertaken.

"You may be assured of my loyal acquiescence in the directions given in your letter and all future orders.

"Very respectfully, GEO. W. GOETHALS."

President Wilson subsequently appointed Rear-Admiral Washington Lee Capps as general manager of the emergency fleet corporation. Mr. Denman's resignation was also accepted and Edward N. Hurley of Chicago was made chairman of the shipping board. Admiral Capps' health becoming impaired, he resigned and was succeeded Nov. 26 by Admiral Harris, who in turn was succeeded Dec. 17 by Charles Piez of Chicago. Edward F. Carry of Chicago was made manager of the board's department of operations.

WORK ACCOMPLISHED.

The work accomplished by the shipping board and its subsidiary body, the emergency fleet corporation, has been enormous. Oct. 8, 1917, the following official resume of the board's activities was made public:

"The United States shipping board, through its construction agency, the emergency fleet corporation, is now building a total of 1,039 ships.

"Of these, 353, with a total deadweight tonnage of 1,253,900, are wooden ships; 58, with a total deadweight tonnage of 207,000, are composite; 225, with a total deadweight tonnage of 1,665,800 are steel, while 403 vessels of various types above 2,500 tons building for various account, both foreign and American, and aggregating 2,300,000 deadweight tons, were commandeered in course of construction, and nearly all of these will be completed by the emergency fleet corporation. This gives a total deadweight tonnage under construction at the present time of 5,924,700 tons.

"In addition to this there is included in the recently enacted urgent deficiencies appropriation a provision and authorization for the construction of further vessels whose total deadweight capacity will be approximately 5,000,000 tons.

"Thus the shipping board has under construction and contemplation a total tonnage of nearly 11,000,000 deadweight capacity.

"The total authorization for this work is approximately $1,799,000,000 for the shipping board and the emergency fleet corporation. Of this amount the appropriation is $1,085,000,000, including the amount carried in the recent act. The authorization will carry the emergency fleet corporation's building program well into the year 1919, but a very large part of the 1,039 vessels now under construction will be completed during the calendar year 1918.

"In addition to the tonnage being constructed by the emergency fleet corporation there have been taken over 103 German interned vessels with a total tonnage of 611,799 deadweight tons. All of these except twenty, with a tonnage of 120,500 tons, have been repaired and are now in the service of the army or navy or the allied governments. The remaining twenty are still in process of repair and will be similarly employed when the work upon them is completed.

"In addition fourteen Austrian interned ships have been acquired for the use of the United States and our allies. Their tonnage aggregates 88,505 tons."

GERMAN SHIPS USED AS TRANSPORTS.

The larger of the interned German passenger ships which were seized in American ports when the United States declared war were transferred to the navy department, refitted, renamed and used as transports. Following is a list of the vessels so used with the original name, the new name (in parenthesis), the gross tons, net tons and carrying capacity in officers and men:

Vaterland (Leviathan), 54,282, 23,543, 800, 3,000.
George Washington, 25,570, 15,379, 350, 4,500.
America (America), 22,622, 13,637, 4,500.
Kronprinzessin Cecilie (Mount Vernon), 19,503, 6,584, 2,800.
Kaiser Wilhelm II. (Agamemnon), 19,361, 6,353, 430, 3,400.
President Lincoln, 18,168, 11,171, 200, 5,000.
President Grant, 18,072, 11,112, 200, 5,000.
Cincinnati (Covington), 16,339, 9,733, 4,000.
Grosser Kurfurst (Zeolus), 13,102, 7,881, 175, 3,000.
Barbarossa (Mercury), 10,984, 6,463, 120, 2,500.
Prinzess Irene (Pocahontas), 10,893, 6,443, 140, 2,500.
Friedrich der Grosse (Huron), 10,771, 6,585, 150, 2,300.
Hamburg (Powhatan), 10,531, 6,420, 100, 2,000.
Rhein (Susquehanna), 10,058, 6,398, 2,000.
Neckar (Antigone), 9,835, 6,200, 2,000.
Koenig Wilhelm II. (Madawaska), 9,410, 5,764, 200, 2,000.
The names of the "President" ships were not changed.

WAR PRISON BARRACKS AND CAMPS.

Soon after a state of war between the United States and Germany was officially declared by congress the war department took steps to handle war prisoners by the thousands. Toward the end of June the department authorized the following:

Prisoners of war and their problems are already with us. Inside wire fences at three war prison barracks the war department has even now a considerable number of German prisoners and, since its business is to be ready ahead of time, is completing plans for handling any number of thousands that the future may bring.

Work and pay for prisoners, their care and food, censoring of their mail, guarding them, and a dozen other parts of the whole problem have been gone over and are now so near final solution that an outline of the organization and plans can be given.

All war prisoners, whether military or naval, will ultimately be placed in the custody of the war department, and the adjutant-general of the army will have general control through five principal bureaus:

1. A bureau of administration charged with the composition and personnel of the guards, the pay, rations, clothing and transportation of them.

2. A bureau of employment in charge of the labor of prisoners, both within their places of internment and on federal, state and private projects without the prisons.

3. A bureau of religious and educational welfare, to which bureau all matters connected with religion, education, recreation and the dealing with Red Cross and benevolent assistance will be conducted.

4. A bureau of inquiry charged with the custody of the records of war prisoners, and through which information concerning the prisoners will be transmitted to the enemy's government and to the National Red Cross society. This bureau is also charged with the forwarding of mail, money orders and packages sent from the prisoners' home country for delivery to individual prisoners; and

5. A bureau of repatriation, charged with the final restoration of prisoners to their home country at the conclusion of hostilities.

The places of detention are known as war prison barracks and at present three such barracks have been established, located at Fort McPherson, Ga., Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., and Fort Douglas, Utah. Each barracks is commanded by a colonel of the regular army, assisted by a staff of officers similar to that of a commanding officer of an army post or camp.

The general regulations under which war prisoners are held were made the subject of a special article of the fourth Hague convention, in addition to which the United States is bound by certain provisions of the Geneva convention.

Officers who may be made prisoners are allowed, under the provisions of the Hague convention, the pay of officers of the corresponding grade in the army of the captors' government, and such is the present practice in the United States.

The enlisted men who are made prisoners are given the same medical attention, pay, clothing and quarters as are allowed United States soldiers. The quarters authorized for war prisoners are similar to and constructed in accordance with the specifications governing the construction of cantonments used by the army of the United States. War prisoners are not confined in the sense of being placed in jails or prisons or penal institutions, but as it is necessary to limit their freedom of movement, the cantonments in which they are confined are surrounded by a wire fence. Within the limits of this fence prisoners are given liberty of action.

The Hague convention requires that war prisoners shall enjoy complete liberty in the exercise of their religion. To provide for this there is a chaplain of the regular army on the staff of the commandant of each war prison barracks, who has general supervision of the religious matters connected with the prison, and services are authorized for all prisoners so desiring where churches of special denominations are located in the vicinity of the places of internment. A representative of the international committee of Young Men's Christian associations is also accredited to each war prison barracks and, in conjunction with the barracks chaplain, assists in the athletic and social affairs of the prisoners. In the event of the death of a war prisoner, the same honors and respects are shown as in case of the death of an individual of corresponding rank in the United States army.

The educational welfare of the prisoners is under the immediate control of the barracks chaplain, who is charged with the organization of courses of instruction as elected by the prisoners and who is aided in the work by the prisoners themselves. Later vocational training will be introduced in each barracks to provide for prisoners who are without any trade or vocation, the qualified prisoners being used as instructors for the others.

Prisoners are entitled to send mail matter through international mails without postage. Mail matter for domestic destination is subject to postage, as is also all incoming mail, both outgoing and incoming mail being censored at the barracks.

As the number of prisoners increases, the adjutant-general will, under the authority granted him by paragraph 6 of the fourth Hague convention, authorize the employment of these prisoners on work connected with the public service, for individuals, and upon their own account.

In arriving at the wages to be paid prisoners for the above classes of work, the provisions of international law govern. When the work is for branches of the public service or for private persons, the conditions are settled in an agreement with military authorities. The wages of prisoners go toward improving their positions and any balances remaining are paid them on their release after deducting the cost of maintenance.

Complete records are kept of all sums disbursed for the care and upkeep of war prisoners and at the close of hostilities reports of these disbursements are forwarded to the enemy government for reimbursement.

Toward the close of 1917 two classes of German prisoners were detained in the United States. One comprised German sailors taken into custody when the United States interned various vessels at the beginning of the war. The other class comprised "enemy aliens," civilians who have been arrested and were being detained under government regulations for various reasons. The principal detention camp was at Fort McPherson, Ga., where approximately 850 war prisoners were held in custody of the war department. At Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., there were 165 "enemy aliens," who were not strictly speaking, prisoners of war. At Fort Douglas, Utah, there were 517 prisoners of war and eighty interned aliens. Small detachments of other interned aliens were temporarily quartered at army posts throughout the country, but their number was relatively small. The above mentioned prisoners were under the supervision of the war department. In addition the department of labor had in custody several hundred Germans, members of the crews of various merchant ships. This group was divided between the immigration station at Ellis Island and a detention camp at Hot Springs, N. C.

Altogether there were 1,364 actual prisoners of war in custody of the war department and about 400 interned enemy aliens held at the request of the department of justice. Of this number about three score were located on Taboga Island, Panama. It was estimated that Germany was now holding 150 sailors taken from American ships by commerce raiders and other German vessels and ten or eleven infantrymen captured on the French front.

AERIAL RAIDS ON BRITAIN.

Fleets of German airships, including both Zeppelins and large aeroplanes, raided the coast cities of Britain in 1917 and even penetrated to the heart of London. With one exception they did little or no military damage, but killed a considerable number of women and children and other civilians. In a raid on Chatham Sept. 4 they killed 167 seamen. The following list includes all the most important raids since the beginning of the war:

TYPICAL AIR RAIDS.

Between 5:15 and 5:30 o'clock Friday evening, May 25, 1917, German aircraft to the number of sixteen visited southeastern England. Bombs were dropped at various places, but nearly all the damage occurred in Folkestone, where many casualties occurred among civilians and where a number of buildings were destroyed or damaged. The total number of casualties reported by the police from all the districts were: Killed, 76; injured, 174. Of the killed 27 were women and 23 were children, while 43 women and 19 children were injured. One of the raiding machines was shot down by a British airplane in midchannel and two others were brought down near the Belgian coast by the royal naval air service.

In the air attack Sept. 4 on the Chatham district, in which 107 bluejackets were killed outright and 86 wounded, four bombs fell about the royal naval barracks, but two were harmless. In fact, apart from those which took such a heavy toll of lives the damage in the whole area was insignificant. The barracks was fitted with sleeping hammocks and a majority of the men were asleep at the time of the attack.

The first indication of the presence of air raiders was the sound of engines overhead. The noise of high powered machines did not cause much alarm, because notices had been published earlier in the evening that anti-aircraft practice would be carried out that night and when the guns began firing it was assumed that the practice was in full swing. Then came the unexpected. Loud explosions were heard in one part of the district and then in another. In all about seventeen bombs were dropped and the raiders are thought to have been over the district nearly an hour. Searchlights sought out the raiders, but failed to locate them, the visibility being low owing to a slight haze, notwithstanding the moonlight.

Immediately following the explosions in the barracks rescue parties were organized and the wounded were removed to hospitals, one of which came very near to being a target for a bomb.

Discipline prevailed completely over any natural tendency at alarm in the barracks. All survivors were instantly at their quarters and the greatest coolness was shown.

GERMAN AIRSHIPS LOST.

The German aerial forces did not escape without paying toll to the aviators of Britain and France. The number of Zeppelins brought down was large considering the expensive character of these machines. One of them was captured intact by the French Oct. 20 and the crew made prisoners.

Dr. Ralph Pemberton of Philadelphia, physician at Presbyterian hospital, Philadelphia; assistant director of the bureau of medical service of foreign commissions.

NAVAL AUXILIARIES BRANCH.

Later in the year the formation of naval auxiliaries of the American Red Cross throughout the United States was announced by Chairman Davison, the step being taken in accordance with the wishes of the secretary of the navy, Joseph Daniels. This branch, which is under the direction of Mrs. E. T. Stotesbury of Philadelphia, is conducted by women. Its main purpose is to distribute useful gifts contributed by patriotic women to the young men in the navy.

MILLIONS FOR RED CROSS WAR FUND.

Early in May it was decided to create a separate fund to be known as the Red Cross war fund. At a conference in Washington attended by representatives from forty of the leading American cities plans were worked out in detail for raising $100,000,000 for this purpose. Charles S. Ward was placed in charge of the campaign, which began June 18 and ended before the close of the month with the goal more than attained. The $100,000,000 mark was exceeded June 26. The subscriptions came from all sources and increased the membership of the organization by several million members. It was one of the greatest "drives" of this kind on record.

Some idea of the use made by the Red Cross war council of this vast sum may be gained from the following official summary of the organization's activities up to October, 1917:

Since the organization of the Red Cross war council on May 10 the activities of the American Red Cross have branched in many directions.

Following the raising of a war fund of over $100,000,000 the chief theater of work has been in connection with American troops, French troops and the civilian population in France. Already more than $10,000,000 has been appropriated by the war council for this work abroad.

The principal activities of the Red Cross commission in France, headed by Maj. Grayson M. P. Murphy, include the establishment of cantons for every corps of the French and American armies, the operation of hospitals in Paris and elsewhere, the building of a large hospital at Evian, near the Swiss frontier, for the reception and care of repatriated French people and the founding of hostels for the care of French children and orphans.

In addition the commission to France has established a Red Cross supply service with thirteen warehouses throughout the various French departments. This system is already distributing about 15,000 tons of supplies monthly to hospitals in France formerly served by various American war societies.

The commission to France has also undertaken the rehabilitation of several French villages as an experiment, and in co-operation with the Rockefeller institute is aiding in the fight against tuberculosis throughout France.

Red Cross commissions are also actively at work studying the possibilities of American aid in Russia, Roumania, Italy and Serbia, and already more than $1,000,000 worth of medicines and drugs have been forwarded to these countries.

In the United States the work of the Red Cross in the first six months of the war has been principally in the cantonnements of the national army and the national guard. Field directors have been appointed for each one of the camps and each has been supplied with warehouses and a stock of medical and general articles for use of the enlisted men.

Units of the Red Cross sanitary service are co-operating with public health authorities in the districts surrounding sixteen of the cantonnements, preventing the outbreak of epidemics or the spread of insanitary conditions to the civil population surrounding the camps.

In addition the Red Cross chapters have undertaken to knit 1,600,000 sets of sweaters, mufflers and wristlets for American soldiers abroad and in the camps, and to supply each soldier with a Christmas present consisting of a comfort kit and a special Christmas package.

Through the department of home service the Red Cross is also looking after the families of soldiers and supplementing government aid with personal assistance in looking after problems of the householder arising in the absence of its head.

MISSIONS SENT ABROAD.

In the course of the year the Red Cross war council sent four missions abroad. The first, headed by Maj. Grayson M. P. Murphy of New York, was sent to France. The second, headed by Dr. Frank Billings of Chicago, went to Russia. The third, headed by H. W. Anderson of Richmond, Va., went to Roumania. The fourth was sent to Italy after the disaster to the Italian armies. It was headed by George F. Baker, Jr., of New York.

MILITARY TITLES.

While doing work abroad officials of the Red Cross are authorized to use military titles ranging from first lieutenant to major-general. The chairman of the central committee and the chairman of the war council are major-generals; members of the war council and the vice-chairman of the central committee are brigadier-generals; the director-general is a colonel; the assistant director-general and commissioner are lieutenant-colonels; directors are majors, and assistant directors are captains and first lieutenants. They are also authorized to wear uniforms. The titles do not confer any military powers nor can they be used in the United States.

OTHER WAR RELIEF AGENCIES.

The Knights of Columbus raised a fund of $9,000,000 to be used in much the same manner as the funds of the Y. M. C. A., for the benefit of the soldiers at home and in Europe. The Salvation Army and other agencies did much work along the same line.

YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION WORK.

NATIONAL WAR WORK COUNCIL.

Chairman—William Sloane.
Vice-chairman—William Fellowes Morgan.
General secretary—Dr. John R. Mott.
Treasurer—Cleveland H. Dodge.
Headquarters—124 East 23rd street, New York, N. Y.

The national war work council of the Young Men's Christian Association of America was organized in April, 1917, to promote the social, intellectual, physical and spiritual welfare of the men of the army and navy in America and overseas. On Oct. 22, 1917, work was being conducted at more than 500 centers, with more than 2,000 secretaries in charge.

Gallier Photo.

Dr. J. R. MOTT, chairman of the national guard and regular army on the Mexican border in 1916 and 1917 was fully appreciated by the soldiers, their relatives and friends and the public at large. Most of the letters written by private soldiers at the camps in the south were written on Y. M. C. A. stationery in the Y. M. C. A. huts, where the men found recreation, reading matter and facilities for correspondence. When the United States entered the world war the officers of the Y. M. C. A. made preparations to carry on the work on a far larger scale than ever before attempted and they had little difficulty in raising the funds needed. It was known that the money went directly for the purpose it was intended for and that the expenses were kept at the minimum. Much of the work was done by volunteers who gave their services free. The association was provided with efficient machinery for carrying on its work, which was done with businesslike promptness and thoroughness. There have been numberless testimonials of the excellent work done not only at military training and mobilization camps in America but in the training area in France, where Y. M. C. A. workers bring comforts even to the men in the front trenches. Preparations for the maintenance of Y. M. C. A. "huts" in France were made before the American troops arrived. The work both in Europe and the United States had the cordial approval of President Wilson and Secretary of War Baker.

On account of the extraordinary need of expanding these activities the Y. M. C. A. authorities in the fall of 1917 asked for a fund of $35,000,000 to be used in war work. The week of Nov. 11-17 was set aside for pledges of money and cash contributions to the fund. The response was immediate and generous. On Nov. 20 it was announced that $51,000,000 had been raised and that funds were still coming in. While the campaign was in progress it was announced that it was the purpose to divide the money about as follows:

United States army and navy.....	$11,200,000
Army and navy overseas	11,960,000
Russian army	3,300,000
French army	2,900,000
Italian army	1,000,000
Prisoners of war	1,000,000
Allies in Mesopotamia	600,000
For expansion	3,000,000

Writing of the Y. M. C. A. war activities just prior to "pledge week" Christopher Morley summarized the work as follows:

"In general the Y. M. C. A. work falls into four types—educational, physical, social and religious.

"The educational work aims to teach the soldier what he will need most in this war, particularly English and French. The physical work is mainly athletic. The association has distributed athletic equipment in almost unbelievable quantities to our soldiers.

"The social work is multifarious. The Y. M. C. A. buildings and tents, which are erected wherever troops are mustered, are home, club and library to the men. There, as soon as the drills are over, they congregate in hundreds to hear music, lectures, dramatic entertainments, etc., see movies and put on shows of their own. As far as possible the aim of the Y. M. C. A.

men is to draw out the native talent of the soldiers themselves, to set them to organizing their own entertainments.

"In the religious phase of its work the Y. M. C. A. has shown consummate tact. In the first place it makes no distinctions of race or creed; it offers its friendly service to all who come and no questions asked. It forces its own attitude toward religious problems down no man's throat. But its bible classes, its devotional meetings, its quiet talks are held regularly by men whose age and station in life fit them to speak convincingly."

WORK DONE BY THE Y. W. C. A.

The national board of the Young Women's Christian association organized a war work council for the purpose of providing at the army camps in America "hostess houses" for woman guests. A number of these headquarters were provided at various training and mobilization camps and the sum of $1,000,000 was raised for their maintenance and expansion. The officers of the council in 1917 were: President, Mrs. James S. Cushman, New York city; vice-presidents, Mrs. John R. Mott, Montclair, N. J.; Mrs. John Meigs, Pottstown, Pa.; treasurer, Mrs. Henry P. Davison, New York city; secretary, Miss Martha McCook, New York city. The national board has its headquarters at 600 Lexington avenue, New York city.

AIRCRAFT PRODUCTION.

Twenty thousand aeroplanes were under construction in the United States in October, 1917, according to an announcement made by the secretary of war. Under the aircraft production board's energetic supervision the whole aerial program was co-ordinated so that when the machines were completed trained aviators, machine guns and other equipment were waiting for them. Secretary Baker's statement was in part as follows:

"Contracts have been let and work is in progress on practically the entire number of airplanes and motors for which provision was made in the $640,000,000 aviation bill passed by congress in July. This program called for more than 20,000 airplanes.

"The types of airplanes now in process of manufacture cover the entire range of training machines, light high-speed fighting machines and powerful battle and bombing planes of the heaviest design. Our contracts call for an ample number of training machines and embrace as well giant battle planes capable of the work of the Caproni, the Handley Page and similar types.

"Provision has been made also for the manufacture of the many accessories necessary to aircraft service at the front. Sources of supply for machine guns, observation apparatus, cameras, scientific instruments of navigation and precision and many other specialties of the aircraft art have been provided. Both in this country and abroad this work has been under direction of skilled men.

"The designing of the 'Liberty motor,' previously referred to as probably the greatest single achievement of the war, has been accorded foreign recognition. Our allies have already asked for samples of these motors and are investigating the possibilities of quantity production in this country.

"There has been a remarkably gratifying response to the call for aviators. This country has an unlimited supply of young men possessing courage, self-reliance, good judgment and decision—the things required in the air service. This service, appealing to both the imagination and patriotism of such young men, is to-day fitting thousands of Americans for flying.

"The ground schools conducted by several of our great universities are turning out cadets steadily. Twenty-four flying schools have been authorized and construction work is up to schedule.

"Realizing there would be a shortage in the beginning of American-built training planes, a successful substitute plan was evolved. Arrangement was made with the allied countries for the acceptance of our cadet students for final training upon foreign soil. These men are being trained in our uniforms and will be turned over as finished aviators to the fighting forces in France.

"American aviators are to-day in training in all the allied countries. They are now undergoing intensive training behind several of the battle fronts. The sending of great numbers of American aviators abroad and the rapidity of training preparations at the flying schools in the United States—such as the one near Dayton—indicate the scope of the work of the aviation section since funds were made available for an army of aviators.

"There is practically no limit to the number of aerial fighters which the United States can and will furnish in the war for democracy. No time has been lost in experiments. The machines which have already proved successful will be reproduced in large numbers in this country. Through negotiations consummated through the aircraft board there has been established the principle of the free interchange of manufacturing and patent rights. There exists to-day the closest co-operation among the allied nations in sending a great aerial fleet above the battle fronts. When this nation's army moves up to participate in the fighting the eyes of her army will be ready.

"The signal corps and its staff of foreign advisers are well satisfied with the progress made since the designing of the 'Liberty motor.' It is not possible to make public the details of the work accomplished. The war department can only say that its earlier expectations and hopes for the consummation of our extensive aircraft program are being more than realized."

The production of aircraft was not limited to aeroplanes, but a number of dirigible balloons of the nonrigid type were made and men to operate them were trained.

The United States government has adopted as the distinguishing insignia for all its aircraft a white star with red center on a circular background of blue. All American aeroplanes, seaplanes, captive balloons and dirigibles will bear this star of the flying corps, which combines the red, white and blue of the national flag.

GERMANY'S RUTHLESS SUBMARINE WAR.

An account is given elsewhere of the reasons which prompted Germany to begin an intensified submarine warfare against not only the allies but neutral countries. At the opening of this campaign daily reports of the sinkings of merchantmen were given, but this practice was soon discontinued and weekly reports were given instead. The following table shows the weekly sinkings of British merchantmen from Feb. 1 to Dec. 12, 1917:

The reports of various incidents in this submarine warfare will be found in the accounts of general naval operations and the operations of the United States navy after April 6, 1917. Many other instances will be found in the succeeding chronological tables. Herewith are added a few of the more noteworthy sinkings in the early part of the year before the submarine menace was lessened to some extent.

LOSS OF THE LAURENTIC.

The British auxiliary cruiser Laurentic, 14,892 tons gross, struck a mine off the north coast of Ireland Jan. 25, 1917, and sank in about ten minutes. A large hole was torn in the side of the ship by the explosion. The Laurentic, which was formerly in the White Star service between Montreal, Que., and Liverpool, carried a naval reserve crew of 300 officers and men in addition to fourteen engineer officers and ten deck officers. Many of those on board were killed by the explosion and others were drowned, as a gale was blowing and only a few boats could be launched. The total number of deaths was placed at 350.

SINKING OF TROOPSHIP ARCADIAN.

The British transport Arcadian, 8,839 tons gross, was torpedoed and sunk by a submarine in the eastern Mediterranean April 15. It went down in five minutes and 279 of those on board were drowned. The victims included nineteen officers, 214 of other ranks, ten of naval ratings, thirty-four seamen and two civilians. Patrol ships which went to the rescue of the Arcadian did heroic work and saved many of the soldiers. One boat saved 236 men in an hour and a half.

CASE OF THE CALIFORNIA.

The Anchor line steamship California, 8,662 tons, sailed from New York for Glasgow Jan. 29 with a full cargo, a crew of 196 and thirty-one passengers. When off the Irish coast Feb. 8 it was torpedoed and sunk without warning. Of those on board forty-one were killed by the explosion or drowned; the survivors were landed in the evening at Queenstown. John A. Lee of Montgomery, Ala., was the only American on board and he was rescued. Capt. John L. Henderson of the California said that his ship was sunk by a submarine which fired two torpedoes from a distance of 300 yards.

CASE OF THE HOUSATONIC.

The American steamer Housatonic, bound from Galveston to London with a cargo of wheat, was torpedoed and sunk at noon Feb. 3, 1917, near the Scilly Islands after having been duly warned by a submarine. The officers and crew were towed toward land by the "U" boat and, after having been picked up by a British patrol boat, arrived safely at Penzance.

SINKING OF LINER LACONIA.

The Cunard liner Laconia, a steamship of 18,099 tons, was torpedoed without warning and sunk at 9:30 o'clock on Sunday night, Feb. 25, 1917, when about 150 miles west of Fastnet, Ireland. The ship was bound from New York to Liverpool and carried seventy-five passengers and a crew of 217. Six of the passengers and six of the crew lost their lives. The liner was struck twice on the starboard side, about twenty minutes elapsing between the missiles. Most of those on board had taken to the lifeboats after the first attack, otherwise the loss of life would have been larger, as the ship sank quickly after being hit the second time. Three of the dead were Americans. Mrs. Mary E. Hoy and her daughter, Miss Elizabeth Hoy, of Chicago, died from exposure in one of the boats and were buried at sea. Tom Coffey, a member of the crew, was the third American lost, he also dying from exposure in one of the boats. These were picked up in the morning by English patrol vessels, and the surviving passengers and crew, including six injured seamen, were brought to Queenstown and Bantry.

The sinking of the Laconia had much to do with increasing the demand in America for war with Germany.

HOSPITAL SHIPS TORPEDED.

THE ASTURIAS.

The British hospital ship Asturias, while steaming with all navigating lights and its Red Cross signs illuminated, was sunk without warning by a German submarine at midnight March 20, 1917. The torpedo struck the rudder, passed into the engine room, breaking the machinery, including the electric plant. The following casualties occurred: Military, dead, 11; missing, 31, including one woman staff nurse; injured, 17; crew, dead, 20, with 9 missing, including first stewardess; injured, 22; total, dead, 31; missing, 40; injured, 39.

DONEGAL AND LANFRANC.

On the evening of April 17, 1917, the steamships Donegal and Lafranc, while transporting wounded to British ports, were torpedoed without warning. The Donegal carried slightly wounded cases—all British. Of these twenty-nine men, as well as twelve of the crew, were drowned.

In addition to 234 wounded British officers and men, the Lafranc carried 167 wounded German prisoners, a medical personnel of fifty-two, and a crew of 123. Of these the following were drowned: Two wounded British officers, eleven wounded British of other ranks, one officer of the Royal army medical corps staff, five of the crew, five wounded German officers and ten wounded Germans of other ranks. One hundred and fifty-two wounded German prisoners were rescued by British patrol vessels.

SINKING OF THE BRITANNIC.

The former White Star liner Britannic, one of the finest and largest steamships afloat, having a gross tonnage of 43,158, was torpedoed and sunk off the island of Zee, in the Aegean sea, at 8 a. m., Nov. 21, 1916. The vessel was in the British hospital service and was on its way to Saloniki. There were no patients and no troops on board except 390 officers and men of the army medical service and 121 nurses. Of the 1,156 persons on board only fifty were drowned. The ship had been prepared for the reception of 3,000 sick and wounded.

LOSS OF THE ROCKINGHAM.

The American steamer Rockingham, formerly known as the Nebraskan, was torpedoed and sunk by a German submarine on the afternoon of May 1 about 150 miles from the Irish coast. The second engineer and an oiler were killed by the explosion of the torpedo, which struck the engine room. The others took to the lifeboats and were picked up by patrol vessels. There was a crew of naval gunners aboard, but they had no opportunity of firing at the submarine.

SUBMARINE SUNK BY THE MONGOLIA.

When the armed American liner Mongolia, Capt. Emory Rice commanding, bound for London, had reached British waters on the afternoon of April 19, 1917, the first mate discovered a submarine only a short distance away. It was too close to attack and submerged apparently to get into a better position. Capt. Rice tried to ram the "U" boat, but when it rose again it was about 1,000 yards behind the ship. The naval officer aboard, a lieutenant, ordered the stern gun trained on the periscope, which was all that was visible, and the first shot hit the mark. The periscope was smashed, the submarine disappeared and oil was observed on the surface of the water where the craft sank. The shot was the first fired by an American in the war against Germany. The Mongolia, a vessel of 13,638 tons, belonging to the International Mercantile Marine company, carried freight only on this voyage.

LOSS OF THE VACUUM.

The American tank steamer Vacuum, owned by the Vacuum Oil company, was torpedoed and sunk April 26 in the Atlantic about 140 miles west of Barra, Scotland, while on the way home in ballast from a British port. The vessel was armed and carried a crew of naval gunners under Lieut. Clarence C. Thomas, U. S. N. Twenty-three lives were lost, including that of Lieut. Thomas, who was thus the first American naval officer to lose his life in the war. The gunners had no chance to fire at the submarine.

NORWAY HEAVY LOSER.

Up to December, 1917, Norway had lost some 800 vessels and probably 1,000 seamen. Up to June 25 the loss of lives reported was 625 and the number of ships sunk as 585. Many were sunk later, thirteen steamers with a gross tonnage of 19,982 being lost in November alone. In the same month the Germans killed forty-one Norwegian seamen. It was accepted as a fact that bombs placed in the coal had caused the loss of many vessels which were missing without "leaving a trace," to use Luxemburg's famous phrase. Reports of the firing by German submarines on men, women and children taking refuge in lifeboats were too numerous and well attested to be denied.

GENERAL NAVAL OPERATIONS.

No great naval battles were fought in 1917, though there were a number of encounters between smaller craft. The general policy of the belligerents was to send out patrol vessels and to avoid aggressive tactics with battle ships and cruisers. The main work of the British, American and French navies was the conveying of fleets of merchant ships and transports and for this purpose destroyers and converted yachts were chiefly used.

NAVAL BATTLE OFF DOVER.

Two British destroyers, the Swift and the Broke, on patrol duty in the English channel off Dover on the night of April 20, 1917, came upon a flotilla of six German destroyers. The night was dark but calm. The Swift sighted the enemy at 600 yards and the German boats opened fire. The Swift replied and tried to ram the leading enemy destroyer, but missed. It turned and in doing so torpedoed another boat in the German line. In the meantime the Broke torpedoed the second boat in the enemy line and then rammed the third destroyer, hitting it abreast the after funnel. A furious fight followed between the two boats which were locked together and two German destroyers which came to the assistance of the one that had been rammed. There was much hand to hand fighting, a British midshipman, Donald Gyles, distinguishing himself by holding a crowd of Germans back with his automatic pistol.

Wrenching itself loose from the German craft, the Broke, though partly disabled by a shell entering its boiler rooms, engaged another enemy boat which was on fire and the crew of which begged to be saved. As the Broke approached the German destroyer unexpectedly opened fire and then the Broke's commander, Edward R. G. R. Evans, who was second in command of Capt. Scott's antarctic expedition, silenced the enemy boat by sending four rounds into it and finishing it with a torpedo.

Sighting a stationary enemy destroyer from which shouts were heard, the Swift approached warily and found that it was the craft which the Broke had rammed. It soon heeled over and sank stern first. The Swift saved as many of the Germans in the water as it could and took them to Dover. There it was found that the rescued men numbered 113, of whom ten were officers. The British had twenty-two men killed. The casualties of the German flotilla were not made known.

According to German accounts two of their destroyers lost were the G-85 and the G-2. Both the British destroyers were damaged, but were able to return to port.

BATTLE BETWEEN DESTROYERS.

From 2 until 7 o'clock on the morning of Jan. 23, 1917, British and German light naval forces fought in the North sea, some forty miles from Zeebrugge, Belgium, used by the Germans as a naval base, especially for submarines. It was intensely dark and so cold that those killed were frozen fast to the decks where they fell. Most of the craft engaged were torpedo boat destroyers, of which each side lost at least one. A British destroyer was struck by a torpedo, the explosion killing three officers and forty-four men. The vessel was so badly damaged that it was sunk by British guns.

Early in the action the bridge of the German destroyer V-69 was swept away by a shell which killed the commander of the flotilla, Capt. Max Schultz, and two other officers. Twenty of the crew were killed. The boat became unmanageable for a time and rammed one of the other German destroyers, which managed, however, to reach port. The V-69 was able, though in a sinking condition, to reach the Dutch port of Ymuiden, where it was interned.

MERCHANT FLEET AND DESTROYERS SUNK.

Two very fast and heavily armed German raiders attacked a convoy in the North sea about midway between the Shetland islands and the Norwegian coast on Wednesday, Oct. 17. Two British destroyers, the Mary Rose, Lieutenant-Commander Charles Fox, and Strongbow, Lieutenant-Commander Edward Brooke, which formed the antisubmarine escort, at once engaged the enemy's vessels and fought until they were sunk, after a short and unequal engagement.

Their gallant action held the German raiders sufficiently long to enable three merchant vessels to effect their escape.

However, five Norwegian, one Danish and three Swedish vessels, all unarmed, were thereafter sunk by gunfire without examination or warning of any kind and regardless of the lives of their crews and passengers. Anxious to make good their escape before the British forces could intercept them, no effort was made to rescue the crews of the sunken British destroyers, and the Germans left the doomed merchant ships while these were still sinking, thus enabling the British patrol craft, which arrived shortly afterward, to rescue some thirty Norwegians and others. All the eighty-eight officers and men of H. M. S. Mary Rose and forty-seven officers and men of H. M. S. Strongbow were lost.

The survivors of the crews from the merchant steamers sunk by the German raiders told harrowing stories of their experiences. The captain of one of the Norwegian steamers, the sole survivor of that vessel, said that he ordered his crew into the boats, but the Germans began firing immediately. After the boats were lowered a shell hit one and killed nine men.

The rest of the crew in despair returned to the steamer and signaled to the Germans to cease firing, but their appeal was not heeded. The bridge was then hit and knocked overboard with the captain and the rest of the crew. The captain managed to save himself by swimming to a raft, and he was picked up two hours later by a boat from one of the other sunken steamers. At least thirty-three sailors were killed in this affair, which caused deep indignation in the Scandinavian countries.

LOSS OF THE REINA MARGHERITA.

The Italian battle ship Reina Margherita of 13,214 tons struck two mines on the night of Dec. 11, 1916, and sustained such severe damage that it went down in ten minutes, carrying to death 675 persons, including the captain and fourteen officers. For military reasons the loss of the ship was not made public until Jan. 12, 1917.

AMERICAN NAVAL OPERATIONS IN THE WAR.

Immediately after the United States declared war April 6, 1917, the fleets of the navy were in motion, according to plans made for the contingency.

HERBIE & EDWARDS.

Conferences were held with the British and French naval staffs and part of the work performed by the ships of the allies was undertaken at once by the vessels of the United States. Much of this was patrol work to safeguard the seas from German raiders, which here and there continued to molest merchant ships. The movements of the ships were secret and it was not until May 16 that it was announced that a flotilla of American torpedo boat destroyers had arrived in the war zone on the other side of the Atlantic and was already doing patrol work in connection with the British navy.

The American squadron arrived at Queenstown May 4 after an uneventful voyage across the Atlantic, but almost immediately, after a formal exchange of greetings with the British naval officials, put to sea again for the hard work that was before it.

A crowd of several hundred persons, some of them carrying tiny American flags, lined the water front and cheered the destroyers from the JAPANESE CRUISER DESTROYED.

The Japanese battle cruiser Tsukuba, 13,750 tons, was destroyed by a fire and explosion in the harbor at Yokosuka Jan. 14, 1917. Of the crew 153 were killed and 157 injured. Most of the officers and sailors were ashore at the time of the disaster.

LOSS OF THE BATTLE SHIP DANTON.

The French battle ship Danton was torpedoed in the Mediterranean March 19, 1917, with the loss of 296 men. The vessel was accompanied at the time by the destroyer Massue and several patrol boats, which saved 806 men. The Massue attacked the submarine with grenades, causing it to disappear. The Danton was a ship of 18,023 tons and was built at Brest in 1909.

AUSTRIAN BATTLE SHIP SUNK.

The Austrian battle ship Wien was torpedoed and sunk Sunday night Dec. 9, 1917, in the Adriatic sea. Most of the crew were saved. The vessel displaced 5,512 tons and was laid down in 1893. It had a complement of 410 men.

RUSSIAN VICTORY.

Reports from Petrograd Oct. 22, 1917, said that in various engagements around the islands in the Gulf of Riga the Russian fleet put two German dreadnoughts, one cruiser, twelve torpedo boats and one transport out of action. The Russians lost the battle ship Slava and one large torpedo boat.

MUTINIES IN GERMAN NAVY.

Reports were made public Oct. 10, 1917, of a mutinous outbreak on the vessels of the German high seas fleet in Wilhelmshaven. Details were suppressed by the German authorities, but it was admitted by Vice-Admiral von Capelle, the minister of marine, that there had been disturbances among the sailors whose heads, he said, had been turned by the Russian revolution. Mutinies were said to have occurred on four ships. One was the 18,000 ton Westfalen, whose captain was thrown overboard and drowned. The Nürnberg was seized by its crew, who attempted to put to sea with the ship, but it was overtaken by destroyers and brought back to port. Many of the mutineers were shot. Several cases of crews of German submarines killing their officers were reported. The service was dreaded by many of the men impressed into it.

moment they first sighted the flotilla until it reached the dock. The crowd cheered again when a few moments later the American senior officer came ashore to greet the British senior officer and Wesley Frost, the American consul, who had come down to the dock to welcome the flotilla. Everything was done in a simple, businesslike manner.

The commander of the British flotilla was waiting on board his ship and sent wireless greetings to the American units as soon as they hove in sight, steaming in a long line into the harbor.

After the exchange of shore greetings and the British commander had congratulated the American officers on their safe voyage, he asked:

"When will you be ready for business?"

"We can start at once," the American commander replied promptly.

This response, so characteristically American, surprised the British commander, who said he had not expected the Americans would be ready to begin work on this side so soon after their long voyage. When he had recovered from his surprise, he made a short tour of the destroyers and admitted that the American tars looked prepared.

"Yes," replied the American commander, "we made preparations on the way over. That is why we are ready."

One of the American destroyers began war duty even before reaching the other side of the Atlantic. This was when it picked up and escorted through the danger zone one of the largest of the Atlantic liners. This action so pleased the passengers on board that they sent a message of greeting and appreciation to the commander of the destroyer. The message read:

"British passengers on board a steamer bound for a British port under the protection of an American torpedo destroyer send their hearty greetings to her commander and her officers and crew and desire to express their keen appreciation of this practical co-operation between the government and peoples of the United States and the British empire, who are now fighting together for the freedom of the seas."

GERMANY KNEW OF MOVE.

According to a report made by Rear-Admiral W. S. Sims, the commander of the flotilla, who a short time later was made a vice-admiral, Germany was informed far enough in advance of the arrival of the destroyers to be able to place mines at the port of entrance to Queens-town the day before the destroyers arrived. Only a limited number of high officials knew the port to which the destroyers were bound. The source of the leak was not definitely ascertained.

PROPHECY FULFILLED.

Vice-Admiral William S. Sims was the recipient of a greeting of the most enthusiastic character when he arose to speak June 3 at the great religious thanksgiving service held in the Opera house in Kingsway, London, to commemorate the battle of Jutland.

Admiral Sims said he was glad of the opportunity on behalf of the American navy to express profound admiration for the British heroes who had so gloriously given their lives in that battle and to voice the sympathy of the American navy and the American people, who realize that the blood shed on that day was shed for the cause of freedom throughout the world.

What those men died for, continued the admiral, was, perhaps, not at first understood in America, but it was now, and there was the pronouncement of President Wilson to show that the United States was prepared to go to any lengths in the fight for liberty and freedom.

Referring to what he characterized as his, perhaps, undiplomatic speech in the London guildhall on the occasion of the visit of the American fleet in 1910, when he said that every ship, every dollar and every drop of blood of America could be counted on by England if she was ever menaced by a combination of nations, Admiral Sims continued:

"To-day that prophecy is being realized, and I trust that if another battle of Jutland occurs the American navy will prove itself equal to the glorious traditions of the British navy."

SAVE U. S. TRANSPORTS.

One of the first notable feats of the American destroyers was in saving the transports carrying Gen. Pershing's troops to France from being sunk by German submarines. There were three battles, the first occurring on the night of June 22, the second June 26 and the third June 28. The following facts are from the report of Rear-Admiral Albert Gleaves, made public Aug. 2, 1917:

1. About 10:15 p. m. June 22 the first group of the expeditionary force, of which the flagship was the leader, encountered the enemy's submarine in latitude — north, longitude — west.

2. At the time it was extremely dark, the sea was unusually phosphorescent; a fresh breeze was blowing from the northwest, which broke the sea into whitecaps. The condition was ideal for a submarine attack.

(Paragraph 3 gives the formation and names of the vessels together with the speed they were making and method of proceeding; nothing else. It is therefore omitted for obvious reasons.)

4. Shortly before the attack the helm of the flagship had jammed, and the ship took a rank sheer to starboard; the whistle was blown to indicate this sheer. In a few minutes the ship was brought back to the course. At this time the officer of the deck and others on the bridge saw a white streak about fifty yards ahead of the ship, crossing from starboard to port at right angles to our course. The ship was immediately run off 90 degrees to starboard at full speed. I was asleep in the charthouse at the time. I heard the officer of the deck say: "Report to the admiral a torpedo has just crossed our bow." General alarm was sounded, torpedo crews being already at their guns. When I reached the bridge the A and one of the transports astern had opened fire, the former's shell fitted with tracers. Other vessels of the convoy turned to the right and left in accordance with instructions. B crossed our bow at full speed and turned toward the left column in the direction of the firing.

5. At first it was thought on board the flagship that the wake was that of a torpedo, but from subsequent reports from other ships, and in the opinion of Lieut. X., who was on the bridge, it was probably the wake of the submarine boat itself. The torpedoes passed close to the A from "port to starboard," one about thirty yards ahead of the ship and the other under the stern, as the ship was turning to the northward. Capt. Y. reports the incident thus:

"Steaming in formation on zigzag courses, with base course 75 degrees P. S. C., standard speed. At 10:25 sighted wake of a torpedo directly across our bow, about thirty yards ahead of the ship. Changed course 90 degrees to left and went to torpedo defense stations. Fired two one pounder shots and one five pounder shot from port battery in alarm, in addition to six blasts from siren. Passed through two wakes, one being that from that U. S. S. C. in turning northward, the other believed to have been from the passing submarine. A second torpedo wake was reported at about 10:35 from after lookouts. After steaming in various courses at full speed, resumed course 89 degrees P. S. C. at 11:10 for rendezvous. At 12 set course 56 degrees P. S. C. * * *

The torpedo fired at the D passed from "starboard to port" about 40 yards ahead of the ship, leaving a distinct wake which was visible for about 400 or 500 yards. Col. Z., U. S. A., was on the starboard wing of the bridge of the D at the time and states:

"I first saw a white streak in the water just off the starboard bow, which moved rapidly across the bow very close aboard. When I first saw it it looked like one very wide wake and similar to the wake of a ship, but after crossing the bow and when in line with it, there appeared two distinct and separate wakes, with a streak of blue water between. In my opinion they were the wakes of two torpedoes."

7. The submarine, which was sighted by the flagship, was seen by the B, and passed under that ship. The B went to quarters. When the alarm was sounded in the B Lieut. W. was rushed out of his sleep and went to his station and found unmistakable evidence of the presence of a submarine. He had been there only a few seconds when the radio operator reported, "Submarine very close to us." As the submarine passed the B and the flagship's bow and disappeared close aboard on our port bow, between the columns, it was followed by the B, which ran down between the columns, and when the latter resumed her station she reported that there were strong indications of the presence of two submarines astern, which were growing fainter. The B was then sent to guard the rear of the convoy.

8. When I was in Paris I was shown by the United States naval attaché a confidential bulletin of information issued by the general staff, dated July 6, which contained the following:

"Punta Delgada, Azores, was bombarded at 9 a. m. July 4. This is undoubtedly the submarine which attacked the E on June 25 400 miles north of Azores and sank the F and G on the 29th of June 100 miles from Terceira (Azores). This submarine was ordered to watch in the vicinity of the Azores, at such a distance as it was supposed the enemy American convoy would pass from the Azores."

9. It appears from the French report just quoted above and from the location of the attack that enemy submarines had been notified of our approach and were probably scouting across our route. It is possible that they may have trailed us all day on June 22, as our speed was well within their limits of surface speed and they could easily have trailed our smoke under the weather conditions without being seen; their failure to score hits was probably due to the attack being precipitated by the fortuitous circumstances of the flagship's helm jamming and the sounding of her whistle, leading the enemy to suppose he had been discovered.

10. The H., leading the second group, encountered two submarines, the first about 11:50 a. m. June 26, 1917, in latitude — north, longitude — west, about 100 miles off the coast of France, and the second two hours later. The I investigated the wake of the first without further discovery. The J sighted the bow wave of the second at a distance of 1,500 yards and headed for it at a speed of twenty-five knots.

The gun pointers at the forward gun saw the periscope several times for several seconds, but it disappeared each time before they could get on, due to the zigzagging of the ship. The J passed about twenty-five yards ahead of a mass of bubbles which were coming up from the wake and let go a depth charge just ahead. Several pieces of timber, quantities of oil, bubbles and debris came to the surface. Nothing more was seen of the submarine.

The attacks on the second group occurred about 800 miles to the eastward of where the attacks had been made on the first group.

11. The voyage of the third group was uneventful.

ATTACKS ON SECOND GROUP.

12. In the forenoon of June 28 when in latitude —, longitude — west, the K opened fire on an object about 300 yards distant which he thought was a submarine. The commander of the group, however, did not concur in this opinion, but the reports subsequently received from the commanding officer of the K and Lieut. V. are too circumstantial to permit the incident from being ignored. The commanding officer states:

"(b) The only unusual incident of the trip worth mentioning was on the 28th day of June about 10:05 a. m. The lookouts reported something right ahead of the K (I had the bridge at the time). When I looked I saw what appeared to be a very small object on the water's surface, about a foot or two high, which left a small wake; on looking closer and with the aid of binoculars, I could make out a shape under the water about 250 to 300 yards ahead and which was too large to be a blackfish, lying in a position about 15 degrees diagonally across the K's course.

"(b) I ordered the port bow gun to open fire on the spot in the water and sounded warning siren for convoy when judging that ship had arrived above the spot first seen. I ordered right rudder in order to leave the submarine astern.

"(b) 2. A minute or two later the port after gun's crew reported sighting a submarine on port quarter and opened fire at the same time. The lookouts from the top also reported seeing the submarine under the water's surface and about where the shots were landing.

"(b) 3. The ship kept zigzagging and firing from after guns every time something was sighted.

"(b) 4. Lieut. V., U. S. N., was in personal charge of the firing and reports that he saw, with all the gun crews and lookouts aft, the submarine fire two torpedoes toward the direction of the convoy, which sheered off from base course to right, 90 degrees, when alarm was sounded.

"(b) 5. All the officers and men aft had observed the torpedoes traveling through the water and cheered loudly when they saw a torpedo miss a transport. They are not certain, though, which one it was, as the ships were not in line and more or less scattered.

"(b) 6. The gunnery officer and all the men who were aft at the firing are certain that they saw the submarine and the torpedo fired by same.

"(b) 7. A separate report of Lieut. V., U. S. N., the gunnery officer, is herewith appended.

"(b) 8. The K kept zigzagging until it was considered that danger was past, and in due time joined the escorts and convoy formed column astern.

"(b) 9. Report by signal was made to group commander of sighting submarines and torpedoes.

(Paragraph 13 deals exclusively with a recommendation as to the best methods to be employed in the future for the purpose of saving life. It is plain that this ought not to be made public.)

14. Copies of reports of commanding officer's flagship, A. D. and H., are inclosed; also copy of report of Lieut. V. of the K.

DESTROYER CASSIN IN BATTLE.

The United States destroyer Cassin, Commander W. N. Vernou commanding, while on patrol duty in European waters Oct. 16, 1917, had a battle with a German submarine. Following is the official report of the occurrence:

"While this vessel was on her patrol station a submarine was sighted on the surface at about five miles' distance. The Cassin immediately proceeded at full speed toward the submarine with her crew at their battle stations. She searched the area for about thirty minutes, zigzagging back and forth, when the commanding officer, Commander Vernou, sighted a torpedo running at high speed near the surface about 400 yards away, headed to strike the Cassin amidships. Realizing the situation, the commanding officer rang for emergency full speed ahead on both engines, put the rudder hard over and was just clear of the torpedo's course when it broke on the surface, turned sharply toward the vessel and struck the stern of the Cassin.

"Fortunately only one engine was disabled, thereby permitting the destroyer to remain under way, circling in search of the submarine. After about an hour the submarine exposed its conning tower long enough for the Cassin to fire four shots. Two of the shots fell so close to the submarine that it was forced to submerge immediately and was not seen again. The Cassin continued to search until dark, when, having been joined by other British and American patrol boats, she was taken safely into port.

"Vice-Admiral Sims states that the behavior of the officers and the entire crew was admirable. There was no excitement on board, the men remaining quietly at their battle stations throughout the night except when called to other duties. He commends the British navy for the prompt and efficient assistance rendered the Cassin. Admiral Sims gives special credit to Commander Vernou for his vigilance and prompt action which probably saved the Cassin from total loss. He also commends Lieuts. MacLaran, Saunders and Parkinson for their ingenuity in effecting temporary repairs and for their coolness and efficient work."

One man was killed and five wounded in the fight. Gunner's Mate Osmond K. Ingram of Pratt City, Ala., was blown overboard and his body was not recovered.

TRANSPORT ANTILLES SUNK.

The steamship Antilles, an army transport, was torpedoed on Oct. 17 while returning to America from foreign service. This vessel was under convoy of American patrol vessels at the time. The torpedo which struck the Antilles was not seen, nor was the submarine which fired it. The torpedo hit abreast of the engine room bulkhead and the ship sank within five minutes. One hundred and sixty-seven persons out of about 237 on board the Antilles were saved. About seventy men were lost.

All the naval officers and officers of the army who were on board the ship at the time were saved, as were the officers of the ship, with the exception of the following: Walker, third engineer officer; Boyle, junior engineer officer, and O'Rourke, junior engineer officer.

The following enlisted naval personnel were lost: E. L. Kinzey, seaman, second class, next of kin Thomas M. Kinzey, father, Water Valley, Miss.; J. W. Hunt, seaman, second class, next of kin Isaac Hunt, father, Mountain Grove, Mo., R. No. 2, Box 44; C. L. Asburn, radio electrician, first class, next of kin R. Asburn, brother, 2800 Louisiana avenue, New Orleans, La., and H. F. Watson, radio electrician, third class, next of kin Mrs. W. L. Seger, mother, Rutland, Mass.

There were about thirty-three of the army enlisted personnel on board, of whom seventeen were saved.

PICKET BOAT LOST

The picket boat of the U. S. S. Michigan was lost in the Atlantic Oct. 20 and the occupants, twelve sailors, were drowned. The reason for the foundering of the boat was not disclosed.

U. S. TRANSPORT FINLAND TORPEDOED.

Nine lives were lost on the U. S. transport Finland when she was torpedoed in foreign waters Oct. 28, 1917, while on her way home. Of the dead two were enlisted men in the army, three of the navy and four of the crew of the Finland. The casualties, it was reported, were due to a panic aboard the ship after she had been struck. The Finland was able to return to port unassisted.

PATROL BOAT ALCEDO SUNK.

The American patrol boat Alcedo was torpedoed and sunk by a German submarine in the war zone Monday morning, Nov. 5, 1917. The navy department report on the loss was as follows:

"The navy department has received a report from Admiral Sims stating that at 1:30 a. m. Nov. 5 the American patrol vessel Alcedo, a converted yacht, was torpedoed and sunk by a German submarine in the war zone. One officer and twenty men are missing. The ship sank within four minutes after she was struck. The Alcedo carried seven officers and eighty-five men. It was formerly owned by G. W. Childs Drexel of Philadelphia. No trace of the missing men was found."

DESTROYER CHAUNCEY LOST IN COLLISION.

The following announcement was made by the navy department Nov. 20:

"The Chauncey, a small American destroyer on patrol duty in foreign waters, was sunk in a collision early Monday morning, Nov. 19. First dispatches indicate that twenty-one lives were lost. Further information will be made public when full reports are received."

On the following day the news of the loss of twenty-one men was confirmed.

The Chauncey carried ninety-one men, of whom three officers and eighteen of the enlisted personnel perished. The officers who died were Lieutenant-Commander Walter E. Reno, the commanding officer, and his two junior officers, Lieut. Charles F. Wedderburn and Ensign Harry G. Skinner, Jr.

The Chauncey was one of the old type of destroyers, completed in 1902, and displaced 420 tons, less than half the displacement of the newer and speedier destroyers now being built. For several years before the war the Chauncey was used only in coast defense work and was classified as a coast torpedo vessel. She was built in Philadelphia. The name of the vessel with which the Chauncey collided was reported as the Rose.

SUBMARINE SUNK; CREW CAPTURED.

The following story published Nov. 24, 1917, tells of a clean cut victory of two American destroyers over a German submarine:

It was daylight, with good visibility, when the periscope was sighted by the lookout of a destroyer which, with a sister craft, was engaged in its customary duties. The submarine commander was just preparing to fire a torpedo, either at one of the destroyers or at a merchantman near by.

"Periscope two points off the starboard bow!" sang out a lookout in a voice which could be heard from end to end of the craft. Instantly an alarm to general quarters was sounded and the helm thrown hard over. Signal flags were swung out notifying the sister ship of the exact location of the enemy. At the same time the heliograph began its staccato flashing of orders for a combined attack.

A scant eighteen inches of periscope had shown above the surface of the sea 400 yards distant for a few instants and then vanished. In less time than it takes to tell, the destroyer, under the impetus of suddenly opened throttles, had fairly leaped into the track where the periscope had disappeared.

At the proper moment the commander of the bridge released a depth charge from its fixed place. The powerful explosive, 300 pounds in weight in its steel case, sank with a little splash into the destroyer's wake, and at the regulated depth responded to the bidding of its valves and burst in a terrific explosion.

A vast extent of water was upheaved and rose in a column to a great height. Then the charge had found its mark as shown by a mass of oil and bubbles which marked the spot as the water found its level.

Meanwhile a second destroyer passed through the boiling, oily waters and dropped a second depth charge and then followed the tactics of the first destroyer in circling the spot. The two destroyers did not have long to wait. In less than three minutes there was a rush of water and the "U" boat, whalelike, came to the surface not more than 500 yards away from the first destroyer.

The Americans were taking no chances on a German trick. The gun crews stood with their guns, machine guns and torpedo tubes trained on the stricken enemy, ready to let loose a shower of steel in case the submarine showed fight. But the "U" boat was badly stricken; the explosive charge had done its work thoroughly.

Although the upper part of the boat appeared to have been untouched, it was evident from her actions that the submarine was unmanageable. She was badly listed, owing to the damage to her ballast tanks, and it was apparent that her steering gear and probably also her engines had jammed.

The three minutes which elapsed between the time the depth charges were fired and the time she emerged, as if catapulted, provide food for interesting speculation. It is probable she was driven to the bottom by the force of the explosion, but retained enough buoyancy to rise to the surface. But by the time she reached the open air the strain had done its work and she hung on the surface of the water only for a moment and then began to settle again, at first hesitatingly, soon with evidence of complete collapse.

During that brief period several American sailors jumped into the sea in an effort to get the prize buoyed up with hawsers so she could be towed to port. One line was fastened to the submarine successfully, but before it could be re-enforced she gave a final lurch and sank like a plummet, breaking the line.

LOSS OF THE DESTROYER JACOB JONES.

The American destroyer Jacob Jones, Lieut. David Worth Bagley commanding, was torpedoed and sunk Thursday, Dec. 6, 1917, while on patrol duty off the Scilly islands. One warrant officer, Gunner Harry R. Wood, and sixty-three enlisted men were lost. The commander, with Lieut. Norman Scott, two warrant officers and thirty-nine enlisted men, was saved.

The Jacob Jones was completed in 1916 by the New York Shipbuilding company and went into service in February, 1917.

The vessel was 310 feet long, had a draft of 9.2 feet and displaced 1,090 tons. The speed was over thirty knots.

The Jacob Jones was one of the new type of oil burning destroyers and was propelled by turbine engines.

RECOMMENDED FOR DECORATIONS.

Secretary Daniels authorized the following Nov. 24, 1917:

Through the British ambassador to the United States and the department of state the British admiralty has advised the navy department of its desire to recommend British decorations for certain officers and men of two United States destroyers on duty in European waters for their services in encounters with enemy submarines.

The secretary of the navy has replied through the secretary of state that under the laws of this country persons belonging to the military forces of the United States are not permitted to receive crosses, medals, decorations or other gifts which might be tendered by foreign governments.

The British commander-in-chief proposed to make the following recommendations:

Distinguished Service Order—

Lieutenant-Commander Charles A. Blakely.

U. S. N.

Lieutenant-Commander George F. Neal, U.

S. N.

Distinguished Service Cross—

Lieut. Frank Loftin, U. S. N.

Ensign Henry N. Fallon, U. S. N.

Distinguished Service Medal—

Quartermaster (1st class) W. H. Justice,

U. S. N.

Chief Machinist's Mate R. G. McNaughton.

U. S. N.

In the case of one destroyer the admiralty advises that the vessel was conveying a merchantman when the periscope of a submarine was sighted at a distance of about 800 yards. The destroyer immediately increased speed and headed toward the submarine, which submerged, but reappeared shortly afterward, traveling in the opposite direction. The "U" boat next passed close on the starboard side of the destroyer, which released a depth charge, probably causing serious damage, if not destruction, to the submarine.

Praising the excellent organization, preparedness and discipline on board the destroyer, as well as the quick decision of the officer of the watch, the British commander-in-chief proposed to recommend Lieutenant-Commander Blakely, the commanding officer, for appointment to the Distinguished Service Order, and Ensign Henry N. Fallon for award of the Distinguished Service Cross.

The other destroyer was one of a number escorting troopships, and was cruising in station in formation when the wave of a periscope was sighted about 1,800 yards off the port bow by the quartermaster of the watch on duty. He reported to the officer of the watch, who immediately sounded general quarters. The executive officer of the destroyer was the first officer to reach the bridge, being closely followed by the commanding officer.

The executive officer rang for full speed ahead on reaching the bridge and altered the destroyer's course to head for the periscope.

The commanding officer then took command of the ship and maneuvered her so as to gain a favorable position for dropping a depth charge, directing the executive officer to drop the charge when he deemed it proper to do so. The charge was dropped, it is estimated, when the destroyer was about twenty-five yards directly ahead of the periscope and in the direction of the submarine's advance.

After the explosion of the charge debris was seen to rise to the surface accompanied by large bubbles and discoloration of the water.

For their services in this engagement the British commander-in-chief made the following recommendations:

Lieutenant-Commander Neal for the Distinguished Service Order, because it was considered that the efficient way the attack was launched was due to his prompt and decisive action and the vigilant lookout maintained on the destroyer.

Lieut. Loftin, for the Distinguished Service Cross, for the way he handled the situation in a prompt and decisive manner after arriving on the bridge.

Quartermaster (1st class) Justice and Chief Machinist's Mate McNaughton for the Distinguished Service Medal.

AMERICAN EXPEDITION TO FRANCE.

On May 14, 1917, President Wilson made the following announcement:

"The president has directed an expeditionary force of approximately one division of regular troops, under command of Maj.-Gen. Pershing, to proceed to France at as early a date as practicable. Gen. Pershing and staff will precede the troops abroad.

"It is requested that no details or speculations with regard to the mobilization of this command, dates of departure, composition or other items be carried by the press, other than the official bulletins given out by the war department relating thereto."

Maj.-Gen. John J. Pershing was the leader of the expedition sent into Mexico in 1916 to pursue the Villa bandits. His selection for the post of leading American troops into Europe was approved on all sides, and subsequent events proved that the selection was a wise one. Before this expedition left, nine regiments of experienced railroad engineers had been drilled, and the first detachments of these arrived in England May 23, under command of Maj. Parsons.

Maj.-Gen. Pershing and staff arrived in England on the morning of June 8, the party being cordially welcomed by a British delegation led by Lieut.-Gen. Sir William Pitt Rivers Campbell and Rear-Admiral Stileman. On the evening of the same day he was welcomed in London. On June 9 he was received by King George in a private audience. In addressing Gen. Pershing the king said:

"It has been the dream of my life to see the two great English speaking nations more closely united. My dreams have been realized. It is with the utmost pleasure that I welcome you, at the head of the American contingent, to our shores."

On June 13 Gen. Pershing set foot on French soil and received an exceedingly warm welcome from the highest officials of the republic from President Poincaré down. As in London, he had numerous conferences with the military authorities, and soon settled down to the work of preparing for the arrival of his troops. On June 27 it was announced that the first contingent of troops had landed on French soil under command of Maj.-Gen. William F. Sibert, next in command to Maj.-Gen. Pershing. Details of the narrow escape of some of the transports on which they came from being torpedoed at sea are given in the section devoted to the operations of the United States navy in the war.

Information as to the composition of the American expeditionary forces has been withheld except that it was made known that a regiment of United States engineers under Col. Charles A. Doyen was sent with the first contingent of infantry and that two regiments of foresters came over later. In the fall it was announced that several units of the national guard were also in the training area.

The war department made public the names of Gen. Pershing's personal staff and general staff, which included the following officers:

Capt. Nelson E. Margetts, field artillery, aide-camp.

Capt. James M. Collins, cavalry, aide-camp.

First Lieutenant Martin C. Shallenberger, infantry, aide-camp.

General Staff Corps—Maj. James G. Harbord, cavalry, chief of staff; Maj. John McA. Palmer, general staff corps, assistant, and Maj. Dennis B. Nolan, general staff corps, assistant.

Adjutant-General's Department—Col. Benjamin Alvord, adjutant, and Maj. John L. Hines, assistant.

Inspector-General's Department—Col. Andre W. Brewster, inspector; Maj. Fox Connor, assistant; and Maj. Robert L. Clark (O. R. C.), assistant.

Judge-Advocate General's Department—Lieut.-Col. Walter A. Bethel, judge advocate, and Maj. H. A. Bayne (O. R. C.), assistant.

Quartermaster Corps—Col. Daniel E. McCarthy, quartermaster; Lieut.-Col. David S. Stanley, assistant; Lieut.-Col. Harry E. Wilkins, assistant; Maj. Charles E. Stanton, assistant, and Maj. Samuel D. Rockenbach, assistant.

Medical Department—Col. Alfred E. Bradley, surgeon; Col. Merritte W. Ireland, assistant; Maj. George P. Peed, assistant, and Capt. Henry Beunwkes, assistant.

Corps of Engineers—Col. Harry Taylor, engineer; Capt. Ernest Graves, assistant, and Capt. Robert G. Alexander, assistant.

Ordnance Department—Lieut.-Col. Clarence C. Williams, ordnance officer, and First Lieutenant Oley Bonar (O. R. C.), assistant.

Signal Corps—Col. Edgar Russell, signal officer; Capt. Parker Hitt, 19th infantry, assistant; Capt. James B. Taylor, assistant, and Maj. Townsend E. Dodd, aviation officer.

Attached—Lieut.-Col. Robert H. Dunlap, United States marine corps; Maj. John H. Parker, 24th infantry; Maj. Logan Feland, United States marine corps; Maj. Robert Bacon (O. R. C.), quartermaster corps; Capt. Arthur L. Conger, 26th infantry; Capt. Hugh A. Drum, infantry; Capt. Raymond W. Briggs, quartermaster corps; Capt. Milosh R. Hilgard, quartermaster corps; Capt. William O. Reed, cavalry; Capt. John S. Chambers, quartermaster corps; Capt. David H. Scott, 5th cavalry; Capt. Gabe Filleul (O. R. C.), quartermaster corps; Capt. Gustave Forges (O. R. C.); Capt. F. T. Hill (O. R. C.), quartermaster corps; Capt. E. B. Moore (O. R. C.), quartermaster corps; Capt. C. D. Liebman (O. R. C.), quartermaster corps; First Lieutenant George S. Patton, Jr., 7th cavalry; First Lieutenant Richard B. Paddock, signal corps; First Lieutenant Birdseye Blakeman Lewis (O. R. C.), signal corps; First Lieutenant R. M. Gaspey (O. R. C.), signal corps; First Lieutenant W. F. Repp (O. R. C.), signal corps; Second Lieutenant Orva E. Beesley, quartermaster corps; Second Lieutenant Edwin F. Ely, quartermaster corps.

MADE A FULL GENERAL.

Maj.-Gen. John J. Pershing was given the full rank of general Oct. 6 when the United States senate confirmed his nomination by President Wilson.

JULY 4 DEMONSTRATION IN PARIS.

The American Independence day was made the occasion of a remarkable demonstration in Paris, where a battalion of the expeditionary force about to leave for training near the battle front paraded.

Everywhere the American flag was flying from public buildings, hotels and residences and from automobiles, cabs and carts; horses' bridles and the lapels of pedestrians carried them. The crowds began to gather early at vantage points. The Rue de Varenne was choked long before 8 o'clock in the morning, when the Republican Guards' band executed a field reveille under Gen. Pershing's windows, and all routes toward the Invalides were thronged even before Pershing's men turned out.

About the Court of Honor, where the Americans were drawn up with a detachment of French territorials, the buildings overflowed with crowded humanity to the roofs. All around the khaki-clad men from the United States were trophies and souvenirs of war—German cannon, airplanes, machine guns and many appliances for burning suffocating gas. Behind them in the chapel separating the Court of Honor from Napoleon's tomb were German battle flags, trophies of the Marne and Alsace beside Prussian banners of 1870.

There in the chapel before the tomb of Napoleon Gen. Pershing received American flags and banners from the hands of President Poincare. Almost the entire history of the struggles of the French against the Germans looked down upon the scene from paintings portraying heroic incidents in French battles from Charlemagne to Napoleon. There was a sharp contrast between the khaki and plain wide brimmed hats of Pershing's men and the gay dress of D'Artagnan's plumed musketeers and Napoleon's grenadiers.

The enthusiasm of the vast crowd reached its highest pitch when Gen. Pershing, escorted by President Poincare, Marshal Joffre and other high French dignitaries, passed along reviewing the lines of the Americans drawn up in square formations. Cheering broke out anew when the American band struck up the "Marseillaise," and again when the French band played "The Star-Spangled Banner," and Gen. Pershing received the flags from the president.

"Vive les Americains! Vive Pershing! Vivent les Etats-Unis!" shouted over and over by the crowd, greeted the American standard bearers as they advanced.

The crowd that had waited three hours to witness the ceremony that was over in fifteen minutes surged toward the exit, cheering frantically after the departing Americans and trying to break through a cordon of police troops. Outside a greater crowd that covered the entire esplanade of the Invalides took up the cheers as Pershing's men marched away.

The crowd in the Court of Honor tried to follow the soldiers, but the throng outside was so dense and the exits so small that it was half an hour before the people could get out. The Cours de la Reine from the Alexandre III. bridge to the Place de la Concorde was black with people, all of whom seemed to want to rush up to the men and embrace them as they marched by. When the last man had passed great crowds surged from both sides to the middle of the street breaking through the police and military guards and blocking traffic for a long time behind the marching column.

More people were massed in the Tuileries gardens than on the Esplanade des Invalides. Few of them could get a glimpse of the parade, but all joined in a tremendous outburst of cheering when music from the Republican Guard band announced the approach of the troops, and the cheering did not diminish in volume until the last man in the line had disappeared from view of the gardens down the Rue de Rivoli.

AMERICAN HOSPITAL CAMP BOMBED.

On Tuesday and Wednesday nights, Sept. 4 and 5, 1917, German aviators appeared over an American hospital base in France and dropped bombs which killed four and wounded ten persons. Those killed were: First Lieutenant William T. Fitzsimmons, Kansas City, Mo.; Private Leslie G. Woods, Streator, Ill.; Private Rudolph Rubino, New York, N. Y.; Oscar Tugo, Boston, Mass. The wounded included three first lieutenants, six privates and one nurse. The dead and wounded belonged to the Harvard and St. Louis hospital units. The raids, according to the testimony of witnesses, were deliberate, as the hospital camp was plainly marked and had been seen by German aviators flying over it in the daytime. The men guilty of the act dropped small German coins on the camp as souvenirs of their visit.

TRAINING AND FIGHTING.

Gen. Pershing's forces underwent many weeks of intensive training in all the arts of modern warfare, from protecting themselves against gas to practicing with bayonets and French heavy artillery. They had the benefit of instruction from some of the best troops of the French army and also of various British officers. Toward the end of October it was decided to give them practical experience at the front and certain detachments of artillery and infantry were sent forward to occupy some elements of the trenches in conjunction with French troops and under command of French officers. The Americans came under fire at once. The first gun fired by America against the Germans in France was a French "75" and the man who fired it was an artilleryman from South Bend, Ind. A number of men were wounded by shell fragments, but the first serious affair for the Americans—trivial enough in this tremendous war—occurred on the night of Nov. 3 when a German patrol raided a part of the trenches occupied by the Americans, killed three, wounded five and captured eleven. The first American soldiers to be killed in the trenches were Thomas F. Enright, James B. Gresham and Merle D. Hay. They were paid distinguished honors when their funeral took place at a village near the front Nov. 6.

With a guard of French infantrymen in their picturesque uniforms of red and horizon blue standing on one side and a detachment of American soldiers on the other, the flag wrapped caskets were lowered into the grave as a bugle blew "taps" and the batteries at the front fired minute guns. As the minute guns went off the French officer commanding the division in this section paid tribute to the fallen Americans. His words, which were punctuated by the roar of the guns and the whistle of shells, touched both the French and Americans. In conclusion the French officer said:

"In the name of the —th division, in the name of the French army and in the name of France I bid farewell to Private Enright, Private Gresham and Private Hay of the American army.

"Of their own free will they had left a prosperous and happy country to come over here. They knew war was continuing in Europe; they knew that the forces fighting for honor, love of justice and civilization were still checked by the long prepared forces serving the powers of brutal domination, oppression and barbarity. They knew that efforts were still necessary. They wished to give us their generous heart and they have not forgotten old historical memories, while others forget more recent ones.

"They ignored nothing of the circumstances and nothing had been concealed from them—neither the length and hardships of war, nor the violence of battle, nor the dreadfulness of new weapons, nor the perils of the foe. Nothing stopped them. They accepted the hard and strenuous life; they crossed the ocean at great peril; they took their place on the front by our side, and they have fallen facing the foe in a hard and desperate hand to hand fight. Honor to them. Their families, friends and fellow citizens will be proud when they learn of their deaths.

"Men! These graves, the first to be dug in our national soil, and but a short distance from the enemy, are as a mark of the mighty land we and our allies firmly cling to in the common task, confirming the will of the people and the army of the United States to fight with us to a finish, ready to sacrifice as long as is necessary until final victory for the most noble of causes, that of the liberty of nations, the weak as well as the mighty. Thus the deaths of these humble soldiers appear to us with extraordinary grandeur.

"We will, therefore, ask that the mortal remains of these young men be left here, left with us forever. We inscribe on the tombs: 'Here lie the first soldiers of the republic of the United States to fall on the soil of France for liberty and justice.' The passer-by will stop and uncover his head. Travelers and men of heart will go out of their way to come here to pay their respective tributes.

"Private Enright, Private Gresham, Private Hay! In the name of France I thank you. God receive your souls. Farewell!"

FRENCH WAR CROSS FOR AMERICANS.

On Nov. 26, 1917, the French war cross was conferred on fifteen American officers and men who were cited by the French general commanding the sector in which the Americans were stationed at the time of the first German raid on the night of Nov. 3. Referring to the action of this company, the French general said:

"On the night of Nov. 2-3 this company, which was in the line for the first time, met an extremely violent bombardment, despite which it seized arms and offered such stubborn resistance that the enemy, though numerically superior, was obliged to retire."

The general specially cited in the order of the day Corporal James D. Gresham and Privates Merle D. Hay and Thomas F. Enright, "who died bravely in hand to hand fighting with the enemy, who had penetrated the first line."

The others cited were Lieut. William H. McLaughlin, Lieut. R. O. Patterson, Lieut. E. F. Erickson, Sergt. John Arrowwood, Corporals David M. Knowles and Homer Givens, and Privates Charles Massa, William B. Thomas, George Hurd, Boyce Wade, Robert Winkler and John J. Jarvis.

The living men honored were told to accept the decorations, but not to wear them until they were officially permitted to do so.

SOME FIRST THINGS IN AMERICAN-GERMAN WAR.

The first unit of the United States army to land on foreign soil was base hospital No. 4 of Cleveland, O., under command of Maj. Harry L. Gilchrist of the medical corps of the United States army, and under the direction of Dr. George W. Crile. It landed in England May 13, 1917.

Secretary of the Navy Daniels announced June 8 the safe arrival in France of a corps of 100 naval aviators sent there for duty in the anti-submarine operations and for any other active duty that might be given them in France. They were the first officers and men of the regular fighting forces of the United States that have landed in France. Lieut. Kenneth Whiting was in command.

The first American soldiers to be killed in the trenches in France were James B. Gresham of Evansville, Ind.; Thomas F. Enright of Pittsburgh, Pa., and Merle D. Hay of Glidden, Iowa. They were victims of a German attack Nov. 3, 1917.

The first lives lost in the war between the United States and Germany were those of a warrant officer and an enlisted man on the German cruiser Cormorant interned at Guam. On April 7, the day after war was declared, the officers blew up the vessel and the men named were killed.

The first enlisted man belonging to the armed forces of the United States to be interred in France in the present war was Luis Reinhardt, a seaman of the second class. Reinhardt, on June 12, fell overboard from the United States ship on which he served and was drowned. His body was recovered on June 16 and he was buried at Pauillac on June 17 with military honors.

The first man on an American warship to be killed in action in the war was Osmond K. Ingram of Pratt City, Ala. He was a gunner on board the destroyer Cassin and was killed in a fight with a German submarine Oct. 16, 1917, in European waters.

Gunner William Clancy of Texas, a soldier with the British army, was the first man to carry the American flag into a battle in the great war. He carried it on his bayonet at the storming of Vimy Ridge, April 9, 1917.

The first German prisoner taken by American soldiers was a young man who was wounded in a skirmish on the French front Oct. 27, 1917.

The first American airman to fall under his own flag was Edmond C. C. Genet, whose death was reported April 19, 1917. He was flying at the French front and was a member of the famous Lafayette escadrille.

The first heavy gun was fired by Americans in France against the Germans Oct. 23, 1917. The gunner was from South Bend, Ind.

The first dependent upon an American soldier killed in the trench warfare to receive compensation under the government system was Mrs. Alice Dodd of Evansville, Ind., mother of Private James B. Gresham, killed Nov. 3, 1917.

GENERAL REVIEW OF THE WAR.

Three developments of great importance occurred in the world war in 1917. These were the entry of the United States into the conflict, the revolution in Russia, by which Czar Nicholas was dethroned and the great Austro-German offensive against Italy, which came near causing the collapse of its fighting strength. The facts connected with the entry of the United States into the war and the Russian revolution are given at length on preceding other Belgian cities; their defeat in the battle of the Marne and the beginning of trench warfare from the North sea to Switzerland; the battles of Allenstein and Tannenberg; the fighting back and forth in Poland, in other parts of western Russia and in east Prussia; the taking and retaking of the fortress of Przemyśl; the Austrian defeat in Serbia; British naval and other reverses in the Dardanelles campaign; British naval victory off the Falkland Islands and the beginning of the German submarine campaign against merchant vessels approaching the coasts of Great Britain and France. Of the greatest moment to the United States in the first year of the war was the sinking of the liner Lusitania with the loss of many American lives. On the whole, in spite of some serious reverses, this was a year of triumph for German arms.

SECOND YEAR.

In the second year—the period from the end of July, 1915, to the end of July, 1916—the most striking events were the first battle of the Champagne, in which the allies had the advanpages of this volume and need not be repeated here. It will be sufficient to say that the United States declared war on Germany and later on Austria-Hungary and made a good start in creating an army in France and that the revolution in Russia, though hailed at first by the allies as beneficial to their cause, led finally to the collapse for the time being at least of that country's great army and the capture of the government by bolsheviks, or extremists of the worst type. The operations in Italy will be briefly reviewed later in this section.

Facts about the British campaigns in Mesopotamia and Palestine leading to the capture of Bagdad and Jerusalem are given on preceding pages.

FIRST YEAR OF CONFLICT.

Before glancing at the military operations on the western, southern and eastern fronts it may be well to recall the main events of the earlier months and years of the war.

In the first twelve months of the struggle the features were the overrunning of Belgium and northeastern France by the Germans; the capture by them of Liege, Brussels, Antwerp and Ostend and their destruction of Louvain and tage; the vigorous but unsuccessful attack by the forces under the German crown prince upon the French lines defending Verdun; the victory of the British and French in the great battle of the Somme; the offensive of the Austrians in the Trentino, which threatened for a time to bring disaster to the Italians, but was finally checked by Gen. Cadorna's men; the entry into the war of Bulgaria on the side of the central empires; the crushing of Serbia by German, Austro-Hungarian and Bulgarian forces under Field Marshal von Mackensen; the landing of an allies' army of 600,000 to 700,000 men at Saloniki; the evacuation by the British of the Gallipoli peninsula; the German offensive against the Russians, which drove the latter from Warsaw, Kovno, Brest-Litovsk, Vilna, Lutsck and various other important centers until even Petrograd and Odessa appeared to be in danger of falling; the successful Russian offensive of the troops under Gen. Brusiloff in June, 1916; the capture by the Russians of Erzerum, Trebizond, Eiburt and Erzincan in the region of the Caucasus and Armenia; the capture by the Turks of a small British army under Maj.-Gen. Charles Townshend at Kut-el-Amara in Mesopotamia; the great naval battle off the coast of Denmark in which both the British and Germans proclaimed themselves victors, though the Germans were compelled to retreat to their base; the death by drowning of Lord Kitchener, British secretary of state for war who perished with many others when the cruiser Hampshire, on which he was proceeding to Russia, was sunk by a mine or torpedo near the Orkney islands on the evening of June 5, 1916, and the attempted insurrection in Dublin in Easter week, 1916.

In July and August the British made a number of important gains in Flanders, taking the Westhoek ridge, Langemarck. They suffered a reverse July 10 and 11 among the dunes along the North sea coast, being driven back across the Yser with considerable loss. July 31 the Anglo-French armies under Field Marshal Haig and Gen. Petain launched a strong offensive in Flanders along a twenty mile front from Warne to Dixmude, the British taking La Bassée Ville, St. Julien, Kilkem and Hollebeke. The French took Bixchoote and Koreteker. Something like 10,000 Germans were captured. The tanks played an important part in this battle. Rain hindered the operations seriously.

In looking back over the events of the second year of the war it is seen that the honors were divided even. The Germans won in Serbia and Russia, but lost in France more ground than they gained. At sea they held the British to what seemed to be a drawn battle, but they failed to obtain the mastery of the oceans.

THIRD YEAR.

When the third year of the war began the Germans were continuing their efforts to capture Verdun from the French and to stay the victorious British and French forces in the Somme region. Up to Sept. 9 the troops under Crown Prince Frederick William had slowly advanced until they were within three miles of Verdun. Then the French suddenly attacked in force and recaptured Fort Douaumont, one of the strongest positions in the outer defenses. Five weeks later they advanced still further and reoccupied much of the ground they had lost in the months of German attack. Within recent weeks the Germans have renewed their assaults on the French lines in this district, but have been beaten back with heavy losses.

On the Somme from the allies advanced steadily in the summer and fall of 1916 until they reached a line parallel with the road between Peronne and Bapaume. Because of the necessity of bringing up heavy guns, supplies and ammunition, as well as men to fill the gaps in the ranks, the offensive had to slow up, until the advent of winter weather, with bad roads and poor conditions for aerial observations, put a stop to all operations on a large scale. There were daily raids and surprise attacks, but these were chiefly for reconnoitering purposes and to obtain information from the prisoners brought in.

HINDENBURG'S FAMOUS RETREAT.

To complete the history of this battle it may be added that its renewal in the spring of 1917 was prevented by Field Marshal von Hindenburg's famous retreat to another line of defense far in the rear and popularly known as the Hindenburg line. Toward the end of February, when the British had delivered a smashing blow at the German lines on both sides of the Ancre river, the Germans, under cover of fog and bad weather, quietly withdrew from the defenses, the construction of which had cost them many months of hard labor. They abandoned, after only rear guard fighting, such places as Serre, Warlencourt, Miraumont, Saily-Sailles, Gonne-court, Clery, Bapaume, Le Transloy, Roye, Nesles, Chaulnes, Peronne and Ham, with scores of smaller villages.

Before retreating the Germans destroyed all buildings that had escaped the bombardment of the British and French as well as of their own shells. Not only did they do this, but they cut down shade trees, orchards and every living thing within their reach, making the country between themselves and their foes a desert. For much of the destruction there was no military excuse and it was widely condemned as wanton, cruel and barbarous. Field Marshal von Hindenburg received the blame for this display of savage disregard of international law and of humanity.

It was alleged in Germany that by this retreat, hailed by his admirers as masterly, Hindenburg forestalled a new offensive by the British and French forces and compelled them to adapt themselves to his plans. However, he did not escape without serious damage. The pursuit was more vigorous and successful than he had counted upon, and many of the men who had been left to do the rear guard fighting were captured. The effect on the morale of his forces was bad. It was the first retreat on a large scale they had been compelled to make since the beginning of the war and it deprived them of the initiative. This, so far as the western front is concerned, they have not yet succeeded in regaining, though they have made many desperate efforts to do so.

The allies by the middle of March had eliminated the Arras and Noyon salients and driven the enemy to a line extending in a southerly and southeasterly direction from Lens to Arras, St. Quentin and La Fere. They had placed themselves in a position to deliver other smashing blows and they did not fail to make them.

VIMY RIDGE TAKEN.

One of these blows was delivered by the British April 9 when they attacked on a ten mile front from a point south of Arras to one south of Lens. The enemy appeared to be taken by surprise and was everywhere driven back in the direction of Cambrai and St. Quentin. One of the features of this battle was the taking of the Vimy ridge by the Canadians, who by their bravery covered themselves with glory. Thousands of prisoners fell into the hands of Gen. Haig's men on this occasion.

On Aug. 10 the British drove the Germans back on a two mile front between Frezenberg and the Ypres-Menin road and at the same time the French advanced farther east and north of Bixchoote, the British forcing the Germans from the Westhoek ridge. Aug. 15 the Canadians captured Hill 70 and several of the fortified suburbs of Lens, but did not succeed in taking the whole of the famous coal city. Langemarck was captured by the British Aug. 16. There were many strong counterattacks by the Germans, but they failed to recapture the works near Lens taken by the British and Canadians. Their losses in trying to retake Hill 70 were especially heavy. On Sept. 20 the British by a drive along a front of eight miles penetrated the German positions to a depth of more than a mile, capturing Hemlet, Velhoek and Polygon wood. Other attacks followed at short intervals, the British making progress and gaining fresh ground.

On Oct. 1 and 2 the Germans made a number of heavy attacks in Flanders along the Ypres-Menin road, but were slaughtered by Haig's big guns. On Oct. 4 the British attacked on a front of more than eight miles from the south of Tower Hamlets to the Ypres-Staden railway and attained all their objectives, taking 3,000 German prisoners. Other big offensives were undertaken by the British Oct. 9, Oct. 25 and 26. Nov. 6 the Canadians captured Passchendaele and with it two German battalion commanders and their staffs.

trenches as if they were on parade.

The tanks started forward at 6:20 o'clock, and by 11:30 o'clock the British infantry, which had swarmed into the holes made by the mighty engines, was engaging the enemy in open fighting along the Hindenburg support line back of the main defenses at many points. The Germans surrendered freely in numerous places.

Two attempted counterattacks were smashed by the British infantry in the early hours, one in a tunnel trench near Bullecourt, the other at Havrincourt park, where one company of Germans essayed an advance. The fighting continued fiercely and it was thought that Cambrai would surely fall. The number of Germans captured was between 8,000 and 10,000.

At the end of two days of fighting as hot as any that has marked Gen. Byng's great struggle for Cambrai the British remained in possession of part of Bourlon village and nearly the whole of Bourlon wood, three and a half miles west of Cambrai, including all the high ground in the wood. The village changed hands at least three times and part of the wood four times.

The British captured the village in the early part of the fighting, but on Nov. 23 the Germans launched a counterattack in force and recovered possession of it. All day Friday and Saturday the struggle for parts of the wood proceeded with varying fortune, and on Saturday night, Nov. 24, the British clinched their hold on both the wood and the village with a fierce attack.

On Nov. 30 the Germans in their turn made a surprise attack, following the British method of assaulting without a preliminary bombardment. Two great attacks were delivered. One extended from Mœuvres to Bourlon wood, the other was along approximately a 12,000 yard front southwest of Cambrai, between Vendhuile and Crevecoeur. Both assaults were made in very strong force and the infantry was supported by fire from newly concentrated German guns.

In the northern attack the Germans succeeded in pushing down between Mœuvres and Bourlon wood for a considerable distance, but were hurled back by a counterattack after particularly sanguinary fighting.

In the southern battle the Germans broke through the British front south of Villers-Guislain and, by executing a turning movement to the north, succeeded in enveloping Gauche wood, Gouzeaucourt, Gonnellien and La Vaqueurie temporarily.

After the first shock of the attack by a superior number of forces, the British organized a counterattack and sent up re-enforcements. The British troops were thrown against the Germans in Gouzeaucourt, which represented the enemy's extreme advance, a distance of about 4,000 yards.

The Germans entered Gouzeaucourt about 10 o'clock in the morning and from that hour until 3 o'clock in the afternoon hand-to-hand fighting of a most terrible nature took place there. The British were outnumbered, but so furious was their onslaught that they pushed the Germans back from the town and reoccupied it. The British retired from Masnières Dec. 2 to straighten their line.

Beginning April 16 the French delivered a telling blow on a twenty-five mile front in the Soissons-Reims sector, taking all the German first and second line trenches and in some cases even the third line defenses. They captured approximately 20,000 Germans and about seventy-five heavy guns with other war material. All counterattacks by the Germans failed.

May 4 the French delivered a heavy attack on the German lines between Soissons and Reims, taking the village of Craonne and the whole of the enemy's first line trenches on a front of two and one-half miles. They captured all of the plateau in the neighborhood of Cerny and Craonne. There was also much fighting along the Chemin des Dames and the Californie plateau at this time and later.

Germany's crown prince continued his effort to take Verdun throughout the summer and fall and sacrificed numberless troops without making progress; in fact, he was thrown back on a number of occasions. On July 5 the Germans were thrown back everywhere along an eleven mile front on the Chemin des Dames, leaving the ground thickly strewn with their dead and having failed to take even one French soldier prisoner.

The French lines remained intact and the French commanding general who watched the operations throughout from the front trenches was able to declare at the end of the day that not a single yard of territory had been lost.

The Germans came forward everywhere in the closest formation and in successive waves, preceded by the famous "shock" troops, who were mown down by the French fire. At the first onslaught in the vicinity of Cerny and on the Californie plateau the French were obliged to give way, but their yielding was only momentary and a counterattack remedied the slight dent immediately and in addition gave them possession of some German trenches in the vicinity of Cerny, which they held. Hill 30, the last remaining stronghold of the Germans fronting Verdun, fell into French hands at dawn Aug. 24.

The French infantry, which had almost encircled the hill in previous attacks, charged the German positions in a brilliant dash and carried them by storm, capturing the remainder of the Germans entrenched there.

Not content with this splendid achievement, the French advanced a further 2,000 yards and made possession of the hill doubly secure.

Hill 304, together with Le Mort Homme, commands all the ravines and approaches as far as Douaumont. The loss of these positions deprived the Germans of all observatories from which they could watch the French movements.

In one of the swiftest and most dashing blows of the war the French troops Oct. 23 smashed through the German lines north of the Aisne to a depth of two and one-fifth miles at one point, inflicted heavy losses on the enemy and captured more than 7,500 prisoners, twenty-five heavy guns and field guns, and an enormous amount of war material.

The powerful German strongholds of Allemant, Vaudesson, La Malmaison fort and Chavignon, the mainstays of the line protecting Laon, were captured. From their new positions the French overlooked the Laon plains.

Premier Painleve announced the drive as "a most important success."

The attack was begun at 5:15 o'clock in the morning after several hours of intense bombardment. Amid inky darkness the French troops left their trenches and with a terrific barrage fire from the most powerful concentration of French guns ever gathered on such a short front preceding them they made their way toward, into and over the first German positions, sweeping all resistance aside.

Altogether six German infantry divisions were aligned facing the French attacking forces, but none of them was able to withstand the onslaught. The advance continued like clockwork and the German defeat was complete.

ON THE EASTERN FRONT.

Not much in a military way occurred on the eastern front until July 1, when the Russians opened an offensive in eastern Galicia, which netted them about 39,000 prisoners and left in their hands Brzezany, Halicz and other important towns. The troops were led by Gen. Brussloff and Gen. Korniloff and fought in the presence of Premier Kerensky, who sent the following telegram to Premier Lvoiv in Petrograd:

"On July 1 the army of revolutionary Russia took the offensive with great enthusiasm. The offensive proved to Russia and the entire world its fidelity to the revolution and its love for liberty and country. Ignoring the small groups of cowardly souls, the free Russian soldiers are consolidating by their offensive a new discipline based on the sentiment of civic duty.

"Whatever may happen, this puts an end to all slanderous attacks against the democratic Russian army. I beg of you to authorize me to hand to the regiments which participated in the fighting on July 1 red revolutionary flags and to give to them the name 'Regiments July First.'"

In view of what happened later this telegram is interesting.

This was the last great offensive undertaken by the Russian armies. The cry of "peace without annexations or indemnities" began to work its intended mischief in the ranks of the soldiers. They refused to obey orders and in many cases shot their own officers. They fled before the enemy and gave up important places like Stanislaw and Tarnopol without a struggle. The Germans and Austrians, of course, pressed forward and soon had regained all the ground they had lost and more. There were frequent changes of commanders in the Russian armies, but it was of no avail. The soldiers were thoroughly demoralized and refused to fight. There was some creditable fighting on the Roumanian front, but deserted by the Russians the soldiers of Roumania could do little.

In the early part of September the Germans crossed the Dvina river and Riga quickly fell. The enemy took the islands in the Gulf of Riga and thus obtained control of the sea in this part of the war zone. There were reports of Russian victories in naval fights, but these were discounted when the revolutionary character of the Baltic sea sailors became so prominent in the bolshevik program.

ITALIAN DISASTER.

In spite of brilliant and successful Italian offensives directed by Gen. Cadorna in May and August by which a large part of the Carso plateau and practically the whole of the Bainsizza plateau were taken from the Austrians, the Italian arms met with a great disaster in October compelling the armies to retire on the Piave line in their own country. Heavily re-enforced by troops from the Russian front, including many Germans under Field Marshal von Mackensen, the Austrians attacked on the morning of Oct. 28 and they succeeded in penetrating a certain part of the northern line where the troops had apparently been won over by a campaign of fraternization and misrepresentation, as they gave way without a struggle. It was a certain part of the second army which gave way. Caporetto was occupied the same day the attack began. The evacuation of the Bainsizza plateau followed. Canale was evacuated on the 25th, Piave on the 26th and Goritz on the next night. Monfalcone was left on the night of the 29th. The Italians lost heavily in men and guns, but succeeded in reaching the Tagliamento, where they made a temporary stand until they fell back on the Piave line. Here they were making a successful stand when this record closed. Shortly after the great retreat began Gen. Cadorna was succeeded as commander-in-chief by Gen. Diaz. The British and French rushed large forces to Italy to help prevent the Austrians and Germans from inflicting an irretrievable defeat on the southern ally. Premier David Lloyd George and some of the military chiefs of Britain also visited Italy to give what encouragement and help was possible. The declaration of war by the United States against Austria-Hungary early in December also served to strengthen the Italian resistance.

DEFENSIVE SEA AREAS.

By an executive order issued April 5, 1917, President Wilson established defensive sea areas at the entrances to the principal seaports of the United States and its insular possessions. Regulations for carrying the order into effect were issued at the same time. In general these regulations provided for entrances for incoming and outgoing vessels in the designated areas and for the manner in which vessels were to approach and cross such areas. No permission was to be granted to any other than public vessels of the United States to cross a defensive sea area between sunset and sunrise.

COMMITTEE ON PUBLIC INFORMATION.

The committee on public information was created by an executive order issued by President Wilson April 14, 1917. The order read:

"I hereby create a committee on public information to be composed of the secretary of state, the secretary of war, the secretary of the navy, and a civilian who shall be charged with the executive direction of the committee.

"As civilian chairman of the committee I appoint Mr. George Creel.

"The secretary of state, the secretary of war and the secretary of the navy are authorized each to detail an officer or officers to the work of the committee."

The committee publishes a daily paper called the Official Bulletin, containing official information concerning the war and governmental matters generally.

APPAM RESTORED TO OWNERS.

In a unanimous opinion announced March 6, 1917, the United States Supreme court held that the liner Appam and cargo, brought into Hampton roads Feb. 1, 1916, by a prize crew from the German raider Moewe, should be restored to the English owners within thirty days. Ship and cargo were valued at between $3,000,000 and $4,000,000. The court held that American neutrality was violated by bringing the ship into a port of the United States and that neither the ancient treaty relied upon by Lieut. Hans Berg, the German prize commander, the conventions adopted at The Hague nor the London declaration entitled belligerents to make American ports places of deposit of prizes as spoils of war under such circumstances.

"The principles of international law," continued the opinion, "leaving the treaty aside, will not permit the ports of the United States to be thus used by the belligerents. If such use were permitted it would constitute the ports of a neutral nation harbors of safety into which prizes might be safely brought and indefinitely kept."

UNITED STATES WORLD WAR CHRONOLOGY.

When one nation declares war on another formal notice of this action is given to all countries with which the nation declaring war has diplomatic relations. In this manner the United States was officially informed that a state of war existed by each of the belligerents that declared war. The spark that touched off the war was the murder of Archduke Francis Ferdinand, heir apparent to the thrones of Austria and Hungary, at Sarajevo, on June 28, 1914. Austria-Hungary charged the Serbian nation with complicity in the crime and demanded certain concessions by way of reparation. These were granted almost entirely, but Austria-Hungary professed not to be satisfied and declared war. In the negotiations between the different European nations with a view of averting a general conflict the United States had no part. The chronological table given below furnishes an adequate answer to the question: "Why did we go to war?"

1914.

July 23—Austria-Hungary sends ultimatum to Serbia.

July 28—Austria-Hungary declares war on Serbia.

Aug. 1—Germany declares war on Russia.

AMERICAN AND SWISS NEUTRALITY.

Under instructions from the department of state, the charge d'affaires at Bern presented to the Swiss government the following memorandum Dec. 10, 1917:

"In view of the presence of American forces in Europe engaged in the prosecution of the war against the imperial German government, the government of the United States deems it appropriate to announce for the assurance of the Swiss confederation and in harmony with the attitude of the cobelligerents of the United States in Europe, that the United States will not fail to observe the principle of neutrality applicable to Switzerland and the inviolability of its territory, so long as the neutrality of Switzerland is maintained by the confederation and respected by the enemy."

ALCOHOLIC CONTENT OF MALT LIQUORS LIMITED.

The following proclamation was issued by President Wilson Dec. 8, 1917:

"Whereas under and by virtue of an act of congress entitled 'An act to provide further for the national security and defense by encouraging the production, conserving the supply and controlling the distribution of food products and fuel,' approved by the president on Aug. 10, 1917, it is provided in section 15, among other things, as follows:

"Whenever the president shall find that limitation, regulation or prohibition of the use of foods, fruits, food materials or feeds in the production of malt or vinous liquors for beverage purposes, or that reduction of the alcoholic content of any such malt or vinous liquor, is essential, in order to assure an adequate and continuous supply of food, or that the national security and defense will be subserved thereby, he is authorized, from time to time, to prescribe and give public notice of the extent of the limitation, regulation, prohibition or reduction so necessitated. Whenever such notice shall have been given and shall remain unrevoked, no person shall, after a reasonable time prescribed in such notice, use any foods, fruits, food materials or feeds in the production of malt or vinous liquors, or import any such liquors except under license issued by the president and in compliance with rules and regulations determined by him governing the production and importation of such liquors and the alcoholic content thereof."

"Now, therefore, I, Woodrow Wilson, president of the United States of America, by virtue of the powers conferred on me by said act of congress, do hereby find and determine that the national security and defense will be subserved by the limitation of the amount of foods, fruits, food materials and feeds used in the production of malt liquor, and by reduction of the alcoholic content of malt liquor produced in the United States. And by this proclamation I prescribe and give public notice that on and after Jan. 1, 1918, the total amount of foods, fruits, food materials, and feeds used by any person in the production of malt liquor shall not exceed 70 per cent of the average consumption of any such foods, fruits, food materials, or feeds in the production of such malt liquor by such person during the period from Jan. 1, 1917, to Jan. 1, 1918, the unit of time to be fixed by regulation; and that on and after Jan. 1, 1918, no malt liquor except ale and porter shall be produced in the United States containing more than 2 1/4 per cent of alcohol by weight.

"No person shall, after Jan. 1, 1918, use any foods, fruits, food materials or feeds in the production of malt liquor unless he secures a license so to do to be issued by the commissioner of internal revenue, and complies with rules and regulations to be hereafter promulgated governing the production of such liquor and the alcoholic content thereof; and no person shall import any such liquor except under license to be issued by the division of customs, treasury department, and in compliance with any rules and regulations governing the importation of such liquors which may be promulgated."

CABINET CHANGES.

Spencer Churchill became minister of munitions and Edwin S. Montagu was made secretary for India. Carson became a member of the war cabinet without portfolio. On Aug. 13 George Nicoll Barnes was made minister of labor in succession to Arthur Henderson.

On March 17 the French cabinet, headed by Premier Briand, resigned, and a new one, with Alexander Ribot at its head, was formed. In September the Ribot cabinet gave way to one headed by Paul Painlevé, and Nov. 13 this ministry was succeeded by another under the leadership of Georges Clemenceau.

In Germany the question of peace, Prussian electoral reforms and other interior politics led to several important changes in cabinet officials. On July 14 Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg resigned and was succeeded by Dr. George Michaelis. On Aug. 6 there was another shakeup, when Dr. Zimmermann was succeeded as secretary of foreign affairs by Dr. Richard von Kuehlmann. Oct. 30 Count von Hertling, the Bavarian prime minister, was made imperial chancellor.

There were changes in the cabinet of Italy, the latest being on Oct. 30, after the disaster to Gen. Cadorna's armies in the north. Prof. Vittorio Orlando was then made premier.

Cabinet crises in Europe were numerous in 1917, nearly all the belligerent countries seeing one or more changes. Premier Lloyd George remained at the helm in Britain, though there were a number of resignations and appointments. J. Austen Chamberlain resigned from his post as secretary for India July 12. Sir Edward Carson relinquished his post as first lord of the admiralty July 17 and was succeeded by Sir Eric Campbell Geddes. At the same time Winston

MESSAGE TO ROUMANIA.

To encourage Roumania, which was placed in a difficult position by the action of the bolshevik government in Russia, President Wilson cabled the following message to King Ferdinand Dec. 1, 1917:

"The people of the United States have watched with feelings of warmest sympathy and admiration the courageous struggle of your majesty and the people of Roumania to preserve from the domination of German militarism their national integrity and freedom. The government of the United States is determined to continue to assist Roumania in the struggle.

"At the same time I wish to assure your majesty that the United States will support Roumania after the war to the best of its ability, and that in any final negotiations for peace it will use its constant efforts to see to it that the integrity of Roumania as a free and independent nation is adequately safeguarded."

SHIP INSURANCE RATES REDUCED.

On Nov. 23, 1917, Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo announced that the rates of insurance of the bureau of war risk insurance of the treasury department on all American steamers and cargoes traversing the war zone were reduced from 5 per cent to 4 per cent.

This was the second reduction of these insurance rates, the first being on Oct. 6, 1917, when the rate was reduced from 6 1/2 per cent to 5 per cent.

The new reduction was made for the same reason as the first—that is, because of a corresponding decrease in the risk involved in traversing the war zone.

This was official recognition of the fact that after the American destroyers and other war vessels went on duty in the war zone the danger from enemy submarines had greatly decreased. The decrease from 6 1/2 per cent to 4 per cent is approximately 40 per cent and speaks convincingly of the efficiency of the American navy.

WAR ACTIVITIES OF THE DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE.

The attorney-general in his annual report to congress in December, 1917, devoted much space to conditions growing out of the war and to the activities of the department of justice both before and following the entrance of the United States into the conflict. On the subject of new legislation the attorney-general said:

"Legislation should be enacted defining as a criminal offense a willful violation of the presidential proclamations relating to alien enemies promulgated under section 467 of the Revised Statutes and providing appropriate punishment. I recommend the passage of a law conferring on the president power to regulate or provide for the regulation of the entry and departure of all persons, both citizens and aliens, to and from the United States and its possessions during a state of war.

"The abnormal economic conditions resulting from the world war have brought about substantial increases in the prices of practically every commodity in consequence of which a large number of complaints have been made of alleged violations of the antitrust laws.

"In dealing with these complaints there are two broad limitations upon the powers of this department under the antitrust laws:

"First, Increases in prices, brought about not by agreement, conspiracy or monopoly, but by a common selfish impulse of traders to take advantage of the extraordinary condition of the times, are not punishable under the antitrust laws, no matter how completely lacking in economic justification, no matter how extortionate.

"Second, Sales of commodities by retailers to consumers in the various cities and communities generally fall outside the field of interstate commerce and therefore are not within reach of the federal antitrust laws.

"Within these limitations the department of justice has brought to bear its full energy. In addition, a special legal and investigating force was organized for this single purpose.

"As a result of this investigation several prosecutions have been instituted and the department is still continuing its efforts, although the situation has been to some extent changed by the enactment of the food and fuel control act and the organization of the food and fuel administrations with power to fix prices in some cases and otherwise control markets—a power which is now being actively exercised.

WAR MUNITIONS CASES.

"There have been two prosecutions of conspiracies to restrain, prevent and hinder the foreign commerce of the United States in munitions of war.

"One, in the northern district of California, was against Franz Bopp, German consul-general at San Francisco, and several others. The defendants were convicted and sentenced to imprisonment for one year. Four of them, including Bopp, were sentenced to pay fines of $5,000 each, in addition.

"The second case, in the southern district of New York, was against Von Rintelen, Martin, Lamar, Buchanan, Taylor, Fowler, Schulteis and Monnett. The jury found Von Rintelen, Lamar and Martin guilty, and each was sentenced to imprisonment for one year. There was a disagreement as to Buchanan, Fowler, Taylor and Schulteis. The indictment was dismissed as to Monnett.

"Vigorous prosecution has been made of all cases involving violations of our neutrality and German criminal activities in this country in connection with the European war. In every such case tried, the government has secured a conviction of at least some of the defendants. This should serve to discourage attempts of foreign sympathizers to use this country as a base for illegal operations designed to attack another country with which the United States is at peace.

"Immediately upon the receipt by the government of the German submarine note of Jan. 31, 1917, this department was called upon to deal with many problems relating to the German merchant ships in ports of the United States and the activities of German spies and other agents and sympathizers.

"On Feb. 2, 1917, in anticipation of attempts at violence by German sympathizers, United States attorneys were instructed by wire 'to take prompt measures to locate and prosecute, so far as federal law can reach them, all persons who may attempt to engage in activities detrimental to the United States in connection with the foreign situation.'

"On the same day telegrams were sent to United States attorneys at all ports where German ships were lying, instructing them, acting with the marshals and collectors of customs and other officials, to take prompt measures against the attempt at destruction or sinking or escape of such ships by their crews.

"Plans were considered for co-operating with local authorities in the protection of danger points.

"Over a week before the declaration by congress of a state of war with Germany the department took precautions to call upon all United States attorneys and marshals, and through them local prosecuting attorneys and sheriffs, to be on their guard and to co-operate in detecting and preventing hostile acts.

"On March 27, 1917, letters of instruction to use special vigilance were sent to the United States attorneys and marshals.

ARREST OF ALIEN ENEMIES.

"The problem of dealing with alien enemies resident in the United States received long and careful consideration, and plans were prepared for registration and internment, if such steps should become necessary.

"Meanwhile, prior to the passage of the joint resolution of congress of April 6, 1917, elaborate preparation was made for the arrest of upward of sixty-three alien enemies, whom past investigation had shown to constitute a danger to the peace and safety of the United States if allowed to remain at large. These arrests were made immediately after the president issued his proclamation. The long lists of other Germans and German sympathizers which had been accumulated in the department files as a result of its investigations since August, 1914, were classified, and the more dangerous alien enemies of these were subsequently interned under the president's proclamation from time to time as circumstances necessitated or made advisable.

"Some of those interned have been paroled with the necessary bonds and restrictions. There have been 295 arrests of alien enemies under the president's proclamation up to June 30, 1917. (Up to Oct. 30 there have been 895.)

WAR LEGISLATION.

"During February, 1917, the department was asked for advice in reference to the so called espionage bill, which was passed by the senate Feb. 20. This bill was framed by combining the various bills as to foreign relations and neutral obligations of the United States, which had been recommended by the attorney-general in May, 1916, and which, with the reasons for their adoption, are set forth at length in his last annual report. To these bills was added an espionage measure.

"The department has also been called on for many services in connection with drafting war legislation and presidential proclamations, notably parts of the naval appropriation act, the joint resolution of May 12, 1917, for the taking over of German ships, and the act of May 7, 1917, amending the foreign enlistment law.

"Following the passage of the act of May 8, 1917, for raising a national army, and prior to June 5—the day of registration thereunder—preparations were made to see to it that persons failing to register or aiding others in such failure should be vigorously prosecuted. After June 5 such prosecutions were at once instituted in all cases justifying it, and in certain extreme cases—which were happily sporadic—prosecutions were instituted under section 6 of the penal code for forcibly obstructing the execution of a law of the United States. The fact that the cases were carefully investigated before proceedings were taken and that none but proper ones were prosecuted is shown by the very large proportion of convictions in those cases which it was found necessary to bring to trial.

DISLOYAL PERSONS PUNISHED.

"A number of prosecutions have been instituted against persons charged with circulating newspapers and pamphlets and making speeches with intent to obstruct the recruiting and enlisting of men for the national army. The care used by the department in its desire to do nothing to interfere with the legitimate exercise of the right of free speech is shown by the fact that in practically every case convictions were secured and substantial sentences imposed. In one instance the convicted defendant was sentenced to serve twenty years in the penitentiary. Other cases of conviction have carried sentences of from one to six years, and apparently the courts have treated the offense, when established, as serious and consequently meriting severe punishment.

"In view of the helpful legislation completed at the last session of congress, the government's hands have been materially strengthened so that it now has power to deal with disturbing malcontents.

Concerning the bureau of investigation the attorney-general said:

"As the work increased and the probability that this country would be drawn into the war became more certain, the department encouraged the organization of various local volunteer citizens' committees for the purpose of being on the lookout for disloyal or enemy activities and the presentation of such matters to the proper officials. These volunteer associations have rendered very great assistance. One of them in particular, which is nationwide in scope and which is known as the American Protective League, has proved to be invaluable, and constitutes a most important auxiliary and reserve force for the bureau of investigation."

RESTRICTIONS ON AUSTRIANS.

The following statement was issued Dec. 12, 1917, by the attorney-general:

"The proclamation issued by the president today proclaims a state of war existing between this country and Austria-Hungary, calls upon all citizens to perform their duty, warns subjects of the enemy to conform to our laws and enjoins upon American citizens the duty of treating subjects of the enemy who remain loyal to the United States with all such friendliness as may be compatible with loyalty and allegiance to the United States.

"This proclamation differs from the preceding proclamation relating to the subjects of the German empire in that, while it authorizes the arrest and internment of any subjects of the dual empire whose conduct may be a menace to the safety of the country, the only restrictions which it contains are prohibitions against either entering or leaving the United States without first obtaining permission.

"Many subjects of Austria-Hungary have already demonstrated their strong loyalty to this country by their faithfulness in industrial work, their organization of recruiting committees and in service with our armies. For the present, therefore, no restrictions will be placed upon the movements of subjects of Austria-Hungary. They are not subject to the restrictions of the previous proclamations relating to German enemy aliens; they will be permitted to reside and labor in prohibited areas and to travel freely without molestation. Only those who are dangerous or disloyal are subject to arrest."

LEAGUE FOR NATIONAL UNITY.

The League for National Unity was organized at a final meeting in Washington Monday, Oct. 8, for the following purpose:

"To create a medium through which the loyal Americans of all classes, sections, creeds and parties can give expression to the fundamental purpose of the United States to carry on to a successful conclusion this new war for the independence of America and the preservation of democratic institutions and the vindication of the basic principles of humanity."

The officers elected were as follows: Honorary chairman, his eminence James Cardinal Gibbons; honorary chairman, Frank Mason North. Federal Council of the Churches of Christ of America: chairman, Theo. N. Vail, president American Telephone and Telegraph company; vice-chairmen, Samuel Gompers, president American Federation of Labor; Charles A. Barrett, president Farmers' Educational and Co-Operative Union in America; George Pope, president National Association of Manufacturers; director, Ralph M. Easley, chairman National Civic Federation; secretary, D. L. Cease, editor Railway Trainmen's Journal; treasurer, Otto H. Kahn, Kuhn, Loeb & Co.

Executive Committee—James M. Beck, 55 Wall street; Warren S. Stone, grand chief International Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers; Oliver Wilson, grand master National Grange; Walter George Smith, president American Bar association; William R. Wilcox, chairman republican national committee; Vance McCormick, chairman democratic national committee; Robert E. Speer, chairman war time commission of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America; Col. P. H. Callahan, chairman committee on war activities, Knights of Columbus; Alfred E. Marling, chairman international committee of Young Men's Christian association; Rev. Stephen S. Wise, rabbi Free Synagogue; Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, women's committee Council of National Defense; Emerson McMillin, president World Court league; V. Everitt Macy, president National Civic Federation; William English Walling, Greenwich, Conn.; George Wharton Pepper, president national committee of patriotic and defense societies; Dr. R. H.

Gerard, president National Fraternal Congress of America; William H. Ingersoll, National Association of Advertising Clubs.

The following declaration of principles was adopted:

In an hour when our nation is fighting for the principles upon which it was founded; in an hour when free institutions and the hopes of humanity are at stake, we hold it the duty of every American to take his place on the firing line of public opinion.

It is not a time for old prejudices or academic discussion as to past differences. Those who are not now for America are against America.

Our cause is just. We took up the sword only when international law and ancient rights were set at naught, and when our forbearance had been exhausted by persistent deception and broken pledges.

Our aims are explicit, our purposes unsoiled by any selfishness. We defend the sanctities of life, the fundamental decencies of civilization. We fight for a just and durable peace and that the rule of reason shall be restored to the community of nations.

In this crisis the unity of the American people must not be impaired by the voices of dissension or sedition.

Agitation for a premature peace is seditious when its object is to weaken the determination of America to see the war through to a conclusive vindication of the principles for which we have taken up arms.

The war we are waging is a war against war, and its sacrifices must not be nullified by any truce or armistice that means no more than a breathing spell for the enemy.

We believe in the wise purpose of the president not to negotiate a peace with any irresponsible and autocratic dynasty.

We approve the action of the national government in dispatching an expeditionary force to the land of Lafayette and Rochambeau. Either we fight the enemy on foreign soil, shoulder to shoulder with comrades in arms, or we fight on our own soil, backs against our homes, and alone.

While this war lasts the cause of the allies is our cause, their defeat our defeat, and concert of action and unity in spirit between them and us are essential to final victory. We therefore deprecate the exaggeration of old national prejudices—often stimulated by German propaganda—and nothing is more important than the clear understanding that those who in this crisis attack our present allies attack America.

We are organized in the interests of a national accord that rises high above any previous division of party, race, creed and circumstance.

We believe that this is the critical and fateful hour for America and for civilization. To lose now is to lose for many generations. The peril is great and requires our highest endeavors. If defeat comes to us through any weakness, Germany, whose purposes for worldwide domination are now revealed, might draw to itself, as a magnet does the filings, the residuum of world power and this would affect the standing and the independence of America.

We not only accept but heartily approve the decision reached by the president and congress of the United States to declare war against the common enemy of the free nations, and as loyal citizens of the United States we pledge to the president and the government our undivided support to the very end.

UNITED STATES ARMY WAR COUNCIL.

Created Dec. 15, 1917.

Newton D. Baker, secretary of war.
 Benedict Crowell, assistant secretary of war.
 Gen. Tasker H. Bliss, chief of staff.
 Maj.-Gen. Henry G. Sharpe, quartermaster-general.
 Maj.-Gen. William Crozier, chief of ordnance.
 Maj.-Gen. Erasmus M. Weaver, chief of coast artillery.
 Maj.-Gen. Enoch H. Crowder, provost marshal and judge-advocate general.
 The creation of the new board was announced by Secretary of War Baker Dec. 15 as follows:
 "Plans which have been under consideration for some weeks were consummated in a general order issued to-day creating a war council within the war department.
 "The purpose of the council is to oversee and co-ordinate all matters of supply of our field armies and the military relations between the armies in the field and the war department. The council will act through the chief of staff.
 "There will be added to the council from time to time general officers of large experience, so that it may constitute the main reliance of the department for the large planning and initiative necessary to make our support of the armies in the field most effective and helpful.
 "The war council does not take over the specialized duties of the general staff or the war college, but is intended to bring to the larger problems of the department both the experience and general training of the officers of most mature years and largest experience in the service."

CENSORSHIP OF INTERNATIONAL MAIL.

The following notice was issued by Postmaster-General Burleson Dec. 11, 1917:
 Censorship of international mail has been inaugurated pursuant to section 3 of the trading-with-the-enemy act, and sections 14, 15 and 16 of the executive order of Oct. 12, 1917.
 The censorship will be conducted at New York, the Canal Zone, Porto Rico and such other places as may be deemed necessary, and with as little interference with legitimate correspondence as is compatible with such examination of the mails as is considered necessary in the public interest.
 A censor's label on the envelope does not imply that the writer or the addressee of the letter is under suspicion, but only that its examination is thought to be necessary in safeguarding the government's interests. When it has been established that the letter is innocuous, it is sent forward with the least possible delay.
 The postal service with foreign countries is considerably disorganized owing to infrequent and irregular steamship service, and to other causes due to the war, and it must be borne in mind that the delayed delivery of letters may be due to this disorganization rather than to the censorship.

CHICAGO'S LOYALTY PROVED.

From the foregoing record it will be seen that there could be no just ground for doubting the loyalty of Chicago to the government in prosecuting the war against Germany. Yet, owing to the attitude taken by the city's chief executive, beginning with his refusal formally to invite the French and British war missions to visit the western metropolis, an impression was created that the citizens were lukewarm in support of the war. On April 24 a group of leading aldermen issued a call for a special session. In part the call said:

"Whereas, Mayor Thompson appears doubtful of his legal right to invite these distinguished allies of the United States to Chicago and expresses a doubt as to the welcome which might be accorded them; and,

"Whereas, There can be no doubt of the loyalty of the city council and the true citizenship of Chicago, you are requested to issue a call to the members of the city council for a special meeting to take action upon the whole subject matter."

The call was signed by the following aldermen:

HENRY D. CAPITAIN, 25th ward.
WILLIS O. NANCE, 6th ward.
JOHN N. KIMBALL, 7th ward.
ALBERT J. FISHER, 32d ward.
FRANK J. LINK, 25th ward.
WALTER P. STEFEN, 23d ward.
JOSEPH O. KOSTNER, 34th ward.
JAMES M'NICHOLS, 10th ward.
WILLIAM F. LIPPS, 26th ward.
JOHN TOMAN, 34th ward.

On the same day, in explaining his position, the mayor said he did not know the purpose of the distinguished Frenchmen in coming to Chicago. "Are they coming here," he asked, "to encourage the doing of things to make our people suffer further or have they some other purpose? Before the mayor of Chicago invites them here for all the people—and it is understood that he represents all the people—I want to know their purpose in coming here.

"Our national officers seem to have their minds set on seeing how much they can spend and how much food they can ship out. It's time they considered their fresides at home."

The mayor read figures from the school census of 1914 showing that of Chicago's population 506,000 have American born parents, 876,000 are foreign born and 754,000 are American born with foreign born parents.

"Chicago is the sixth largest German city in the world," said the mayor, "the second largest Bohemian, the second largest Swedish, the second largest Norwegian and the second largest Polish."

The remark that Chicago was "the sixth German city in the world" was taken up throughout the country and for months thereafter was used to bolster up the assertion that the city was less loyal to the government than other great communities, especially New York.

The city council at a special session adopted unanimously, except for three socialist members, resolutions asking the French commission to be guests of the city. The Frenchmen had considered canceling the proposed visit, but on learning the real sentiments of the city adhered to the original program and came. The full membership of the committee chosen to welcome the distinguished visitors to Chicago is given here to show its representative character. Cyrus H. McCormick was the general chairman.

VISIT OF VIVIANI AND JOFFRE.

One of the memorable incidents of the war so far as Chicago was concerned was the visit to the city on May 4 and 5, 1917, of the leading members of the French

American Press Association.

RENE VIVIANI.

Col. Jean Fabry, Gen. Joffre's chief of staff; Lieutenant-Commander May, and Lieut. de Tessaun, military aid to Gen. Joffre. The distinguished party traveled from Washington on a special train and were escorted by Lieut.-Col. Spencer Cosby, U. S. A., Lieutenant-Commander Allen Buchanan, U. S. N., and Breckinridge Long, third assistant secretary of state. Every effort was made by the American government to protect the visitors from possible harm and the movements of the train as well as the names of the roads on which it traveled were not made public.

In Chicago there had been much criticism of the mayor, William Hale Thompson, for his apparent unwillingness to invite the French mission to Chicago and especially for his reference to the municipality as being the "sixth German city in the world." The city council, however, took the matter in hand and passed a resolution formally extending the invitation to the distinguished Frenchmen. To this was added an invitation from Gov. Frank O. Lowden to visit the state, and the mission accepted. It left Washington Thursday, May 3, and arrived in Chicago at noon May 4. The welcome given the mission was enthusiastic and cordial. The city was decorated with the flags of France, America and Britain and large crowds attended all the public appearances of the visitors. The program for their stay in Chicago included a luncheon at the Chicago club, a reception at the Blackstone hotel, a banquet at the Congress hotel, a mass meeting at the Auditorium, a visit to the Art institute, a parade in the downtown district, a luncheon at the University of Chicago and a meeting open to the general public in the Dexter pavilion at the Union stockyards. Mayor Thompson took part in welcoming the visitors, making an address at the Auditorium meeting, but on account of his previous attitude his efforts were rather coldly received by the public. Cyrus H. McCormick was the chairman of the reception committee, which included, among others, Maj.-Gen. Thomas H. Barry, commander of the central department of the army; Capt. William A. Moffett, commandant of the Great Lakes naval training station; Lieut.-Gov. John G. Oglesby and Antonin Barthelemy, French consul.

At the Auditorium meeting on the evening of the 4th the speakers were Edgar A. Bancroft, chairman of the gathering; Mayor Thompson, Gov. Lowden and M. Viviani, who made an address in French. Both he and Gen. Joffre, who was presented to the audience but did not speak, received ovations. At the banquet which preceded the meeting addresses were made by Cyrus H. McCormick and M. Viviani. Some 300 persons were present. At the Dexter pavilion meeting, on the afternoon of the 5th, Charles G. Dawes presided and both M. Viviani and Gen. Joffre made speeches. The former emphasized the fact that the war was not for conquest, but for humanity and democracy, while the marshal of France, in closing his brief remarks, said: "I am sure that all American workmen are one in heart with their brother workmen in France and are ready like them to fight for the final victory of democracy." The other addresses on this occasion were made by Mr. Dawes, Gov. Lowden and Raymond Robins. After the meeting the members of the mission left on a special train for Kansas City, Mo.

While in Chicago M. Viviani, Gen. Joffre and others in the party made their headquarters at the home of R. T. Crane, Jr., 1550 Lake Shore drive.

VISIT OF ITALIAN MISSION.

The prince of Udine, head of the Italian mission to the United States, was prevented by illness from coming to Chicago, but the others came and were received with warmth and enthusiasm not only by their countrymen but by the people of Chicago generally. Those in the party were:

Enrico Arlotto, minister of transportation.
Marquis Luigi Borsarelli di Rifeffredo, under-secretary of state for foreign affairs.
Giulio Marconi, senator of the kingdom.
Augusto Ciuffelli, member of the chamber of deputies.
Francesco Saverio Nitti, member of the chamber of deputies.

Cavaliere de Parente of the Italian foreign office, honorary secretary of the mission.

Gen. Guglielmotti, military attache of the Italian embassy at Washington.

John Latta Ryan, secretary of embassy, department of state.

John P. S. Harrison, civilian aid, attached to the mission.

Secretaries of commissioners.
Aldo Gasuto, representative of Italian press.

BELGIAN MISSION.

The Belgian war mission, which arrived July 3 and was cordially received, consisted of Baron Ludovic Moncheur, Gen. Matthieu Leclercq of the 1st Belgian cavalry division; Maj. Leon Osterlieth of the 1st Belgian Guides; Comte Louis d'Urse; Adjt. Maurice Thonnart, serving as secretary to Gen. Leclercq, and Orderly Edgar Danglois.

CONFLICT OVER PEACE MEETINGS.

The holding of a pacifist meeting in the Auditorium which was attended with some disorder caused the city council at its session on June 11 to adopt a resolution introduced by Ald. Kerner to the effect that the existence of the state of war should silence discussion and criticism and that free expression of disloyal sentiment was equivalent to giving aid and comfort to the enemy in time of war. The resolution was passed by a vote of sixty to eight. Those voting in the negative were:

Eugene Block, 9th ward.
Charles V. Johnson, 9th ward.
W. E. Rodriguez, 15th ward.
Edward J. Kaindl, 15th ward.
John Haderlein, 24th ward.
John C. Kennedy, 27th ward.
Thomas F. Byrne, 29th ward.
M. A. Michaelson, 33d ward.

In September Gov. Frank O. Lowden, the citizens of Chicago and the city council came into conflict with Mayor Thompson over a meeting of the "People's Council of America for Democracy and Terms of Peace." The members of this organization had been refused permission to meet in Minnesota, North Dakota and Wisconsin and finally came to Chicago. They attempted to hold a meeting in the West Side Auditorium Sept. 1, but Chief of Police Schuetzler at the request of Gov. Lowden stopped it. The governor ordered troops to Chicago to end any further efforts to have the pacifists meet in Illinois, basing his action on the following reasons:

"The governor is charged with the responsibility of preserving peace in the state. If, in his judgment, disorder and riot are likely to result from the so called peace meeting, it is his duty and he has the power to prevent the meeting. My understanding is that while the meeting purports to be in the interests of peace, it is really intended to obstruct the government in the prosecution of the war in which we are now engaged and is calculated to produce disorder and rioting in Illinois. I will not, therefore, permit this meeting to be held in Illinois."

Mayor Thompson, who apparently was in sympathy with the pacifists, resented the governor's action and rebuked the police for obeying the orders of the state executive. He said:

"I want to know by what right Gov. Lowden is giving orders to the police department of Chicago. So far as I am concerned as a public official, the constitution of the United States will be enforced in the city of Chicago. No persons will be interfered with by me who conduct themselves in accordance with the law. So far as I know these people don't desire to do anything in violation of the law, and they have a perfect right to hold their meeting."

Backing up this opinion by action, the mayor instructed the police to permit the meeting and it was held in the West Side Auditorium on the afternoon of Sept. 2. Congressman William E. Mason was one of the principal orators. Gen. Dickson with four companies of the 9th regiment left Springfield in the afternoon of that day, but arrived in Chicago too late to stop the gathering. The federal authorities had made preparations to act in unison with the state, but all the precautions taken were nullified by the mayor's action.

MAYOR REBUKED BY CITY COUNCIL.

Sept. 4 the council met and recommended the adoption of resolutions presented by Ald. John Toman commending Gov. Lowden for his efforts to stop the meeting and requesting the proper authorities to prevent such gatherings in the future. The resolutions could not be acted upon until Oct. 16, when they were adopted. They were as follows:

"Whereas, repeated efforts have been made to make Chicago appear not only as out of harmony with the federal government but actually as having a lack of loyalty and as being desirous and anxious to give aid and comfort to German sympathizers and Prussianism, if not to the German government itself; and,

"Whereas, a large percentage of these efforts intend thereby to interfere with or harass the government, or create unrest, friction and dissension among the people, or to obtain personal advantage, political preference or publicity which may be capitalized to get position, honor or cash; and,

"Whereas, such an effort was that of the self-styled 'People's Council of America for Democracy and Terms of Peace,' which the governor of the state forbade holding a meeting in Illinois, and which gathering of the 'People's Council' the administrative officials of the city of Chicago permitted in direct and defiant violation of the order of the governor; therefore, be it

"Resolved, That we, the aldermanic representatives of the city of Chicago, and all loyal, true and patriotic citizens therein, express to Frank O. Lowden, governor of Illinois, our sincere approbation of and whole hearted thanks for his aggressive effort to prevent the blotch of disloyalty from smearing the reputation of the city of Chicago. Be it further

"Resolved, That we hereby request said Frank O. Lowden, governor of the state of Illinois, and officials of the city of Chicago and of the county of Cook to prevent the holding of any meeting or meetings in the future in the city of Chicago by the 'People's Council of America for Democracy and Terms of Peace,' or by any other organization or by any body of persons whatsoever for the purpose of engaging in any discussion or agitation which may be inimical to public peace or safety, or which may be disloyal or treasonable to the United States of America or prejudicial to the interests of said United States in the war in which it is now engaged with Germany."

The vote on the adoption of the resolutions was:

Mayor Thompson vetoed the resolutions in a long message in which he referred to the council's action as "futile and ludicrous," but the aldermen passed them over the veto by a vote of forty-eight to twelve. Those voting to sustain the veto were Coughlin, Norris, Anderson, Cross, Block, Johnson, Cullerton, Rodriguez, Powers, Haderlein, Rea, Michaelson.

WORK DONE BY CHICAGO.

At a meeting held in Orchestra hall Oct. 7 under the auspices of the Sunday Evening club the topic as announced was "Chicago and Patriotism." Samuel Insull, chairman of the Illinois state council of defense; Bishop Samuel Fallows, a former brigadier-general of volunteers, and Harrison B. Riley, chairman of the Chicago citizens' war board, were the speakers.

Mr. Insull gave concrete evidence to prove that Chicago was doing more than its share in keeping up its end of the war game.

"Let's see what Chicago has done," he said. "When volunteers for the army were asked, Chicago's quota was 11,000 men. The city sent 29,000. Besides these the state militia has furnished seven complete regiments of 2,000 each—all volunteers. The citizenship of Chicago has further contributed 2,000 volunteers to the officers' training camps and the selective draft quota of 25,000 men was supplied promptly, willingly and enthusiastically.

"Besides, for state purposes during the war, Chicago has contributed 6,000 men, below and over the draft age, for home defense, four regiments have been formed from them and tendered to the governor by the state council of defense. Altogether the city has contributed soldiers of all classes to the number of upward of 100,000 men.

"The city was asked for 100,000 members of the Red Cross. Chicago contributed 400,000 members. The city contributed in money to the Red Cross a fund of $5,000,000, or one-twentieth of the nation's total, although we have only between one-fortieth and one-fiftieth of the population.

"Chicago's share of the first liberty bond issue was $260,000,000, but the citizens of Chicago subscribed $367,195,000 to furnish money to win the war."

Space will not permit a detailed account of all the great parades, mass meetings, drives for the liberty loans, the Y. M. C. A. and Red Cross funds and the numberless other activities of Chicago in furthering the war, but regarding some of the leading features some additional particulars may be given.

CHICAGO AND THE DRAFT.

The work of getting ready for the draft in Chicago was enormous. The city was divided into eighty-six districts, for each of which an exemption board was appointed. The registration, as elsewhere in the country, took place June 5 without any disturbance or objection and cards were issued to 398,899 men of the proper age. By wards the registration as announced the next morning was as follows:

Ward.	Men voters.	Regis- tration.

City.....504,421 308,889

The total for Cook county was 343,060. Revision and belated returns made the final total for Chicago 313,866.

Oak Park led the western suburbs in the number of men registered for war, with Cicero a close second. Oak Park's registration totaled 2,600 names, while that of Cicero was 2,350. The other towns recorded the following number of registered men:

Maywood.....175	Western Springs...108
LaGrange.....1,090	Argo.....187
Riverside.....298	Schiller Park.....48
Berwyn.....1,085	Franklin Park.....32
Forest Park.....318	Elmwood Park.....37
Lyons.....240	Hinsdale.....252
Summit.....60	River Grove.....59
Hillside.....64

The north shore towns' registration maintained relatively the high figures reported in Chicago. The total registration in Evanston was 3,161, divided among the seventeen wards of the city as follows:

Ward.	Reg.	Ward.	Reg.
1	151	10	146
2	149	11	209
3	233	12	316

6	124	15	181
7	266	16	79
8	387	17	186
9	122

In other towns along the north shore and elsewhere the figures were:

Highland Park.....585	Winnetka.....407
Niles Center.....158	Wilmette.....398
Kenilworth.....40	Lake Forest.....417
Glencoe.....276

WORK OF EXEMPTION BOARDS.

The exemption boards completed their preliminary work July 14 and the lists of the prospective soldiers of the national army were placed in the hands of the constituted authorities. The cards handled by each of the eighty-six boards were as follows:

THE DRAFT.

The drawing of the numbers in Washington on July 20 was followed with intense interest by the registrants and their friends in Chicago. If a man drew a low number he was certain to be called for examination for the first contingent to go into the new army; if he drew a high number he might never be called.

On July 23 it was announced that the net quota of Chicago men for the first half million or more men of the national army was 24,982; the quota for Cook county was 27,830.

ILLINOIS APPEAL BOARDS.

Provost Marshal General Crowder in Washington on July 25 announced the appointment of the following eight district appeal boards of Chicago and Illinois:

NORTHERN DISTRICT.

Division No. 1—Dr. E. J. Doering, Jacob H. Hopkins, Harry Pratt Judson, Victor A. Olander, Theodore W. Robinson.

Division No. 2—Ralph Crews, Dr. M. L. Harris, H. H. Merrick, Seymour Morris, George W. Perkins.

Division No. 3—John V. Farwell, John Fitzpatrick, Frank Hamlin, Luman T. Hoy, Dr. J. L. Taylor.

Division No. 4—A. N. Abbott, John C. Harding, Peter Peterson, Dr. Jeremiah S. Stealy, R. K. Welsh.

SOUTHERN DISTRICT.

Division No. 1—L. C. Blanding, William O. R. Bradley, Charles Ford, Henry Herget, Frank J. Quinn.

Division No. 2—Charles Boeschstein, Frank Farrington, John E. Hagan, H. G. Keays, Charles L. Patton.

EASTERN DISTRICT.

Division No. 1—Dr. W. F. Grinstead, William Noble, Frank T. O'Hair, John Rolla, Alois Towers.

Division No. 2—Dr. Thomas O. Freeman, W. F. Handshing, W. C. P. Morris, Thomas H. Moses, John H. Walker.

PARADE OF FIRST CALL MEN.

By Aug. 1 the draft boards were all at work and the process of weeding out the men exempt for any reason had begun. On Aug. 4 occurred a memorable parade of first call men. It started at 10 o'clock in the forenoon. Platoons of police on horseback and on foot led the procession, followed by the 4,000 reserve officers from the Fort Sheridan training camp. These soldiers carried guns and brought forth rousing cheers from the massed pavement by their fine military bearing. Policemen and firemen available for service in the new national army headed the registered men.

Next in order came the famous "258" men—those whose numbers corresponded to the first number drawn from the big glass bowl in Washington on the day of the draft. They carried a banner announcing to the throngs that they were the first to be called by Uncle Sam.

The line of march was north in Michigan avenue from 8th street to Randolph street, west to LaSalle, south to Washington, east to State, south to Monroe, west to LaSalle, south to Adams, east to State, south to Jackson boulevard and west to Franklin—the route of the "preparedness" parade staged before Uncle Sam began to roll up his sleeves in earnest.

All of the divisions in the Chicago district were represented in the parade. Many of the local exemption boards continued their examinations through the day and for this reason many of the registered men were unable to appear in the parade. It was estimated that more than 10,000 registered men in civilian clothes participated in the procession, a total which, in view of general conditions, was considered large by those who sponsored the "National Army day" parade.

Seldom if ever before had the downtown district been more elaborately decorated. All ally flags were flung to the heat tempering east wind and on the pavements the colors of the nations warring against kaiserism mixed freely. The Russian flag was more prominent than ever before in the history of the city. Bohemians and Slovaks carried banners urging independence for the little nations and there were many banners supporting the sorely tried democracy of Russia.

The general setting along Michigan avenue was in keeping with the military significance of the day—"National Army day," which falls on the third anniversary of the actual outbreak of the European conflict. Standing at salute to the north and south of the reviewing stand were various regiments of the federalized national guard.

GEN. BARRY'S TRIBUTE.

After the last of the national army parade had passed the reviewing stand Maj.-Gen. Thomas H. Barry, commanding officer of the central division of the United States army, sat on the rail of the stand and wrote the following statement:

"Chicago or no other city in the United States, or the world, ever witnessed a finer sight than the parade of this morning in honor of the selected men composed solely of young American manhood, without a slacker in the bunch.

"I can't speak in too high praise of those fine training camp men and the wonderful progress they have made in three months' intensive training. Their hearts are in it and they have had the benefit of the best instructors in the United States army. After the exhibition they gave, if there is any one in the country who does not now believe in the military service and training, he should go hide himself.

"God bless the selected men, their leaders, the training camp men—and woe betide those whom they go up against on the other side.

"I thank the good people of Chicago for the compliment paid their soldiers of all classes.

"From the appearance of the selected men today it will not take long to whip them into shape, and many among them will be heard from in high rank and position, and in later years monuments will be erected to them.

"I hope other cities will follow the example set in this parade to-day.

"MAJ.-GEN. THOMAS H. BARRY.

"Commanding Central Department U. S. A.

"Chicago, Aug. 4, 1917."

The men of the national army began leaving Chicago for Camp Grant at Rockford Sept. 4 in contingents of various sizes and soon they were busily engaged in the work of training. Many of them returned to Chicago late in November and took part in a parade and those who had seen them in the honor parade on Aug. 4 were amazed at the transformation in the men. They had improved in health, in bearing and in spirits and impressed all who saw them with the idea that they had advanced a long way toward becoming real soldiers. Chicago was proud of them.

Chicago was proud also of its national guardsmen and its thousands of volunteers in the regular army, the navy and marine corps, the aviation service, the officers' reserve corps and of all its workers, men and women, military and civilian. It felt that it had amply proved its right to be classed among the foremost of the country's patriotic communities.

DEATH OF COUNT ZEPPELIN.

Count Ferdinand von Zeppelin, inventor of the airship bearing his name, died at Charlottenburg, near Berlin, Germany, March 8, 1917, from pneumonia. He was born in Constance, Baden, July 8, 1838, became a soldier and fought in the Austro-Prussian and Franco-Prussian wars. While acting as a military observer in the American civil war he became interested in ballooning, making his first ascent in one of the captive balloons used by the union army. On his return home he devoted his fortune and time to aeronautics, his crowning achievement being the construction of the Zeppelin dirigibles. These were first used as passenger craft, but in the European war became a military weapon of considerable value especially for scouting purposes. Fleets of these airships crossed the North sea to England, some of them going as far as London, the destruction of which by aerial bombardment was said to have been one of Count Zeppelin's ambitions. While they destroyed some property and caused the loss of perhaps 1,500 lives, chiefly of noncombatants, they were a failure as a purely offensive weapon and the German military authorities decided to discontinue building them for other than scouting purposes. Before this decision was arrived at a number of the Zeppelins were shot down in England, while others were lost in storms, the crews in most cases perishing miserably without a chance of escape. Each war Zeppelin cost about $600,000.

PUBLIC LIBRARIES FOR SOLDIERS.

The week beginning Sept. 24, 1917, was observed throughout the country as "library war fund week" and was especially devoted to raising a fund of $1,000,000 for the construction, equipment and maintenance of soldiers' public libraries in every cantonment and camp in the United States. Library facilities also were to be provided from this fund for Uncle Sam's sailors afloat and ashore, for the wounded and the sick, and even for men on the firing line.

Besides a library war council appointed by Secretary Baker, which had the raising of this fund in hand, the campaign in each state was supervised by a state war council, composed of leading men and women in all sections. Frank A. Vanderlip, president of the National City bank of New York, was chairman of the national library council.

The campaign for funds was successful and libraries were installed in many of the mobilization and training camps of the army and navy. The work is under the supervision of the American Library association.

EXPLOSION ON AMERICAN SUBMARINE.

An explosion on the American submarine A-7 at Cavite, Philippine islands, July 24, 1917, killed five men and injured three of the officers and crew. The explosion was apparently due to the ignition of gas within the ship.

WARSHIP TONNAGE OF PRINCIPAL NAVAL POWERS.

Number and displacement of warships, built and building, of 1,500 or more tons, and of torpedo craft of more than fifty tons. From table prepared by the office of naval intelligence, United States navy department, July 1, 1914. Owing to the war in Europe no later official information relating to the navies of the belligerent powers is available. It may be noted that while some of these powers have lost many ships they have continued building new ones. Information, so far as permissible, is given on page 493 of this volume as to the present status of the United States navy.

ILLINOIS NAVAL VOLUNTEERS.

The various divisions of the Illinois naval volunteers, formerly known as the Illinois naval reserves, went into active service immediately after the declaration of war, 450 being sent east as early as April 9. Since that time many more have been forwarded to the Atlantic seaboard after training with other naval units at the Great Lakes station and elsewhere. The officers and men have been incorporated into the complements of battle ships and other warcraft and have been doing sea duty in the war for months.

The headquarters of the Chicago divisions are on the U. S. S. Commodore, Capt. Edward A. Evers commanding.

THE SAGE FOUNDATION.

March 12, 1907, Mrs. Russell Sage of New York announced that she had set aside the sum of $10,000,000 to be known as the Sage Foundation and to be devoted to the improvement of the social and living conditions in the United States.

Following is a part of the statement given out by Mrs. Sage as to the object of the gift: "I have set aside $10,000,000 for the endowment of this foundation. Its object is the improvement of social and living conditions in the United States. The means to that end will include research, publication, education, the establishment and maintenance of charitable and beneficial activities, agencies and institutions and the aid of any such activities, agencies and institutions already established."

The general director of the fund is John M. Glenn. Office, 130 East 22d street, New York, N. Y.

CONGRESS VOTES FOR NATIONAL PROHIBITION.

The house of representatives in Washington, D. C., by a vote of 232 to 123 adopted, Dec. 18, 1917, the Webb resolution submitting to the states an amendment providing for the suppression of the liquor traffic one year after the ratification of the amendment by the required thirty-six state legislatures and also providing that the amendment shall be inoperative unless ratified within seven years from the date of submission.

Following is the joint resolution as adopted by the house and senate:

"Article—Section 1. After one year from the ratification of this article the manufacture, sale or transportation of intoxicating liquors within, the importation thereof into, or the exportation thereof from the United States and all territory subject to the jurisdiction thereof for beverage purposes is hereby prohibited.

"Sec. 2. The congress and the several states shall have concurrent power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation.

"Sec. 3. This article shall be inoperative unless it shall have been ratified as an amendment to the constitution by the legislatures of the several states, as provided in the constitution, within seven years from the date of the submission hereof to the states by the congress."

FARM LOAN BANKS.

HEIGHT OF WOMEN'S SHOES FIXED.
The British war office in December, 1917, issued an order forbidding, from Feb. 1, 1918, except under permit from director of raw materials, the purchase, sale or offers to purchase or sell any boots for women with uppers exceeding 7 inches in height if of leather or 8 inches in height if of any other material. From Jan. 1 manufacturers are forbidden to cut material or uppers exceeding the dimensions named.

The following cities were designated Dec. 27, 1916, for the location of the farm loan banks authorized by the act of July 17, 1916:
Springfield, Mass.
Baltimore, Md.
Columbia, S. C.
New Orleans, La.
Houston, Tex.
St. Louis, Mo.
Louisville, Ky.
St. Paul, Minn.

I. W. W. TACTICS OR METHODS.

[From "The History, Structure and Methods of the I. W. W.," by Vincent St. John, published by the I. W. W. Publishing Bureau, Newcastle, Pa.]

As a revolutionary organization the Industrial Workers of the World aim to use any and all tactics that will get the results sought with the least expenditure of time and energy.

The tactics used are determined solely by the power of the organization to make good their use. The question of "right" and "wrong" does not concern us.

No terms made with an employer are final. All peace, so long as the wage system lasts, is but an armed truce. At any favorable opportunity the struggle for more control of industry is renewed.

The Industrial Workers realize that the day of successful long strikes is past. Under all ordinary circumstances a strike that is not won in four to six weeks cannot be won by remaining out longer. In trusted industry the employer can better afford to fight one strike than he can six strikes that take place in that period.

The organization does not allow any part to enter into time contracts with the employers. It aims, where strikes are used, to paralyze all branches of the industry involved when the employers can least afford a cessation of work—during the busy season and when there are rush orders to be filled.

The Industrial Workers of the World maintain that nothing will be conceded by the employers except that which we have the power to take and hold by the strength of our organization. Therefore we seek no agreements with the employers.

Failing to force concessions from the employers by the strike, work is resumed and "sabotage" is used to force the employers to concede the demands of the workers.

During strikes the works are closely picketed and every effort made to keep the employers from getting workers into the shops. All supplies are cut off from strike-bound shops. All shipments are refused or mislaid, delayed and lost if possible. Strike breakers are also isolated to the full extent of the power of the organization.

Interference by the government is resented by open violation of the government's orders, going to jail en masse, causing expenses to the taxpayers—which is but another name for the employing classes.

In short, I. W. W. advocates the use of militant "direct action" tactics to the full extent of our power to make good.

OUTBREAK OF NEGRO TROOPS AT HOUSTON, TEX.

Fifteen white men and two negroes were killed as the result of an outbreak of 150 negro members of the 24th United States Infantry at Houston, Tex., Aug. 23, 1917. Trouble started between some colored soldiers and policemen over the arrest of a negro and the beating of two infantrymen at Camp Logan, which the troops were guarding. Becoming enraged, the soldiers armed themselves, secured ammunition and started for the city. They shot at all white persons they met and fired into residences where they saw lights. Among those they killed were Capt. Joseph W. Mattes, battery A, 7d Illinois field artillery, and four police officers. Capt. Mattes was so mutilated as to be almost unrecognizable. Henry Vida, a negro soldier said to have started the rioting, was killed. Seventeen persons, including two white girls, were wounded.

Martial law was declared by Gov. James E. Ferguson, effective in Houston and vicinity beginning at 1 a. m., Aug. 24. Other measures were taken by the local authorities, by Maj.-Gen. Parker, commanding the southern division, and by the war department in Washington to restore and maintain order. Maj.-Gen. George Bell arrived in Houston Aug. 25 to make an investigation and to prepare for court-martial proceedings against the accused soldiers. In the meantime the members of the 24th Infantry were sent back to their old camp at Columbus, N. M.

The proceedings of the court-martial were secret and the findings were not known until it was announced Dec. 11 that thirteen of the accused men had been hanged at 7:17 a. m., on the military reservation at Fort Sam Houston, Tex. It was made public at the same time that of the sixty-three men tried by the same court-martial forty-one were sentenced to life imprisonment. One man was sentenced to dishonorable discharge from the army, forfeiture of all pay and allowances and to be confined at hard labor for two and a half years. These were sentenced to be dishonorably discharged from the army, forfeit all pay and allowances and be confined at hard labor for two years. Five were acquitted.

REVOLUTION IN PORTUGAL.

On Dec. 9, 1917, it became known in Madrid and other capitals that there had been a revolution in Portugal which, after three days of fighting, had overthrown the government under President Machado and Premier Costa. The rebels were led by Dr. Sidonio Paes, who was made provisional president. A dispatch printed in Paris, Dec. 11, gave this account of the affair:

"Dr. Sidonio Paes, who fomented the revolution, has put under lock and key the revered president, Machado, and Premier Costa, the two men to whom Portugal's entry into the war on the side of the allies is due. Senhor Costa had a strong majority in parliament, while the opposition which has overthrown him has very slight support in the electoral body. Machado Santos, the rebel leader, who is one of the three men who have taken power, had been in prison since December, 1916.

"While not accusing the members of the new government of working knowingly for Germany, it is pointed out that the insurrection was directed against the most trusty friends of the allies, and as long as anarchy is likely to result it can only be of benefit to Germany and to have a serious effect on the whole of the Iberian peninsula, if only by giving dangerous encouragement to the chauvinists in the Spanish military juntas, who are ever dreaming of a conquest of Portugal."

BOMB EXPLOSIONS IN MILWAUKEE.

Seven detectives, a station keeper, an operator, a woman and an unidentified Italian were instantly killed in Milwaukee, Wis., on the evening of Nov. 24, 1917, when a "black hand" bomb exploded in the central police station. Five detectives and a lieutenant of police were injured more or less seriously. The station was wrecked.

The explosion was the result of a feud in the Third ward, which is the home of a large Italian population. Threats had been made against the Rev. August Juliana, pastor of the Italian Evangelical church; also threats to destroy its building.

The bomb was found in the basement of the church and was brought to the station for examination. The officers gathered about a table on which the contrivance was laid. It was made of an iron pipe about a foot in length and almost eight inches in diameter. What seemed to be a small vial of nitroglycerin protruded from one end. It had evidently been timed to explode at a given moment when the church was filled. One of the officers was handling the bomb when it exploded.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE.

Women now have the right to vote in the following states:

Alaska (territory).
Arizona.
California.
Colorado.
Idaho.
Illinois.*
Kansas.

Montana.
Nevada.
New York.
Oregon.
Utah.
Washington.
Wyoming.

*For offices not mentioned in state constitution.

States allowing partial suffrage to women are: Arkansas, Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Iowa, Indiana, Illinois, Kentucky, Michigan, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Mississippi, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New Mexico, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Ohio (defeated full suffrage in 1912 and 1914), South Dakota, Texas, Vermont and Wisconsin.

DEVELOPMENTS IN 1917.

The vote for full woman suffrage by the state of New York at the election Nov. 6 was the most important victory won by the suffragists in 1917 in the United States. The vote was 703,124 votes to 600,766 nays. In New York city the vote was 129,412 yeas to 92,315 nays.

In Maine, at a special election held Sept. 10, equal suffrage was defeated by a vote of two to one.

In North Dakota an act was passed by the legislature giving women limited suffrage. The law became effective July 1.

In Arkansas, March 6, the governor signed a bill giving women the right to vote in all primary elections in the state.

In Vermont, March 20, the governor signed a bill permitting women holding property to vote at all town meetings. A bill to give them the right to vote at presidential elections failed to pass.

In Indiana a bill giving suffrage to women was passed by the legislature in February, but the law was declared unconstitutional by the state Supreme court Oct. 26.

The house of representatives in Washington, D. C., adopted a special rule Sept. 24 for the creation of a committee on woman suffrage. It was adopted by a vote of 181 to 107.

In Ohio the legislature passed a bill in February giving women the right to vote at presidential elections.

In the British house of commons, June 19, the principle of woman suffrage was adopted by a majority of 330 votes. The qualifying age was placed at 30.

Much attention was called to the "picketing" of the white house grounds in Washington, D. C., by women from the woman's national party as a protest against President Wilson's opposition to suffrage legislation by congress. Numerous arrests were made in the course of the year.

DEATH OF WILLIAM E. CHANDLER.

William Eaton Chandler, who as secretary of the navy in President Arthur's cabinet was largely responsible for the beginning of the modern United States navy, died at his home in Concord, N. H., Nov. 30, 1917. He was born in that city Dec. 28, 1835. He graduated from Harvard Law school and was admitted to the bar in 1855 and in 1859 was appointed reporter of the decisions of the Supreme court. He was a member of the New Hampshire house of representatives in 1862, 1863 and 1864, serving as its speaker during the last two years.

He was appointed by President Arthur secretary of the navy April 12, 1882, and served until March 7, 1885. Mr. Chandler was elected to the United States senate June 14, 1887, to fill the unexpired term of Austin F. Pike, which ended March 3, 1889, and was re-elected June 18, 1889, and again Jan. 16, 1895.

CAPITAL PUNISHMENT IN THE UNITED STATES.

Capital punishment prevails in all of the states of the union except Arizona, Kansas, Maine, Minnesota, Missouri, North Dakota, Oregon, Rhode Island, Washington and Wisconsin. In Michigan the only crime punishable by death is treason. The death penalty was abolished in the state of Washington in 1913. It was abolished in Iowa in 1872 and restored in 1878. It was also abolished in Colorado in 1897, but was restored in 1901. Hanging is the ordinary mode of execution, but in Arkansas, Indiana, Massachusetts, New York, Nebraska, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Vermont and Virginia electrocution is the legal method. In Nevada hanging or shooting is optional with the condemned.

UNITED STATES MILITARY ACADEMY.

West Point, N. Y.

The United States military academy is a school for the practical and theoretical training of cadets for the military service of the United States. When any cadet has completed the course of four years satisfactorily he is eligible for promotion and commission as a second lieutenant in any arm or corps in the army in which there may be a vacancy, the duties of which he may have been judged competent to perform.

Appointments—Each congressional district and territory, including

Porto Rico, Alaska and Hawaii, is entitled to have two cadets at the academy. The District of Columbia has two. Each state is also entitled to have four cadets from the state at large and eighty are allowed from the United States at large. The president is also authorized to appoint not to exceed 180 men from the regular army and national guard who have served for one year. The total number in the academy in September, 1917, was 739. The appointments from a congressional district are made upon the recommendation of the representative in congress from that district and those from the state at large upon the recommendations of the senators of the state. The appointments for the United States at large are made by the president upon his own selection. The appointments from the District of Columbia are made on the recommendation of the district commissioners and that from Porto Rico on the recommendation of the resident commissioner. Appointments are made one year in advance of admission. For each candidate appointed two alternates should be nominated. Four cadets from the Philippines are admitted.

Examinations—On the second Tuesday in January of each year the candidate selected for appointment must appear for mental and physical examination before boards of army officers at such places as the war department may designate. Candidates who pass will be admitted to the academy on March 1 following.

Mental Requirements—Each candidate must show that he is well versed in algebra, to include quadratic equations and progressions, plane geometry, English grammar, composition and literature, descriptive and physical geography and general and United States history.

Physical Requirements—No candidate will be admitted who is under 17 or over 22 years of age, or less than five feet four inches in height at the age of 17; or five feet five inches at the age of 18 and upward, or who is deformed or afflicted with any disease or infirmity which would render him unfit for military service. Candidates must be unmarried.

Pay—The pay of a cadet is $600 a year and one ration a day, or commutation therefor at 30 cents a day. The total is $709.50, to begin with his admission to the academy. No cadet is allowed to receive money or other supplies from his parents or from any other person without the sanction of the superintendent.

Enlistment—Before receiving his warrant of appointment a candidate for admission is required to sign an agreement to serve in the army of the United States eight years from the time of his admission to the academy.

UNITED STATES NAVAL ACADEMY.

Annapolis, Md.

The United States naval academy is a school for the practical and theoretical training of young men for the naval service of the United States. The students are styled midshipmen. The course of study is six years—four years at the academy and two years at sea—at the expiration of which time the examination for final graduation takes place. Midshipmen who pass are appointed to all vacancies in the lower grade of the line of the navy, and occasionally to fill vacancies in the marine corps and in certain of the staff corps of the navy.

Appointments—Three (four until Sept. 1, 1918) midshipmen are allowed for each senator, representative and delegate in congress, two for the District of Columbia, ten each year from the United States at large and fifteen from enlisted men of the navy. The appointments from the District of Columbia, ten each year at large and fifteen from enlisted men of the navy are made by the president. One midshipman is allowed from Porto Rico, who must be a native of that island. The appointment is made by the president on the recommendation of the governor of Porto Rico. Candidates must be actual residents of the districts from which they are nominated.

Examinations—Two examinations for the admission of midshipmen are held each year. The first is held on the third Tuesday in April under the supervision of the civil service commission at certain specified points in each state and territory. All those qualifying mentally, who are entitled to appointment in order of nomination, will be notified by the superintendent of the naval academy when to report at the academy for physical examination, and if physically qualified will be appointed. The second and last examination is held on the third Tuesday in June at Annapolis, Md. Alternates are given the privilege of reporting for mental examination at the same time as the principals. Examination papers are all prepared at the academy and the examinations of candidates are finally passed upon by the academic board. Certificates from colleges and high schools will not be accepted in lieu of the entrance examinations at the naval academy.

Mental Requirements—Candidates will be examined in punctuation, spelling, arithmetic, geography, English grammar, United States history, world's history, algebra through quadratic equations and plane geometry (five books of Chauvenet's geometry or an equivalent).

Physical Requirements—All candidates must, at the time of their examination for admission, be between the ages of 16 and 20 years. A candidate is eligible for appointment the day he becomes 16 and is ineligible on the day he becomes 20 years of age. Candidates are required to be of good moral character, physically sound, well formed and of robust constitution. The height of candidates for admission must not be less than five feet two inches between the ages of 16 and 18 years, and not less than five feet four inches between the ages of 18 and 20 years. The minimum weight at 16 years is 105 pounds, with an increase of five pounds for each additional year or fraction of a year over one-half. Candidates must be unmarried.

Pay—The pay of a midshipman is $600 a year, beginning at the date of his admission. Midshipmen must supply themselves with clothing, books, etc., the total expense of which amounts to $280.64. Traveling expenses to the academy are paid by the government.

Enlistment—Each midshipman on admission is required to sign articles by which he binds himself to serve in the United States navy eight years (including his time of probation at the naval academy).

CENTENARIANS IN THE UNITED STATES.

According to the census of 1910 there were ten in the United States 3,555 persons 100 years of age and over. Of these, 1,380 were men and 2,175 were women. Classified according to the color they were: White men, 326; white women, 438; total, 764; negro men, 1,004; negro women, 1,671; total, 2,675; Indian men, 50; Indian women, 66; total, 116. Classified as to place of birth, 429 were native white and 293 foreign born white. The number of centenarians reported by the census of 1900 was 3,504. "It may be noted," says a census report in commenting on these figures, "that the proportion of centenarians, according to the census returns, was less in 1910 than in 1900. In fact, the proportion has steadily decreased from census to census for over half a century. The number of centenarians reported in 1910 was equal to 4 for each 100,000 of the total population, while the corresponding ratio in 1850 was 11. It is improbable that any such decrease in longevity has actually occurred. By no means have all those who reported themselves as 100 years old or more, in fact, reached that age, and the apparent reduction in the proportion of centenarians is probably due to greater accuracy in the returns."

Deaths of centenarians reported from Nov. 1, 1916, to Nov. 1, 1917:

Callahan, Mrs. Ellen, 101, Spencer, Ia., Sept. 22.
Combes, Mrs. Eleanor, 107, Sullivan, Ind., Feb. 23.

MEXICO AND THE UNITED STATES.

Though a formal protocol settling the differences between the United States and Mexico was drawn up and signed by joint commissioners representing both countries, the "citizen first chief" of Mexico, Venustiano Carranza, refused to sign the document. This was made known Jan. 2, 1917, on the same day that the text of the protocol was published. The commissioners on the part of the United States were Franklin Lane, George Gray and John R. Moitt, and those representing Mexico were Luis Cabrera, Ygnacio Bonillas and Alberto J. Paul. The conference was held in Atlantic City, N. J., and was formally dissolved Jan. 15. In spite of the failure of the efforts to reach an agreement the United States determined to withdraw the Pershing expedition from northern Mexico, and on Jan. 27 President Wilson, as commander-in-chief, issued through the war department an order to that effect.

The withdrawal began immediately and proceeded with any untoward incident, the 12,000 men composing the expedition arriving safely at Columbus, N. M., Feb. 5. Gen. Carranza was elected president of Mexico March 12. On April 15 a new congress held its first session. Diplomatic relations with the United States were resumed, though the relations between the two countries were not especially cordial. The majority of the people in the city of Mexico appeared to be pro-German, though the president proclaimed in his speech at the opening session of congress that the nation would remain strictly neutral in the war.

Villa was not captured, and up to the end of November, 1917, was still pursuing his career of brigandage in northern Mexico with considerable success. The United States has continued to maintain considerable forces of troops near the Mexican border.

CHRONOLOGY.

Following is a chronology of the main events in the political history of Mexico since the overthrow of President Porfirio Diaz:

June 25, 1910—Porfirio Diaz elected president for eighth successive term.

Nov. 18, 1910—Revolution started by anti-reactionists.

Nov. 23, 1910—Francisco I. Madero proclaims himself provisional president of Mexico.

BUCK'S STOVE COMPANY BOYCOTT CASE.

Proceedings were brought in the Supreme court of the District of Columbia in August, 1907, against the officers of the American Federation of Labor to enjoin them from conducting a boycott against the Buck's Stove and Range company of St. Louis, Mo., by advertising that the concern was on the "unfair" and "we don't patronize" lists of the federation's official organ. The injunction was issued by Judge Gould Dec. 23, 1907. On the plea that the injunction was being violated proceedings for contempt of court were brought against Samuel Gompers, president; John Mitchell, vice-president, and Frank Morrison, secretary of the federation. They were declared guilty by Justice Wright of the Supreme court of the District of Columbia Dec. 23, 1908. Mr. Gompers was sentenced to one year's imprisonment, Mr. Mitchell to nine months' and Mr. Morrison to six months' imprisonment. They were admitted to bail and the case was taken to the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia, which tribunal decided Nov. 2, 1909, that the decree against them was valid.

An appeal was taken to the United States Supreme court, which on May 15, 1911, reversed the judgments of the lower courts and remanded the case. May 5, 1913, the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia again affirmed the original findings in the contempt case, but reduced Mr. Gompers' sentence to thirty days in jail and held that Mitchell and Morrison should be exempt from prison sentences, but should each pay a fine of $500. June 19, 1913, Chief Justice White of the United States Supreme court granted an appeal by the defendants that the case be heard again by the highest tribunal.

May 11, 1914, the United States Supreme court set aside the sentences imposed upon Gompers, Mitchell and Morrison on the ground that they were barred by the statute of limitations. Justice Holmes, who read the opinion, held that the contempt proceedings should have been begun within three years from the date of the offense.

PROHIBITION SITUATION UP TO JAN. 1, 1918.

Prohibition states prior to Sept. 1, 1914: Maine, Kansas, Georgia, Mississippi, North Carolina, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Tennessee, West Virginia.

Prohibition advance since Sept. 1, 1914:

Alaska—Territory made dry by act of congress Feb. 14, 1917; law effective Jan. 1, 1918.

Virginia—Sept. 22, 1914, Virginia voted for constitutional statewide prohibition, effective Nov. 1, 1916.

Colorado—Nov. 3, 1914, Colorado voters adopted statewide constitutional prohibition, effective Jan. 1, 1916. On Nov. 7, 1916, voted down amendment to permit sale of beer.

District of Columbia—Made dry by vote of congress March 3, 1917; law effective Nov. 1, 1917.

Arizona—Nov. 3, 1914, Arizona voters adopted statewide constitutional prohibition, effective Jan. 1, 1915. On Nov. 7, 1916, passed "bone dry" amendment, entirely prohibiting importation of liquors.

Washington—Nov. 3, 1914, Washington voters adopted statewide constitutional prohibition, effective Jan. 1, 1916. On Nov. 7, 1916, two liquor amendments were defeated by 80,000 and 150,000 respectively, all big cities favoring retention of prohibition.

Oregon—Nov. 3, 1914, Oregon voted for prohibition, the law to become effective Jan. 1, 1916. On Nov. 7, 1916, beer amendment defeated and "bone dry" amendment, prohibiting importation of liquors, adopted.

Alabama—Jan. 21, 1915, the legislature of Alabama enacted a statewide prohibition measure, effective July 1, 1915.

Arkansas—Feb. 5, 1915, the Arkansas legislature enacted a statewide prohibition law, effective July 1, 1915, but the law was later amended to become effective Jan. 1, 1916. On Nov. 7, 1916, attempt to repeal prohibition defeated two to one.

Iowa—In February, 1915, the Iowa legislature voted to submit to the people a constitutional statewide prohibition amendment, to be voted on at the general election in 1917, provided the legislature of 1917 ratifies; prohibition to become effective Jan. 1, 1918. Then the legislature repealed the mulct law, effective Jan. 1, 1916, thereby making Iowa dry under statute after that date. In election on Nov. 6, 1917, prohibition was defeated by 932 votes.

Idaho—In February, 1915, the Idaho legislature passed a statutory prohibition law, making the state dry Jan. 1, 1916. On Nov. 7, 1916, prohibition put in constitution by about three to one.

Montana—On Nov. 7, 1916, state voted for prohibition effective Dec. 31, 1918. Majority about 20,000.

South Carolina—On Sept. 14, 1915, South Carolina voted for statewide prohibition by 41,735 votes to 16,809. The law became effective Dec. 31, 1915.

New Jersey—On March 2, 1915, the senate of New Jersey passed a bill granting to municipalities the right to vote on the liquor question.

Utah—In February, 1917, the legislature passed a bill providing for statutory prohibition effective Aug. 1, 1917.

Minnesota—On Feb. 25, 1915, the legislature of Minnesota passed a county option law, effective immediately. Under this law fifty-six county elections were held in eight months. Forty-five were dry victories.

South Dakota—On Nov. 7, 1916, state voted for prohibition effective July 1, 1917. Majority about 25,000.

Florida—In the spring of 1915 the legislature passed the Davis package law, abolishing the treating system and free lunch, closing saloons at 6 p. m. until 7 a. m., and imposing other restrictions so drastic that the character of the saloon in Florida is totally altered. The act closed more than 200 saloons, leaving only about seventy-five wholesale, mail order and retail liquor houses. On Nov. 7, 1916, a dry governor and legislature were elected.

Georgia—In the fall of 1915 a special session of the legislature passed new laws for rigid prohibition and strict law enforcement. Before the passage of these laws, which went into effect May 1, 1916, prohibition in Georgia was very lax, but it is now as strict as that in any other state in the union. A "bone dry" bill was passed in March, 1917.

Nebraska—This state voted on Nov. 7, 1916, in favor of prohibition effective May 1, 1917, by majority of about 35,000. The state then became "bone dry."

Michigan—On Nov. 7, 1916, state voted for prohibition effective April 30, 1918. Dry bill passed by legislature in March, 1917.

In various states laws prohibiting liquor advertising and otherwise increasing the strictness of liquor regulation have been numerous. For "bone dry" prohibition amendment to the post-office appropriation bill passed March 3, 1917, see page 51, this volume. British Columbia became prohibition territory Oct. 1, 1917.

FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION.

Joseph E. Davis, (Wis.)	*10,000
William B. Colver, (Minn.)	*10,000
John Franklin Fort, (N. J.)	*10,000
Vicor Murock, (Kansas)	*10,000
Secretary—Leonidas L. Bracken	5,000
*Democrats.	†Republicans.

Duties—The act creating the federal trade commission declares unfair methods of competition in commerce to be unlawful. The commission is empowered to prevent persons, partnerships or corporations, except banks and common carriers, from using such methods. It gives hearings to persons or corporations suspected or accused of using unfair methods of competition and if it finds that such methods are used orders their discontinuance. If the orders are not obeyed the commission applies to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for their enforcement. The commission also has the power to compile information as to the business methods of any corporation engaged in business, except banks and common carriers, and its relations to other corporations or individuals, to investigate violations of the anti-trust acts and to investigate trade conditions in foreign countries which may affect the foreign trade of the United States.

War Work—Under special direction by the president the commission has done all the work of finding the costs of production of all the basic materials necessary for the government in the prosecution of the war. On these actual production costs have been based the fixed or agreed prices on coal, copper, steel, etc. Among the chief commodities for which costs have been and are being currently obtained are coal and coke, iron ore, iron and steel products of numerous kinds, various petroleum products, particularly fuel oil and gasoline, lumber, especially for shipbuilding, cement, fire brick, copper, lead, zinc, aluminum, nickel and certain other metals, or alloys, including, in some cases, finished manufactures thereof, and certain food products required by the army and navy, especially certain canned food products.

UNITED STATES TARIFF COMMISSION.

Salary of members, $7,500.

Chairman—Prof. Frank W. Taussig, Dem., Mass.
David J. Lewis, Dem., Md.
William Kent, Ind., Cal.
Daniel C. Roper, Dem., S. C.
E. F. Costigan, Rep., Col.
W. S. Culberson, Rep., Kas.

It is the duty of the commission to investigate the administration and fiscal and industrial effects of the customs laws, the relations between the rates of duties on raw materials and finished or partly finished products, the effects of ad valorem and specific duties and of compound specific duties, all questions relative to the arrangement of schedules and classification of articles in the customs law, and, in general, to investigate the operation of customs laws and their effect upon the industries and labor of the country. The commission has power to investigate the tariff relations between the United States and foreign countries, commercial treaties, preferential provisions, economic alliances, the effect of export bounties and preferential transportation rates, the volume of importations compared with domestic production and consumption, and conditions, causes and effects relating to competition of foreign industries with those of the United States, including dumping and cost of production. The commission is required to place its information at the disposal of the president, the committee of ways and means of the house and the finance committee of the senate and to make such investigations and reports as may be called for by the president and these committees.

DOMESTIC COMMERCE OF THE UNITED STATES.

It was estimated by The Annalist of New York that the total domestic trade of the United States in the calendar year 1915 amounted to $507,000,000,000. The foreign trade of the country in the same year amounted to about $3,350,000,000, or only about 1.1 per cent of the home trade. Irving Fisher, the economist, estimated the total business transacted in the United States in 1913 at $477,000,000,000 and in 1914 at $449,000,000,000. "Based on the increases in gross railroad earnings and bank clearings, fairly accurate measures of any change in the volume of business," says The Annalist, "the total turnover in 1915 must therefore have exceeded that for any previous year, more especially as the level of prices was undoubtedly well above that for any other like period."

CLIMATOLOGY OF THE UNITED STATES.

The following table of average rainfall, highest and lowest temperatures, based upon observations of forty-five or fewer years at selected stations in the several states and territories of the United States, was compiled from the records of the weather bureau for The Almanac and Year-Book by the United States weather bureau, Washington, D. C.:

Total

The grand total disbursed for pensions from July 1, 1790, to July 1, 1916, is $5,054,630,727.07, of which amount $4,765,075,020.92 is charged to allowances made on the basis of service rendered in the civil war.

There were on the roll at the end of the fiscal year 673,111 names; a net loss of 36,461 from the total of 709,572 on the roll at the beginning of the year.

The number of civil war soldiers on the roll June 30, 1916, was 362,277, and on June 30, 1917, 323,226, showing a decrease of 33,051.

The number of deaths of civil war soldiers in 1917 was 33,232, which lacked 1,020 of being as many as occurred in 1916, when the number of such deaths was 34,252.

The number of civil war widows on the roll June 30, 1916, was 286,080, and on June 30, 1917, 284,216, showing a decrease of 1,864.

The deaths of widows, minor children and dependents numbered 20,130 in 1917, as against 19,957 in 1916.

The highest number of civil war soldiers on the roll was in 1898, when there were 745,822.

The number of civil war widows on the roll was in 1912, when there were 304,373.

Of the war of 1812 there were surviving on June 30, 1917, 109 widows.

Of the war with Mexico there were on June 30, 1917, 384 survivors and 3,422 widows.

Of the war with Spain the total number of original claims allowed by the bureau was 39,564.

The number of Spanish war soldiers on the roll at the end of the fiscal year was 28,275.

War of 1917—Up to June 30, 1917, 11 claims had been presented based on service in the present war. At the time this report was written the number of such claims had very materially increased and it is feared that, because of military operations which are anticipated, the number may further increase very rapidly. Even if peace should be declared, the mere fact of the existence of such a large number of men as are in the army, navy and marine corps would alone give reason to expect many claims on account of injury from accident and disability from disease.

The pension laws are applicable to all those who serve in the present war in the army, navy or marine corps. When any officer or enlisted man of the national guard is drafted into the service of the United States, the law passed June 3, 1916, provides that he shall be entitled to all the benefits of the pension laws. That same provision is made applicable to any officer or enlisted man drafted into the service of the United States pursuant to the provisions of the joint resolution of July 1, 1916.

Where disability or death is the result of an accident in the navy or marine corps, a double pension is allowed. No special provision has been made with reference to such service in the army.

Medal of Honor Roll—By the act of April 27, 1916, providing for the army and navy medal of honor roll, a special pension of $10 per month for life, payable quarter-yearly, in addition to any other pension under any existing or subsequent law, was granted to every person over 65 years of age who was placed on the roll. By that law it was made the duty of the secretary of war and the secretary of the navy to certify to the commissioner of pensions the names of persons entered on the roll, and that certificate is made full and sufficient authority to the commissioner of pensions for the payment by him to the beneficiary named in each certificate. Under this law there were entered on the pension roll 351 names. The amount paid in 1917 on account of this act was $41,582.

REQUIREMENTS FOR ADMISSION.

1. Honorable discharge from the United States service.
2. Disability which prevents the applicant from earning a living by labor.
3. Applicants for admission will be required to abide by all the rules and regulations made by the board of managers, perform all the duties required of them and obey all the lawful orders of the officers of the home.
4. A soldier or sailor to be admitted must forward with his application his discharge paper, his pension certificate if he is a pensioner and his discharge from a state home if he has been an inmate of such home. These papers are retained at the branch to which he is admitted to prevent their loss or fraud, but are returned to him when he is discharged. Soldiers or sailors whose pensions exceed $16 a month are not admitted to the home except for special reasons.

The National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers is supported by the United States government. The annual appropriation for that purpose is about $4,000,000.

STATE SOLDIERS' HOMES.

There are a number of state homes for disabled volunteer soldiers who, for various reasons, are unable to obtain admission to the national homes. The federal government contributes toward the support of the state homes the sum of $100 for each soldier, based upon the average attendance for the year; the remainder of the expenses is paid by the states themselves. Some of these homes are on the cottage plan. Following is a list of the state homes:

California—Yountville.	New Hampshire—Tilton.

Missouri—St. James.	Wisconsin—Waupaca.
Montana—Columbus Falls.	Wyoming—Cheyenne.
Nebraska—Grand Island and Milford.

HOME FOR REGULAR ARMY SOLDIERS.

The United States maintains a home for disabled and discharged soldiers of the regular army at Washington, D. C. All soldiers who have served twenty years in the army and all soldiers who have incurred such disability, by wounds, disease or injuries in the line of duty while in the regular army, as units them for further service are entitled to admission to the home. The home is in charge of a board of commissioners, consisting of the governor of the home, the adjutant-general of the army, the judge-advocate, the commissary-general, the quartermaster-general, the chief of engineers and the surgeon-general. The present governor is Lieut. Gen. S. B. M. Young (retired).

CONFEDERATE SOLDIERS' HOMES.

Confederate veterans of the civil war have a home at Beauvoir, near Biloxi, Miss. The residence there of Jefferson Davis in his last years was secured in 1902 as a refuge for helpless old Southern soldiers by the United Sons of Confederate Veterans. It is supported by that society and the United Daughters of the Confederacy. Another home for confederate veterans was opened in Washington, D. C., May 24, 1913, by the women of the Southern Relief association.

HUNTING ACCIDENTS IN 1917.

In the big game hunting season ended Nov. 30, 1917, twenty-four men were killed in the United States, as compared with eighty-six in 1916, fifty-nine in 1915 and 111 in 1914. Michigan led with eight killed, while Illinois had five and Wisconsin two. The other fatalities were divided among six states.

27. To co-operate with the United States geological survey on the preparation of a contour topographical survey and map.

28. To collect facts and data concerning the water resources of the state.

29. To determine standards of purity of drinking water for the various sections of the state.

30. To publish reports on the waters of the state so that they may become better known and more available.

31. To make analyses of samples of water from municipal and private sources.

32. To distribute to the various educational institutions of the state specimens, samples and materials collected by it after the same have served the purposes of the department.

The normal school board, of which the director of registration and education shall be chairman and ex officio member and of which the superintendent of public instruction shall be ex officio a member and shall be secretary, shall have power, independently of the officers of the department of registration and education, to make rules for the management of the state normal schools, to visit them, to regulate the courses of study and to employ officers, teaching staffs and assistants and to fix their salaries.

The department of registration and education shall, whenever the several laws regulating professions, trades and occupations which are devolved upon the department for administration so require, exercise in its name, but subject to the provisions of the act, the following powers:

1. Conduct examinations to ascertain the qualifications of applicants to exercise the profession, trade or occupation for which an examination is held, and pass upon the qualifications of applicants for reciprocal licenses, certificates and authorities.

2. Prescribe rules for a fair and wholly impartial method of examination of candidates to exercise the respective professions, trades and occupations.

3. Prescribe rules defining what shall constitute a school, college or university, or department of a university, or other institutions, and to determine their reputability and good standing by reference to a compliance with such rules.

4. Adopt rules establishing a uniform and reasonable standard of maintenance, instruction and training to be observed by all schools for nurses.

5. Establish a standard of preliminary education deemed requisite to admission to a school, college or university and to require satisfactory proof of the enforcement of such standard.

6. Conduct hearings on proceedings to revoke or refuse renewal of licenses, certificates or authorities of persons exercising the respective professions, trades or occupations, and to revoke or to refuse to renew such licenses, certificates or authorities.

7. Formulate rules when required in any act to be administered.

None of the above enumerated functions and duties shall be exercised by the department of registration and education except upon the action and report in writing of persons designated by the director of the department to take such action and to make such report for the respective professions, trades and occupations, as follows:

For the veterinary practitioners, three competent veterinary surgeons, not more than two of whom shall be from the same college and neither of whom shall be connected with any veterinary college.

For the horseshoers, three practical horseshoers and two journeymen horseshoers with at least three years' experience in this state.

For the architects, five persons, one of whom shall be member of the faculty of the University of Illinois and the other four of whom shall be architects living in the state and with ten years' experience.

For the structural engineers, five persons, of whom one shall be a professor in the civil engineering department of the University of Illinois and the others of whom shall be structural engineers of recognized standing, with not less than ten years' experience.

For medical practitioners, embalmers and midwives, five reputable physicians licensed to practice medicine and surgery in the state and not connected with any medical college or institution.

For the pharmacists, five registered pharmacists with ten years' practical experience in the dispensing of physicians' prescriptions since registration.

For the dentists, five licensed practitioners of dentistry or dental surgery, with five years' experience and not connected with or interested in any dental school.

For the registered nurses, five registered nurses who have been graduated at least five years from a school for nurses and during the course of training have served two years in a general hospital and three of whom shall have had at least two years' experience in educational work among nurses.

For the optometrists, five practicing optometrists with at least five years' experience and not connected with any optical school or firm.

For the barbers, three practical barbers with five years' experience in the state.

Unless otherwise provided by law the duties formerly exercised by the state entomologist, state laboratory of natural history, state water survey and the state geological survey, vested by this act in the department of registration and education, shall continue to be exercised at the University of Illinois.

The board of natural resources and conservation, acting through five or more subcommittees, each of whom shall be composed of the director of registration and education, the president of the University of Illinois, or his representative, and the expert adviser specially qualified in each of the fields of investigation, shall—

1. Consider and decide all matters pertaining to natural history, geology, water and water resources, forestry and allied research, investigational and scientific work.

2. Select and appoint, without reference to the state civil service law, members of the scientific staff, prosecuting such research, investigational and scientific work.

3. Co-operate with the University of Illinois in the use of scientific staff and equipment.

4. Co-operate with the various departments in research, investigational and scientific work useful in the prosecution of the work in any department.

All acts and parts of acts in conflict with this act are repealed. (Approved March 7, 1917.)

MILLIONS FOR HARD ROADS.

The act provides that a statewide system of durable hard-surfaced roads be constructed by the state of Illinois, as soon as practicable, upon public highways of the state along described routes, as near as may be, and that the state (acting through its officers) is authorized and empowered to issue and sell, and provide for the retirement of, bonds of the state of Illinois to the amount of $60,000,000 for the purpose of providing means for the payment of the cost of the construction of the system of roads: Provided, however, that before this law, which authorizes such debt to be contracted and levies the tax for the payment of the principal and interest of the bonds to be issued as an evidence of such debt, shall go into full force and effect it shall, at the general election in November, 1918, be submitted to the people and receive a majority of the votes cast for members of the general assembly at such election.

The issuance, sale and retirement of the bonds and the construction of the roads and all work incidental thereto shall be under the general supervision and control of the department of public works and buildings, subject to the approval of the governor of this state; and that department is authorized to take whatever steps may be necessary to cause the bonds to be issued and sold and to cause the roads to be constructed at the earliest possible time, consistent with good business management, after this act becomes fully operative. The department of public works and buildings shall have power to make and shall make all final decisions affecting the work, and all the rules and regulations it may deem necessary for the proper management and conduct of the work and for carrying out all of the provisions of this act in such manner as shall be to the best interest and advantage of the people of this state. The director of public works and buildings shall make the special duty of the superintendent of highways to see that such provisions are so carried out in good faith. The department of public works and buildings is given power to purchase and supply any labor, tools, machinery, supplies and materials needed for the work. All contracts let for the construction of the work shall be let to the lowest responsible bidder, or bidders, and all of the state bonds shall be sold to the highest and best bidder, or bidders, by the department of public works and buildings, on such terms and conditions, and on open competitive bidding after public advertisement in such manner and for such times as may be prescribed by the department, subject to the approval of the department of finance.

For the purpose of carrying out the provisions of this act the sum of $60,000,000, to be derived from the sale of the bonds, is appropriated to the department of public works and buildings, such money to be payable out of the state bond road fund; for the purpose of raising the sum so appropriated to carry out the provisions of this act, the bonds of the state of Illinois to an amount not exceeding $60,000,000 shall be issued and sold; the bonds shall bear interest, payable annually, from the date of their issue, at the rate of three and one-half per centum per annum, unless financial conditions make a different rate advisable, in which case the department of public works and buildings may, with the governor's approval, issue part or all of said bonds at any other rate of interest not exceeding four per centum per annum; that the bonds shall be serial bonds and be dated, issued and sold from time to time as the road building work progresses and in such amounts as may be necessary to provide sufficient moneys to pay for the work and the expenses incidental thereto; each one of the bonds shall be made payable within twenty years from the date of its issue. Each one of the bonds shall be in the denomination of $500 or some multiple thereof. The bonds shall be deposited, until sold, with the state treasurer; and when sold, the proceeds of the bonds shall be paid into the state treasury and be kept in a separate fund which shall be known as the state bond road fund.

Each year, after this act becomes fully operative and until all of the bonds shall have been retired, there shall be included in and added to the tax levied for state purposes a direct annual tax for such amount as shall be necessary and sufficient to pay the interest annually, as it shall accrue, on each and every bond issued under the provisions of this act, and also to pay and discharge the principal of such bonds at par value, as such bonds respectively fall due; and the respective amounts of such direct annual tax are appropriated for that specific purpose: Provided, however, that moneys in the "road fund" created under the provisions of the motor vehicle law of this state, approved June 10, 1911, and all acts amendatory thereof, shall first be appropriated and used for the purpose of paying and discharging annually the principal and interest on such bonded indebtedness then due and payable. The required rate of such direct annual tax shall be fixed each year by the officers charged by law with fixing the rate for state taxes on the valuation of real and personal property in this state subject to taxation, in accordance with the provisions of the statutes in such cases: Provided, however, that if money from other sources of revenue has been appropriated and set apart for the same purpose for which the direct annual tax is levied and imposed, then the officers shall, in fixing the rate of the direct annual tax, make proper allowance and reduction for any such money so appropriated and set apart from other sources of revenue. The direct annual tax shall be levied and imposed and such direct annual tax shall be assessed, levied and collected in the manner prescribed by law in the case of general state taxes, and shall be paid into the treasury of the state by the officers legally intrusted with the duty of collecting and accounting for such general state taxes: Provided, however, that no such direct annual tax shall be so levied for any year in which a sufficient amount of money from other sources of revenue has been appropriated and set apart to pay the interest, as it shall accrue, on the bonds for that year and also to pay and discharge the principal of any of the bonds falling due during such year.

The proposed statewide system of roads shall be constructed in strict accordance with the plans, specifications, estimates of cost and contracts of the department of public works and buildings. The department shall construct upon and along said roads durable hard-surfaced roadways which will remain in good condition, with low reasonable maintenance cost, until after all of the state bonds have matured. The hard-surfaced parts of the roads shall be constructed of sufficient widths to meet the requirements of the reasonably expected traffic thereon, such widths, except in extreme cases, to be not less than ten feet nor more than eighteen feet. Provided, where the contour of the surface of the ground permits and is practicable that in making fills, excavations and gradings for and in construction of such hard-surfaced roads, the surface of the earth alongside shall be so left that vehicles may drive over same and such surface shall be of such grade that vehicles can turn on or off such hard-surfaced roads with safety and convenience. The old bridges which form parts of the present roads shall, wherever such bridges are in proper condition, be used in the proposed system.

The department of public works and buildings shall divide the roads into convenient sections for construction purposes, and shall make all reasonable efforts to have the entire statewide system of roads completed within five years after the first construction contracts therefor are awarded. The construction work shall, so far as practically possible, be commenced in the different sections of the state at approximately the same time and be carried on continuously until all work is completed.

The general location of the routes upon and along which the proposed roads are to be constructed shall be substantially as hereafter described, so as to connect with each other the different communities and the principal cities of the state: Provided, however, that the department shall have the right to make such minor changes in the location of the routes as may become necessary in order to carry out the provisions of this act; and, provided, also, that the department shall not improve any road or part thereof which lies within any incorporated city, town or village in which the building of state aid roads may be prohibited by the act of this state entitled, "An act to revise the law in relation to roads and bridges," approved June 27, 1913, and the amendments thereto. If any available money from any source remains in the state bond road fund after the above described roads are completed and paid for, the department of public works and buildings shall use such money to construct other similar roads so as to extend said system in such a way as to be of the greatest benefit to the people of the state.

Wherever one of the above described roads runs through or into a county over a paved road that has been constructed by such county and the state, jointly, or by such county alone and accepted by the state, then the department shall, if such paved road is of proper durable hard-surfaced type to make it practicable to do so, utilize such paved road in the state-wide system of roads. The actual cost of the paved road shall be determined, and an amount of money equivalent to the share of such cost that was paid by such county shall be set apart and allotted by the department to such county to be used, at the option of such county, either in the payment of any county bonds issued by such county and used to improve its state aid roads, or in the improvement of any one or more of its improved or unimproved state aid roads, by constructing thereon a durable hard-surfaced road, under the direction and to the satisfaction of the department of public works and buildings.

This act shall be submitted to the people of this state at the general election to be held on Tuesday next after the first Monday of November, 1918; the act shall be so submitted on a separate ballot, which shall be in substantially the following form:

Shall an act of the general assembly of Illinois, entitled "An act in relation to the construction by the state of Illinois of a state-wide system of durable hard-surfaced roads upon public highways of the state and the provision of means for the payment of the cost thereof by an issue of bonds of the state of Illinois, which, in substance, provides for construction by the state, acting through its department of public works and buildings, subject to the governor's approval, of a state-wide system of hard roads on routes described; for control and maintenance, and for conditional compensation for roads already paved; gives such department full power to execute act; authorizes state to contract a debt for such purpose and to issue $60,000,000 of serial bonds, bearing interest annually at not to exceed 4%; appropriates said sum to said department; levies a tax sufficient to pay said interest annually, as it shall accrue, and to pay off said bonds within twenty years from issuance, but provides that such payments may be made from other sources of revenue and requires moneys in the motor vehicle law "road fund" to be first used for such payments and such direct tax to be omitted in any year in which sufficient money from other sources of revenue has been appropriated to meet such payments for such year; provides for publication and for submission to the people; makes the provisions for payment of such interest and bonds irrepealable; and pledges faith of state to the making of such payments; go into full force and effect if the secretary of state is authorized and directed to cause publication of this act to be made once each week, for three months at least before the vote of the people shall be taken upon such act; and such publication shall be made in at least two daily newspapers, one of which shall be published in the city of Springfield and one in the city of Chicago.

The provisions in this act for the payment of the principal of the bonds at maturity and of the interest thereon annually, as it shall accrue, by a direct annual tax which has been levied for the purpose, or from other sources of revenue appropriated for that purpose, shall be irrepealable until such debt and interest be paid in full, and for the making of such payment the faith of the state of Illinois is hereby pledged. (Approved, June 22, 1917.)

STATE AID ROADS.

There is appropriated from the road fund to the department of public works and buildings for the purpose of building and maintaining state aid roads in the several counties of the state for the year beginning July 1, 1917, and ending June 30, 1918, the sum of $1,100,000, and for the year beginning July 1, 1918, and ending June 30, 1919, the sum of $100,000, or so much of such sums as may be required: Provided, That any unexpended balance which may remain to the credit of the department of public works and buildings at the close of the year ending June 30, 1918, shall extend over and be subject to the order of the department of public works and buildings for the purpose of building and maintaining state aid roads in the several counties of the state during the year beginning July 1, 1918; and also that any unexpended balance which may remain to the credit of the department of public works and buildings at the close of the year ending June 30, 1919, shall extend over and be subject to the order of the department of public works and buildings for the purpose of building and maintaining state aid roads in the several counties of the state during the period beginning July 1, 1919, and ending with the close of the first fiscal quarter after the adjournment of the fifty-first general assembly. (Approved June 26, 1917.)

There is appropriated to the department of public works and buildings for the purpose of building and maintaining state aid roads the balance of the amount heretofore appropriated by the forty-ninth general assembly to the state highway commission for the purpose of building and maintaining state aid roads remaining unexpended June 8, 1917, amounting to the sum of $1,173,979.07, or so much of the balance as may remain unexpended on July 1, 1917. The department of public works and buildings is authorized to use so much of the amount as may be necessary for the purpose of constructing state aid roads in any county of the state which has accepted its allotment of state aid funds and passed a preliminary resolution and which resolution has been approved by the state highway commission prior to July 1, 1917; and to use the balance of the amount appropriated for the building and maintaining of state aid roads in the several counties of the state. (Approved June 26, 1917.)

FEDERAL AID ROAD FUND.

The general assembly of the state of Illinois hereby assents to the provisions, terms, conditions and purposes of the act of congress, approved July 11, 1916, entitled "An act to provide that the United States shall aid the states in the construction of rural post roads, and for other purposes," known as the federal aid road act.

The good faith of the state is hereby pledged to make available funds sufficient to equal the sums apportioned to this state by the United States for each of the five years in which federal funds are appropriated, and to maintain the roads constructed. The department of public works and buildings is authorized to enter into all agreements with the secretary of agriculture relating to the selection, construction and maintenance of rural post roads, to submit such scheme or project of selection, construction and maintenance as may be required by the secretary of agriculture, and to do all things necessary fully to carry out and make effective the co-operation provided for by the act. All such rural post roads shall be known as federal aid roads.

All sums of money which may have accrued or may hereafter, before the 1st day of July, A. D. 1919, accrue to the state of Illinois, under the provisions of the act of congress, are hereby appropriated to the department of public works and buildings to be paid out only for the construction of federal aid roads in accordance with the provisions of the act, and whenever any portion of the money shall be received by the state treasurer it shall immediately be placed to the credit of a fund to be known as the federal aid road fund to be paid out only for the construction of federal aid roads.

There is appropriated to the department of public works and buildings the sum of $663,000 to be available July 1, 1917, and the sum of $663,000 to be available July 1, 1918, to be known as the federal aid road fund, for the purpose of meeting the apportionment which has been made to the state of Illinois under the act of congress. (Approved June 27, 1917.)

STATE COUNCIL OF DEFENSE.

There is hereby established a state council of defense.

2. The state council of defense shall consist of fifteen persons who shall be appointed by the governor by and with the advice and consent of the senate. Their term of office shall be for the duration of the war in which the United States is now engaged, and no longer. The governor shall designate the member who shall act as chairman.

3. The members of the state council of defense shall be appointed with reference to their special knowledge of labor, industries, public utilities, the development of natural resources, sanitation, finance, transportation, or some other subject matter relating to national or state defense.

4. It shall be the duty of the state council of defense:

(1) To co-operate with and assist the council of national defense in the execution of the duties prescribed by an act of the congress of the United States approved Aug. 29, 1916, entitled, "An act making appropriations for the support of the army for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1917, and for other purposes," or any act amendatory thereof or supplemental or additional thereto;

(2) To co-operate with councils of defense in other states in so far as such co-operation is in harmony with the policies of the council of national defense;

(3) To carry out within the state of Illinois such plans of national defense as are mutually agreed upon between it and the council of national defense;

(4) To recommend to the governor and to the general assembly the enactment of such laws as are, in its judgment, necessary, in time of war, to the common defense or the public welfare.

5. The state council of defense shall have power:

(1) To adopt rules for its internal government and procedure;

(2) To form advisory and other committees outside of its membership;

(3) To organize subordinate bodies for its assistance in special investigations;

(4) To appoint, without reference to the state civil service law, experts, stenographers and clerks and to fix their compensation;

(5) To make full investigation as to all questions directly or indirectly relating to or bearing upon the powers or duties vested in it by this act, and to subpoena witnesses and to require their testimony and to compel the production of account books and files and all papers and documents relevant to any investigation or matter which may be under consideration by it.

6. The members of the state council of defense shall serve without compensation, but the actual and necessary expenses of the members thereof, incurred in the discharge of duties under this act, shall be a proper and legitimate charge against the appropriation hereinafter made.

7. All officers, departments, institutions and agencies of the state government, and all local and municipal officers, shall co-operate with and render such aid and assistance as the state council of defense may require.

8. The secretary of state shall provide the state council of defense with suitably furnished rooms in the capitol. The superintendent of printing or the department of public works and shall be appointed in accordance with the rules and regulations promulgated by the adjutant-general.

9. In case of the refusal of any person to comply with any subpoena issued hereunder or to testify to any matter regarding which he may be interrogated or to produce account books, files, papers and documents relative to any investigation being conducted by the state council of defense, any Circuit court of this state, or any judge thereof, either in term time or in vacation, upon the application of the state council of defense, or any member thereof, shall issue an order requiring such person to comply with such subpoena, or to testify, or to produce account books, files, papers and documents, or either, and any failure to obey such order of the court, or judge thereof, may be punished by the court as a contempt of court.

10. The sum of $50,000 is hereby appropriated for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of this act. The auditor of public accounts shall draw his warrant for the sum hereby appropriated upon the presentation of vouchers certified to by the chairman of the state council of defense and approved by the governor.

11. Whereas, an emergency exists, therefore this act shall take effect from and after its passage. (Approved May 2, 1917.)

STATE RESERVE MILITIA.

Whenever the governor, as commander-in-chief of the military and naval forces of the state, shall deem it necessary or advisable, for the purpose of executing the laws of the state, or of preventing the actual or threatened violation thereof, or any other emergency or suppressing actual or threatened insurrection or riots, or when the nation is at war and a requisition or order has been made, or is likely to be made, by the president of the United States calling the national guard, or parts thereof, into the national service, he may issue a proclamation or call for volunteer companies, battalions, regiments, brigades or other units of land forces to be known as the reserve militia which shall be formed from and out of the unorganized militia of the state.

The governor shall determine and shall fix in any such proclamation or call the number of such volunteers, their term of enlistment and the kind and number of such units to be called for and organized, and he shall appoint and authorize officers to recruit and enroll such volunteers under such rules and regulations as shall be fixed and promulgated by the adjutant-general with the approval of the governor: Provided, That no such term of enlistment shall be for a longer term than two years; and provided further, that any and all such units may be disbanded or mustered out, and any or all of such volunteers may be discharged when, in the judgment of the governor, the emergency or the conditions making such organizations necessary or advisable shall have passed or changed.

Every person so enrolling or enlisting in the reserve militia shall sign an enlistment paper in the form prescribed by the adjutant-general and shall take the following oath or affirmation, which may be administered by any such duly appointed recruiting or enrolling officer or any commissioned officer in the reserve militia:

"I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will true allegiance bear to the state of Illinois, and that I will uphold its constitution and laws and will serve it faithfully; that I will obey orders of the commander-in-chief and of such officers as may be placed over me, and the laws, rules and regulations of the reserve militia, so help me God."

The governor, as commander-in-chief, shall make all appointments to commissioned rank in the reserve militia. Commissions evidencing all appointments shall be signed by the governor and shall be attested and issued by the adjutant-general. All noncommissioned and petty officers shall be appointed in accordance with the rules and regulations promulgated by the adjutant-general.

Commissions to officers shall read to a certain grade in a given regiment, battalion, company or other unit of the reserve militia, and assignment of such officers to duty in any unit shall be by the commander-in-chief. The validity of all commissions shall be subject to formal acceptance and the execution of oath prescribed by law or by the rules and regulations promulgated by the adjutant-general.

Each and every enrolled man who shall leave or sever his connection with the reserve militia shall be entitled to and shall receive a discharge in accordance with the rules and regulations to be promulgated by the adjutant-general with the approval of the governor, and such rules and regulations shall provide the conditions and circumstances under which he may leave, retire from or be discharged from the reserve militia.

The organization, equipment and maintenance of the reserve militia shall be without expense to the state:

Provided, That if the governor, as commander-in-chief, shall call the reserve militia, or any part thereof, into the actual service of the state, or to assemble in state or district encampments for the purpose of drill, discipline and increase of efficiency, the state shall pay the cost of travel and maintenance and shall pay the officers at the rate which is now or hereafter may be allowed to the officers in the national guard, while in similar service of the state, and the enlisted men while in the actual service of the state shall receive pay at the rate of $1 per day.

The uniforms, arms and other equipment of the reserve militia, the minimum number of meetings for instruction, drill and training of the various units thereof, the character of such instruction and training, and all other matters and things necessary or desirable for the complete organization, equipment, discipline and efficiency of the reserve militia, not otherwise provided for and covered in this act, shall be prescribed and carried into effect by and through rules and regulations promulgated by the adjutant-general and approved by the governor. (Approved June 25, 1917.)

ILLINOIS STATE MILITIA.

All able bodied male citizens of this state and all other able bodied males resident in this state who have or shall have declared their intention to become citizens of the United States, between the ages of 18 and 45 years, except such as are expressly exempted by the laws of the United States and the state of Illinois, shall be subject to military duty and designated as the Illinois state militia.

The Illinois state militia shall be divided into three classes—the national guard, the naval militia and the unorganized militia.

The national guard shall consist of the regularly enlisted militia between the ages of 18 and 45 years, organized, armed and equipped as prescribed by the laws of the United States and the regulations and tables of organization in conformity therewith, published from time to time by the president of the United States or the secretary of war, or by the governor; and of commissioned officers between the ages of 21 and 64 years: Provided, That in time of peace the strength of the national guard and naval militia of this state so organized, armed and equipped shall not be less than 6,000 and not more than 25,000 officers and enlisted men. The governor, as commander-in-chief, shall have power, in case of war, insurrection, invasion or imminent danger thereof, to increase the forces beyond the 25,000 and organize same as the exigencies of the service may require.

The naval force of the state shall be designated as Illinois naval militia. The organization, equipment, discipline and government of the Illinois naval militia shall conform to the regulations, customs and usages of the navy of the United States.

The governor as commander-in-chief shall have power to alter, divide, annex, consolidate, disband or reorganize any organization, department or corps and create new organizations, departments or corps whenever in his judgment the efficiency of the state forces, land or naval, will be thereby increased, and he shall have the power to change the organization, department or corps so as to conform to any organization, system of drill or instruction now or hereafter adopted by the army or navy of the United States or prescribed by the laws of the United States for the government of the militia (land or naval) and for that purpose the number of officers or noncommissioned officers or petty officers in any grade or any organization, department or corps may be increased or diminished and the grades of such officers, noncommissioned officers or petty officers may be altered to such an extent to secure such conformity. Officers rendered surplus by the disbandment of their organization shall be placed in the national guard reserve. Officers may, upon their own application, be placed in said reserve. The governor shall have the power to fix and, from time to time, alter the maximum number of enlisted men which shall form part of any organization, department or corps, irrespective of, but not exceeding, the maximum prescribed in the law.

The governor as commander-in-chief shall have power to make all necessary rules and regulations and to issue such orders from time to time as may be necessary for the thorough organization and discipline of the militia, but such rules, regulations and orders shall conform with the laws of the United States and the rules, regulations and tables based thereon.

The commander-in-chief shall make all appointments in the commissioned rank in the national guard and naval militia of the state. (Approved May 5, 1917.)

SOLICITATION OF WAR FUNDS.

The state council of defense is given full power and authority to issue licenses from time to time, and to revoke the same from time to time, authorizing the solicitation during the duration of the war in which the United States is now engaged by individuals, societies, clubs, associations or corporations, of funds and other property for the following purposes:

(a) Aid and relief in the prosecution of the war or for the use or benefit of any hospital or relief service exclusively connected with the prosecution of said war.

(b) Aid and relief to the soldiers and sailors who are or have been in the service of the United States in the war, for their individual benefit and comfort.

(c) Aid and relief to the families and dependents of soldiers and sailors who are or have been in the service of the United States in the war.

(d) Aid and relief to the families and dependents of soldiers and sailors killed in the service of the United States during the war.

It shall be unlawful for any individual, society, club, association or corporation to engage in any solicitation for any war aid or war charities of the character enumerated above without having first obtained a license issued by the state council of defense.

All applications for licenses to solicit for war aid or war charities shall be in writing, addressed to the state council of defense, and shall state the particular war aid or war charity for which the applicant desires to solicit, together with the amount desired to be raised and the method and channel of disbursing or distributing the same, and whether or not compensation or a commission is to be paid for the subscriptions, funds or other property obtained by such applicant, and the amount of such compensation or commission. If such application shall be on behalf of an individual it shall state the name, age, sex, residence, business and occupation of the applicant. If such application shall be on behalf of a society, club, association or corporation then the application shall state the name, office or place of business, whether incorporated or unincorporated, and if incorporated when and where incorporated, and the objects and purposes of such applicant, and the names and residences of its officers. Every such application, if made on behalf of an individual, shall be signed and sworn to by such applicant, and if made on behalf of any society, club, association or corporation shall be signed in the name of such society, club, association or corporation by the president or secretary thereof, and shall be sworn to by such president or secretary. (Approved June 25, 1917.)

PAY OF ADJUTANT-GENERAL.

The adjutant-general shall receive $7,000 per year. The adjutant-general who is the chief assistant to the adjutant-general, and the assistant quartermaster-general, shall each receive $5,000 per year; the captain and assistant quartermaster in charge of the state arsenal shall receive $1,500 per year. (Approved June 22, 1917.)

PAY OF STATE MILITIA.

Enlisted men of the national guard and naval reserve shall receive per day for services actually performed when on active service for suppression of riot and for the enforcement of the laws, according to their respective grades, as follows:

a. Sergeants major, quartermaster, commissary and ordnance sergeants, or of attached to the division, brigades, regiments or separate battalions; first class signal and hospital corps sergeants; chief trumpeters and principal musicians, first sergeants and company quartermaster sergeants, drum majors and color sergeants in the national guard, and chief petty officers and petty officers, first class in the seaman branch of the naval reserve, $2.75.

b. Battalion sergeants major and trumpeter sergeants, chief mechanics of batteries, sergeants of the hospital and signal corps, and of the line in the national guard, petty officers, first-class, except in the seaman branch, and petty officers, second class, in the naval reserve, $2.60.

c. Corporals cooks, musicians and mechanics in the national guard and petty officers, third class, and buglers, in the naval reserve, $2.25.

d. Privates and seamen, all grades, $2; provided that from and after the passage of this act and until the determination of the national emergency as set forth in the act of congress entitled "An act to authorize the president to increase temporarily the military establishment of the United States," approved by the president May 18, 1917, the pay of enlisted men of the national guard and naval militia while in active service of the state shall be at the rate of $1 per day. (Approved June 25, 1917.)

MOBILIZATION EXPENSES.

The sum of $750,000 or so much thereof as may be necessary is appropriated for the supply, clothing, equipment, pay, transportation, preparation of camp sites and cantonments, mobilization, subsistence and incidental expenses of the national guard and naval militia, volunteers or other organizations of this state, authorized, organized or furnished by the state on a call, orders, request or requisition made or hereafter made or issued by the president of the United States, or organized, authorized or ordered for duty by the governor.

ORDINARY EXPENSES OF STATE TROOPS.

The sum of $452,917 per annum, or so much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated to pay the ordinary and contingent expenses of the Illinois national guard and Illinois naval battalion as follows:

For salaries and wages, $85,265.15 per annum for pay of officers, enlisted men, clerks and civilians.

For traveling expenses, $55,931.37 per annum.

For operating supplies and expenses, other than salaries and wages and traveling expenses, $311,720.48 per annum.

The further sum of $50,000 is appropriated as an emergency fund to be used by the governor in case of emergency when the Illinois national guard or Illinois naval battalion are called into active duty by the governor to protect the life and property of the citizens of the state. (Approved May 5, 1917.)

MOBILIZATION DEFICIENCY.

Whereas, the 49th general assembly, house bill No. 633, approved June 28, 1915, appropriated to pay the ordinary and contingent expenses of the Illinois national guard and Illinois naval reserve the sum of $389,917 per annum for the biennial period ending June 30, 1917.

Whereas, during the month of June, 1916, within the life of said appropriation, the president of the United States called upon the governor of the state of Illinois to furnish a prescribed quota of troops for Mexican service; and

Whereas, the governor of Illinois, in conformity with this legal demand, mobilized the indicated quota in excess of 10,000 soldiers; and

Whereas, the financial burden of such mobilization of troops falls in part both upon the federal and state governments; and

Whereas, by reason of such mobilization there were of necessity and under the law expended certain sums from the appropriation made by the 49th general assembly for the purpose of paying the ordinary and contingent expenses of the Illinois national guard and Illinois naval reserve for the biennial period ending June 30, 1917; now, therefore,

Be it enacted, etc. That the sum of $196,945.99 is hereby appropriated to meet the deficiencies to pay the ordinary and contingent expenses of the Illinois national guard and Illinois naval reserve to the end of the biennial period ending June 30, 1917.

PROTECTION OF MUNITION PLANTS, ETC.

Any person who shall by means of dynamite, grant powder or other explosives, or by the ignition of explosives contained in any powder magazine, mill or manufactory, or any munitions plant, fort, armory or arsenal, explode, burn or otherwise injure or damage any powder magazine, mill or manufactory, or any munitions plant, fort, armory or arsenal, shall be guilty of a felony, and on conviction thereof, if any death shall result from such explosion, damage or injury, shall suffer the punishment of death or imprisonment in the penitentiary for his natural life or for a term not less than fourteen years; and if no death shall result, such person shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary for a term not exceeding twenty-five years nor less than ten years. If the accused is found guilty by a jury, they shall fix the punishment by their verdict. Upon a plea of guilty the punishment shall be fixed by the court.

Any person who shall destroy, damage or injure, or render unusable, any gas, electric, telegraph or telephone plants, or interfere with the conveyance or transmission of the product thereof, may, upon conviction, be punished by a fine of not less than $100 nor more than $5,000 or by imprisonment in the penitentiary for not less than one year nor more than five years.

Any person who shall interfere with, damage or injure any source of supply for water, food or provisions for troops in the employment of the state or of the United States shall be punished by a fine of not less than $100 nor more than $5,000 and imprisonment in the penitentiary for not less than one year nor more than twenty years. (Approved June 26, 1917.)

FORTUNE TELLING PROHIBITED.

Whoever shall obtain money or property from another by holding himself out as skilled in fortune telling by means of card reading, palmistry, clairvoyance, astrology, seership, spirit mediumship or any crafty science, or by any other devices or practices whereby money is obtained from the general public on the pretense of the exercise of occult or psychic powers, shall for each offense be fined not exceeding $500. The act does not include spiritualism.

Whoever knowingly prints, publishes, distributes or circulates, in any newspaper, periodical, magazine or other publication or publications, or by display signs, circulars, handbills or any other means, any advertisement of any person's ability, skill or power in telling fortunes or revealing the future, or offering advice of any kind or nature by means of occult or psychic powers, faculties or forces, shall for each offense be fined not exceeding $200. (Became a law June 26, 1917, without the governor's signature.)

LOAN BUSINESS REGULATED.

It shall be unlawful to make any loan of money, credit, goods or things in action in the amount or to the value of $300 or less, whether secured or unsecured, and charge, contract for or receive a greater rate of interest than 7 per centum per annum therefor, without first obtaining a license from the department of trade and commerce. Application for such license shall be in writing and shall contain the full name and address, both of the residence and place of business of the applicant; also the county and municipality with street and number, if any, where the business is to be conducted. Every such applicant, at the time of making such application, shall pay to the department of trade and commerce the sum of $50 as an annual license fee and in full payment of all expenses of examination under and administration of this act. The applicant shall, also, at the same time, file with the department of trade and commerce a bond for $1,000, with one or more sureties to be approved by the department.

Every licensee may loan any sum of money, goods or things in action, not exceeding in amount or value the sum of \$300, and may charge interest at a rate not to exceed $3\frac{1}{2}$ per centum per month. Interest shall not be payable in advance or compounded and shall be computed on unpaid balances. In addition to the interest no further or other charge or amount whatsoever for any examination, service, brokerage, commission, attorney fee (except for foreclosure or entry of judgment) shall be made. (Approved June 14, 1917.)

MILITARY PREPAREDNESS.

Senate Joint Resolution No. 16.

Whereas, it is essential that the United States of America, as one of the foremost nations of the world, should be prepared at all times to defend itself against attacks by hostile forces, to protect its citizens in the exercise of their just rights and privileges and to prevent unwarranted curtailment or restriction of such rights and privileges; and

Whereas, the organization, in an emergency, of an army of untrained civilians to repel an invasion or to vindicate the nation's just rights or those of its citizens, works a great and severe hardship on such civilians in that they, without sufficient military training, may be called upon to meet a hostile army, highly trained and efficient in the art of making war; and

Whereas, a system of universal military training will not only prepare the citizens of this nation for efficient service in the event of war, but when properly administered will promote the beneficial physical development of those subject to such training and will instill in the citizens of our country a sense of democracy, patriotism, discipline and responsibility to duty; and,

Whereas, the want or lack of such a system of universal military training may result in disaster to our country; now, therefore,

Be it resolved, by the senate of the state of Illinois, the house of representatives concurring herein, That the general assembly of the state of Illinois is in accord with and favors the principle of universal military training and requests our senators and representatives in congress to employ every effort to secure the enactment by congress of a law establishing in the United States of America a system of universal and compulsory military training, and that copies of this resolution be transmitted to our senators and representatives in congress by the secretary of state under seal of the state.

Adopted by the senate March 27, 1917.

Concurred in by the house of representatives April 5, 1917.

WAR SUPPORT PLEDGED.

Senate Joint Resolution No. 3.

Whereas, diplomatic relations with the German empire have been terminated by the action of our government at Washington,

Therefore, be it resolved by the senate of the state of Illinois, the house of representatives concurring herein, That we pledge ourselves as representatives of the people of the state of Illinois to support the government of the United States in maintaining the honor and dignity of our country, and that a copy of these resolutions be transmitted to the president of the United States.

Adopted by the senate Feb. 6, 1917.

Concurred in by the house of representatives Feb. 6, 1917.

BLUE SKY LAW.

No dealer in stocks, bonds, debentures or other securities of any kind or character, not exempt in this act, shall sell or negotiate for sale, invite offers for or inquiries about such securities, by personal solicitation, letters, circulars or otherwise, for the purpose of making a disposal of any such property for value without first being licensed so to do. Every corporation, copartnership or company, and every association formed for any lawful purpose, now or hereafter organized in this state, whether incorporated or unincorporated, which shall sell, advertise for or negotiate for sale any stocks, bonds, debentures or other securities of any kind or character, not exempt in this act, to any person or persons in this state, other than those specifically exempt, shall be known, for the purposes of this act, as a domestic investment company; and every corporation, copartnership or company and association organized in or under the laws of any other state, territory or government which shall sell, advertise for or negotiate for sale any stocks, bonds, debentures or other securities of any kind or character, not exempt under this act, to any person or persons in this state other than those specifically exempt, shall be known, for the purpose of this act, as a foreign investment company, and these, whether foreign or domestic, including any individual engaged now or at any time hereafter in the sale or disposition of bonds, stocks, debentures and other securities of any kind or character in this state as contemplated by this act, shall also be known and designated as "dealer."

The secretary of state of the Illinois shall possess and have all necessary powers, and shall perform all the duties which may be required to properly and efficiently enforce and administer the requirements and provisions of this act.

No dealer or licensee under this act shall sell or offer for sale, directly or indirectly, any such property for value without first filing in the office of the secretary of state of this state all lawfully required information concerning the same and the issuer thereof, and no dealer shall sell any securities disapproved or declared fraudulent by the secretary of state.

The provisions of this act shall not apply to the disposal of securities;

- (a) To a corporation; or
- (b) To public sinking fund trustees; or
- (c) To a licensee under this act; or
- (d) Being securities listed or dealt in upon an organized stock exchange or organized curb in this state or in any state or territory of the United States approved therefor by the secretary of state or securities senior thereto; or
- (e) Being bonds of a municipality, government or governmental agency or other public securities; or
- (f) Whereof actual current sales at prices quoted shall have been from time to time, for not less than one year next preceding the transaction authorized by this clause, published in the tabulated market reports of a daily newspaper of general circulation published in this state or an adjoining state; or

(h) Being the stock, notes or other securities of, belonging to or pledged to any national bank, or any bank, trust company or insurance company organized and under the supervision of the department of trade and commerce or other department of the state of Illinois, or building and loan association organized and doing business under the laws of this state; or

(i) Being bonds, stocks or other securities of quasi-public corporations the issue of whose securities is regulated by a public service commission or board of any state or territory of the United States or any foreign government; or

(j) Being securities listed in a standard manual or in manuals approved by the secretary of state of the state of Illinois; or

(k) Being stocks, bonds or other securities sold at judicial, executor's, administrator's or trustee in bankruptcy sale.

A disposal of one's own property, of any kind named above, for the owner's account exclusively shall not, of itself, be held to amount to a dealing therein when such disposal—

(a) Is not made in the course of continuing or repeated transactions of a similar nature by such owner; or,

(b) Is made to an incorporator, antecedent, promoter or one who is already a holder of the fully paid stock of the Illinois corporation issuing the property so disposed of by it; or

(c) Being made by the issuer of the property so disposed of, or his transferee, consists of negotiable promissory notes given for full value and for the sole purpose of evidencing or extending the time of payment of the price of goods, wares or merchandise purchased or dealt in by such issuer in the ordinary course of his business; commercial paper, or other evidence of indebtedness, running not more than twelve months; or,

(d) Is made to a bank, trust company, insurance company, building and loan association or to a licensed dealer in said property.

Upon the payment of a fee of $10 the license required by this act shall be issued by the secretary of state to any applicant (for himself and his specified agents), who shall file in his office:

(a) Evidence (to be confirmed or verified by the secretary of state's investigation as he may deem necessary) establishing the applicant's good business repute, and showing for what length of time and in what capacities the applicant has been engaged in the kind of business sought to be licensed;

(b) A statement of the name and of the residence and business addresses of all the persons directly interested, as principals, officers, directors and as managing or sales agents, in the business for which license is sought and the nature of the interest of each; a verified statement under oath (where oath is not waived in this act) by the proper person or officer, duly authorized so to do, showing the actual assets and liabilities of the applicant, certified copies of charter, or articles of incorporation, constitution and by-laws, and such other information touching its affairs and purposes as said secretary of state may require;

(c) A statement of the class or classes of property proposed to be dealt in;

(d) All of the evidence, exhibits and papers of every kind, excepting properly certified public documents, shall be verified by the oath of the applicant in manner and form required by the secretary of state.

The applicant shall bring the information required by clauses (b) and (c) of this section up to date by filing in said office supplementary statements whenever requested by the secretary of state.

Any dealer or agent of a dealer violating the provisions of this act shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined for each offense not less than $100 nor more than $1,000, or be imprisoned in the county jail for not more than one year, or shall be subject to both such fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the court. (Became a law June 29, 1917, without the governor's signature.)

MUNICIPAL RECREATIONS.

The city council of all cities of over 500,000 inhabitants shall have power and authority to order and direct that any city official may provide for or enter into any contract with any person or persons, firms or corporations for the purpose of arranging for the holding or giving of any general public exhibitions, concerts, dances, entertainments or celebrations, or on any pier owned or controlled by said city extending out into any lake or harbor adjacent to said city, and to provide for the payment of any expense necessarily incurred in the contracting for holding or giving of the same out of the miscellaneous receipts of such city not otherwise appropriated for. (Became a law June 26, 1917, without the governor's signature.)

ADDITIONAL JUDGES.

As it appears by the federal census of 1910 that the number of inhabitants of the county of Cook is over 2,400,000 and that therefore the general assembly is authorized under section 23 of article 6 of the constitution of this state to provide for nine (9) additional judges of the Circuit or Superior courts of the county, therefore the number of judges of the Superior court of the county of Cook is increased from eighteen, its present number, to twenty.

On Tuesday after the first Monday of November in the year 1917, and every six years thereafter, the two additional judges of the Superior court herein provided for shall be elected, to hold their offices for a term of six years and until their successors shall be elected and qualified. The nomination for the additional offices shall be made in the same manner as is now or shall hereafter be provided by law for the nomination of candidates for the existing offices of judges of the Superior court of Cook county. (Approved June 25, 1917.)

PRIVATE BANKS PROHIBITED.

The title of the state banking act of June 16, 1887, is amended so as to make it read: "An act concerning banks and banking." It amends sections 2, 4, 7, 8, 10, 11 and 12 of the act and adds to it after section 15 a new section to be known as section 15½, prohibiting all natural persons, firms or partnerships from transacting the business of banking, or receiving money on deposit, and from transacting certain other operations frequently transacted by banking corporations, and from using the term bank or banker. Section 15½ is as follows:

After Jan. 1, 1921, no natural person or natural persons, firm or partnership shall transact the business of banking or the business of receiving money upon deposit, or shall use the word "Bank" or "Banker" in connection with said business or shall transact the business of transmitting money to foreign countries or buying and selling foreign money or receiving money on deposit to be transmitted to foreign countries provided that express, steamship and telegraph companies may continue their business of transmitting money and receiving money to be transmitted, and provided, further, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to prohibit banks incorporated under the laws of this state or of the United States from appointing natural persons as agents to receive deposits of savings in and through the public schools. Any person or persons violating this section shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall, upon conviction thereof, be punished by a fine of not more than $1,000 or by imprisonment in the county jail for not more than one year, or by both such fine and imprisonment, and the attorney-general or state's attorney of the county in which any such violation occurs may restrain such violation by a bill in equity to be filed in the Circuit court of such county.

It shall be the duty of the secretary of state for this state to submit these amendments to the bank act to a vote of the people for their ratification, at the next general election, and the question shall be "For the amendments to the general banking law," or "Against the amendments to the general banking law." And if approved by a majority of the votes cast at such election for or against such amendments, the governor shall thereupon issue his proclamation that these amendments are then in force. (Approved June 22, 1917.)

CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION.

Senate Joint Resolution No. 1.

Whereas, The provisions of the constitution of this state are in many respects inadequate to the present and prospective needs of the people; and

Whereas, By its provisions it is not possible to submit to the people a proposition to amend more than one article of the constitution at the same time; therefore, be it

Resolved by the senate, the house of representatives concurring herein, That a convention is necessary to revise, alter or amend the constitution of this state, and that the question of the calling of such convention shall be submitted to the electors of this state at the next general election, as provided for in article 14 of the present constitution.

Adopted by the senate Jan. 24, 1917.

Concurred in by the house of representatives March 14, 1917.

REGISTRATION BY ELECTION COMMISSIONERS.

Immediately following the first day of registration and up to and until noon of the day before the second day of registration, any voter who shall make affidavit before the board of election commissioners or its clerk authorized to administer oaths, that he was unable to go to his polling place on the first day of registration and that he expects to be, by reason of absence from the city or sickness, unable to go to the polls on the second day of registration, may file with such board an application for registration. The board of election commissioners or its clerk shall administer to him the oath required of applicants for registration and shall require him to answer the questions required and shall receive his answers. The questions, with the answers thereto, shall be upon the same blank and immediately following the oath as above provided for and shall be signed and certified to be correct by the applicant.

All such affidavits, together with the questions and answers certified to as required in the office of the election board, shall be inclosed and sealed in envelopes by precincts and be delivered by them to the judges of the respective precincts, together with the registers, on the day before the second day of registration and the judges during their session on said second day of registration shall enter such names and answers in the registers in the same manner as though such persons were registering in person. The affidavits, with the questions and answers, shall be returned to the office of the election board with the other returns.

In the event that a voter shall, by reason of illness or absence from the city, be unable to appear in person at the office of the board of election commissioners during the interval between the first and second days of registration, he may, upon application made by him or by another for him, to the board of election commissioners, be furnished a blank such as is provided for herein which may be executed by him before any clerk of court of record, and under its seal, and returned to the board of election commissioners, who shall cause such voter to be registered in the same manner as though he had appeared before the board in person.

At every election held in each city, village or incorporated town between the general registrations, the registers of the last general registration with additions of names registered in the office of the board of election commissioners shall be used.

From and after the November election in each even numbered year and until and including the thirtieth day of September in the next following even numbered year, the office of the board of election commissioners shall be open during business hours of each day, except Sundays and legal holidays, and excepting the twenty-eight days immediately preceding any regular election, for the purpose of registering applicants for registration. Such applicants shall be put under oath by the board or its duly authorized clerk and shall answer the same questions as are required to be answered at general registrations, and such names and answers shall be entered in the general registers. All voters so registered and otherwise qualified shall be entitled to vote at all elections and primaries as if registered at the general registration.

At least twenty days before the last day of registration in the office of the board of election commissioners the board shall cause to be published in each daily newspaper published in such city, a notice of the day and date when such registration shall cease.

On the twentieth and twenty-first days preceding any regular election a canvass of all names on such books of registry for each precinct shall be made by the clerks of election.

At any special election occurring in a portion of such city, village or town only, or which is to fill a vacancy occurring in a single office, and at all judicial elections, at which no other than judicial officers are to be elected, there shall not be a previous canvass of the registry. But at special or judicial election any legal voter of a precinct shall be entitled to vote in case he shall have been duly registered at the office of the board of election commissioners at least ten days prior thereto. (Became a law June 29, 1917, without the governor's signature.)

VOTING BY ABSENT ELECTORS.

Any qualified elector of the state of Illinois having duly registered where such registration is required, who expects in the course of his business or duties to be absent from the county in which he is a qualified elector on the day of holding any special, general or primary election at which any presidential preference is indicated or any candidates are chosen or elected, for any congressional, state, district, county, town, city, village, precinct or judicial offices, or at which questions of public policy are submitted, may vote at such election as hereinafter provided.

Any elector expecting to be absent from the county of his residence on the day of such election may not more than fifteen nor less than three days prior to the date of such election make application to the county clerk or, where existing, to the board of election commissioners, or other officer or officers charged with the duty of furnishing ballots for such election in his voting precinct, for an official ballot for the precinct to be voted at such election.

Application for such ballot shall be made on a blank to be furnished by the county clerk or the board of election commissioners or other officer or officers charged with the duty of furnishing ballots.

Immediately upon the receipt of such application and not more than fifteen nor less than three days prior to such election, it shall be the duty of such county clerk or board of election commissioners to mail, postage prepaid, an official ballot or ballots, or such officer or officers shall deliver the ballot or ballots to any qualified elector applying in person at the office of such officer or officers and subscribing to the foregoing application not more than ten nor less than three secular days before said election.

It shall be the duty of the county clerk or board of election commissioners to fold the ballot or ballots in the manner specified by the statute for folding ballots prior to their deposit in the ballot box, and he shall inclose such ballot or ballots in an envelope unsealed to be furnished by him, which envelope shall bear upon the face thereof the name, official title, and postoffice address of such officer or officers, and upon the other side a printed affidavit in substantially the following form:

"I, do solemnly swear that I am a resident of the precinct of the town of or of the ward in the city of residing at in said city or town in the county of and State of Illinois, and entitled to vote in such precinct at the election to be held on; that my business or duties are; and that in the course of my business or duties I expect to be absent from the said county of my residence on the date of said election. I further swear that I marked the inclosed ballot in secret."

Such absent voter shall make and subscribe to the affidavits provided for in the application and on the return envelope for the ballot before an officer authorized by law to administer oaths and such voter shall exhibit the ballot to such officer unmarked, and shall thereupon in the presence of such officer and of no other person mark such ballot or ballots, but in such manner that such officer cannot know how such ballot is marked, and such ballot or ballots shall then in the presence of such officer be refolded by such voter in the manner required to be folded before depositing the same in the ballot box and be in the presence of such officer deposited in such envelope and the envelope securely sealed. Such officer shall then indorse his certificate upon the back of said envelope and the envelope shall be mailed by such voter, postage prepaid, to the officer issuing the ballot or, if more convenient, it may be delivered in person, but in any event it must be returned into the hands of the officer in sufficient time for said ballot or ballots to be delivered by such officer to the proper polling place before the closing of the polls on the day of the election.

Upon receipt of such absent voter's ballot, the officer or officers described shall forthwith inclose the same unopened, together with the application made by the absent voter in a larger or carrier envelope which shall be securely sealed and indorsed with the name and official title of such officer and the words, "This envelope contains an absent voter's ballot and must be opened only at the polls on election day immediately after said polls are closed," together with the number and description of the precinct in which said ballot is to be voted, and such officer shall thereafter safely keep the same in his office until delivered by him as provided in the next section.

In case an absent voter's ballot is received by the officer prior to the delivery of the official ballots to the judges of election of the precinct in which the elector resides, such ballot envelope and application, sealed in the carrier envelope, shall be inclosed in such package and therewith delivered to the judges of such precinct. In case the official ballots for such precinct have been delivered to the judges of election at the time of the receipt by the county clerk, board of election commissioners, or other officer or officers of such absent voter's ballot, such officer shall immediately inclose the envelope containing the absent voter's ballot, together with his application therefor, in a larger or carrier envelope which shall be securely sealed and addressed on the face to the judges of election, mailing the same, postage prepaid, to such judges of election, or if more convenient, such officer may deliver the ballot to the judges of election in person or by duly deputized agent. All absent voters' ballots returned to the officer supplying the same too late to be delivered to the proper polling place before the closing of the polls on the day of election shall be indorsed by the official receiving the same with the day and hour of receipt and shall be safely kept unopened by such officer for the period of time required for the preservation of ballots used at such election, and shall then, without being opened, be destroyed in like manner as the used ballots of such election.

At the close of the regular balloting and at the closing of the polls the judges of election of each voting precinct shall proceed to cast the absent voters' ballots separately, and as each absent voter's ballot is taken shall open the outer or carrier envelope, announce the absent voter's name, and compare the signature upon the application with the signature upon the affidavit on the ballot envelope. In case the judges find the affidavits properly executed, that the signatures correspond, that the applicant is a duly qualified elector in the precinct, and that the applicant has not voted in person at such election, they shall open the envelope containing the absent voter's ballot in such manner as not to deface or destroy the affidavit thereon, or mark or tear the ballots therein, and take out the ballot or ballots without unfolding or permitting the same to be unfolded or examined, and having indorsed the ballot in like manner as other ballots are required to be indorsed, shall deposit the same in the proper ballot box or boxes and enter the absent voter's name in the poll book the same as if he had been present and voted in person.

In case such affidavit or the certificate of the officer before whom the same is taken is found to be insufficient or that the signatures do not correspond, or that the applicant is not a duly qualified elector in such precinct or that the ballot envelope is open or has been opened and resealed, or that said voter has already voted in person at such election, such vote shall not be allowed, but without opening the absent voter's envelope the judge of such election shall mark across the face thereof "Rejected," giving the reason therefor. (Approved June 11, 1917.)

NEW REGISTRATION LAW.

A new general registration shall be made by the board of registry in every year in which a presidential election occurs and just prior thereto, the first day of such registration being on the Saturday immediately preceding the Tuesday four weeks before such election, and the second day of registration being on Tuesday, three weeks before such election. The general registration held before and for the presidential election of November, 1916, as revised prior to the taking effect of this act, shall be taken to be, and shall be, the first general registration for the purposes of this act.

At all elections and primary elections held in any such city or incorporated town, between the general registrations herein provided for, the preceding general registration shall be used, but the same shall be revised and added to as hereinafter provided for.

For the purpose of enabling voters to become registered between the general registrations the office of the board of election commissioners of any city or incorporated town shall remain open from the hour of 9 a. m. until 9 p. m. on each day (except Sundays and legal holidays) subsequent to the last preceding primary or election day until and including the thirtieth day prior to the next succeeding primary or election day and on the thirtieth day the offices shall remain open from 9 a. m. until 11 p. m. provided that when a primary or election shall be held within ten days succeeding any other primary or election no registration shall be allowed at the offices of the board of election commissioners after the thirtieth day preceding the prior primary or election, but any qualified elector may register at the places designated for the purposes of registration at the session of the board of revision as hereinafter provided for. The board of revision shall indicate on the affidavits and registers that such person so registering is not a qualified voter for the next succeeding primary election but is a qualified voter for the primary or election falling within ten days after the next succeeding primary or election. Such names so registered by the board of revision shall be deemed to be qualified voters unless erased from the registers by the board of election commissioners or the County court. And in addition thereto the board of election commissioners shall designate convenient and accessible places in each ward and incorporated town at which such voters may apply for registration. The board of election commissioners shall designate which precincts shall be combined for the purposes of registration at a single place, but shall not combine less than five nor more than ten precincts contiguous to each other for registration at the same designated place. The board of election commissioners shall select three judges and two clerks of election from the judges and clerks of the precincts for which the board of registry is to sit to act as a board of registry for each and every two of the designated places of registration. One of such judges and one of such clerks shall be affiliated with the political party represented by the minority of the commissioners on the board of election commissioners and two of such judges and one of such clerks shall be affiliated with the other political party represented on such board of election commissioners. If there should be three political parties represented on such board of election commissioners then each of such parties shall be entitled to one judge on such board of registry. Such board of registry shall sit one evening at each of two places so designated from 6 p. m. until 10 p. m. on the twenty-seventh and twenty-eighth days preceding any primary or election for the purpose of registering such voters as may apply for registration.

Any voter of a precinct whose name may be improperly erased from the registers by reason of any defect in notice, insufficiency of address or other reason, may apply personally in writing under oath to the board of election commissioners for restoration to the registers. Such applications may be filed between the hours of 9 a. m. and 6 p. m., not later than the fourth day preceding such primary or election and said board shall sit to hear any such applications between the hours of 10 a. m. and 9 p. m. on the fourth, fifth and sixth days preceding such primary or election and if the facts show that such voter actually and in truth resides at the address indicated on the registers his or her name shall be restored to the registers forthwith.

The County court of the county in which such city or incorporated town is located shall on the third and fourth days preceding any election or primary especially sit to hear such applications as may be made to it to be placed upon the registers of any particular precinct.

In order more fully to carry out this act the board of election commissioners shall cause to be constituted from among its employees a bureau of registration which shall have immediate charge of all matters and records pertaining to the registration of voters in the offices of the board, under the supervision and control of the board and its chief clerk. Such bureau shall consist of a superintendent and assistant superintendent and such number of other employees as may be necessary to carry out the work of registration in the offices of such board. The superintendent shall be a member of the leading political party represented by a majority of the commissioners on the board and the assistant superintendent shall be a member of the leading political party represented by the minority member of the board; and the remaining employees constituting such bureau shall be apportioned between the two leading political parties in the proportion of two members of the leading political party represented by a majority of the commissioners on the board to one member of the leading political party represented by the minority member of the board. The superintendent, assistant superintendent, and other employees in the bureau of registration shall be selected by the board of election commissioners from lists of three or more names for each office or position to be filled, such lists to be submitted to the board by the managing committees of the respective two leading political parties in the city within ten days after notice to either of such committees that a vacancy exists which is to be filled by a person who is affiliated with the party represented by such committee. (Became law June 23, 1917, without the governor's signature).

PUBLICATION OF ELECTION LITERATURE.

It shall be unlawful for any person or group of persons, or any firm, organization, association, league or other body to publish, circulate or distribute any pamphlet, circular, handbill or other printed matter relative to the candidacy of any person or persons seeking nomination or election to any public office unless the same shall bear thereon in plain type the name and address of the person or persons; or the names and addresses of the officers of any firm, organization, association, league or other body causing such matter to be published and distributed and in the event that two or more persons join in causing said matter to be published and distributed then the names and addresses of each of such persons shall be imprinted thereon in plain type: Provided, that if more than ten persons shall join in publishing and distributing such matter, then it shall be sufficient if the names and addresses of ten of such persons shall be imprinted thereon as aforesaid. And provided further, that it shall not be necessary for any domestic corporation, in good standing and organized at least one year prior to publishing such matter, to print as aforesaid more than its full corporate name and address and the name of its chief executive officer.

Nothing in this act shall be construed to apply to any matter or thing published in any newspaper, magazine or journal recognized and circulating as such, which matter is published by such newspaper, magazine or journal on its own behalf and upon its own responsibility and for which it shall not charge or receive any compensation whatsoever, nor shall it apply to any publication issued by any legally constituted election officials in the performance of their duties. (Approved June 26, 1917.)

PLEDGES BY CANDIDATES.

It shall be unlawful for any candidate, in any primary or general election, for any elective office in this state, to promise, pledge or to pledge or agree with any person, corporation, association or other organization, directly or indirectly, that, for and in consideration of a vote or votes, or the influence or support or assistance, financial or otherwise, of any such person, corporation, association or other organization, he will, if elected, perform or refrain from performing, as the case may be, any official act to or for the benefit or advantage of such person, corporation, association or other organization, or support or oppose, as the case may be, directly or indirectly, any bill or measure pending before or to be presented to the general assembly of this state, or the nomination, confirmation or election of any candidate for any office necessary to perfect the organization of the general assembly of this state; Provided, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to prevent any candidate from making orally or in writing, in private or public, a statement as to his view, belief, opinion or position with respect to any public question or issue.

It shall be unlawful for any person, corporation, association or other organization to request, solicit, induce or otherwise secure or attempt to secure, directly or indirectly, from any candidate, in any primary or general election, for any elective office in this state, for and in consideration of a vote or votes or influence or support or assistance of any kind or character, any promise, pledge or agreement that such candidate, if elected, will perform or refrain from performing, as the case may be, any official act to or for the benefit or advantage of such person, corporation, association or other organization, or support or oppose, as the case may be, directly or indirectly, any bill or measure pending before or to be presented to the general assembly of this state, or the nomination, confirmation or election of any candidate for any office necessary to perfect the organization of the general assembly of this state: Provided, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to prevent any person, corporation, association or other organization from making any statement, private or public, announcing his, its or their choice of candidates for any such elective office.

Any violation of any provision of this act shall be punishable by a fine of not less than $200 or more than $1,000, or by imprisonment in the county jail for a period not exceeding sixty days, or both, in the discretion of the court. Any candidate for any elective office in this state who shall violate any provision of this act, if elected to such office, shall, in addition to any other penalty or penalties imposed for the violation of any provision of this act, forfeit all right and claim to hold such office, and such office shall be declared vacant by the court. (Became a law June 26, 1917, without the governor's signature.)

PAY OF ELECTION JUDGES AND CLERKS.

All judges and clerks of election in counties of the first and second class shall be allowed the sum of $3 per day for their services, provided that in all cities in such counties under the jurisdiction of a board of election commissioners the judges and clerks of election shall be allowed $5 per day, and judges and clerks of election in counties of the third class shall be allowed $5 per day for their services, provided, that all judges and clerks of election in cities having a population of 500,000 inhabitants or over shall be allowed $7 for their services for each regular election and for each primary, and $5 for each registration and revision. (Approved Feb. 27, 1917.)
